Mr. Jos. Dorricott, who has been for a two months' trip to the old country has returned looking fine, after his trip which he says was enjoyed by himself and wife immensely.

Mrs. J. Saxsmith is the happy mother of a young son.

The long looked for lacrosse match came off at last on the grounds here last Friday afternoon when the locals suffered defeat at the hands of the T. A. S. of Peterborough, in the last game of the series for the handsome cup put up by Mr. R. R. Hall, of the latter named town, for the winners of the T.V.L. The ball was faced shortly after four o'clock when the game started off good and swift. The both teams were out to win and they put up the best and swiftest game that has been played this year in that series.

In the first quarter neither side could score even after all the trials that was made on both nets. In the second quarter Peterborough, by some nice combination work landed one in the locals nets which they did not seem satisfied with, but had to put in another in this quarter. The game was very fast but the boys did not seem to be able to get it by O'Brien, who played a star game in goal for the visitors. In the third quarter Ferguson got a good swift pass that was speedily put in the nets the score at the end of this was two to one good to the visitors. At the commencement of the fourth and last quarter the game got good and fast the best that has been seen here this sar. Both teams got one each which could not be made the tie, which the locals tried hard to do, but the visitors kept them back.

A special feature about the game was that there was no rag of any description, both teams playing for all that was in them all the time. It was a game to the finish. The spectators who witnessed the game were well pleased with the exhibition as even if there boys lost they saw a good game of lacrosse. The line-up was as follows:—

T. A. S.		Havelock.
O'Brien	Goal.	T. Dineen
Boyle	Point.	J. Main
Mahoney	Cover point.	Ford
McCabe	1st defence.	Dorricott
Meagher	2nd defence.	Andrews
Crowley	3rd defence.	Lancaster
Parnell	Centre.	McGuire
Gorham	3rd home.	Easterbrook
	2nd home.
Donovan		S.Th bbs
W. Donovan	1st home.	Sullivan
Judd	Inside home.	Ferguson
Durocher	Outside home.	Powers
Morris	Field Captain.	Henderson
E. Dillon	Goal Umpires.	Rose
Hickey	Time Keepers.	Johnston

The local baseball club will likely go T.V.B.L. This match is going to be a good one, and if the Campbellford bunch winr every one is a tie, and if the locals win, they are ahead of the league. So it is up to the boys to do something and win out on Thursday.

NORTH GREY TRIAL

Mr. A. G. MacKay, Respondent, Was Examined at Length.

ADMITS A LOAN OF R. ANGUS

Knew Nothing of Any Secret Organization of Liberals—Wm. Farrow Swears He Received Five Dollars From Roy McMurchy—The Soo Trial—Trip of the Minnie M.—North Norfolk Particulars.

Owen Sound, Sept. 14.—The trial of the petition against the election of A. G. MacKay, Liberal member for North Grey in the Local House, began yesterday afternoon before Chief Justice Moss and Mr. Justice Street. The petitioner, Mr. G. M. Boyd, a horse buyer, was represented by Messrs. George Tate Blackstock, K.C., N. F. Paterson, K.C., James Baird and H. G. Tucker, and Mr. MacKay by Messrs. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., J. M. McEvoy, and H. E. Sampson. Mr. C. G. Grant was registrar. There was a very large attendance from all parts of the riding, but especially from the townships of Keppel and Sarawak, where the chief offences are alleged to have taken place.

Mr. MacKay Examined.

Mr. MacKay, the respondent, was the first witness. He denied any knowledge of any secret organization in the Liberal ranks to send strangers into the riding.

Mr. MacKay, in reply to questions, admitted knowing Dr. Hough, Wiarton; J. P. Raven, Roy McMurchy, Chas. Ward, James A. Frost, Duncan Marshall and George A. Ferguson, the latter of whom he put in charge of his committee room.

Loan to Robert Angus.

Mr. MacKay was then examined minutely about a loan of $10 to a youth named Robert Angus from Keppel on Dec. 31, 1901. He said that Angus came to his office and asked him for a loan of $5 to make purchases. He had not enough change and lent Angus $10. Angus spoke about coming back with the change, and witness said he could bring in the $10 when he came to town again in a few days. He did not know where Angus was until about two months ago, when he heard Angus was in Gore Bay. He was not aware that the prtitionor had been chasing in vain the people who had Angus in charge. He wrote to Angus at Gore Bay to get back the money, but never heard from him. He took no note or receipt, but had the money charged up in the books. An account was sent out in the ordinary way, but there was no return. The account books were then produced. The original entry was at page 525 of the day book.

Alleged Payment of $5.

Wm. Farrow swore that after he had voted, Roy McMurchy who had promised to see him later earlier in the day, met him at the Royal Hotel and they crossed over to the Central where McMurchy gave him $5.

The trial continues to-day.

Trip of the Minnie M.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 14.—The protest against the return of Mr. C. N. Smith to the Legislature went to trial yesterday before Chancellor Boyd and Mr. Justice Teetzel. The petitioners were represented by Messrs. E. A. DuVernet, Toronto, and Boyce & Price of Sault Ste. Marie. Messrs. George H. Watson, K.C., Toronto, with Simpson & Rowland, Sault Ste. Marie, are handling the case for the respondent. Most of the time between the hour of opening and the noon adjournment was occupied by Mr. DuVernet's reading from the examination for discovery of Mr. Smith, held some days ago, the chief points of which have already been given to the public.

The Personation Charges.

The first charge taken up was that the steamer Minnie M. had at election time gone up to Michipicoten with a number of personators.

Nicholas Cole was the chief witness in substantiation of this charge. He was the purser on the Minnie M., and in cross-examination admitted to Mr. Watson that he took notes and watched occurrences that he might afterwards help Mr. Miscampbell.

Cole swore that they took on twenty men at Algonquin, and that they all but one voted at Michipicoten and later all but three of them voted at Michipicoten Harbor. They received no fares, and landed the men on the American side on their return.

NORTH NORFOLK ELECTION.

Bribery, Threats and Conspiracy in 605 Separate Charges.

Toronto, Sept. 14.—There are some six hundred and eighty-five charges in the particulars which were filed yesterday afternoon in the protest against the return of Archibald Little as member of the Provincial Legislature for the constituency of North Norfolk. The petitioner is Frederick S. Snider, and the trial will open at Simcoe on Sept. 27.

In one of the charges it is alleged that the respondent personally or through the Ontario Reform Association, the North Norfolk Liberal Association, the Reform Central Committee at Simcoe, the Hon. Richard Harcourt, Minister of Education; the Hon. W. A. Charlton, the Hon. John Charlton, M.P.; W. M. German, M. P., or by and through George H. Watson, K.C., Toronto; Hugh Blain, wholesale merchant, Toronto, or others, advanced or paid or caused to be paid to James McBride, Tillsonburg; Hal. B. Donly, John McCool, Waterford; Geo. O. Werrett, and T. C. Robinette, barrister, Toronto, money for the purpose of bribery.

A Charge of Conspiracy.

Another charge is that Mr. Little personally or through the Reform Association, Hon. W. A. Charlton Speaker of the Legislative Assembly; Hal. B. Donly, publisher; Geo. O. Werrett, license inspector; William Sutton, miller, all of Simcoe; James Fick of Woodhouse, Andrew Smith of Charlottevills, Jerome Fick, hotelkeeper, Port Dover, corruptly combined, conspired and agreed that a scheme and plan of bribery and other illegal acts be prosecuted and performed in connection with the election.

In furtherance of this scheme it is alleged that money was paid to some of the above-mentioned persons to be expended in purchasing votes, and that the Beemer House, Waterford; the Queen's Hotel, Simcoe; the Windham Centre Hotel, the La Sallette Hotel, and others were induced to provide liquor and other refreshments with the object of inducing voters to vote for Mr. Little.

Intoxication of Voters.

Still further it is alleged voters were intoxicated and while in that condition were locked up in the hotels to prevent them voting.

That George O. Werrett, license inspector, prostituted his office by giving immunity and protection to the hotelkeepers from prosecution for infringement of the law is another charge.

It is also alleged that Andrew Smith and Jerome Fick convened a meeting of Liberal agents at the Beemer House, where they were to be introduced to the voters and purchase their votes.

The roadmaster of the Grand Trunk Railway at St. Thomas, William Sutton, and George O. Werrett are accused of using or threatening to use force, violence or restraint, to induce sectionmen to vote or refrain from voting. A similar charge is made against Franklin Grott, Stratford, Superintendent of the Massey-Harris Co.

Extended the Time.

The time for the filing of particulars in the North Renfrew protest was extended yesterday on an order from Mr. Justice Garrow. Mr. Falconbridge, for the petitioners, made application for the extension, which was opposed by Mr. Cattenach, representing Mr. Dunlop, the respondent, on the ground that the proceedings were stayed by the death of LeBlanc, one of the petitioners. Mr. Justice Garrow granted the order conditionally, subject to such rights as the application might cause. No decision was given on the question of a stay of proceedings.

Kept Poor by Doctor's Bills.

Many a family is kept poor by doctors' bills when just as good and oftentimes better results could be obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills which sell at 25 cents a box of twenty-five doses. As one pill a day is the most frequent dose under any circumstances there is no treatment obtainable which costs so little and at the same time none which brings about such excellent results in derangements of the kidneys, liver and bowels.

ELECTIONS ON THE WAY.

Daily News Warns Mr. Chamberlain Against Expecting Help From the Canadian Political Campaign.

London, Sept. 14.—(C. A. P.)—The Daily News, referring to the coming Canadian elections, warns Mr. Chamberlain not to expect much help from this campaign. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it declares, is easily the first statesman of Greater Britain, and his interview with The News a few weeks ago was the most outspoken criticism that has been offered on the hollow scheme of establishing the British Empire on a 10 per cent. basis.

Bond Through Trade.

London, Sept. 14.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Morpeth, M.P., presiding at the formation of the Birmingham Young Men's Association for the Promotion of Tariff Reform Principles, said a bond to unite their vast Empire could only be obtained by means of trade and commerce.

To Inspect Immigrant Children.

London, Sept. 14.—(C. A. P.)—J. T. Middlemore, M.P., and daughter leave England to-day to inspect the immigrant children settled in the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

Devonshire Not Sure.

London, Sept. 14.—(C. A. P.)—The Duke of Devonshire, replying to a correspondent, said he never objected to any enquiry on the fiscal system, but he was not sure if a royal commission was the best means.

20 AT CALGARY.

Barr Settlers May Have Been Badly Hit By the Frost.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 14.—Very heavy frosts were experienced Monday night in Alberta and Saskatchewan, the thermometer dropping to 20 at Calgary, 22 at Edmonton and 26 at Battleford. Fortunately this is not at present a very important wheat area, though the Barr settlers are probably badly hit, as their wheat is generally uncut, owing to late seeding. The main wheat belt in the Territories again escapes untouched, Regina, Indian Head and Prince Albert all recording 34 as the low point, while Qu'Appelle touched 32.

Manitoba escaped entirely, owing to general precipitation, with the single exception of the Estevan district, which recorded one degree of frost.

Competent grain men here determine the amount of grain still uncut at about 15 per cent. in Manitoba and 20 per cent. in the Territories, and this they claim will be frosted beyond doubt.

About Your Complexion.

A yellow, muddy complexion tells of derangements of the liver, and indicates the presence of bile poison in the blood. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills set the liver and kidneys in action, purify the blood, cleanse the system, and assure a healthy glow to the complexion. As a family medicine Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are of inestimable value.

KILLED BY A TRAIN

GIRL DROWNS NEAR KINGSTON

Seven Burned to Death in a New York Fire and Six Others Seriously Injured—Killed By Electricity—John Heard Touched Live Wire While Working at Lakefield—Clothing Entirely Burned.

St. Thomas, Sept. 14.—A fatal accident occurred on the Michigan Central Railway at St. Clair Junction about noon yesterday. No. 32 express, Engineer Vail, Conductor Mann, struck Frank Styles, a lad of 13 years, whose father lives at the north branch of the Talbot road, and instantly killed him. The lad had slipped off the track and got out of the way of a westbound train and also got out of the way of No. 32 express, but he stepped back on the track and was struck by the engine.

Run Over at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Sept. 14.—An unknown man was run over at 1.50 this morning by a yard engine in the Stewart street yards of the G.T.R. Both legs were run over, one was severed at the knee and the other was crushed. He was taken to the hospital in the ambulance, but the doctors say that he cannot live. He is said to be an employe of the rolling mills, but the authorities have been unable to discover his name.

Little Girl Drowns.

Kingston, Sept. 14.—Mona Gorman, aged 12, daughter of Joseph Gorman, of Chicago, was drowned at Channel Grove, Hon. Mr. Harty's summer resort, on Monday night. She fell off the wharf and was soon rescued, but could not be revived. The child spent the summer with her grandmother.

Two Drown.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 14.—Mrs. Jakobson, an Icelandic woman at Gimli, drowned herself in Lake Winnipeg yesterday.

The 17-year-old son of C. Malone was drowned at the Narrows, Lake Manitoba, by a skiff upsetting in a squall.

Seven Perish in N.Y. Fire.

New York, Sept. 14.—Seven persons in one family were burned to death and six others were injured seriously in a fire which partially destroyed a tenement building at Nos. 68-70 First street, early yesterday. More than twenty families were asleep in the building. Women and children were being dropped from the windows of the lower floors, and dozens of grown persons were fighting in the hallways to reach the open air when the firemen arrived.

Falls 25 Feet.

Harriston, Sept. 14.—Yesterday afternoon, while a gang of men were engaged shingling the roof of Edward Johnston's new barn, Steve Lawrence, one of the workmen, slipped and fell 25 feet to the ground, dislocating his left shoulder, breaking a couple of ribs and sustaining a bad shaking up.

Rio Grande on Rampage.

Laredo, Texas, Sept. 14.—The flood of the Rio Grande swept the valley here yesterday. Great damage has been done. The river is up 21 feet at Laredo, and is still rising. Many thousands of acres of irrigated farms are inundated between Laredo and Hidalgo, covering a distance of 290 miles. The towns of Ignacio, Roma and other smaller settlements on both sides of the river are inundated and many houses are washed away. Parts of the towns of Carrizo and Rio Grande City are under water. It is feared that many lives have been lost.

Burglars at Marmora.

Marmora, Sept. 14.—Burglars entered the office of A. W. Carscallen Monday night. They used very powerful explosives and the door of the vault was blown to pieces. They carried away over $100 in cash, one gold nugget worth $100, and stock in the following: Bankers' Mutual Casualty Company, Granby Smelter, Traders' Bank of Canada, Cordova Exploration Company, Capital Brewing Company, Canadian Cooperage and Manitoba Ranching Company. So far no clue has been secured regarding the burglars.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock at the city market amounted to 65 carloads, 12 carloads of which were Chicago exporters, consigned to W. H. Dean, in transit, being fed and watered, and not for sale, which would leave 53 carloads, composed of about 422 cattle, 985 hogs, 2085 sheep and lambs, with 196 calves.

There were few exporters and none of choice quality for sale. The best, which was a very good load, weighing 1300 lbs. each, was bought by A. McIntosh at $4.95 per cwt., less $5 on the lot. The remainder sold at $4.50 to $4.75 per cwt. Export bulls sold from $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt.

The bulk of the butchers' cattle offered were of medium to common quality, few choice lots being on the market. Choice picked lots sold at $4.30 per cwt., and several lots brought $4 to $4.25 per cwt.; fair to good at $3.60 to $3.90; medium at $3.40 to $3.60; common cows at $3 to $3.35, and inferior at $2.60 to $2.80 per cwt.

Only a limited number were on sale. Light feeders, 800 to 900 lbs., $3 to $3.37½ per cwt.; feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, sold at $3.50 to $4 per cwt., according to quality. Stocker deliveries were light and prices unchanged at $2.75 to $3 per cwt., for those weighing 500 to 600 lbs. and of good quality. Common to inferior sold at $2.25 to $2.50 per cwt.

About 40 milch cows and springers were offered, one drover bringing in a carload. Good to choice cows sold readily at $40 to $50, and something choice was reported as worth $60. The drover bringing in the car of cows, it was reported, had as high as $60 offered for those of extra choice quality, while common to medium sold at $30 to $38 per head.

Deliveries of calves were fairly large, 198 being reported by the railways. Prices were firm as usual at this season, they selling all the way from $3.75 to $5.50 per cwt., and an odd choice calf brought $5.75 per cwt.

Deliveries were large, 2088. The market, on account of the large run, was inclined to be dragy. Prices ranged from $3.75 to $3.90 and $4 per cwt. for sheep; lambs sold from $4.25 to $4.60 per cwt.

Hogs—Deliveries were light, with prices steady at $6.25 and lights and fats $6. These prices were for fed and watered.

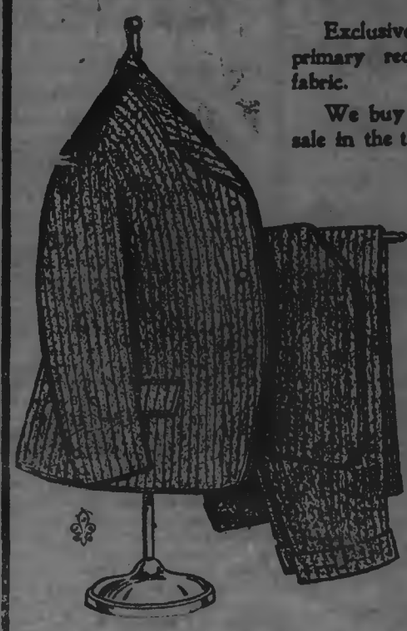
EXCLUSIVENESS.



Exclusiveness is our primary requisite in a fabric.

We buy cloth wholesale in the thousand-yard lot when we see something particularly handsome and attractive—we have 30 wardrobes to supply—there would not be more than two suits of this fabric in town.

The custom tailor practically buys at retail—his assortment is limited—it requires capital to buy cloth and you will see many duplicates of your suit if you buy from him.

We send a purchasing party to England each year to secure us exclusive fabrics.

You will be repaid for your trouble if you examine our selection. It's worth while securing a suit that's a little different and better.

Please do not consider it necessary to buy if you want to look around.

BOARD OF TRADE ON LIVE TOPICS.

Frontage Tax for Sidewalks not Approved of by Speakers.

Improvement of Live Stock—Administration of Water-works not Approved of.

Last night the regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Trade was held and a most interesting meeting resulted, a number of important matters were discussed and this discussion will doubtless result in some action being taken at a future meeting. The members discussed the system of frontage tax as a method of paying the cost of sidewalks, and although no vote was taken on the question the general opinion of the Board seemed to be that the frontage tax was an unfair one and it is probable that the Board will move in the matter in the near future. The Water works and the method of the administration was also discussed, and with this also some fault was found. A suggestion was made that each person whose property is passed by a water main should be taxed, instead of as at present, the users of water paying all the cost and a surplus of from $3,000 to $5,000 into the town funds each year.

Those present at last night's meeting were, D. Hughes-Charles, President, and Messrs. A. H. Stratton, Vice-President; R. E. Wood, K. Eardley-Wilmot, D. W. Dumble, E. J. Toker, J. Coyle Brown, Dawson Kennedy, J. H. Burnham, Wm. Might, H. LeBrun, T. A. S. Hay, E. G. Patterson, E. B. Edwards and the Secretary, T. Q. Quartermaine.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The secretary then read a number of resolutions adopted by the Council of the Board. These resolutions have already been published.

The President remarked that this was the first meeting this fall and hoped the attendance of the members of the Board would increase. He hoped the members would recognize their responsibility to the Board. He would like to see the Town Council take a greater interest in the Board of Trade.

A number of new industries were said to be coming to the town to locate and in these matters the Board had not been taken into the confidence of the Council. He believed that the Board had always treated the Council in a fair manner, and thought that the Council had not used the Board in a like manner.

This was a general meeting, and there was no special business to discuss, but he thought that the Board might very well consider the question of frontage tax for the construction of sidewalks.

Mr. Dumble opened, at the request of the President, the discussion on the frontage tax. He began by saying that he might be accused of being a partial witness, since he had 600 feet of sidewalk to pay for. For his part he did not see the difference between a sidewalk and a road, and since there was no frontage tax for roads why should there be one for a sidewalk? He had not considered the matter thoroughly but thought it worthy of full consideration.

He also referred to the fact that this town has been considered a "rough" town, by which he meant there was little care taken to make the streets present a neat appearance. The sidewalks were not laid parallel with the centre of the street. In contrast to this he mentioned Winnipeg in which city the corporation took care of the boulevards, and the sidewalks were laid in straight lines. Twenty-two years ago in that city he had seen an abyss of mud, where to-day was a beautiful street, macadamized, and the whole street system of the city almost ideal. Peterborough should not compare in this matter even favorably with a place like Berlin.

We seem to have utterly ignored the question of making the town a beautiful one, and the inspiration should come from the civic authorities.

He believed too, that there should be no antagonism between the Board and the Town Council. The former had always acted for the best interests of the town and should not be wholly ignored, and he hoped the two bodies would co-operate to promote the best interests of the town. He thought that in important matters the President might very well be consulted with by the Council.

Col. Edwards, who followed, said that the remarks made by the former speaker were to the point. He thought that some effort might be made to improve the appearance of the Parks of the town. He mentioned the case of one park where a manure heap was one of the features of the landscape.

Mr. E. J. Toker who was the next speaker, said that in his opinion the remarks made by Mr. Dumble with reference to the frontage tax were along the right line. He did not see why the sidewalks should not be paid for by the general fund.

He suggested a change in the method of levying water rates, and suggested that there should be a frontage tax for water mains as well as for sewers.

Mr. Wood called the attention of the Board to the fact that at the time when the granolithic sidewalks were first inaugurated, the cost of granolithic walks was much higher than at the present time. The intention of the Town Council was to gradually extend the system over the whole town, and he thought that there was an injustice done those who have to pay the frontage tax.

Mr. Wood referring to the system of water works and the manner in which the charges were made, said that it was a great injustice. The small percentage of the water users in town are now called upon to pay $3,000 to $5,000 per year to the town, and he had protested again and again to the Water Commissioners, but he had been informed by them that the Town Council headed by the Mayor had instructed them to raise this amount of money and they were asking them to raise even more money for the town by levying even higher rates to water users.

Mr. Patterson spoke briefly endorsing Mr. Wood's remarks, saying that he was heartily in sympathy with his position. He believed that the water rates should be paid by all those whose property was passed by the water mains.

Col. Edwards following said, that once the frontage tax system had been adopted it was almost impossible to depart from it, and resort to the general system.

He did not altogether agree with the former speakers' remarks on the water question, for the water users were paying now no higher rates than were paid by them, to the private company before the town purchased the system, and he did not believe that any great injustice was being done, and he thought that it would be hardly right to assess the property of those whose land is passed by water mains.

Mr. Wood, defending his former statements, said, that the fact that a water main passing his property increased the value of that property and it should be assessed.

The President joining in the discussion said that he thought the rates for water here were higher than in Galt. He did not believe it right to make water users pay rates which enable the town to use the surplus for town purposes, and believed that no surplus gained from the water works should be used for any purpose except to maintain the water works system. He also thought the frontage system an injustice and referring to the question of the appearance of the streets said that Peterborough was away behind the western towns in this respect.

IMPROVEMENT IN LIVE STOCK.

Mr. Dumble spoke on another subject, one directly affecting the interests of the farmers, that of improving the quality of live stock. He said that the Board should consider the welfare of the community as well as that of the town, and presented the following resolution, which was adopted:—

That this Board would suggest to the Agricultural Societies of the County the importance of introducing into all parts of the county high bred stock for breeding purposes, as the most natural and easy way of increasing the wealth of the agricultural community. This Board laments that indifference to this important subject has left this county far behind many not more favoured than Peterborough, and urges that earnest efforts on the lines suggested would in five years add one million dollars to the wealth of the county.

The Board then adjourned.

BARRIE RESIDENTS' STRONG TESTIMONY.

Mayor Boys' and Other Prominent Citizens Write.

Say That the 57th Regiment Will be Welcomed Again to That Town.

That the statements which appeared in some of the Toronto papers to the effect that the 57th Regiment, while in Barrie, acted in a way which was unworthy of that body, do not meet with approval by the best people of that beautiful town, and that they were unfounded, is proven conclusively by the following letters which have come unsolicited from the Mayor of Barrie, the commanding officer of the 35th Regt., and the High County Constable. These letters speak for themselves and should dispel any statement made by irresponsible parties:

Mayor Boys writes as follows:

"I think I can safely say that your visit from first to last was thoroughly enjoyed by the citizens of the town, and should you desire in the future to again visit us, I think you will find that a cordial invitation will be sent you; and I take this opportunity of again thanking you, your officers, men and band, for the entertainment given to our citizens during your stay in town, and particularly for the valuable services given on Labour Day.

"Hoping we may at some time in the future again be favoured with a visit from you, I am,

"Yours sincerely,
"W. H. Boys."

The Colonel of the Simcoe Foresters, writes, referring to the article, which appeared in the Toronto Telegram:

"I am taking this opportunity of assuring you that the sentiments expressed in the article did not voice the sentiments of our townspeople, and we have nothing but the kindliest feelings towards the Peterborough Rangers and hope you will soon come again.

"I have heard it remarked very often that in the three days you camped here there was not one drunk man, or one who showed any signs of drinking. This must be a source of deep satisfaction to you, and I beg you to accept my congratulations. I am sending you copies of our weekly papers, and you will be able to judge by their tone that your Regiment has deservedly won a warm place in our hearts.

"Yours truly,
"John B. McPhee."

Major Rogers, the High Constable for the County, writes,

"I trust it may be my lot to see you all in Barrie again, and wishing you and the Regiment all the happiness this world can afford, believe me, to remain,

"Yours very truly,
"Jos. Rogers."

SAGE ADVICE FROM UNCLE RUSSELL

George Gould once tried to interest Russell Sage in a new equipment for cars which recorded the actual distance traveled by the car. Uncle Russell squinted at it a minute, and then he said:

"Does it earn anything?"

"No."

"Does it save anything?"

"No."

"Then I don't want it."

If we were talking about goods which neither earned nor saved, the best thing you could do would be to imitate Uncle Russell.

They might not be worth having.

OPENING MEETING ST. ANDREWS GUILD.

Very Successful Affair was Held Last Evening.

Men of the Church Were Guests at a Banquet—Very Large Attendance—Bright Prospects for the Society.

St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild held their first meeting of the season last evening. It took the form of a short business meeting followed by a banquet and reception to men of the church. There was an excellent attendance, and the evening proved one of great enjoyment and profit to all present. The Guildsmen were present in large numbers, and showed an enthusiasm in the work and in the outlook for a very successful year's work.

The meeting opened with devotional exercises followed by the regular routine of business. The nominating of officers took place and the elections will be held at the next monthly meeting.

Upon the conclusion of the business those present sat down to a delightful banquet provided by the Daughters of Erin of the church. The repast was heartily partaken of and greatly enjoyed by all.

A short toast list followed. Mr. H. H. Edmison, president, acted as toastmaster and proposed the first toast of the evening, that of "The King," which was honoured in the usual manner.

"Our Guests" was the next toast, proposed by Mr. T. G. Anderson. He was only voicing the sentiments of all the Guildsmen when he extended a hearty welcome to the men of the church to attend the meetings of the Society. The toast was responded to by several present.

Mr. William Fowler esteemed it a great pleasure to be present. The Guild was doing a grand work in connection with the church, and, judging from the large turn-out of last evening the speaker was sure that the coming year would see even greater results than had been experienced in the past.

Mr. A. B. McFarlane thought the Young Men's Guild was the best institution ever organized at St. Andrew's. He had been connected with the church for thirty years, and he knew how hard it was to hold the young men together, but the Guild was doing a great work in this respect. He thought that no church in the province had a more flourishing Guild than that of St. Andrew's. He wished the Society every success.

Messrs. G. Lang, Carnegie, Wallace and Forman also spoke on behalf of the guests present, expressing themselves as greatly pleased with the kind reception they had received, and wishing the Guild every prosperity.

A song by Mr. H. M. Lloyd, "Lowland Sea," was greatly enjoyed.

Rev. J. G. Potter proposed the toast to "Canada." He said it was well for all to recognize the importance of the land in which we live. The growth and increase in wealth had been very marked in the past few years. The climate was varied and was such as to suit the desires of almost every one. We had every reason to feel gratified with the favourable conditions around us, conducive to our best interests and to national prosperity. Educational and charitable institutions were numerous, and were well supported. There had been rapid increase in trade and commerce, and the speaker gave a few figures showing the general increase in reference to manufacturies and trade since 1861. Canada had a larger percentage in increase in trade than any other country. Last year the increase in trade was 64 per cent., as compared with 32 per cent. in the United States. The exports and products of the mine also showed great advancement. The railways had also been enjoying prosperity, and whereas in 1862 there were 2200 miles of road at the present time there were 18,000, the earnings being increased from 12 millions to 96 millions. The post office returns and the bank deposits also showed that the people were in prosperous circumstances. And from a religious standpoint there had also been a rapid growth throughout the Dominion. Our country had a great future, and Canadians, one and all, should be proud of their fair dominion.

The toast was heartily drunk by all present, and was honoured by the singing of "The Maple Leaf."

The toast to "The Ladies" was proposed in a neat speech by Mr. W. Garrow, who referred in pleasing terms to the assistance which had been given the Guild from time to time by the ladies of the church. Messrs. R. H. Elliott and W. Campbell replied in fitting terms.

Mr. R. N. Jolliffe rendered a solo, after which Mr. C. Anderson proposed the toast to "The Press," which was responded to by a representative present.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the affair to a close.

The Guild have reason to feel gratified with the splendid success of their opening meeting. It was evident that all the young men of the church have a deep interest in the work of the Guild, which is a safe guarantee that the coming year's work will be as great, if not a greater success than has been experienced in the past.

The following is the list of officers nominated for the elections, which will take place at the next meeting:

For president — P. Perr, J. E. Anderson, W. S. Campbell, R. M. Glover, R. H. Elliott.

For Vice-President — T. G. Anderson, L. Thornton, L. Scott, W. Garrow, G. Scott, W. A. Richardson.

Recording Secretary — Wm. Foster, F. Kerr, H. M. Lloyd, Geo. Macdonald.

Corresponding Secretary — Donald Potter, W. Richardson, R. H. Elliott, Geo. Bathgate, Wm. Langford.

Treasurer — R. M. Glover, C. E. Anderson, H. H. Edmison, W. Richardson.

MAYOR SAYS COUNCIL GAVE NO ORDERS.

Did Not Ask Water Commissioners to Raise More Money From Water Rates.

Mayor Rogers Intimates That Council Has No Authority Over Water Commissioners — Rates Here are Not High.

Mayor Roger was interviewed this morning in reference to the statement made by one of the speakers at the Board of Trade meeting last night with reference to the attitude of the Council towards the Water Commissioners. The speaker said that he had been informed by the Commissioners that the Town Council, headed by the Mayor, whom he remarked was a non-user of water, had instructed them to raise even more money from the water users. The speaker said that this was an injustice to those who paid the water rates, as $3,000 to $5,000 per year was paid over to the general fund of the town.

Mr. Roger when questioned this morning as to the truth of this statement, said that to his knowledge, the Town Council neither directly or indirectly had given any instructions to the Water Commissioners, who were elected by the people, and were answerable to the people, and the Council had no right to dictate to them in any way as to the amount of money that should be raised by them from the water users. He pointed out that the rates had been lowered several times by the Commissioners since the water works had been purchased by the town, and in his opinion the present rates were on the whole as low as they were in any town of a corresponding size. In no two places are the rates for the different classes of users the same, but he believed that water was costing the users in Peterborough no more than it is in other places.

In answering the statement that he was a non-user of water his Worship said that he paid for water in his office, and that he had tried to get the water main extended to his residence, and failing in this had to go to the expense of installing an expensive watering system of his own.

There were many persons in the outskirts of the town who would gladly use the water if they could get it, and there were many applications for the service.

PLEASANT DANCE FRIDAY EVENING.

Mrs. Graham the Hostess of a Delightful Hop at Viamede.

One of the most pleasant dances of the summer season at Stony Lake was given by Mrs. Graham and Miss Blanche Graham at Viamede on Friday evening, Sept. 11. It was not a cottagers' dance, the guests, with one or two exceptions, coming from Lakefield. The steamer Stony Lake ran as far as Young's Point, there handing her passengers over to the Majestic. The party reached Viamede about 10.30, where hot coffee was waiting them. The dancing then commenced and continued till nearly two o'clock, when refreshments were served. The dance ended about three o'clock, when the guests reembarked on the Majestic; one and all declaring they had not enjoyed themselves so well all summer, and giving three cheers for Mrs. Graham, they departed for their homes. Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Buchard, Mr. and Mrs. E. Tanner, Miss Tanner, Mr. Charlie Tanner, Miss McGorman, Miss Bell, Miss Bloomfield, Mrs. Reynolds, Mr. Fitzgerald, Miss Sheard, Miss Hunter, Miss Call, Dr. Fraser, Mr. Hill, Mr. Moffatt, Mr. Sanderson, Mr. Dench, Mr. Simpson, Mr. Smythe and Mr. Houston.

VIOLATION OF LICENSE LAW PUNISHED.

James Maloney Will Serve Seven Months' Term in Jail.

Arrest Effected by County Constable Cochrane This Morning.

Mr. George Cochrane, High County Constable, went to the Cordova Mines to effect the arrest of James Maloney, who was convicted twice of selling liquor without a license. On the first conviction he was fined, the amount of the fine with costs, being $100. On being convicted on the second offence, the sentence imposed was four months imprisonment. The first fine was not paid, and in default of the payment, the penalty was three months imprisonment.

Mr. Cochrane, accompanied by Mr. Archie Moore, left town on the C. P. R. Midnight Epress, which was 45 minutes late. Arriving at Havelock a horse and buggy, which had been telegraphed for, was in readiness, and Mr. Cochrane, with his companion drove 13 miles into Belmont to arrest their man. They found that he had moved across the road from his former location into Hastings county, in the mistaken belief that by so doingg he was safe from arrest by a Peterborough county official. Mr. Cochrane ,however, informed him that the County Judge's jurisdiction extended 500 yards over the county boundary line, consequently the arrest could be effected. Securing their man they drove back to Havelock, catching the local for Peterborough by only about two minutes. He was brought here and is now lodged in the county gaol, where he will serve a seven months term of imprisonment, unless he pays the first $100 fine in which event three months will be lopped off.

This trip of Mr. Cochrane constitutes almost a record. He travelled 52 miles by rail, and had 25 miles of a drive over roads which, to say the least, are not good. He certainly lost no time in making the trip, and that he was successful in landing his man, is not one of the least of his achievements.

There were strange doings at last night's meeting of the C.L.A. The cases of the Tecumseh players is still fresh in the mind of the public while White's offence was for playing under an assumed name and also of playing on Sunday. But despite the glaring offences of these players all were reinstated. Brantford was ordered to play the Tecumsehs in Toronto on Saturday. LADIES GOLF.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, but by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

COMMUNISM IN CANADA.

Prosperity of Doukhobors—Transact Business Without Money—Taking to Modern Ways—Peter Verigin Their Leader.

W. S. Wallace, special Winnipeg correspondent of The Globe draws attention to the progress and prosperity of the Doukhobors settled in the Northwest. Their crops are better and further advanced than any in the same region. They are buying the most improved implements and machinery. They now own a 25 horse-power steam plough, six engines, two traction and four movable threshing machines, and no less than four saw mills, all of which are run by Doukhobor engineers.

Their genius and energy is not static, but structural and inventive. Without any knowledge of political science whatever, and with nothing but their Bibles, they have worked out a system of communism.

Community Life.

In brief it is this: There are 45 villages, each village with a population of about 200 and with 40 homsteads of land; that is, there are between 8,000 and 10,000 Doukhobors altogether settled on a solid block of six townships. Each village is a perfect community by itself. It has its blacksmith, its carpenter, its stables, its hennery, its mill, etc. If a Doukhobor wishes to get some eggs he simply has to go to the woman whose duty it is to keep the chickens, and she will give him his eggs for nothing. If he desires a pair of boots, he can get them from the "head man" of the village for nothing. If he wants a new house he merely has to call in the village carpenters and they will build it for him free. Money has no value in the Doukhobor settlements. Everyone works without money and without price for everyone else.

One Common Purse.

The profits from the year's crops, and even the individual earnings of Doukhobors working on the railways and elsewhere, go into a common purse; and with this money the supplies for the whole community are bought wholesale. The Doukhobors always buy wholesale at Winnipeg, considering (as they do) middleman's profit to be mere robbery. The oversight of the year's business is annually deputed to four commissioners, who do all the buying and selling and organizing in accordance with the wishes of the assembly. These commissioners are no higher than the ploughboys or the blacksmiths. When their term of office ceases they return to the plough or the carpenter's bench, where they came from.

Peter Verigin Their Leader.

The success of this simple, but radical system has been wonderful. It goes along apparently without a hitch. Perhaps this is to be attributed to the genius of Peter Verigin, their Doukhobor Pericles; but in any case it is a Doukhobor who has realized this ideal of Christian socialism. Mr. Verigin is, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prof. Goldwin Smith and a few others, one of the great men of Canada. He is a man of convictions. He was the first of the Doukhobors to apply the sixth commandment to the case of animals. For his convictions he spent fifteen years in Siberia, during which time he was in nearly 300 prisons. He has three brothers there yet, and two of his brothers have died there. Yet he is no fanatic. He has repressed these religious pilgrimages; he has induced the Doukhobors to keep their cattle and horses and clothes; and he is now by mere prestige and force of character leading them on to notable things. Like many other great men, he is possessed of a monumental wit. He is a great personal friend of Count Tolstoi's.

A Paradoxical People.

The Doukhobors are very parodoxical people. They are theoretical, almost sophistical, yet they are intensely practical in every-day affairs. They are very unselfish among themselves, and will never ask for anything the others cannot get; and yet, when it comes to a deal with outsiders, there is no people looks out more sharply for No. 1. They appreciate keenly on which side their bread is buttered. They will hold up their end to the bitter finish. This is perhaps the result of years of persecution, and the fact that they have been so long the under dog; but at any rate it is one regrettable trait in their character. They do not enough consider the other man.

They have many crotchets. They will not kill or eat any animal, believing that to be the teaching of the Bible: Thou shalt not kill. Some of them have gone so far as to preach that it is wrong to use horses and cattle for labor, or to shear sheep, or to wear boots made of leather. It was in pursuance of this belief that they turned their horses and cattle loose two years ago, and started on their naked pilgrimage. It was this belief that induced the women to harness themselves to the plough and the men to draw wagons of flour by hand.

These Are Extremists.

But the advocates of this tenet were only the extremists, and Mr. Verigin has brought even them to reason. There are men at Swan River now who are anxious to start on a pilgrimage; but, as Mr. Verigin says, no attention should be paid to them.

The Doukhobors have no marriage laws, but marry and unmarry at pleasure, according to the agreeableness of the alliance. One is glad to say that this license is not abused; and most of them live and die the husband of one wife. They will not register births, marriages or deaths, considering that an unwarrantable interference with the Almighty. They will not "make soldier," as they say, believing war to be a machination of the devil. Many of them have been in Siberia for not "making soldier't in Russia. They never swear, never smoke, never drink any spirituous liquor.

The leaves are showing their utumnal tints.

THE VICEROY OF INDIA

LORD CURZON, EMPEROR'S DEPUTY OVER 295,252,700 SUBJECTS.

Some of the Problems of Government He Has to Solve—Has a Wonderful Grasp of the Matter in Hand, and Says India is a Constellation Rather Than a Single Star of British Empire.

Again Lord Curzon has been appointed Viceroy of India. From London he returns to wield the royal sceptre over 295,252,700 subjects of His Majesty. And the magnitude of the field is equaled by the importance of the problems that present themselves. Differences of origin, of caste, of religion and of allegiance to local princes have to be solved. A vast Empire full of conflicting interests, burdened with old superstitions and ignorance, has to be harmonized. Lord Curzon is, however, a man of stout faith. He believes that British influence in India is growing stronger every year, and that its roots are sinking deeper into the soil. Yet he does not overlook the difficulties of the situation. "India," said Lord Curzon a few days ago, "must always remain a constellation rather than a single star, must always be a continent rather than a country, a congerie of races rather than a single nation." The great consolidating force among all these hundreds of millions of people is the Union Jack.

Curzon, a Man of Iron.

Of the many difficulties Lord Curzon has had to face, the frontier problem has been the most pressing. India has long been harassed by turbulent tribes which make incursions into the peaceful settlements from time to time. To bring to these people a sense of responsibility and to protect the subjects of the Crown from their attacks has required a strong and active Government. Lord Curzon has realized the needs of the situation. He has called Lord Kitchener to his assistance, and has provided, with his advice, to reorganize the military forces in India. Of course it is quite impossible for a British force of 65,000 men to keep order among three hundred millions, and protect them from internal and external troubles. The natives have to be enlisted, to be trained and developed into soldiers. It is necessary, too, that ungovernable tribes beyond the frontier should be occasionally taught to respect British rights. Lord Curzon has been assailed from many quarters for the expedition against Thibet. His answer is that the peace and security of India requires that the frontier should be defined, and that the raids from Thibet should be stopped.

A Ruler of Rulers.

It is not the policy of Great Britain to monopolize the Government of India. On the contrary, the efforts of the Viceroy are directed towards developing home rule among the various tribes. India is a land of many nations and languages. It has some six hundred native princes, who exercise authority within their own borders. But behind the throne in every case stands the British Viceroy. The prince knows that if he violates the law there is a power to which he will be held accountable. Lord Curzon has on two occasions deposed native rulers. One of these, the Rajah of Bhartpur, beat a servant to death in 1900. He was a man of violent passions and intemperate habits. Lord Curzon had the Rajah arrested and tried as a common criminal. Conviction and sentence to life imprisonment followed. The infant son of the deposed Rajah was nominated in his place. Another recent occasion on which the Viceroy exercised his authority was in 1901, when the Maharajah of Panna was assassinated. Suspicion pointed to his successor, who was fairly tried, by order of the Viceroy, convicted, deposed, and sentenced to life imprisonment. Thus the British power in India is exerted to punish wrong and prevent anarchy.

India's Political System.

In describing the complex system of Government in India recently Lord Curzon stated that the British Crown is the cementing and inspiring force. He added: "The political system of India is neither feudalism nor federation. It is embodied in no constitution; it does not rest upon treaty, and it bears no resemblance to a league. It represents a series of relationships that have grown up between the Crown and the Indian princes under widely different historical conditions, but which in process of time have gradually conformed to a single type. The sovereignty of the Crown is everywhere unchallenged. Conversely, the duties and services of the State are implicitly recognized, and, as a rule, faithfully discharged. It is this happy blend of authority with free will, of sentiment with self-interest, of duties with rights, that distinguishes the Indian Empire under the British Crown from any other dominion of which we read in history." Under this unique system the native princes enjoy authority and protection, and become pillars of the Imperial edifice.

Useful Works Undertaken.

Besides ordering the Government so as to give peace to these teeming millions, Great Britain undertakes many helpful works. First of all is the matter of education, towards which Lord Curzon has directed special attention. He has lately had an enquiry by commission into the educational problem. A system has been thought out which, it is hoped, will in due time lift the veil of ignorance that now blinds India. Irrigation works have been undertaken for the purpose of averting the terrible famines by which India is often prostrated. Industries peculiar to the country are being developed so as to give steady and profitable employment to the people. Transportation and communication have been established between the different parts of the country. Out of its own revenues India pays for these services. It does not, however, contribute to the Imperial exchequer, which has to maintain a navy and to keep up British prestige the world over to ensure the security of the Empire.

Is India a Weakness?

It is India that makes us keep a jealous eye on Russia and often brings us to the brink of war. The opponents of Imperialism tell us that India is a weakness to the Empire. That is a matter of opinion, but no one doubts that the Empire is a bulwark to India. Upon the little nation, which has so many burdens, the burden of India rests. There is no disposition to lay down the load. Lord Curzon declares that India is being benefited by British rule. The princes and people of India take the same view. And thoughtful men the world over shudder at the outlook for India if it were not steadied and led by a strong and enlightened Government.

The Man Who Is Sorry.

Half the pleasure is taken out of life by the man who is sorry to tell you that he has been unable to perform for you what he promised by the time and at the place arranged, says The Toronto Star. The dressmaker who does not send the dress in time, the butcher who does not send the roast when he said he would, the tailor who is sorry to say that owing to the rush of work he has been unable to get your suit made, the photographer who is sorry that your pictures are not ready, the printer who feels very badly that he has had to disappoint you in the matter of some printing, the man who regrets that he kept you waiting half an hour at the appointed place—they all do much to make life less agreeable than it ought to be.

In all cases it cannot be possible that these disappointments were really unavoidable. A business man who heard a member of his staff apologizing to a customer in an affair of this kind, not long ago made it his duty to keep an eye on this department of the work, establishing the rule that all work must have the time of delivery on it, and that at any cost the work had to be ready and parcelled when called for or delivered and receipted for at the time specified. He finds that after getting the scheme in working order it works well, and at no extra cost whatever. In short, the plan works to the firm's advantage, putting an end to loose methods and negligence. If apologies are not allowed at the front counter, they will not pass as good coin between departments in the factory. The slow man, or the negligent one, gets found out. He must key himself up.

It pays in business to respect the value of other people's time, for it saves one's own. It pays socially, for the punctual man is esteemed above the laggard. If the reader will take this sermonette to heart his circle will show appreciation.

A BUILDER'S FREAK.

Picture of House Said to Be the Smallest in Old London.

In Hyde Park Place, in one of the finest positions in the West End, there stands a house so small that very few passers-by are aware of its existence. But the visitor driving by on the top of a 'bus will be informed by the driver that it is the smallest house in London. This curious dwelling, which is at present empty, is 10, Hyde Park Place, and it is half hidden by the large houses on either side. To the casual observer it looks like a side entrance to one or other of its grand neighbors. Yet this builders' freak is entitled to be called a house, although it only consists of a front door and an upper room.

THE SMALLEST HOUSE IN LONDON

OUR HERO WORSHIP.

English Veteran's Bitter Sneers at Toronto's Welcome to Scholes.

A letter in The London Referee, signed "A Tideway Veteran," on "Hero-worship at Home and Overseas," says: "Because colonials make national heroes of boat-rowers does not appeal to me as a reason for our going and doing likewise. All that sort of thing seems to me to show a sad want of sense of proportion and a failure to grasp the essentials of what should constitute a national hero. The mass of colonials and Americans are distinctly behind English opinion in regard to what is tactful and natural in the matter of social amenities. This in part no doubt arises from their provincial touchiness about their dignity and prestige of one sort and another, their overwhelming anxiety to assert the superiority of their people and institutions over those of the old country. Take for instance Scholes, who asserted his Canadian independence during his practice at Henley by sailing about in a seedy old blue sweater with a ragged collar, for all the world like myself on any winter Sunday morning at Hammersmith, which is not exactly Henley. When this gentleman returns to Toronto he is met and paraded about the streets in a sort of Mafeking procession and beslobbered with bosh by the Mayor and corporation. Here the prizes at Henley are given away in a great hurry, just before going to dinner, the services of military and civic authorities being dispensed with and the winners as a rule not showing up but having their pots sent round to their lodging with a 'bob' to the porter. There is certainly no marked improvement in the crews at the regatta over the sixties and heventies when the eyes of Europe and the world were not invoked upon foreign entries at Henley." "Tideway Veteran" does not think we can do any good for the best ideals of English rowing by importing colonial notions of hero-worship.

A Charming Holiday Land.

Canadians could not find a better holiday land than the Maritime Provinces of Canada, says Industrial Canada. The summer climate is delightful, the scenery is lovely and the people hospitable.

There are charming seaside resorts all along the coasts of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island and no section of these provinces is very far from the sea. Cape Breton is not only surrounded by the sea but has the sea inside it too, for the famous Bras d'Or Lakes are merely great arms of the sea extending into the interior of the beautiful island. New Brunswick not only has an extensive sea coast but its interior is a land of mighty rivers and beautiful lakes, a paradise for amateur fishermen and hunters.

The people of central and western Canada are too much inclined to regard the Maritime Provinces as far away and difficult of access. They often visit sections of the United States that are far more inaccessible. A traveler leaving Montreal in the evening on the "Ocean Limited," the Intercolonial fast express, will arrive at Halifax early the next evening, passing through sections of great scenic beauty in both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, or if he takes the Canadian Pacific short line in the evening he may reach St. John before noon the next day. From St. John he can proceed by rail to Halifax or cross the Bay of Fundy by fast steamship to Digby, making rail connection there with all points in Nova Scotia. Railway traveling in the Maritime Provinces is as comfortable as anywhere else in America, for both the Intercolonial and Canadian Pacific Railways have fast trains equipped with luxurious sleepers and dining cars. The Government railway system extends to all parts of the Maritime Provinces, and has about 1,600 miles of track. The roadbed is first class, heavy rails have been laid and trains run swiftly and smoothly.

No man can fully appreciate the greatness of Canada until he has seen the Maritime Provinces with their magnificent harbors, their hills and valleys, their forests, lakes and rived lands, their fruitful orchards, their lands, their fruitful orchards, their fishing villages, their great coal mines. Every Canadian who has not visited St. John and Halifax and the surrounding country should regard it as a duty of citizenship to do so, and a pleasant duty he will find it if he goes in summer time.

"Ralph Connor's" Schoolmaster.

Half-way down the main street of Alexandria, Glengarry County, writes a special correspondent of Toronto News, occupying a frame cottage that has seen better days, is Murdick Munro, "Ralph Connor's" schoolmaster. He is practising law now. A quiet and courteous man, reserved and thoughtful, out of whom time has taken a fall. His recollection of the novelist is not so vivid as Mr. Gordon's remembrance of the dominie. "A little fellow, when I was there," he said, "quiet and well behaved, as I remembered him, but he was the child of the family. His brothers I knew better."

That was all he had to say—all he could say—of the man whose book has made the Scottish people all over the world acquainted with the schoolmaster. Here in Glengarry, I am told, the book is not so popular as it is in the Highlands of Scotland. How that is I don't know, but the statement is made as a fact.

Cost Him But $70.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Hugh Clarke, M.P.P., for Centre Bruce, was examined for discovery in connection with the Centre Bruce protest before Special Examiner Boomer yesterday. He testified that his election cost him but $70, and that the vote came out spontaneously.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN
WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

So uniformly successful has Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription proven in all forms of Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, and Leucorrhea, that, after over a third of a century's experience in curing the worst cases of these distressing and debilitating ailments, Dr. Pierce now feels fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in cash for any case of these diseases which he cannot cure.

IT STANDS ALONE.—The "Favorite Prescription" stands alone, as the one and only remedy for these distressingly common forms of weakness, possessed of such positively specific curative properties as to warrant its makers in proposing, and binding themselves to forfeit, as we, the undersigned proprietors of that wonderful remedy hereby do, to pay the sum of $500 in legal money of the United States in any case of the above diseases in which after a fair and reasonable trial of our treatment, we fail to cure. No other medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments is backed by such a remarkable guarantee; no other medicine for woman's ills is possessed of the unparalleled curative properties that would warrant its manufacturers in making such an offer; no other remedy has such a record of cures on which to base such a remarkable offer.

Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and turn your back on any unscrupulous dealer who would insult your intelligence by attempting to foist upon you some inferior substitute, under the plea that "it is just as good." Insist on having the article which has a record of a third of a century of cures and which is backed by those willing to forfeit $500 if they cannot cure you.

In cases attended by a leucorrheal drain a syringe of Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets should be used constantly with the use of the "Favorite Prescription." They are sold by all druggists, or sent post-paid to any address, on receipt of 50 cents in stamps. Send 50 cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY, Buffalo, N. Y.

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

LONG BROS., TWO STORES

METEOR ELEMENTS.

Prof. Shuttleworth Makes an Analysis of the Aerolite Which Fell on Shelburne Farm Recently.

Professor E. B. Shuttleworth, of Toronto, made a rough analysis of a fragment knocked off the meteor found on the farm of John Shields, near Shelburne, a few days ago. Mr. Shields has declined to break the stone into fragments for the many "expert geologists" who write for pieces for purposes of examination without even sending postage for reply. In the professor's room the piece of meteorite was suspended by a hair with the point of the fragment pointing towards the north.

Prof. Shuttleworth's View.

"The physical and chemical characters of the Shelburne meteorite were quite sufficient to indicate its origin, even were nothing known of the occurrence of its descent. It possesses the peculiar formation of aerolites of the stony class, and has the external black glaze caused by fusion, due to the heat generated by the resistance of the atmosphere of the earth. The piece submitted was strongly attracted by the magnet, thus showing the presence of metallic iron, or some of its magnetic compounds, and when suspended so as to afford perfect freedom of motion, the fragment, so charged, exhibited distinct polarity—that is the same end invariably pointed to the north. Chemical tests revealed the presence of heavy metals, mainly iron, with a little nickel, and, doubtless, as usual with these meteoritic stones, traces of cobalt, chromium, tin, manganese, etc., with considerable sulphur, as shown by the specimen in question. The earthy part consisted of silica in combination with alumina and other bases, as in felspar, a constituent of granite. There are, however, no terrestrial minerals of the same composition as that of aerolites.

Where Did It Come From?

"Whence did it come from? Who can tell! There have been many theories, mostly open to objection. Thus it was once held that meteoric stones were originally projected from terrestrial volcanoes; or from volcanoes in the moon—hence the name moon-stones. It has also been suggested that they are concretions formed in the air; but the most acceptable theory is that they are fragments from celestial bodies, perhaps derived from a shattered and disintegrated world, or the material of an aggregating comet. Streams of such bodies are believed to revolve around the sun. The earth periodically passes through some of these streams, and in the case of a solitary or sporadic fall, one of the fragments may stray from its orbit, and falling into the sphere of attraction of the earth, may be drawn towards it with increasing velocity.

Rate of Meteorites.

"Those who are posted in science of this kind—which I do not pretend to—tell us that the speed of an aerolite may reach as high as fifty miles a second; perhaps about thirty would be a fair average. According to one of the discarded theories the sun derived its heat from concussion with these revolving bodies, which thus were supposed to act as a sort of fuel.

Only a Fragment.

"The Shelburne meteorite was, as perhaps are all others, merely a fragment. The original becomes shattered by the heat, and during the descent each separate piece becomes superficially fused, thus producing the black, pitch-like coating which is always noticeable. Sometimes these fragments are very large, weighing many hundreds of pounds. Happily, such masses are rare and solitary, but the small fragments are occasionally numerous, running into the thousands, and may extend over miles of country.

"The late Dr. Hahn, father of an artistic family in Toronto, was quite an authority on meteorites and wrote a very finely illustrated German work on the subject, but his views were peculiar, as he held that these visitors were of organic origin, containing traces of minute plants and animals. He maintained this position by the microscopical appearances of the structural markings, which were certainly very interesting and almost convincing. The doctor possessed a valuable collection of aerolites, and with great patience and skill had prepared numerous slides exhibiting the microscopical peculiarities alluded to."

Longest Train Hauled by C.P.R.

One of the heaviest excursions of harvesters in the history of the C. P.R., pulled out of Toronto on Saturday, 20th Aug., via North Bay for Winnipeg. Six heavy trains made up the list, the first four with nine coaches each, the other two with five and ten coaches respectively. The total number of farm laborers carries was 2,433, distributed as follows: First, train, 451; second, 470; third, 305; fourth, 405; fifth, 215; sixth, 507. The first train left the Union Station at 2 p.m. and the last got to North Bay at 5.33 a.m. Sunday morning. At North Bay the six trains were made up into four. The last of these was the longest and the largest ever hauled over the C. P.R. This train had 19 coaches, 3 cars of baggage and one caboose, containing nearly 900 passengers, and pulled by one engine, No. 1242. She left North Bay at 5.08, just 20 minutes after the arrival of the last section from Toronto.

The Horse's Meals.

With regard to the number of times a horse should be fed per diem the choice must be made to suit the animal. Some horses do best on four or even five feeds a day, while others do as well on three. Altogether we like four feeds, the first at 5 in the morning, second at 10, third at 2 in the afternoon and the last around 7 in the evening. Naturally when four feeds are given the evening meal will be the largest. The other three need not be so bulky as when only two others are given.—J. Buckler of Iowa Experiment Station.

His Gentle Wit.

She shook her head sadly when he had asked a fateful question.

"I wish you were all the world," he sighed.

"You said I was that to you once," she ventured coquettishly.

"Yes, but I don't think so now."

"No?"

"No, for all the world loves a lover." And his gentle wit won her over to a reconsideration of the question.

Considerate.

"I can't imagine how you can dislike work. To me it's real enjoyment," said the father to his lazy son.

"Yes, father," was the guileless response, "but I don't want to give myself up wholly to pleasure."

Benefit of Pensions.

"England pensions her authors."

"Well, that's wise. Pensions, you know, make authors get lazy and quit writing."

MEMORY'S LANE.

I know a lane, where the brier rose
Leans o'er the old stone wall;
And the scented leaves from an apple tree
Like tinted sea shells fall.
There's a turnstile, too, 'twixt the winding lane
And the meadow with blossoms white;
Blossoms of daisies spilled by the moon
From her silver beat one night.
Here cornflowers open their blue eyes wide,
And poppies flirt with the sun;
While all of the grasses are glittering with gems
That fairies from dewdrops have spun.
Ah, yes! there's a brook—it ripples and smiles,
Past banks where the blue gentian peeps;
But the song that it sings to the violet, I ween,
She deep in her little heart keeps.
Oh this is the lane that memory paints,
Where love's fairest blossom grew;
For down by the stile I met a maid
With eyes like the cornflowers blue.
Her cheeks were flushed with the pink of the rose,
Her lips wore the poppy's red,
And sunbeams were playing at hide and seek
'Midst the curls on her golden head.
Lightly she tripped through the meadow sweet,
And softly the breeze kissed her brow;
Then she laughed—and her laugh was the song of the brook—
Methinks I can hear it now,
But alas for the passing of summer dreams,
We met and we parted for aye;
Now I walk alone—here in memory's lane—
While she rides on the world's highway.
—Agnes Lockhart Hughes.

GLENGARRY SURPRISES.

Religion Is a Living Influence and Old Customs Hold Sway.

Glengarry supplies some surprises and new experiences for a Western Ontario man, says a correspondent of The Toronto News. The country is the same—the soil not so fertile as Elgin, Kent or Huron—but well tilled, and the people equally thrifty and prosperous. They are intense in their feelings, as "Ralph Connor" has told us in his books, fine, strong partisans, and yet a broad and tolerant community. The majority are Roman Catholics, and holding their religious views tenaciously, they have no quarrel with their Protestant neighbors, and have even been known to invite individual Orangemen from Cornwall to assist in celebrating St. Andrew's Day.

The most imposing edifice in the county is the cathedral at Alexandria. It is a very handsome structure, faced by a palace, where Bishop MacDonell resides, that compares favorably with the finest ecclesiastic residences in Canada. The Archiepiscopal Palace at Toronto does not compare with it in any respect. Of grey stone, three storeys and modern in every particular, it commands attention from the stranger.

Within the cathedral there are three tablets, erected to deceased priests, and these catch the eye, and arrest attention by reason of the names thereon. They are Rev. John McDonald, who died 1845; Rev. Alexander McDonell, deceased 1853; and Rev. John McLachlan who passed away in 1856. These Scottish names of men eminent in the Roman Catholic Church, to those who have always associated the McDonalds with the Kirk, is in the nature of a surprise.

The dimensions of the cathedral, and the absence of any other church, except one Presbyterian meeting place, is evidence that the descendants of the original settlers have not departed from the faith of their fathers.

All who are not Roman Catholics must be Presbyterians. At least, they must attend that church, for there is no other. And to remain apart from church; to do anything to earn the title of an agnostic, would be fatal in Glengarry. A business man would be ruined if the impression once took hold of the people that he was an unbeliever. One in another walk of life would be ostracised. If doubt has entered into the borders of the county it must keep quiet.

A Tough Old Invalid.

In England the purchase of an advowson, or the right to succeed to a vacant church office, is not uncommon. There is a story told of a country vicarage whose incumbent was, though but middle aged, very infirm. His tenure of the position being thus uncertain, the living was advertised for sale. The auctioneer who at the time had the disposal of all church preferments mentioned as a special advantage to intending purchasers that the then holder could not last long. To put this prospect to the test several possible buyers went down to the village to look over the vicar. A father and son attended the Sunday services at the church. A servant led in the ailing vicar, but the latter managed to get through a very earnestly delivered sermon lasting half an hour. In the afternoon he again conducted service, baptised children and preached for fifty minutes. Service in the evening was to follow. But the man who had come to buy had seen enough. "My son," he said, "that old cock ain't a-goin' yet; I am," and he forthwith departed. In the end a young parson bought the place for himself. The invalid outlived by twenty years the man who had bought his living. He lasted fifty years beyond the sale and died of sheer old age at ninety-two.

G.T.R. Section Hand Killed.

Sunderland, Sept. 13.—James Sanguines of this place was killed at Blackwater yesterday afternoon. Deceased, a G. T. R. section hand, was on a gravel train backing into the pit at Blackwater, when he fell off the car and was run over before the train could be stopped. Death took place about half an hour after the accident. He left a widow and four little girls.

Fell Into Thresher Cylinder.

Delhi, Sept. 13.—Yesterday morning a very sad accident happened at a threshing on the farm of Rufus Roach. Reggie Williams, a young man about 21 years of age, was up in the loft helping throw down the sheaves. In some manner he slipped and fell headlong into the cylinder of the threshing machine and was instantly killed.

FROST'S

DIAMOND HALL

GOOD WORK OF "CAVAN BLAZERS"

One of the Blazers Thows Light on Their Origin.

The Company of Young Men was Formed to Help Suffering Neighbors.

A document, which will prove a very valuable addition to the literature of the Historical Society, has been handed to the Examiner by the president of that society. It refers to the famous Cavan "Blazers," and it is gladly published by the Examiner as authorative testimony, written by one of the "Blazers."

There appears to be some very erroneous and unfair ideas prevalent among, or in the minds of a great many people, as to who, these people known as "Blazers," were, the objects they had in view, why they existed, what they did, and who they were.

My reason for writing this paper is, that before the last of those who intimately knew the "Blazers," pass away, their aims and objects, that a fair and correct sketch of them, and their doings, shall be left for the use of those who will come after us, and may desire to know something of the early settlers of Cavan, and their descendants, and doings.

They were never an organization, or association, in any form or manner, and originated in this way:

In 1846 that part of Cavan forming the eastern quarter of the 9th, 10th and 11th concessions, then known as "Egypt," now as Fraserville and neighbourhood, was afflicted with an epidemic known as "Intermittent Fever," as that part of the country was low and swampy, clearings small, people poor, and only one doctor, the late Dr. Brodie, in the township. The number of sick rapidly increased, and many died. Nearly every household was afflicted. The harvest came on, and the poor people, were by reason of the sickness, unable to save their harvest. The young men on these concession lines, which were on high and healthy ground, came to the conclusion that something must be done to assist their sick neighbours, and that thing which they could do easiest and most efficiently was to cut and save the harvest, then ripe. About twenty of the sons of the oldest and most respectable farmers in the section, started to do what they could, and every second night at least, and sometimes two or three nights in succession, these young men, who worked in their own harvest fields every day, went out, first to those most in need, then others in succession, cut and stooked their grain, and when dry enough, drew it to the barns of those who had barns, or stacked it. In the morning those able to go out would see the field in stook. Fortunately, it was fine harvest weather, with moonlight, and the boys were able to get a lot of work done. Many of the well-to-do farmers had a man or two hired, to assist in their harvests, and these young men were just as willing, and capable, of assisting, as the others, and turned out and took their share of the work.

As the young men had not enough horses at home to accommodate a large number, and as there were no buggies to be had, and wagons were too noisy, every man went on horseback, often two on one horse, one carrying a cradle and the other a rake, and as saddles were only owned by the well-to-do part of the community; one saddle for one horse was the rule. There were at first not enough saddles to go around. Those having saddles were not always willing to lend, and, consequently, as the old saying is, "necessity knows no law," and a saddle for each horse was a "necessity," the boys borrowed, without the formality of asking, all the saddles they needed, and by that means took away the need of refusal by the owner. Some of these people who had unwillingly contributed saddles were very wrath, and said hard things. Among them was a wealthy but stingy old farmer, who was the possessor of four good saddles, one for himself and one for each of his three sons. As it would have been waste of time to ask for the "loan," the only thing left to do was to borrow, without loan, which was done. He made a great fuss, and tried to get summonses or warrants issued, but as he could not name the parties guilty of borrowing his saddles he could do nothing. As he had published his opinion of the boys far and near, and they, of course, heard of it, a few of them meeting one night; some one suggested that he could be "admonished and advised to keep his mouth closed." A notice was accordingly written to him and a man sent to nail it on his door, which was done. It was nearly as follows:—"To Mr. —, ——, It has come to the knowledge of the young men, who are trying to save the crops of their sick and dying neighbours, that you are slandering better men than yourself, and accusing them wrongfully of various crimes. Now, this is to give you notice, that unless you stop this thing at once, we may pay you a visit, and if we do, you will never forget it."

"Signed by order of the Committee,

"BLAZES."

Secretary."

He read the signature "Blazers," not "Blazes," and thus the name of "Blazers" was fixed on them. His saddles, and all other borrowed saddles, were returned to the owner, in as good condition as when borrowed, as soon as the harvest was over. The harvest of 1847 found the settlers of the same locality afflicted in the same way, but to a less extent, and the "Blazers" did as they had done in the previous harvest when necessary.

Another instance of disinterested kindness I may mention. In the neighbourhood was a well off farmer, who had a family well grown up, two fine, good looking girls the oldest. The father and mother, meeting another old couple at a fair, here in Peterborough, from the same place in Ireland, and being the same Christian and surname, men and women came to the conclusion to unite the families once more by the son of one marrying the eldest daughter, unmarried, of the other, and completed the arrangement as far as they could. The father and mother of, and the prospective son-in-law, were to come to the home of the young woman the following Saturday, when all arrangements for the wedding were to be closed. Saturday brought the visitors, and the young people were introduced to each other, all arrangements were completed and it was agreed the marriage should take place on the following Monday, week. The old people and son left for home, to return on the next Saturday. They were prompt on time with the intended bridegroom, the license obtained, minister engaged, and wedding to take place at 10 a. m., Monday — (next day.) The poor girl, who was a great favourite in the neighbourhood, got word sent to the "Blazers" of her position, and they with knowing there was another very respectable young man, who lived about twenty miles away, very much in love with the young woman, and whom she was willing to marry, sent a man on horseback to him on Sunday, with a message from her to come and save her. He started at once, with a team and waggon, got to a certain place arranged, and was met by about a dozen of the boys. In the meantime the boys had discovered that the girl had been locked up in her room, in one end of the house on the third floor, and a long ladder was obtained and carried three miles by relays of men, set up against the window; and a young man, well known to her, ascended the ladder. The poor girl was sitting on her bed crying. As soon as the window was opened he got in, told her to put her hat and wrap on, as Sam was outside with a team and waggon, and about a dozen boys, all of whom she knew, were on the ground to assist. He at once tied up her bed, bedding and clothes, ran them down the ladder, where they were picked up by the boys waiting and trotted off to the waggon. She was then assisted down, and a man on each side took her arm and trotted her off to the waggon, where her lover was waiting. A couple of the oldest and best known of the boys got in. They drove to the office of the issuer of marriage licenses and got a new license, then to an old minister's residence, got him up, where they were married, and were escorted to their waggon, and started on the journey before daylight, and while the intended bridegroom was quietly sleeping and no doubt dreaming of future bliss. Many guests and the minister, who was to have assisted in perpetuating the name of the two families; but after waiting for the bride to come down for a long time, her mother went to call her, only to find she had gone, and so had everything in the room, except the old "four poster," and the straw, which had filled the straw tick.

To put it mildly, the two old couples were as mad as the new bride and her husband were happy, so they concluded they would not give her the marriage portion intended. The boys heard of the determination, and at once concluded they must be admonished and given to understand that unless she was treated as her eldest sister had been, at the marriage, the matter would be taken in in hand by the "Blazers," who would see justice done in the premises. It had the desired effect, and the following Sunday night two of her brothers went with two cows, and on Monday morning the old people visited the store in which they dealt, and the clerks had the satisfaction of selling to them considerably over $100.00 worth of necessary articles for a young couple beginning the world; and when the old people got acquainted with their new son-in-law they were quite satisfied. Now, these are the kind of things they did, and never can it be truthfully said did they, or any one of them, descend to a mean or vicious act.

About this time some scamps, not in any way connected or related to the Blazers, or any of them, committed some depredations, such as shaving horses' tails and manes, cutting cows' tails, etc., but, it was conclusively proven that these acts were committed by a couple of scoundrels who had been following a threshing machine and who did not belong to Cavan in any way. They cleared out and nothing of the kind has ever happened since in the township.

Another false impression I desire to correct; that is, that the "Blazers" were organized to drive Roman Catholics out of Cavan. This is an impudent and malicious falsehood, which can be proven by the fact that on several occasions the young men Catholics hired by the fathers of these "Blazers" ed by the fathers of these "Blazers" were among the most willing helpers and always went when an opportunity to do so occurred. In fact, one family of Roman Catholics lived for many years on the 9th line, the head of the family working a great part of his time for "Rev. Samuel Armour," the rector. Every one liked and respected him and his family, and when stricken down with his last illness the of the boys came into town for "Father Butler" and brought him to their dying neighbor. "Father Butler" stayed at "Rev. Mr. Armour's" all night; they had always been very intimate friends, and he was driven home by one of the boys next day. The funeral was one of the largest seen in that neighborhood. Then, there were several families of Roman Catholics lived in the township for many years — some of them over seventy years. There were the Redmonds, the Fitzgeralds, the O'Briens, the Cunninghams, the Hodgkins, the Powers, Maguires and Ryans, with others whose names I have forgotten. These men were as highly respected as any other decent families in the township. Patrick Maguire, Esq., was for years clerk of the Township Council, one of the oldest magistrates in the county, connected for forty years with the militia, and rose in the regular way to be Colonel of the battalion. At his house service used to be held by the Roman Catholic priest from Peterborough or Port Hope, and some times by the late Father Coyle of Emily, who was an old schoolmate and bosom friend of Rev. Mr. Douglas, Presbyterian minister, and many a time have I seen him and Father Coyle, who visited him, once a year at least, on horse back together riding round among old friends they had known in Ireland.

Our late neighbor, Joseph Redmond, was born in Cavan, on the farm his mother and father lived on for about seventy years, and was well known and respected in Cavan as he was here.

These facts should dispose of the idea that Roman Catholics were the special objects of the dislike of the Blazers.

These men who were the Blazers have nearly all passed away, only three or four of them now living, as far as I know. Like all other young people they were impulsive and sometimes may have acted to some extent without consideration, but always with the intention of helping the weak or helpless.

WONDERFUL CURE OF SORE HANDS

By Cuticura After the Most Awful Suffering Ever Experienced.

EIGHT DOCTORS

And Many Remedies Failed to do a Cent's Worth of Good.

"About five years ago I was troubled with sore hands, so sore that when I would put them in water the pain would very nearly set me crazy, the skin would peel off and the flesh would get hard and break. There would be blood flowing from at least fifty places on each hand. Words could never tell the suffering I endured for three years. I tried everything that I was told to use for fully three years, but could get no relief. I tried at least eight different doctors, but none of them seemed to do me any good, as my hands were as bad when I got through doctoring as when I first began. I also tried many remedies, but none of them ever did me one cent's worth of good. I was discouraged and heart-sore. I would feel so bad mornings when I got up, to think I had to go to work and stand the pain for ten hours, and I often felt like giving up my position. Before I started to work mornings I would have to wrap every finger up separately, so as to try and keep them soft and then wear gloves over the rags to keep the grease from getting on my work. At night I would have to wear gloves in bed. In fact, I had to wear gloves all the time. But thanks to Cuticura, the greatest of all great skin cures. After doctoring for three years, and spending much money, a small box of Cuticura Ointment ended all my sufferings. It's been two years since I used any and I don't know what sore hands are now, and never lost a day's work while using Cuticura Ointment."

BEFORE THE MAGISTRATE AT THIS MORNING'S COURT

Judgement Reserved in Italian Liquor Case—Other Cases.

Cecil Shannon pleaded not guilty to a charge of breaking into and entering the warehouse of Alex. Elliott, and stealing six kegs of lager beer in June last. He was remanded until Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The dog tag cases are still apparently not at an end and it seems that there are those who will try to evade the law as long as possible. But the police will get after them sooner or later. A fine of $2 and costs was imposed upon a delinquent this morning.

A boy of fifteen years of age, whose home is in Millbrook, was charged with vagrancy. He said he was in town in search of work, and had applied at several of the factories, but unsuccessfully. He expected work, however, before the end of the week. He did not have the appearance of a vagrant, and the magistrate discharged him with the advice to either get work in town at once, or go back to his home.

Camille Deluke, an Italian, was charged with unlawfully selling liquor. It will be remembered that last Monday the police made a raid on an Italian settlement on Bethune street, and secured a quantity of liquor. A witness this morning testified that he had bought liquor on more than one occasion from the defendant, and had seen Italians drinking at his boarding house, but had never seen any sold except to himself. A number of witnesses were called on both sides. The Magistrate reserved judgment for a week. S. T. Medd for defence, and E. H. D. Hall for the prosecution, were the counsels.

WHERE BLAME FOR THE DEFEAT LIES

General Kuropatkin Reports on His Liao-yang Defeat.

TURNED ON ORLOFF'S FAILURE

Loss to the Two Armies was Under 35,000 and so Liaoyang Loses Credit of Being One of World's Great Battles—Gen. Stoessel Reports on the Repulse of Japanese Attacks.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 15.—Gen. Kuropatkin's official report, which was given out last night, comes as a considerable relief as setting at rest alarmist stories of the loss of guns, the cutting of divisions and the death or capture of prominent commanders, which have been freely circulating here. The report bears out the declaration of the Associated Press at the time that Gen. Orloff's failure to hold the vital position at the Yentai mines was responsible for the breaking down of the whole of Gen. Kuropatkin's plan of battle and turned a potential victory into defeat. The report, as given out, does not state the casualties, but the Associated Press is authoritatively informed that they were under 17,000.

The War Office is extremely reticent regarding the present situation and future plans at the front. It is stated in general terms that the army is concentrated around Mukden, leaving the inference that it is ready to make another stand.

South of the Hun River.

London, Sept. 15.—Field Marshal Oyama reports to Tokio that a considerable Russian force remains south of the Hun River, while Gen. Kuropatkin telegraphed to St. Petersburg that the bulk of the Japanese force is still south of the Yentai branch railroad. Oyama also says that the Russians are fortifying the heights on both sides of the Liao River at Tie Pass. No light is thrown on the all-absorbing question of where the next engagement in force will occur.

Gen. Kuropatkin's estimate of his losses in the fighting around Liaoyang are far under the first reports. He reports that, from Aug. 28 to Sept. 5, he lost 4,000 killed and 12,000 wounded. Marshal Oyama placed the total of Japanese casualties at 17,500, making the total for both armies in round number 33,500. Accepting these figures as correct, the battle of Liaoyang, in killed and wounded, falls much lower in the scale of the worlds' great battles.

Japanese Attacks Repulsed.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 15.—The Emperor has received the following despatch from Gen. Stoessel (commander of the Russian military forces at Port Arthur), dated Aug. 28: "I am happy to report to Your Majesty that at 3 o'clock in the morning of Aug. 27, during a violent rain and thunder storm, the Japanese again attempted to capture our left flank positions, near number one fort and Udan Mountain. Their attack was everywhere repulsed. Our losses were small—three men killed and two officers and 98 men wounded. The wounded were brought in and are being carefully tended. A number of Japanese corpses would have been picked up by us, but the enemy prevented us from so doing by opening fire on the hospital attendants, who had been sent out under the Red Cross flag."

Japs Blown Into the Air.

Another despatch from Gen. Stoessel to the Emperor, dated Sept. 2, says: "On the night of Sept. 1 the enemy attacked Visokaya and Minnaya Mountains and the neighboring fortifications, opening simultaneously an artillery fire on the forts and mountains. The leading files of the enemy, with the Japanese columns following them, were discovered in good time, and our batteries opened on them. The leading files fortunately encountered some automatic mines, and many of the enemy were blown in the air. The attack was repulsed in an hour. Our losses were inconsiderable—one officer and seven men wounded."

Ignores British Protest.

London, Sept. 15.—The Globe yesterday afternoon says that the decision of the Vladivostock prize court to confiscate that portion of the cargo of the British steamer Calchas consisting of flour, cotton and timber, consigned to Japan, if confirmed by the Russian supreme court, amounts to a complete ignoring of the protest lodged by Great Britain at St. Petersburg against the inclusion of provisions in the Russian list of contraband of war.

A BAD BOILER EXPLOSION.

Six Men Badly Hurt at Toronto Bolt Works' Mills.

BOILER LIFTED FROM ITS BED

Those Near the Boiler Had No Chance of Escape and Were Carried Out With the Wreck of the Roof and Boiler —Metal Smokestack Fell In— Who the Injured Are.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—About 1.45 yesterday afternoon one of the tubular boilers in the engine room of the McDonnell rolling mill at Sunnyside exploded with terrible force, badly injuring six of the workmen. Part of the building was wrecked and hurled in all directions, the boiler lifted from its bed and a large metal smokestack fell in. Fortunately the building being of open construction the force of the explosion was confined to the part of the building near the boilers, and the men, about 70 in number, in the other part of the mill escaped. For those at work near the boilers there was no chance of escape, and they were carried out with the wreck of the roof and boiler.

Six were found badly injured, two more severely than the others. The police and ambulances were quickly on the scene, and Doctors Hart, Lynd, Griffiths and Hunter did what they could for the men, who were conveyed to the Western Hospital. The injured are:

Names of the Injured.

William Dixon, 31 Garden avenue, engineer, compound fracture of left arm between the shoulder and elbow, fracture of both bones of the right forearm and fracture of the second metacarpal, bad cut behind the ear, and body badly burned.

George Woods, 5 Sunnyside avenue, mill-hand, face badly cut, bruised and very badly burned.

Albert Durnford, 85 West Marion street, mill-hand, burned, bruised and scalded.

Alexander Watson, engineer, face scalded.

James Hill, mill-hand, North Lisgar street, arms burned.

Fred Jones, Indian Road, engineer, leg broken.

All the men except Woods are married. Dixon is over 40 years of age, and consequently is suffering severely from the shock. The money loss will be about $1,500.

Dynamite Explodes in His Face.

Port Arthur, Sept. 15.—An Italian had a miraculous escape here yesterday. He was in the waterworks trench when a premature dynamite explosion occurred. His face was literally filled with small pieces of rock and he was otherwise injured. He will recover.

To Be Buried Side By Side.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—James Power, who fell from the rear gallery of the tenement at 158 and 160 Prince street, on Monday, died in the Notre Dame Hospital at 11 o'clock yesterday, as a result of his injuries. The mother and son will now be buried in the same grave. Mrs. Jules Deslauriers, the third victim, is expected by the surgeons of the institution to live a day or two. Life is slowly ebbing away. Mrs. Power was killed by the falling of the balcony, and her son and Mrs. Deslauriers fatally injured at the time.

Killed By a Train.

Ottawa, Sept. 15.—When crossing the C.P.R. tracks at Mechanicsville, a suburb of Ottawa, Mrs. Philip Beaudry of 19 Murray street was struck by an incoming train late yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. The woman was 72 years old. In the heavy rain and coming darkness, she did not notice the transcontinental express, and walked right in front of it.

Arm Wrenched From Socket.

Toronto Junction, Sept. 15.—While leaning in to fix the coupling on two cars here yesterday afternoon, William Shore, a yardman in the employ of the C.P.R., slipped and had his left arm taken off. The wheels passed over the arm near the shoulder and the drag of the wheel on the arm literally wrenched it from the socket. The unfortunate man was picked up by his comrades and Dr. Beattie came to his assistance. The shoulder was dressed temporarily and Shore was hurried to the Western Hospital. By last reports he was progressing favourably.

SOO ELECTION TRIAL; ILLEGAL PAYMENTS.

Illegal Payments Proved, but Agency not Established—Mr. Smith Tried to Have Clean Campaign.

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 15. — In the protest trial yesterday the illegal payment of money to voters on two different occasions was proved, but agency was not established.

The Respondent's Evidence.

C. N. Smith took the stand, and stated that Audette had no authority from him to make any payments. He did not look for the support of any hotelkeepers during the campaign, and throughout the constituency told his supporters that he wanted a clean campaign. Referring to the Minnie M. trip, he said to Mr. DuVernet that he did not believe when he heard the letter of protest read at the opera house that the boat was going.

STREET RAILWAY NOTES.

Another Car in Service To-night—Fine Work Being Done on Old Car.

Work at the car shops on the old closed car, No. 7, which was in use when the road was formerly in operation, is being rapidly pushed forward, and it is expected that this car will be on the line by the end of next week. The painting, which will be concluded by Monday, has been done by Mr. T. H. Goldey and Mr. E. Courtney, and is certainly a credit to these workmen, and does not suffer in the least in comparison with that done on the new cars from Ottawa, but the finish is generally considered to be more handsome and with a more pleasing blending of colour.

Another car will be put on regular service this evening. It will be No. 12, the second of the new ones.

AFTERNOON TEA WAS SUCCESSFUL

That Given in Aid of St. Luke's W. A was Well Attended.

The afternoon and evening tea given last night by Mrs. L. Turner and Mrs. A. O. Sawyer at the residence of the former, was most successful. There was a large attendance of ladies and the funds of St. Luke's Woman's Auxiliary, in aid of which the tea was given, was satisfactorily augmented, as a result of the tea. A delightful evening was spent by those present, and a pleasant feature was music rendered by Miss Daisy Comstock.

OUR REPRESENTATIVE OF HIS MAJESTY.

Lieutenant-Governor Clarke Will Open Peterborough Fair.

Lieut.-Governor Mortimer Clarke pays his first visit to Peterborough on the occasion of the annual Peterborough Exhibition, on September 27th, when His Honour will deliver the opening address. The people of this town and county should turn out well and show the provincial representative of the Crown that his visit is appreciated by them.

A particular interest should be felt in the Lieutenant-Governor from the fact that he is our own property, if such a term may be used. In the case of the Governor-General, he is the representative of His Majesty, for the whole Dominion, and belongs to no particular province, while in the case of the Lieutenant-Governor no such division of proprietorship is felt. It is certainly an honour to Peterborough that the Lieutenant-Governor has consented to open this year's fair, and this honour should be appreciated by the people sufficiently to induce them to attend in large numbers.

CAUGHT THE PEOPLE.

The Black Watch Scored Great Success in Toronto.

The Black Watch Band and Pipers have been receiving many ovations and hospitalities in Toronto. The Toronto Mail in speaking of them says:—"The Band undoubtedly made a conquest, every number being applauded to the echo. The Highlanders certainly caught the popular fancy and many thousands will rise up and call the management blessed for having induced this famous organization to visit Canada."

The Black Watch Band and Pipers will be here Tuesday, Sept. 27th, at 8 o'clock in the Brock street rink.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1904.

TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS SPENT.

Sent From Purity Fund to Elect Miscampbell.

One Hundred and Twenty Handed Back Last Week, but $700 Unaccounted for—Payment by Mr. Miscampbell to an Elector Admitted.

There is a strong probability that the Conservative candidate at the next election in Sault Ste. Marie, whenever it may occur, will not be Mr. Andrew Miscampbell, the petitioner in the pending protest, and who was the opponent of Mr. C. N. Smith, the sitting member. On Friday last Mr. Miscampbell was examined in this city before a special examiner in connection with the cross-petition which has been filed against him by the Liberals. When the protest against Mr. Smith was filed the seat was claimed for Mr. Andrew Miscampbell, but since the cross-petition was filed that claim has been abandoned, and Mr. Miscampbell is merely seeking to open the constituency.

In his examination on Friday Mr. Miscampbell gave some important testimony in reply to questions by Mr. G. H. Watson, K.C., which was, in part, as follows:—

$900 From Purity Fund.

Q.—How much was the amount of your legitimate expenditure as reported.

A.—About $779.

Q.—That report was made up, of course, by the returns made by your financial agent? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that financial agent's return includes all your personal expenditure? A.—All my expenses.

Q.—All expenses of any kind? A.—Yes.

Q.—Sure? A.—Yes, sure.

Q.—What about all the other money that was up there? A.—What other money do you allude to?

Q.—Other money that got up there into the riding—that was there? A.—I don't know anything about it.

Q.—How much was sent to you personally from Toronto? A.—$900.

Q.—How was it sent to you? A.—think by draft.

Q.—Who sent it to you? A. Mr. Ryckman.

Q.—What did you do with that money? A.—I cannot remember what I did with it now.

Q.—What did you do with any of it? A.—I paid my election expenses.

Witness admitted keeping a memorandum of his expenditures from the $900, as he had to keep something in order to know for what he used the money, but did not know where the book was. The money was paid in three sums, in each case Mr. Miscampbell drawing on Mr. Ryckman. The first payment was before the writ issued, for $200; the second for a like amount after the writ issued, and the third for $500 a little prior to election day. The balance of the $900 over the $780 of expenses, some $121, Mr. Miscampbell said he returned in cash to Mr. Ryckman either on the day previous to this examination or on that morning, although he had permission to use it in connection with the protest. Upon being closely questioned further Mr. Miscampbell stated that to Mr. Ryckman between 9 and 10 o'clock this morning.

Another $1,100 From the Fund.

Mr. Miscampbell said he also received $100 from Mr. Wm. J. Thompson, a merchant at the Soo, which he did not use.

Q.—Where did Mr. Thompson get the money? A.—I do not know, except from what rumour said.

Q.—What is your understanding as to how he got it? A.—My understanding was that he got it from Mr. Ryckman.

Q.—That would be $1,300 — how much more did he get from Mr. Ryckman? A.—I don't know how much more he got from Mr. Ryckman.

Q.—But some more? A.—Yes; I think he did.

Q.—Altogether Mr. Ryckman sent up there $2,500, I understand? A.—I do not think so.

Q.—How much do you think it was? A.—I understand he sent up $2,000 altogether.

Q.—Or that you got $900, and I understand Mr. Thompson got about $1,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—How did Mr. Thompson happen to be the custodian of the money? A.—He is ex-President of the Conservative Association.

Q.—You knew he was getting the money? A.—I had an idea he was getting the money.

Q.—And it was with your concurrence that the money went to him? A.—I can say yes.

In reply to further questions Mr. Miscampbell said he had authority to apply to the expenses of the election protest the residue of the money received; he assumed that authority applied to the whole $2,000, and Mr. Thompson at his request paid counsel in the petition from the money in his hands.

Q.—Do you know what Thompson did with the balance of $700? A.—No.

Q.—You do not know how much you got from Thompson over and above the $400? A. — I would not say from memory.

Q.—You may have got some over and above the $400? A.—Yes, I may have some.

Paid $50 to an Elector.

Mr. Miscampbell admitted paying one William Allison of Allandale $50 upon his return from Mjchipicoten after the election to cover his expenses. Allison went up at his request to see that none but the proper persons voted. At the time he paid Allison the money he admitted he must have known that Allison's name was on the list, and he had also heard that Allison had voted at the election, although not entitled to do so, as he was not then a resident.

EARL GREY RIGHT MAN FOR CANADA.

The One Best Fitted to be Lord Minto's Successor.

His Family Has a Long and Distinguished Connection With This Country—A Man of Independent Mind—Is Intimately Acquainted With Leading Men of Canada.

(South Africa.)

We congratulate Canada. The one man who was best fitted to succeed Lord Minto as Governor-General of the Dominion has been appointed to that post. Earl Grey will go to Canada under the most favourable auspices. He is not only an administrator of tried and proved capacity, but he has a family connection with the Dominion, and has, personally, achieved a degree of popularity among Canadians such as only a very few men have ever attained.

The connection between Lord Grey's family and Canada dates back to 1847, when Col. Grey, the second son of the Reform Premier, went out in command of the 7 s Regiment. That gallant officer, who afterwards became private secretary to the late Prince Albert, and later on to Queen Victoria, was the father of the new Governor-General; and another connection between Canada and the Family of the Reform Premier was established when his daughter, the wife of Lord Durham, went out with her husband, the author (with Charles Buller) of that famous report which was so nobly debated at the time and which has counted for so much in the political history of the Dominion.

Another link with the Dominion and the Greys is to be found in the last earl, who was secretary for the colonies from 1846 to 1852, and who from that time to the end of his long life remained the shrewdest critic of his successors on both sides. Hansard and the columns of the Times alike bear witness to the statesman's enduring activity; while, as those who remember him are fond of recalling, he dissented as often from the policy of Liberal as from that of Conservative secretaries of state.

The new Governor-General will enter upon his office with a very material advantage which few, if any, of his predecessors have possessed in an equally marked degree. He knows Canada from end to end, and is the brother-in-law of Lord Minto, one of the most popular and capable governors the Dominion has ever had. To the Canadians, he is a familiar friend. His visits to the colony have enabled him to make the intimate acquaintance of all the leading men, and by everyone of whom he is esteemed so highly that his appointment is quite the most popular that could have been made. He is in sympathetic touch not only with the members of the Canadian government, but with men like Sir Sandford Fleming, and others who, although they do not take a particularly active part in political matters, have a great deal to do with the direction of the commercial affairs of Canada.

Earl Grey is essentially a man of independent mind. In English politics he is a LIberal Unionist, but above and beyond all else he is an Imperialist of the most uncompromising type. He believes in maintaining, in their fullest integrity, the ties which bind together the colonies and the motherland. Family traditions may have had something to do with making him a Liberal; but his Liberalism was always of the old-fashioned order, and never at any time showed a tendency to degenerate into the Radicalism of the present day.

At this point a brief sketch of Earl Grey may not be out of place, although the readers of South Africa must be quite familiar with his lordship's personality and career. He was born in November 28th, 1851, and therefore is now in his fifty-third year. His father was the late General, the Hon. Charles Grey, and his mother was Catherine, the daughter of the late Sir Thomas Harvie Farquhar, Bart. He was educated at Harrow and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he greatly distinguished himself, graduating senior in the first class of the Law and History Tripos in 1873. In 1874 he was elected Liberal member of parliament for South Northumberland, but on a scrutiny was unseated. He was returned for the same constituency in 1880, and sat for the Tyneside division in the parliament of 1885 and 1886, but was unsuccessful at the general election held in the latter year, when the Liberals appealed to the country on Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill and were defeated. In 1891 he was travelling in South Africa when the news reached him that his uncle, (the third earl) was dead, and that he had succeeded to the family honours and estates. Two years later he became the administrator of Rhodesia, taking up the post at the critical moment which followed the Jameson raid. His occupation of the administratorship was a brief one, for he retired from it in 1897, but during his tenure of office he did enough to establish his reputation as a statesman of the first order, and to win golden opinions from the inhabitants from the colony. In Rhodesia, as in England, Lord Grey's personal popularity was greatly increased by that of his wife. The Countess by birth, has always taken a leading place in society. Her ladyship is the third daughter of Mr. Robert Stayner Holdford, of Weston Birt, Gloucestershire, and was married to Canada's new Governor-General in 1877. At Lesbury, Northumberland, where her husband's seat is situated, the Countess is held in a regard which almost amounts to adoration by her dependents. Her graciousness of manner, her kindly sympathy and geniality of disposition have endeared her to all classes, and the characteristics which have made her beloved and honoured in Rhodesia, at Lesbury, and in London society, will ensure for her the regard of Canadians of all ranks.

Earl Grey's association with the British South Africa company is well known to our readers. He joined the directorate of that corporation in 1898, and for the past six years has taken a very active part in its affairs. It will be very difficult, indeed, to adequately fill the vacancy of the board which will be caused by his department to Canada, for Earl Grey is a born administrator, as well as a man of the keenest business instincts. However, Rhodesia, and the Chartered company's loss, will be Canada's gain, and in his new sphere of usefulness Lord Grey will worthily sustain the Imperial prestige, while the personal graces of himself and Lady Grey will manifest themselves in a welcome manner to all sections of society in Canada.

The task which Lord Grey is about to undertake is no light one. Canada, although it has been a settled country for more than a century, contains elements which are decidedly sensitive to political disturbance. The Canadians are essentially a proud and jealous race—proud of their descent from families which were distinguished long before the Stuarts reigned in England or Louis the Great flourished in France, and jealous to the last degree of that independence which has been theirs from the early days of the Dominion. They are not an easy people to govern, for, in addition to their own inherent pride, they have acquired something of that American principle of equality, which, allied to their original British independence of character, makes them inclined to resent anything which can be construed in to a suspicion of coercion, or an attempt at patronage. In some respects they are a curious people. Of titles as such they are not enamoured. In Canada the rank is literally but the guinea stamp, and "a man's a man for a' that"; but if they were asked to accept a Governor-General whose nobility was of the mushroom order, they would consider themselves insulted, and as happened some years ago when an unpopular representative of the crown was placed in authority over them, they would be apt to talk a lot of nonsense about annexation to the United States. Happily for the Dominion and the mother country, Lord Grey possesses just the attributes of birth and intellect most calculated to make him acceptable to Canadians. He has gained the esteem of all parties among his countrymen by his lifelong devotion to social reform. His name is specially identified with the co-operative movement and with the Public-house Trust scheme, which is destined to have a great future, but these matters only represent a part of the philanthropic labours which he has maintained the traditions of his family. On every ground, by rank, integrity, knowledge of affairs, and devotion to the public welfare Earl Grey is thoroughly qualified for the great task now imposed upon him. The Canadian newspapers of yesterday, were we learn by cable, full of graceful references to the new Governor-General. They hailed his appointment with unanimous delight, and promised him a welcome such as we believe will eclipse anything of the kind ever extended to any of his predecessors.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The London papers also have not been behindhand in expressing satisfaction at his lordship's appointment. The following are quotations from some of the leading journals: —

Under the steading influence of a great responsibility, Lord Grey may be trusted to concentrate his activities upon the right objects. In that case, we may expect for him a success not inferior to that which has attended his brother-in-law, Lord Minto. He combines two essential qualities—those of an earnest belief in the empire and if an eminently conciliatory temper. He will hold the balance even between parties, and will also, we doubt not, be able to maintain with firmness the position that a Governor-General of Canada, as the representative of the crown is bound to maintain. He will be liked by French-Canadians and by English, by Roman Catholics and Protestants. Moreover, he will maintain cordial relations with the United States, which he knows well; while at the same time he will know how to treat those petulant demonstrations of a separation spirit which now and then, in a few obscure quarters, claim a certain notice. Moreover, his African experiences will lead him to look with sympathy upon those movements of expansion towards the Northwest which are such an important feature of modern Canadian life. He was what the professed politician lacks, the gift of imagination; he realizes the greatness of Canada's future and the possibilities that await development. Regions as large as states are ready for the plough; vast rivers and vast forests are asking to be made serviceable to man. Much has been done of late years to develop Canada as a field for British emigrants, and no Canadian problem will appeal more strongly than this to the mind of Lord Grey. If he can succeed in carrying this movement still further, and in making it more systematic and thorough, his tenure of his high post will become memorable in the history of the Dominion and of the Empire.—Times.

The appointment of Earl Grey to succeed Lord Minto as Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada will be received with general satisfaction. The new administrator of the Dominion comes, no less than his predecessor, of a ruling race. The Greys have produced a prime minister whose name will always live in the history of English liberties, while another member of the family, the father of Sir Edward Grey, made a reputation as a most conscientious home secretary. We may assume, therefore, that Earl Grey will go to his duties with that inborn capacity for managing men which must always be a most valuable asset to anyone on whom the lot falls of representing the crown in a great self-governing colony. The onward progress of democracy notwithstanding, the fact remains that particians who have lived in the atmosphere of administration from their earliest years find that the task comes much more readily to them than to men who have worked their way up to eminence from the ranks of the civil service, or even through holding a series of military or naval appointments. Earl Grey, is besides, a man whose views have always commanded respect, quite apart from his birth and upbringing.—Standard.

Canada will, we think, be well pleased with the selection of Earl Grey as its new Governor-Gengeral. He is in the prime of life, a man of great experience in administration, and one also who has distinguished himself as a fresh and original thinker on many of the most complex problems of the age. A country such as Canada is sensitive, and needs wise handling. It is proud of the Imperial tie, and eager always to do the fullest honour to the King's representative. But it is yet more proud of the absolute freedom and self-government which has been wisely conferred on it, and one need do no more than refer to the recent incidents in which the Earl of Dundonald took so prominent a part, to illustrate the necessity of having men who are above all things tactful and restrained to represent the mother country in its counsels. For that reason we are most pleased that the choice has fallen on Earl Grey.—Morning Post.

CHARGE DISMISSED

A Point Scored For Mr. Mackay in the North Grey Trial.

JAMES T. NELSON'S EVIDENCE

The Man From Buffalo Somewhat Mixed Regarding Dates—Dr. Hough of Wiarton Emphatically Denies Story Implicating Him—Case Not Concluded—The Soo Trial—Illegal Payments But No Agency.

Owen Sound, Sept. 15.—Mr. A. G. MacKay, M.P.P., scored one yesterday in the North Grey election protest, when the court dismissed as unworthy of credence the story of William Farrow that he had received $5 from Roy McMurchy for his vote. The Conservatives then played their trump card, the evidence of the Buffalo "workers," who claim to have been hired by Capt. Sullivan to come to the "three Norths" to purchase weak-kneed Conservatives. They say they squealed because they were not paid what was promised them. James T. Nelson, who posed as the head of the gang, claimed to have spent his time not in North Grey at all, but in North Perth, and on his own admission had been on several occasions in serious trouble with the police authorities in Buffalo. Leon J. Milloy, another member, was called, but, as it was nearly 6 o'clock, the court adjourned until to-morrow at 9 a.m. Mr. Justice Street was slightly indisposed yesterday morning, and the court for that reason did not meet in the forenoon, but His Lordship recovered later, and the case went on.

Farrow went into the box again and in answer to Mr. Aylesworth said he was sworn when he voted.

"Then you couldn't have considered that you had been promised any money?"

"No."

Roy MacMurchy, the alleged money handler, was called by Mr. Aylesworth. He swore that he did not know Farrow, and that he had never seen him before to his knowledge. He did not remember seeing Schieber, who put Farrow "next" to MacMurchy and the barrel, on election day. He did not give Farrow any money.

Farrow's Story Not Believed.

In discussing the charge, Chief Justice Moss said: We cannot agree with Mr. Blackstock that the charge is proved. We think it has failed on the evidence. Farrow has not presented himself to the court in favorable colors. By his own admission he is a person guilty of acts that discredit him on more than one occasion. His account of his doings on election day was not satisfactory. He was unable to say in what hour of the day the occurrence was. We would suppose that in a matter of this kind it would be difficult to be mistaken as to the time. He said he could not remember whether it was in the morning or afternoon; afterwards he rather came down to the statement that it was in the morning, about 10 o'clock. He ought to have been able to recall the circumstance with more certainty. It is also not to be overlooked that he admits having taken the oath, which oath is a distinct repudiation of having had any inducements held out to him. In that way, to a certain extent, he discredits himself. If MacMurchy's statement is to be accepted in full, Farrow's statement is entirely untrue. MacMurchy says he never paid Farrow money, and where a charge is so grave it ought to be supported by evidence more reliable.

Mr. Justice Street said: I quite agree. It was one oath against another, and Farrow discredited himself by the fact that he took the oath swearing that no money had been paid.

Nelson's Story.

James T. Nelson said that he lived at Buffalo. He knew Capt. John Sullivan, who at that time lived at the Walker House, Toronto. He saw Sullivan in December, 1902, about the 5th of the month, at Buffalo. He was brought down to his house by J. J. McCarty, a saloonkeeper and relative of Sullivan's. Sullivan said that he was representing the Liberal Government of Ontario. They were going to have three bye-elections and he said that he (witness) had been recommended to him for assistance. An hour later he met Sullivan at McCarty's saloon. He said that they depended on these constituencies to sustain the Government. Nelson replied that he would assist if there was money enough in it. Later, on the 17th or 18th, he met Sullivan again. He told Nelson to get eight men besides myself, two for North Norfolk and the balance for North Perth and North Grey. He said that he preferred William Bain, Michael Crosby, John Freeman, a young man by the name of Gallagher, William Schley and John McCarty. He named those parties himself. At this meeting he arranged to give the witness $5 a day, $2 for hotel bill and expenses, and $1 for each of the men. He specified these men because he said he knew them. He went away and said he would meet the witness on the 26th or 27th.

Money and Instructions.

In the meantime he got his men, securing John Haskitt and Leon J. Mulloy as well as the others named. He received $25 at that time. Sullivan and Nelson made an arrangement and met on the 27th at the Daly House with Haskitt on Sunday. The witness received $20. At 3 o'clock Sullivan introduced him to Messrs Smith and Massey. He met Smith afterwards and found out that his right name was Vance Mr. Sullivan said: "This is the gentleman that will tell you what to do in North Perth." He told him to go to the Cabinet Hotel at Stratford. He was to engage board for a month. He claimed that they were suspicious of every stranger and that it would be difficult to get in unless he did this. He got in without the monthly engagement, however. He was to report to R. T. Hardy and Mr. O'Bierne of The Stratford Beacon, as to persons who could be bought or influenced. He was also to watch the other fellows that they did not do any harm. Most of the reporting was done to Mr. Hardy. He was there until January 2, when he went to Buffalo, where he got his men. On Jan. 3 he met Sullivan with his men at the Windsor Hotel, Niagara Falls. He wanted him to send two men to North Norfolk. He preferred Bain and Crosby for that constituency.

What They Were to Do.

Sullivan gave him $225. He was to give $125 to Bain and $80 to McCarty, who was to go to North Grey. Sullivan said, "I mailed you $40 to Stratford," and he got it afterwards, when he went up there. J. J. McCarty, John Freeman, Gallagher, Schley and Leon Mulloy came to North Grey. In Perth the witness was known by his own name. He was supposed to be a traveler, but did not take any orders away with him. To the North Grey men he gave Sullivan's instructions. McCarty and Mulloy were to register at the Pacific Hotel. McCarty was to register as Marshall. The other three were to go to the Grand Central. Schley was to be sent to Shallow Lake and Mulloy to Wiarton. He was to see a Dr. Huff or Hough at Wiarton. McCarty had charge of the North Grey men. The proprietor or someone at the Pacific was to give instructions to McCarty. Gallagher was to handle the money to buy votes, and Freeman was to associate with him. McCarty was to tend bar at the Grand Central. He was to get money at the hotel, but could not recall who it was from then. Mulloy at Wiarton was to represent an Indian Medicine Company. It was at the Pacific Hotel, Wiarton, where he was to meet Dr. Hough. Sullivan told him that Hough had rooms there.

The men went forward to North Grey, while the witness went back to Stratford. He came to Owen Sound on Jan. 5 and met J. J. McCarty, but was only here from one train to the other, McCarty was at the Central Hotel, and he met him there.

Did Not Get His Money.

At Toronto, the day after the election, Sullivan gave him $50 at the Walker House, and told him to send in his bill from Buffalo. He sent his bill for $135, but had not received the money. He wrote Sullivan several times in connection with the bill, but did not get his money.

Cross-questioned by Mr. Aylesworth, he said that he had not been here in recent years until Jan. 15, 1903. He was raised in Kingston, Ontario, and was born in 1854. For 18 years he had lived in Buffalo. He had been in Ontario at intervals since. At the time of the election he was working for The London Times, taking orders for The Encyclopaedia Britannica. He had read of Captain Sullivan in the newspapers, and knew that he was accused of corrupt practices in Ontario politics. The affidavit had been sworn before a notary public named Newman in Buffalo, and had been given to Mr. Wright. It was in March or late in February that he became acquainted with Wright. Previously he had written to Mr. Whitney, and later, to G. M. Boyd. He did this because Sullivan had not lived up to his agreement. Mr. Boyd informed Mr. Wright, and the latter answered. He had not kept copies of the letters. Mr. Wright informed him that he was Conservative organizer, and he told him the substance of his story. Mr. Frazer, an attorney at Niagara Falls, drafted the affidavit. Mr. Wright, Mulloy and himself were present at the Mansion House, Buffalo, when the document was drawn up.

Mr. Aylesworth led up to the date of the first meeting with Sullivan, and the witness was confident that it was December. The affidavit stated that the first meeting took place in November. Nelson replied that the affidavit was probably correct, as the fact was fresh in his mind at the time.

Nelson's Record.

Vance had told him that part of his work was to watch for bribery on the other side. He did not report the names of weak-kneed men to O'Bierne but did to R. T. Hardy. He did not take into account the immorality of his position any more than a lawyer would. He denied that he had been in court for stealing spoons from the Bowery Brewery Company. The goods were property that was in a hotel which he had purchased, and over which there had been a misunderstanding. The judge fined him and remitted the fine. For throwing one Mearns out of his hotel for not paying his board he had been fined and released on suspended sentence for one year. He had received no reward or promise of reward, and Mr. Wright had said: "Remember, there is no money in it for you, but if there is anything to tell I am here to take it."

Could Not Explain.

He guessed that Sullivan knew all about his record, and thought he would be a proper person for the purpose and willing to be hired. He said he never got any pay for the affidavits. He never had any opportunity. Mr. Wright told him first thing when he asked him about the information which he had that there would be no money in it. He did not know what use would be made of the affidavit. He denied completely a statement by one Beauchamp, a painter, of Buffalo, that he had offered Beauchamp money to support a revised affidavit. He thought Sullivan spoke of a man named Frost, a lawyer in Owen Sound. After repeated questions he said that Sullivan said Frost would supply money to McCarty, who was to work with Frost. He had previously said that the money was to come through the proprietor of the Grand Central, and now claimed that he had forgotten the name of Frost. He could not explain why in his affidavit nothing was said about getting money from the Grand Central proprietor. Altogether he said he got from Sullivan for himself $155 from December 26 to January 9, but spent none of it in the County of Grey. He was not given or promised anything for coming here to testify.

Dr. Hough's Emphatic Testimony.

Dr. Hough of Wiarton, said Leon J. Milloy came to him and introduced himself. He gave him no instructions, except "get out." As soon as Milloy said what he was there for he told him very emphatically "get out," and had nothing more to do with him.

Milloy was then called into court, and Dr. Hough thought he was the man. He positively denied a statement of Milloy that he had given Milloy a map of the roads there, and qualified as "a lie" a further statement that he had given Milloy $25. He declared he never had anything to do with Milloy.

Leon J. Milloy, who had been seated facing Dr. Hough, was then called, but, as it was nearly 6 o'clock, the court adjourned until to-day at 9.30 a.m.

MUNYON

Has Proved the Value of His Remedies in a Million Homes.

I can well afford to ignore the petty jealousy, professional spleen and the ignorance which is back of the statements which now and then make their appearance as a means of belittling the unmatchable values of my remedies and preparations, and it is well for the sick and the ailing if they ignore them, too. As a matter of fact, in the compounding of these remedies and preparations is concentrated the knowledge and successful researches of the brightest medical minds that the century has produced, and those who make false statements know it. Every great discoverer who has contributed to the welfare and progress of the world and the well-being of the people has been assailed and misrepresented. Why should I be excepted?

There is nothing experimental about my preparations. Years ago they passed that stage and countless thousands have testified that they have found health through their use.

There are no "cure alls" among them, but my list of remedies contains a separate cure for each disease. That is why they are called home remedies, or the "family doctor" as they are frequently termed by those who depend upon them absolutely to keep the household in good health. MUNYON.

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure has cured more cases of rheumatism than all other rheumatism remedies combined.

Munyon's Kidney Cure has saved hundreds from Bright's Disease, and never fails to heal and help all kidney ills.

OTTAWA VALLEY EARTHQUAKE.

Comparatively Long in Duration, But No Damage Reported.

Arnprior, Sept. 15.—A severe earthquake shock was felt here at 9 o'clock last night. It lasted about 10 seconds, and was accompanied by the usual rumbling sound. Houses were shaken and people were led to think that some day the world would come to an end. It is some years since a shock has been felt in this district.

Felt in Buckingham.

Buckingham, Que., Sept. 15.—One of the heaviest earthquakes ever experienced in this section passed here at 9.53 last evening. It commenced with two heavy shocks, and the vibration continued for upwards of a minute. Reports received from Notre Dame de la Saletta indicate that it was felt very severely in that district.

Shocked Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—A slight earthquake shock lasting five seconds was felt in Montreal and vicinity a few minutes before 9 o'clock yesterday.

Ottawa Also Trembles.

Ottawa, Sept. 15.—Two distinct earthquake shocks were felt here last night and caused considerable alarm. The houses were severely shaken, but no damage was reported. The shock seemed to be general throughout the Ottawa Valley. The first shock was felt at 8.52.45 o'clock and lasted five seconds, and after an intermission of three seconds the second shock was felt, and lasted for six seconds. Dr. Amis of the geological survey staff says that the shock was caused by the rock formation on the surface of the earth settling into place.

CAPT. BERNIER RESIGNS.

Would Not Go As Second in Command of Northern Expedition.

Quebec, Que., Sept. 15.—Captain Bernier will not take part in the steamer Arctic's expedition to the head of the Mackenzie River. He has resigned on the ground that he will not accept the position of second in command. The steamer Arctic's expedition up the straits of the Hudson Bay is altogether a military organization, inasmuch as Major Moodie, in charge, is called upon to perform special duties and make important reports to the Government respecting the country and its conditions and geographical boundaries. Major Moodie has been given supreme command of the expedition, and Captain Bernier was simply appointed sailing master of the steamer, to receive his instructions from Major Moodie and obey his orders in regard to the movements of the ship. Captain Bernier revolted against these regulations when he was officially notified of the matter, and immediately threatened to resign, saying he was not going to play second fiddle to any man. He later carried his threat into execution, and telegraphed his resignation to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The general impression is that Captain Bernier's resignation will be accepted.

In Praise of Chamberlian's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and diarrhoea remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. O. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." McEvoy Off Gamey's Trail.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—The slander suit of J. M. McEvoy against R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., was yesterday discontinued at Osgoode Hall. The defendant had intended to apply for a change of venue from London to Bracebridge, but the application was not made. As Mr. Gamey, in his examination for discovery, denied the statements attributed to him, Mr. McEvoy accepts Mr. Gamey's denial, and as this removes any imputation upon his conduct he withdraws his action.

B. and F. Bible Society.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—The conference of delegates representing the thirteen Canadian Auxiliaries of the British and Foreign Bible Society opened yesterday morning in Knox Church schoolroom, with about 80 delegates from all parts of Canada present.

BLOOD DISEASE CURED.

If you ever contracted any Blood or Private Disease, you are never safe until the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. Don't be satisfied with a "patch up" by some family doctor. Our New Method is Guaranteed to Cure or No Pay. No Names Used without Written consent.

Cured When all Else Failed

"Could I live my early life over, this testimonial would not be necessary, though it was no more sinful than thousands of other young men. Early indiscretions, later excesses, exposure to contagious diseases all helped to break down my system. When I commenced to realize my condition I was almost frantic. Doctor after doctor treated me but only gave me relief—not a cure. Hot Springs helped me, but did not cure me. The symptoms always returned. Mercury and Potash drove the poison into my system instead of driving it out. I bless the day your New Method Treatment was recommended to me. I investigated with you were first, and finding you had over 25 years' experience and responsible financially, I gave you my case under a guarantee. You cured me permanently, and in six years there has not been a sore, pain, ulcer or any other symptom of the blood disease."

MID-SEPTEMBER WEDDING EVENTS

A Bevy of Peterborough's Beautiful September Brides.

Number of Pretty Weddings Yesterday and To-day—List of the Interesting Events.

Mr. Robt. G. McCuish and Miss E. Maud McFarlane.

One of the prettiest house weddings of the season, though one of the quietest, was celebrated at 6.30 last evening at the residence, 29 Homewood avenue, of Mr. Andrew McFarlane, Superintendent of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, the occasion being the union in marriage of his second daughter, Elizabeth Maud, to Mr. Robert George McCuish, editor and proprietor of the Morden, Manitoba, Chronicle. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only a few guests consisting of the immediate relatives of the bride and a few of her school friends. To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, performed by Mrs. P. A. Kerr, the bridal party took their places in the bow window of the north drawing room, which was beautifully brightened with flowers, the arch- like lace of the alcove being twined with smilax, and the bow window banked with palms, chrysanthemums and maiden-hair ferns. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Winnifred, and Mr. A. P. Knight, of Parkhill, cousin of the groom, was best man. The bride's gown was silk corsage over white taffeta, with lace bertha and garniture of seed pearls, her ornaments were pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore white net voile over taffeta, lace yoke, and bertha of gophered chiffon, and her bouquet was of blush pink roses. At the conclusion of the ceremony and while the bridal pair were receiving the congratulations of the guests, Miss Florence Miller sang in beautiful style the beautiful wedding hymn of Otto Cantor, "O, Fair, O, Sweet and Holy!" Then followed the wedding breakfast laid in the dining room, which was very tastefully decorated. The colour scheme was crimson, and the flowers, chiefly salvia and crimson geraniums, were relieved with white chrysanthemums. From the central electrolier to the four corners of the table, drooped a canopy of white ribbon, threaded with smilax; the centre piece was a candelabrum, with crimson wax tapers and crimson shades. The only guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wilgar of Toronto, brother-in-law, and sister of the bride, Miss Wilgar, also of Toronto, and Miss Arnold, Parkhill, cousin of the groom. With the murky skies and threatening rain, the saying, "Happy is the bride the sun shines on," was not suggested, but by a happy coincidence, just about at the conclusion of the ceremony, the sullen clouds parted, and from the golden west came pale gleams of sunshine which, shining through the mist, wove a beautiful double rainbow on the cloud banks of the eastern sky — mingled sunshine and mist, an augury, it is hoped, of a very happy future, and at the same time, suggestive of the blended smiles and tears that make up a bridal farewell. The happy couple took the nine o'clock Grand Trunk express en route, via Toronto, for Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis. After a three weeks tour, Mr. and Mrs. McCuish will take residence in Morden, Manitoba.

The bridal presents were elegant, and spoke eloquently of the high esteem in which both bride and groom are held, and of which they are in every way worthy. Mr. McCuish conducts the prosperous Liberal newspaper in Morden, where his many excellent qualities of mind and character have won him a prominent place as shown by the many telegrams of congratulation he received from friends there. The bride is a native of Peterborough, where she is well known and universally respected and esteemed. She has the distinction of sharing with the Canadian contingents, the honour of having served the empire in South Africa. She was one of the twenty Ontario teachers whom the Home Government sent to the Transvaal. The congratulations and best wishes of a host of friends follow her to her far western home.

Dr. F. P. McNulty and Miss Louise M Sullivan.

At eight o'clock this morning a very pretty and fashionable wedding was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Miss Louise Marie, the second daughter of Mr. J. C. Sullivan, "Lakeview," East Ward, was made the bride of Dr. Francis P. McNulty. The ceremony was performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, in the presence of the relatives of the contracting parties, and a large number of friends, the church being well filled. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss May Sullivan, while the groomsman was Dr. Malcolm Crawford, of Toronto. The bride was given away by her father. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played on the violin by Miss Genevieve McNulty, sister of the groom, accompanied by Miss Doherty on the organ. Miss Nettie Lewis sang very sweetly "Ave Marie."

The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of white Brussels point d-esprit over white taffeta. She carried a handsome bouquet of white roses, lily of the valley, and maiden-hair fern. She wore the conventional bridal veil and orange blossoms. Her sister was very becomingly attired in white Indian silk, with trimmings of medallions and carried pink roses and maiden-hair fern.

After the ceremony a delightful wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. The rooms were very tastefully decorated, the work being done by Mr. J. H. Cobb, florist. The caterer was Mr. H. Long.

An informal reception was held from 11 until 3.30 o'clock to-day, and the bride and groom left on the 5.10 C.P.R. train for a trip to New York and Atlantic City. The bride's going away gown was of navy blue taffeta, tailor made, with hat to match, and she wore a grey feather boa. Dr. and Mrs. McNulty will reside in Peterborough upon the conclusion of their wedding trip.

The bride was one of Peterborough's most popular young ladies and her large circle of friends will wish her every happiness and prosperity in her married life. The groom is well known as one of the most successful and highly esteemed of the local physicians, who will join with the many other friends in extending their congratulations upon the event of his marriage.

Mr. P. W. Currie and Miss Mary A. White.

A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated at 2.30 o'clock yesterday at the residence of Mr. W. J. White, Sophia street, East Ward, Peterborough, when his daughter, Mary A., was made the bride of Mr. P. W. Currie, B.A., of Ottawa. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Norman Lindsay, of Dresden, Ont., a brother-in-law of the groom. The bride was very becomingly attired in a navy blue English silk travelling dress, and was attended by her two nieces, Miss Elsie and Miss Dorothy Sherin, of Lakefield, as flower girls. Master Norman Lindsay, of Dresden, a nephew of the groom, acted as page.

The drawing room was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the nuptial knot was tied under a floral bell of white asters.

Among the guests were Mrs. Currie and Miss Currie, of Toronto; Rev. Norman Lindsay and son, of Dresden, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Sherin and daughters, of Lakefield.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents from friends in Ottawa, Toronto, Dresden, Niagara Falls, Strathroy, Peterborough, Lakefield and other places.

A delightful wedding breakfast was served at the conclusion of the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Curry left on the 5.10 C.P.R. train for Toronto, Montreal, Quebec and other places and upon their return will reside in Ottawa.

Mr. John Alexander Laird and Miss Jane Maude Scott.

A quiet wedding took place this afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Scott, 583 Water street, when their eldest daughter, Jane Maude, was united in marriage to Mr. John Alexander Laird, in the presence of only the immediate friends of the contracting parties.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M. A., rector of St. Luke's church, at 3.30 o'clock. The bride and groom were unattended, the former being dressed simply but very becomingly. Mr. Laird left on the 5.10 C.P.R. train for Chicago, where he has accepted a position with the Wells, Fargo Express Co., and Mrs. Laird will follow her husband in the course of a couple of weeks, waiting until the home has been made ready.

Mr. William T. Abbott and Miss Ada G. Bambridge.

On Tuesday evening a pretty wedding was celebrated at "Spruce Glen," the residence of Mr. S. D. Carver, North Monaghan, when Miss Ada Gertrude Bambridge, of Rainsey, Haw., Eng., was made the bride of Mr. William Thorndyke Abbott, of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Major, of All Saint's church, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was attended by Miss Marion Prentice, of Toronto, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Samuel Abbott. Many beautiful presents were received from a large circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott left on the evening train for a trip to Bracebridge and will reside in Peterborough on their return.

Mr. Silas Nicholls and Miss Ida May Allen.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated in Bridgenorth on Wednesday evening Sept. 7th, at 6 p.m., at the bride's home, Ward street, when Miss Ida May Cullen was made the bride of Mr. Silas Nicholls, of Bobcaygeon. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, by the Rev. J. W. Bonner, pastor of the Methodist church. The bride was handsomely gowned in white silk and carried white roses. She was attended by Miss Annie Conway, who was becomingly attired in cream voile, trimmed with yoke lace and carried pink roses. The groomsman was Mr. Jas. Cullen, brother of the bride. The happy couple were the recipients of many costly and beautiful presents, evidencing the high esteem in which they are held by a large circle of friends. A wedding supper was served at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols will reside in Bridgenorth.

Mr. T. H. Kendry and Miss Willis Mable Logan.

Another September wedding took place last night at the residence of Mr. John Logan, Sherbrooke street, which was tastefully decorated with flowers, etc., when his daughter, Willis Mabel, was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas H. Kendry, in the presence of the immediate relatives, which formed an interesting group.

As the wedding march was played by Mr. Lincoln Brace, the bride came in, leaning upon the arm of her father, wearing a beautiful grey suit trimmed with silk applique and buttons.

Miss Annie Brace was bridesmaid, and Mr. Gordon Logan attended the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. H. Brace.

A sumptuous wedding feast was provided. A number of costly presents were in evidence. Mr. and Mrs. Kendry will reside at Riverdale.—Com.

In anticipation of our formal opening event for the fall season next week, we desire to inform the ladies that we are fully ready now to show our new novelties and advanced styles. We are satisfied you will not hesitate to recognize in our autumn millinery the qualities of exclusiveness and distinction. ENTERPRISE IN TENTS.

The Toronto News has the following complimentary reference to Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons' tent exhibit at the Toronto Exhibition:

"Those who visited "Society Row" at the Exhibition will remember several interesting tents shown there by J. J. Turner & Sons, of Peterborough. One was a beautifully finished tent suited specially for the outdoor treatment of consumption. Another was a tent, of a form specially recommended by the Provincial Health Department for isolation cases. These tents were shown as an exhibit a little out of the ordinary. The firm, however, who are one of the best-known manufacturers of tents in the country, make every kind at their factory in Peterborough, and not only tents, but awnings, flags, tarpaulins, and coal and feed bags."

SAGE ADVICE FROM UNCLE RUSSELL

George Gould once tried to interest Russell Sage in a new equipment for cars which recorded the actual distance traveled by the car. Uncle Russell squinted at it a minute, and then he said:

"Does it earn anything?"

"No."

"Does it save anything?"

"No."

"Then I don't want it."

If we were talking about goods which neither earned nor saved, the best thing you could do would be to imitate Uncle Russell.

CEMENT BRICK AS BUILDING MATERIAL.

A new Departure in the Manufacture of this Product.

Promises to Prove Satisfactory—Messrs. W. Taylor and Company Operating a Plant.

The industrial development of Peterborough, which is apparent to all who give the matter a moment's thought, is not confined wholly to the establishment of new manufacturing concerns, or the advent of business enterprises, but perhaps the most satisfactory evidence of this development is found in the enlargement of the concerns already in existence, for this proves that those manufacturers already here have found that they can conduct their business in such a manner as to produce satisfactory returns, consequently are enlarging their plants in preparation for increased business.

One of such concerns is that of William Taylor & Company, manufacturers of cement pipes and blocks, a company of comparatively recent origin, but one which during the months since it started business, has had a most satisfactory record. It is now branching out from the somewhat limited sphere in which work was at first confined, to the manufacture of cement bricks, something entirely new to the town, and almost equally new to all other parts of the province. The use of cement as building material has grown wonderfully in recent years, and apparently the limit has not yet been reached.

It was but a short time ago that the Examiner chronicled the inauguration of the manufacture of cement building blocks, and now following hard upon it is that of bricks for the same purpose.

A huge machine for the manufacture of these bricks has been installed in the works of the company mentioned above on Victoria avenue, and yesterday a test run of plant was made, which was found to work satisfactorily. The machine is known as the McIntosh brick machine, and was manufactured in Goderich, Ont., where two other machines manufactured by the same concern were made, although that installed in the local plant is the only one of its kind in existence and embodies many improvements suggested by the operation of its two predecessors.

Mr. W. Miners, one of the inventors of the machine, with an assistant, are here to instal the plant, and put it in successful operation. Yesterday afternoon a test run of four hours was made, and the result of the run was the manufacture of 9,520 brick; the daily output of the machine when in operation 10 hours each day, will be in the neighbourhood of 24,000 brick.

The plant is almost automatic, and it is stated that brick equal in every way to the ordinary clay product, and superior in many, can be manufactured to sell at a price very little, if any, higher than the latter. One great advantage claimed for the new brick is that it is perfectly uniform in size, while with the clay article this is impossible, and if a wall is not as good looking as the owner would like to see it, the builder's excuse is that the "bricks were not even." This will be overcome in the cement brick, although one objection raised to it by a brick-layer was that it was too uniform, and consequently would require greater care in building, and an attendant advance in the cost of laying. This is an objection, however, which to the ordinary lay mind seems a misnomer, and the manufacturers characterise it as absurd.

The process of manufacturing is rather an interesting one to witness. The sand, previously screened, is elevated by a bucket elevator to the second story of the building, where it is dumped into a receptacle, which forms one half of the mixer, the other half containing cement. The sand and cement are then automatically mixed, the machine being so arranged that it will mix the sand and cement in any pre-determined proportions. The mixed sand and cement, by a screw conveyor, is taken to the point directly over a spout leading to the machine, and en route is sprinkled with sufficient water to render it in the proper condition to adhere.

The mixture is sent through a chute to the machine, and automatically fills a "tray" containing eight moulds. These moulds are 5 3-4 inches deep, and as the tray is shifted by means of cams under the press, the latter descends into the moulds forming the brick, and applying a pressure of about 280 tons, compressing the mixture from 5 3-4 inches in height to four inches.

Thus eight bricks are made with each revolution of the machine, which makes about five revolutions per minute, running ordinarily. As the bricks are formed they are conveyed to the drying shed, one man at the end of the conveyor placing them into the racks, where they are allowed to remain for 24 hours and then placed in the open air for a short time, when they are ready to be put into use for building purposes. The machine itself, which is a ponderous affair, weighs 7 1-2 tons, and is driven by a 20 h.p. electric motor.

The product seems all that can be desired, and with the ever increasing popularity of cement for building purposes, these bricks should prove a valuable addition to the present building materials in use.

CORONER WILL NOT HOLD AN INQUEST.

On the Causes Leading to the Death of John Heard at Lakefield.

Dr. Gray, County Coroner, has returned from Lakefield, where he went to investigate the causes leading to the death of Mr. John Heard who was killed by an electric shock on Tuesday, while sweeping off the roof of the Cement Works. The Coroner decided that while there were evidences of neglect no good purpose could be served by holding an inquest, and after a consultation with the County Crown Attorney, so decided. The deceased was buried this afternoon at Lakefield. He was a brother of Mrs. John Gibson, of Parnell street, town.

What the Boys Enjoy.

Most every man looks back with mingled pleasure and regret upon his strong boy days, when he was happy and free from care. If he had been at the Y.M.C.A. the other afternoon and had seen some 35 or 40 bright and sturdy school boys going through their drills, gymnastics and games, he would immediately have wished himself one of them. And if he had seen them after their exercises, like a lot of wild Indians let loose school of feats, diving, jumping and leaping into the swimming tank, he would have still more longed to be one of them. Of course it is of no use to wish for something that is of days gone by, but what he can do is to send his boy and have him enjoy it.

It is between the ages of twelve and seventeen that the boy grows the most rapidly. It is, therefore, this period that determines his foundation for strength vitality and longevity.

In another month the season will be in full swing and we will be making strides towards the senior championship.

On nearly every vacant lot in town can be seen a crowd of diminutive rugby enthusiasts chasing the pigskin. The popularity of the game is on the increase.

The nightly practices will begin next week. The boys will have to get right down to work to be in shape for the opening game.

Everyone who has ever played rubgy or who think they can play the game are asked to get inside a suit and turn out for Saturday's practice.

Nothing definite is known as yet as to where the games will be played, but it is more than likely that the Exhibition grounds will be secured.

The locals will have a chance to brush up against the Victorias again this year. The Toronto boys took two lucky games from the locals last year by only close scores, but the ex-champions hope to turn the tables this fall.

There should be no trouble about getting a good gate this year. Everybody will want to see the Argonauts of Toronto, and the Hamilton Tigers perform. The former won the senior championship in 1901, and the latter are the present holders of the honour.

McPherson, of Peterborough, for 1903, and in 1900, R. F. McWilliams was second Vice-President. Peterborough won the championship of the intermediate series in 1899, 1901, 1902 and were runners-up in 1900 and 1903. The local team won the Dominion intermediate championship in 1899 and 1901 and were the runners-up in 1902. The book contains the list of O.R.F.U. officers, champions of the O.R.F.U. and Canadian champions, rules of the game, hints to players and hints to officers, constitution of O. R. F. U., regulations and rules of competition of O.R.F.U. It will be found most valuable to players and those interested in the game.

BASEBALL.

Cobourg will be here on Saturday to play a league game with the locals. The Lake Town team has won the championship for the past three years and through an unfortunate start were put out of the running this year. But at present the team is playing the fastest kind of ball as was shown by their decisive victories over Bowmanville and Oshawa recently. The locals are determined to finish well up in the standing by winning all their games yet to be played, and no one should miss Saturday's contest.

• • • •

The Post says: "Bowmanville has protests — one each with Cobourg, Peterborough and Port Hope. Should they be given these games they can only tie with Lindsay. Looks as if they wished to win the pennant on others misdoings and not on the diamond."

But the fact remains that they beat Lindsay twice ,and with no uncertain sound, on each occasion.

GREAT BASEBALL CONTEST SATURDAY.

Cobourg Will be Here for a Midland League Game.

The championship of the Midland Baseball League is by no means decided yet, and the game here on Saturday between Cobourg and the locals may have an effect on it. Cobourg team has not been seen here this season and their advent here should attract a good crowd. The team from the front has been playing good ball, defeating Bowmanville, who in turn took two games from Lindsay, who aspire to the championship. Peterborough has defeated Bowmanville and Lindsay once, and the game on Saturday with Cobourg should be one of the fastest of the whole series. The local team have a faculty for pulling themselves out of tight places, as the game with Port Hope showed, and in the coming contest a great exhibition of the game should be seen.

It will be played on the T. A. S. grounds and will commence at 3.30 sharp.

EXPERTS ON THE COON

TWO CITY MEN WHO TELL SOME GOOD STORIES OF THE ANIMAL.

Natural Idiosyncrasies Will Have Their Way Even If the Environment Is Not of the Most Fortunate—Nature Study in Its Most Practical Form—Fond of Crawfish, But They Vary As to His Alleged Call.

Charles H. Armstrong, of Toronto, who is one of the Canadian Institute authorities on entomology and small deer generally, says he has often seen the coons in Rosedale and the Don Valley at night. He used to take out a lantern and set it on a log, behind which he ambushed himself and waited results. Mr. Armstrong describes in a highly interesting manner. Into the little circle of light out of the all-comprehending darkness emerge creatures of every description—birds, beasts, insects and creeping things of the field. The sly and shy little coons would come poering up with their cunning eyes and wise little snouts, and the stately skunk would sometimes pace leisurely past, flaunting his graceful tail. He has the right of way and nothing bids him nay.

Mr. Armstrong has watched the coons in the Don Valley at all hours and seasons. Their call is not confined to any one season, and is somewhat infrequent, he says, and he was not aware what call was under discussion just now, but thought the coon cry might attract more notice at the present time of the year than others.

Cry When Food Is Found.

The coons go down to the river for the crawfish, which come out, as all crustacea do, to dry their shells on the stones. Mr. Coon waits around till one appears, when he promptly grabs it. The remains may be found in the morning lying among the rocks. Some years ago, says Mr. Armstrong, a coon was shot in the vicinity, and its stomach found to be full of intestinal worms, the same worm which was then known to be infecting the crawfish and causing their destruction. When food is found, the coon sets up his call, which is an assembly call, directed to the tribe in general, Mr. Armstrong says.

"You will get no one to contradict that," he stated.

The raccoon is singularly wary of trespassing where men are about, though not apparently shunning their neighborhood. They are quick to take any hint or warning of danger, and seem to know just how far it is safe to go in the corn-patch or the chicken-pen. To this is attributable the fact that they have braved the dangers of civilization, and remained among the haunts of men when all the other creatures of the wild have disappeared.

Collie Cockburn Talks.

Another great authority on coons is Collie Cockburn, who is, says John Burns, about the best bush shot in the country, and has known coons all his life, says a writer in The Toronto World. Emerson Dollery, dead these dozen years, was the only other shot to be reckoned with Cockburn. Old Isaac Dollery, Emerson's father, "still stays with the shooting," but is of a generation beyond, and tells of the chase of half a century ago. Cockburn was born in Newmarket 50 years ago next April. Coons have not varied in that time.

"The man who says that a coon calls at this time of the year or any other is crazy," he said. "It is a little tiny bit of a barn owl that does it," and he gave a gurgling whistle with nine or ten descending notes which fools nearly all the farmers in the land, and has spoiled the reputation of more good coon dogs than anything else.

"I've followed them all night many a time," he continued, "and coon hunters will follow that cry with their dogs for hours. They'll say, There, do you hear that one. There's another one over there, and when the dog can't get track of a coon they say the dog's no good. The coon will call, but you can't hear it six rods away. It is something like a slight whistle with a purr at the end of it, and you couldn't hear him across the road, but the owl you can hear half a mile away.

Never Heard a Call.

"It's the small owl that is calling the coon into the corn-patch, maybe, but Mr. Coon gives no call on the top of earth when he is going into a corn-field. He says nothing but saws wood. I've hunted coons all my life and never heard one call yet.

"The coon is pretty cheeky, but not nearly so much as a skunk. The ground-hog will live in the field close to the house, and there are cottontail rabbits on Davenport road now under the sidewalk. But the coon will be away off in a swamp, and he'll come three miles to a corn field if there isn't a coon-dog about. But the coon is the most cunning animal there is, and he won't come where a coon-dog is. If all is clear he will come into the patch and take that corn and strip it down like a monkey, for his little feet are just like hands. When he has all he can hold he'll crawl off along the fence rails, and not a sound out of him.

Like Elm Swamps.

"Wherever there's an elm swamp with hollow trees you'll find coons. They don't stay so thick around here now because the trees are cut down. I have killed as high as 42 in a season, but the hardest animal to find on earth is a good coon dog. I mind once we got two coons up a stump, and sent Willie Boucher home to get a bag to get them in alive. There was a hole on the top, and I climbed up. Of all the circuses you ever saw in your life it was getting those coons into the bag. Then we'd light a fire, and carry out an armful of corn apiece to roast. Every boy had to eat his own length in corn. Three ears is enough now.

"We had a great hunt one night with an old coon dog, half bull and quarter stag hound. There was Frank Babe and Emerson Dollery and Dan Blain and Bob Harris and Chris. Sinclair. We used to be cutting down trees right in the fields and dodging farmers for the coons. The old dog used to wait till the tree was falling and he'd be up the trunk as it fell and into the topmost limb, and you'd hear a coon squall ten seconds after the tree was down. Sometimes there would be as high as five in one elm on the old Black Creek flats. But Emerson used to shoot them off the branches, and every time a coon dropped out of the tree the old dog would look at us utterly disgusted, as much as to say: Why don't you cut down the tree and let me have my fun? But he would have nothing to do with a coon that was shot.

A Coon Story.

"One night Willie Boucher, who was about 16 or 17 then, came running to me and said, Mr. Cockburn, the old dog has got a coon away down the creek somewhere. I went out and whistled, but no dog. Come and listen, says Willie, and, by gosh, O could hear the old dog a mile away. Well, old Jonathan Scott was the most enthusiastic coon hunter you ever saw. He would pull off his boots and go up a hill barefooted so as not to make a noise. So I called on old Jonathan, and says: The dog has a coon, are you game? We picked up Dan Sinclair and one of the Whitefields and others till there were seven of us. We went away up north of old Carlton and west of the Weston road, and here was the old dog up under a big black cherry tree, where a man had a big meadow, and the tree leaning over into the field.

"The old dog must have been there three or four hours, and there was a coon in the tree all right. Now just see what young devils will do, and think of the idea of cutting down a big cherry tree to fall into a man's meadow to get a coon. We built a big fire out in the field. The clover had been cut, and the second crop had come up, maybe four inches long.

A Narrow Escape.

"Well, here I am chopping, and all of a sudden I said: How many of us are there? Seven, says one of them, and I said. There's four more than that, and that's too many for me. Old Jonathan starts to climb the fence. I jumped the fence with my coat under my arm, and the old dog went over alongside of me. Here those fellows made a rush to catch us coon hunters. Some of them ran away, but three of us laid right down under the fence, and I put my arm round the old dog and says: 'Listen Jeff,' and he never let a whimper out of him. The farmers came and looked right over the fence where we were lying under their noses, and we heard them say it was this one and that one, but they never mentioned our names, and I never heard a word about it after. When they went away we crept off a bit and lay for an hour, and the only thing I regretted was leaving the coon in the tree. We went on then, and the dog got another tree. Old Jonathan said he'd bet his life there was a coon up the tree, and we waited there till daylight. Chris. Sinclair started shooting before we were awake, and we got five coons—two old ones and three three-quarters grown. But the old dog looked ashamed of us for shooting.

When Joe Got Help.

"Another night the dog treed a coon in a big basswood tree, right in the middle of a corn field. It was a tree with four or five saw-logs in it, but it shows what we'd do for a coon, when we started to cut it down. We lit two fires, one on each side of the place the tree was to fall, and I was chopping away, when a man comes up and says: 'That's a nice thing to cut a tree down on a man's farm.' I turns and saw it was Joe Warden. Oh, says I, there's a coon up the tree, and what else can we do? Says he, 'I'm saving that tree for saw-logs.' Take the ax, says I, I'm tired. Off goes his coat and he started in himself. He took half-a-dozen strokes and then he turns to us, 'Boys you'll have to come tomorrow and help cut down this corn.'

"That goes, says we, and we were there, too."

Locomotive Firemen Meet.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 13.—The ninth biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen was called to order here yesterday by John J. Hannahan, grand master of the order. The report of the grand master shows that the organization is in a prosperous condition; that in the past two years there has not been a strike of firemen on any road on which the brotherhood is organized.

"NEVER JOIN US."

The Advice of a Prominent United States Divine to Canada.

Rev. J. A. Rankin, President of the Toronto Methodist Conference, recently said that, in view of recent events, Canada should pause for a while and consider her next steps. After full and mature consideration, the country should press forward undaunted towards the goal her God-inspired ambitions point to.

"I believe," said Mr. Rankin, "that North America will be the stage on which the final scenes in the drama of human life will be enacted. No one can estimate what proportions Canada will assume in years to come. Immigrants are pouring in on us. I hope they will not come too quickly. I believe God has kept locked the doors of this country until we can build up a proper national character. I was in New York recently, and I heard Dr. Tyler preach. After the service I went up and shook hands with the venerable divine. 'Oh, yes, I know Canada,' he exclaimed: 'I know commercial Montreal; Ottawa, the centre of legislation, and literary Toronto. And I advise you, never join us, my brother.' I told him we never would. We have no wish to take over the vast problems the people of the United States must solve, their 10,000,000 of negroes, for instance. Canada has problems of her own, which she should face now. If these problems are not solved now they will have to be a hundred years hence."

May Cost Three Lives.

Montreal, Sept. 13.—A serious accident occurred yesterday which resulted in the death of Mrs. James Powers and fatal injuries to her son, James Powers, and Mrs. Jules Deslauriers. The accident occurred at the Powers dwelling at the corner of William and Prince streets. The three were sitting on an old gallery, watching the rain and chatting, when suddenly a crash was heard, and before they had time to run inside the gallery fell to the ground, a distance of three stories, burying the unfortunate trio under the heavy beams.

Struck By Lightning.

Shelburne, Sept. 13.—The barn of W. J. Ferguson, lot 11, con. 3, Mulmur, was struck by lightning Sunday night and together with contents totally destroyed. Loss $1,800; insurance $1,150.

Found in the Canal.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—The body of Albert Berry, an 11-year-old lad, who had been missing for some days, was found in the Rideau Canal yesterday morning.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets and to-day weights more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. For sale by all druggists.

Fight Now on in Earnest.

Brantford, Sept. 14.—The fight for the municipal telephone system has now started in earnest in this city. The vote on the bylaw will be taken on Oct. 17, instead of at the municipal elections in January as at first reported.

Clarke Succeeds Cowan.

Essex, Sept. 14.—A. H. Clarke, K. C., was nominated yesterday as the Liberal candidate for South Essex to succeed M. K. Cowan, K. C., M. P. Dr. Samson was his only opponent.

The Personal Equation.

Mr. Ames entered with his nose unequivocably turned up. "Those people in the flat below are cooking onions again," said he. Mrs. Ames lowered one of the windows before she replied.

"I wish you wouldn't say 'those people,'" she said. "Their name is Watson."

"Phew!" said Mr. Ames, lowering another window.

"I don't think the odor is so very disagreeable," she said cheerfully.

Mr. Ames looked at her amazed. "Why, I thought you couldn't bear the smell of onions!"

"I don't really like it, of course, but it is such a little thing to be disturbed over."

Mr. Ames looked indignant and injured and felt so; he could not understand his wife's attitude. "I wish you had felt that way sooner," he said dryly. "Last week you made me tell the janitor that if those people didn't stop cooking onions every night we should move."

"Yes, I did," said Mrs. Ames candidly; "but that was before I knew Mrs. Watson. We have exchanged calls this week, and I like her very much."

Mr. Ames made a curious noise which his wife was able to interpret.

"I expected you'd take it that way," she said. "But even you must admit that there's a great difference between the smell of a friend's onions and those of people we don't know."—Youth's

A SCOTCH BONE-SETTER

WM. RAE, OF BLANTYRE, SCOTLAND, WHO HAS BECOME FAMOUS.

Man Is Possessed With a Wonderful Gift, But His Methods Resemble Those of Dr. Lorens—Little Village Full of Deformed Pilgrims Waiting For His Services to Cure Them—200 Patients a Day.

The accompanying picture of William Rae, of Blantyre, Scotland, a healer who has lately become famous throughout the United Kingdom, and some of whose cures have even been detailed in cable despatches, is from The New York Herald of Sunday, July 17. Rae, who is a miner by trade, calls himself a bone-setter, and his methods are somewhat similar to those of Dr. Lorenz, the famous Vienna physician, whose visit to this continent caused great interest. He is not a learned man, however, and his speech is uncouth, though shrewd and kindly. Previous descriptions of the scenes around his home and some of his cures have been published in the news columns of Canadian papers, but the following additional extracts from an article in The Herald of the date named are of interest:

"Whatever sceptical men in America, basing their opinions on the cabled reports, may think of William Rae, the Scottish bone-setter, whose exploits are the talk of the United Kingdom, no one can visit the little village of Blantyre, in which he has temporarily established his 'surgery,' without obtaining abundant evidence that the man is possessed of a wonderful gift.

"I found the little place full of pilgrims, mostly from Lancashire and Yorkshire, afflicted with every variety of deformity, many of which have baffled the doctors for years. No need was there to ask where Rae lived. I simply followed the throng until I came to where a crowd stood around the gate of a humble cottage which has already become famous throughout England as the Scottish Lourdes.

"Some of the pilgrims limped painfully on crutches. Others were clump-soled boots and irons. Grey-headed men and woman and little children in arms were among them. While I stood there taking in the scene a young woman with tears of gladness trickling down her cheeks came out of the house and in response to eager inquiries related her experience. For years she had been suffering with hip disease, one leg being shorter than the other. Doctors she had tried without relief, and at last her friends advised her to go to Blantyre.

"'It didn't hurt me a bit,' she said, 'not one bit. He just got hold of my leg, gave it a pull, then pushed it right back and it was all over. Of course, I walk just a bit lame still, as you see, but it feels, oh, so much easier. I am to bathe the joint every morning with cold water and walk as much as I can. Eh, but he's a clever man, he is.'

"Several other cures were wrought on the spot. In nearly every instance Rae was able to afford some relief. When he could accomplish nothing he would accept no fee. In other cases his charge was to all the same—$2.50. But when patients were obviously too poor to pay it he bestowed just as much care on them for nothing.

"So great have been the demands on his skill that the railway has run special excursion trains to accommodate those who sought relief from him. In a single day he has treated as many as two hundred."

Going for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place, but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

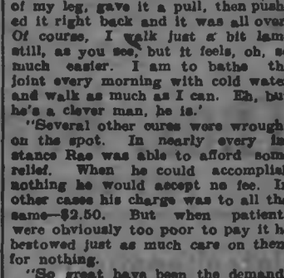
How Flies Are Able to Taste.

The proboscis of the fly and the tongues of bees and ants are furnished with numerous delicate hairs set in minute pits. These are perhaps connected with the organ of taste; but, though the exact locality of this sense in insects is uncertain, we know that the groups of cells in the tongues of animals called taste bulbs form in part the ends of the organ of taste. These vary in number, increasing in the higher animals. They are very close and exceedingly numerous in man, while the tongue of even the cow has some 35,000 taste bulbs.

It would be interesting to know whether each special taste excites a special group of nerves and that only, thus corresponding to the auditory nerves. These taste bulbs were discovered in 1867. Each one consists of two kinds of cells, one set forming an outer protective covering, through an opening in which project from five to ten of the true taste cells. Though important, they are not apparently an essential part of the organ, for birds and reptiles have none, but neither have they a keen sense of taste, except perhaps the parrot.



The Happy Home.

Happiness must be founded on health. Where there is ill-health there will surely be unhappiness. The happiness of many a home has received its downfall at the table, spread with rich and dainty foods. The first symptoms of disease of the stomach are ignored as being disagreeable but not dangerous. Presently dyspepsia or some other form of disease fastens on the stomach.

At any stage Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. But the cure is quicker if the "Discovery" is used in the earlier stages of disease. If you have any symptoms of diseased stomach use "Golden Medical Discovery" and be cured.

"I feel that I would be doing an injustice to you if I did not send you a statement of my case," writes Mrs. David W. Quice, of Hamburg, Franklin Co., Miss. "I had liver complaint and indigestion. Everything that I ate disagreed with me. I suffered all the time with swimming in my head; heart beat too fast; my feet and hands were cold all the time. Did not sleep well at all. Was able to get about but very little. I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' in May, 1897, and by December I could begin to get about very well. Have been doing my work ever since. Feel better than I have for several years."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TAKE BACK THE HEART.

Take back the heart that thou gavest,
What is my anguish to thee?
Take back the freedom thou cravest,
Leaving the fetters for me;
Take back the vows thou hast spoken,
Fling them aside and be free;
Smile o'er each pitiful token,
Leaving the sorrow for me.
Drink deep of life's fond illusion,
Gaze on the storm cloud and flee
Swiftly thro' strife and confusion,
Leaving the burden to me.

Then when at last overtaken,
Time flings its fetters o'er thee,
Come with a trust still unshaken,
Come back captive to me.
Come back in sadness or sorrow,
Once more my darling to be,
Come as of old, love, to borrow
Glimpses of sunlight from me.
Love shall resume her dominion,
Striving no more to be free,
When on her world weary pinion,
Flies back my lost love to me.

Split Up the Flocks.

One of the chief reasons why poultry does not do well on some farms is because they are generally kept in one large flock, from 70 to 150 hens frequently. If the flock was divided up and not more than twenty-five kept together the result would be a general improvement in health and productiveness.

Iodine as a Summer Drink.

A philanthropic Parisian chemist gives the latest recipe for a summer drink as iced water with a dash of iodine. It appears that iodine kills microbes and gives a faint flavor not unpleasant.

A Curious Bridge.

One of the most curious bridges ever built was that made by the British troops in 1860. They were marching on Pekin, but found their progress barred by a flooded river of considerable width and depth. A timber party was formed, but found nothing to cut down or borrow suitable for a bridge. At last a huge store of coffins was discovered in the village, and with these the soldiers built their bridge and crossed alive over the receptacles for the dead.

AUSTRALIA'S NEW CAPITAL.

A Description of Dalgety, the Place Recently Chosen—Small and Right in "the Back Blocks."

To decide the location of its new capital has been a much longer task for Australia than making up its mind on mere fiscal issues or alien exclusion questions, writes a correspondent of The Standard. After four years, however, the decision has resulted in the victory of Dalgety. Dalgety is half way between Tumut and Bombala; it is therefore a compromise, preventing the threatened deadlock between the two houses. It is also, roughly, midway between Sydney and Melbourne, and therefore placates the powerful interests of the two wealthiest states, New South Wales and Victoria. The prospective capital of the commonwealth is hardly large enough even to be called a township, having a population of only a couple of hundred souls. It is right in "the back blocks," quite off the track of inter-state traffic and consists of a few weather-board, tin-roofed houses. It is not large enough even to exact a postal delivery from the Government. There is a post-office, but the joy of calling for one's mail in person is at present the greatest savor of life in Dalgety.

The "town" lies in the southeast angle of New South Wales, near the Victorian border, on the upper reaches of the Snowy River, a tributary of the Murray. The Snowy River flows down the spurs of Mount Kosciusko, and, fed by its snows, the volume of water that flows by Dalgety, beneath bordering willows, is steadier than that of most Australian rivers. The fertility of the district—known as Monaro—is thus assured. The Monaro Plains are more than 2,000 feet above the sea levels, and so Dalgety always enjoys cool nights, even in the midst of lengthy drought. Kosciusko, the highest point in the whole continent, is only 40 miles distant, and the observatory established there by Clement Wragge in 1897 has frequently been snowed up, even in the summer months. The nearest railway station, Cooma, 30 miles off, is the terminus of a branch line from Goulbourn. At Goulbourn Junction the line joins the main route which links up the four eastern capitals: Brisbane (Queensland), Sydney (New South Wales), Melbourne (Victoria), and Adelaide (South Australia). Passenger and mail traffic are alike dependent on a tri-weekly service from Cooma. Goods come by road on bullock drays, a cumbersome, tedious and expensive method of transport.

It is difficult to foretell in what direction the main route for traffic will develop. The few miles of country between Dalgety and Cooma will easily be linked on to the railroad. In Eden, the largest town on the rugged coast south of Sydney, Dalgety possesses an outlet for seaborne trade that is even now largely utilized. Coasting steamers plying from Sydney and Melbourne make Eden a port of call, and the harbor there is so good that Eden was itself a candidate for the coveted honor of becoming the capital. If a "bush" capital has to be created, the newly-chosen site would appear to be as good as any that could have been obtained. In pitching on so small a township the Government has, at least, gone on economical lines, for the vested interests to be bought are small. From the point of view of climate and water supply the spot could scarcely be bettered; its surroundings should inspire the loftiest patriotism, and with the establishment of Federal Government in Dalgety, a new era in Australian politics must surely begin.

Acted Through Ignorance.

St. Catharines, Sept. 14.—Yesterday morning in the police court Magistrate Comfort decided to allow the parties off on suspended sentence who were convicted on charges of refusing to obey the San Jose inspector's orders to destroy or properly treat scale-infected fruit trees. The magistrate said that he had no doubt the parties had acted through ignorance and would not again lay themselves open to such prosecution. The lowest fine that could be imposed was $20.

DR. F. L. PATTON.

His Intellectual and Spiritual Awakening Took Place in Canada.

A British subject, an old-time Toronto student, at the head of one of the greatest universities in the United States, was the spectacle presented by Princeton University during the presidency of Dr. Francis L. Patton. For fourteen years Dr. Patton held that distinguished position and by his brilliant gifts added to its distinction. A year of two ago he resigned his office as head of the university, and the other day he was installed as President of the theological seminary, to whose more congenial duties he will now devote himself.

Canadians are interested in the career of President Patton, and for good reason, says The Globe. He is one of the keenest thinkers, one of the most acute dialecticians on this continent, and he is not slow to confess the debt he owes to his academic career in Toronto.

He was born in Bermuda, and came to Toronto when a lad to continue his education. Knox College, then domiciled in the old gubernatorial residence, Elmsley Villa, where Central Presbyterian Church now stands, was the scene of his educational activities. He is remembered by the students of that day as a rare and restless youth, for whom the average professor could do next to nothing. But there was one man on the staff to whom hundreds owed their intellectual awakening—George Paxton Young. He it was who kindled the spiritual flame in the soul of the youth from Bermuda, and to him Dr. Patton still pays the homage of a real scholar to a great master.

Dr. Patton is an expert in philosophy and theology, and has never been for any long time far from the storm-centre of controversy. While yet a young man he led the attack upon the late Professor David Swing of Chicago, which resulted in Dr. Swing's withdrawal from the Presbyterian Church and his career as an independent preacher in the Central Music Hall. There may be, even within the Church, difference of opinion as to the value of Dr. Patton's service to religion or to the Church in that controversy. The conflict was that of the poet and the logician. Swing was a poet, whose creed could not be stated in the exact terms of logical formulations; Patton a logician, whose reasoning moved, as along the cold lines of Bessemer steel, from premise to conclusion. Such types of mind never can agree either as to the exact contents or as to the distinctive emphasis of their creeds.

Since 1881 Dr. Patton's chief work has been done at Princeton either in the university or the theological seminary. He was prominent in the celebrated Briggs controversy which separated Union Seminary, New York, from the Presbyterian Church, and, although the noise of controversy has happily been stilled in the Church of which he is an ornament, Dr. Patton has still a great opportunity for the exercise of his unique gifts in safeguarding evangelical Christianity on the one hand from invertebrate pietism, and on the other from bloodless naturalism. He stands for a definite, robust, positive faith, and in him dogmatic evangelicalism finds one of its chiefest defenders.

DIAMOND HALL

STONEMASONS SEE TRADE IN DANGER.

Cement Taking the Place of Stone and Their Trade is Threatened.

One result of the Building labourers' strike has been to give a decided impetus to the use of cement concrete in the foundation work of buildings. In the opinion of several architects interviewed on the question, while the strike has certainly accelerated the movement, as it may be called, from stone to cement, such a development was bound to come, strike or no strike. Mr. Burke, of Burke and Horwood, architects, said that the tendency was to substitute cement concrete for stone and brick in foundation walls, and for footings for pillars. The old style of using blocks of stone for footings was fast giving place entirely to the cement pyramid formation. As a substitute for the ordinary rubble stone foundation walls, cement concrete has certain advantages, and for such work the cost is about equal to brick, but a little more costly than rubble stone.

Another use for cement concrete is in the construction of culverts, and already, in part as a result of the recent strike, the City Engineer has built a number of culverts of this material.

LOSS TO WORKINGMEN.

The general result of this extension of the use of cement concrete will, in the opinion of the architects, be that the stonemasons and bricklayers will lose a good deal of the work which hitherto has been theirs exclusively. The stonemasons will be the first to feel the effects of the change, as, owing to the increasing difficulty of procuring satisfactory rubble stone, and to the tendency towards cheaper concrete, the use of the latter material will become practically general. There are at present in the city in the neighborhood of 300 stonemasons. As this number is not large, and as the change will come about more or less gradually, the transition will not be seriously felt.

It is in superstructural work that the bricklayers will be more affected, though for the present there is nothing to fear. The cost of cement over brick work is at present in favour of brick. There are other reasons why brick will not so readily be superseded by cement, though, in time, with improvements in the manufacture and application of cement in various forms, there is no doubt but that cement will be more generally used even in superstructural work. In Toronto there are already several buildings in course of construction entirely of cement. Bond and Smith, architects, are putting up a cement building at Niagara Falls and at several other points.

For the present, however, both bricklayers and stonemasons will find all the work they can do. But for the future, they acknowledge there is serious cause for apprehension.

IN PLACE OF BRICK.

City Architect McCallum, in discussing the recent advancement in the prices of building material, said to-day that the only thing that had become cheaper was cement.

"Then we will have cement houses?" "Cement block houses are all right if the blocks are properly made," he remarked. "If a company with something at stake would take hold we would be all right. The trouble will be that some cheap speculator will run up buildings of cement blocks in which the proportions are not right or the materials correct, and then we will have trouble. Certain builders will skimp material whenever they get a chance. What can our inspector do to prevent this cheating? I broke open one block the other day and found a large piece of lime in it. Now, if that block had been placed in a house, moisture would get at the lime sooner or later, and the expansion would blow a hole in the block. Some of them even put brickbats in their cement blocks."

THE SPLENDID PIPERS .

Those of the Black Watch Know Sixty Different Selections.

One great attraction of the Black Watch Band, which is to make a tour of Canada under the direction of Mr. Stewart Houston, will be that in addition to the Brass Band of forty-eight, there will be ten of the Royal Pipers. The programme which they have prepared for the various concerts on tour, include no less than sixty different selections, which they, of course, play without music. When it is remembered that to the ordinary piper, fifteen or sixteen selections are a considerable tax on the memory, the remarkable efficiency of the Black Watch Pipers will be apparent. The appearance of the pipers will undoubtedly arouse the most intense enthusiasm, and in addition to the large number of tunes which they can play, their dances will be of the most inspiring and interesting nature. One of their achievements will be a famous sword dance, the like of which has never been seen in Canada before. The pipers will appear twice on the programme, and the audience are requested to not unduly lengthen the programme by two encores of the pipers. They appear in a distinctive uniform from the Brass Band, and their plaid is of scarlet tones instead of the dark blue and green of the Brass Band. They will be a very attractive feature of the Black Watch Band's visit here on Tuesday, Sept. 27th, at the Brock street rink.

SOO NOW EMPLOYS ABOUT 2,000 MEN.

All Plants Operating Show Good Profit and Others Will Follow —Orders had for all Pulp and Ore.

(Special Staff Correspondence to the Toronto Star.)

Soo, Ont, Sept. 14th.—On what does the success of the various enterprises at the Soo depend? was the question asked by the Toronto Star representative of different officials of the company, and the general opinion was that it would be found in working out each enterprise separately and distinctly and by watching the conditions of trade closely, and only operating such plants as can show a good profit. This is what is being done at the present time, and, according to General Manager Shields, every plant that is now running is showing a fair profit.

SOME NOT RUNNING.

But then it must be clearly understood that there are some parts of the enterprises that will not be operated for a good while, and some others that will never again be run by the company. Among the first named class may be placed the nickel converting plant, and among the latter the big International Hotel at the Canadian Soo. Arrangements are now under way to lease the latter property to outside interests.

EMPLOY 2,000 MEN.

The plants which are now in operation and giving employment to close on 2,000 men, are—besides the steel rail mill—the pulp mill, the veneer mill, the saw mill the Algoma Central Railway, the lake fleet of ore steamers, the electric car services in the Canadian and the American Soo, the electric lighting plant, the Algoma power plant, the passenger steamship service between the Soo and Toledo, and the Helen mine.

The pulp mill, which is running full capacity with an output of 100 tons a day, is showing an earning capacity of close to 20 per cent. The entire output is sold in the States, the larger purchaser being the Kansas City Star, which manufactures its own paper.

FERRY PAYS WELL.

The street car services on both sides and the ferry service between the two towns are now showing earnings of over $400 a day, and as the general business is put on a more permanent basis a good advance should be secured on these figures.

The entire output of the Helen mine is being taken by the United States Steel Company at a little over $3 a ton, and as the Soo Company is getting all the ores needed for the rail mill at $2 a ton, it can be seen that quite a profit is being made by the arrangement.

The passenger and package freight service between the Soo and Lake Huron and Lake Erie ports has shown good returns throughout the summer, the earnings averaging well up to $1,000 a trip.

The saw mill, which is running to full capacity, the Algoma Central Railway, and the lake fleet, are already showing earnings well up to those shown previous to the collapse, and in a few months the management looks to placing them on a more satisfactory basis.

The Algoma Poer Plant on the American side is still under the control of Receiver Fackenthal, but Mr. Shields informed me that the company was only waiting for the attorneys to arrange the necessary documents in order to take over the plant.

NEXT TO OPERATE.

The plants that will next receive the attention of the management are the blast furnaces which will be in operation within ten days, and the sulphide mill, for which a supply of raw material can be secured as soon as the snow is on the ground and the logs can be moved from the forests. Improvements are now being made in the veneer mill and as soon as a sufficient supply of raw material can be secured it will be run to its full capacity.

If the principle of grappling one problem at a time means success, the outlook from a perfectly independent point of view is certainly promising.

PLENTY OF FUNDS.

The exact position the management is in to handle the various enterprises, as officially announced to me by President Warren is that it has at its disposal a million and a-half of liquid assets, and one million of cash in the bank. And as President Warren quietly said, "I had the million dollars right in my own hands before the blast furnaces, which will be in operation."

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

Features of Market as Told by Special Wires.

The following review of to-day's stock market was received by Messrs. W. F. [illegible]

The wheat situation has not changed during the past week. The damage to spring wheat in the Northwest, including Manitoba, is being daily confirmed, and we must be convinced beyond any question that no matter what the Government report, to be issued to-morrow, may indicate our wheat crop crop this year is well under 500,000,000. A very large percentage of the soft winter wheat is so badly shrunken (especially in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana) as to be unfit for milling. This is true of some of the hard winter wheat and of a great deal of the spring wheat. Every day will emphasize this fact, and and it will quickly become one of the most bullish influences. The shipment of a few million bushels of choice wheat from the far west on a low rate of freight may be made much of, and for a few days attract enough attention to give us a small reaction from some bulge. Very small exports will be the only influence that can prevent a sensational bull market very early in the crop year. I expect to see primary receipts run smaller than last year's receipts less the exports. Just how much smaller we must wait awhile to see, and this should be watched closely and be our cue. Buy wheat on the breaks, and as conditions develop more or less bullish than you expect, govern your actions accordingly.

Liverpool opening.—Wheat 1-2 higher; corn 1-4 higher.

Liverpool close.—Wheat 1-4 higher; corn 1-4 higher.

The following review of this morning's stock market was received by Messrs. W. F. Dever & Co., stock and bond brokers ('phone 416) Peterborough:—

New York, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Noon letter. —Bank of England rate unchanged. Amns in London irregular with steel stocks and Harrimans very strong. 36 roads for first week Sept. show average gross inc. 4.30. Purchase of 100,000 tons rails by Harriman system denied. St. Paul annual report shows surplus after charges equal to 10.05 per cent. on both classes of stock. London bullish on Harriman and Morgan stocks. Amsterdam no longer bullish on M.K. & T. Intimate traffic alliance between Erie and Pere Marquettes. Speyer & Co. buy $1,000,000 Vera Cruz and Pacific 4-5 per cent. bonds at 83 1-2. Iron age says thus far steel trade indications not particularly favourable. Demand for currency for south increasing. Banks lost 4,605,000 to sub treasury since Friday. No truth in report that Wisconsin Central has passed from present holders. Opening prices were not up to strong London and in spite of general strength there seemed to be plenty stocks on the market. Traders expected some further advance after yesterday's strong close but it failed to materialize. Stocks rallied slightly at noon. W.F.D. & Co.

JAPANESE WILL NOW TALK TERMS

Will Make Peace with Russia but at a Stiff Price.

£100,000,000 IN INDEMNITY

Will Return Manchuria to China but Would Insist on Sakalin—Another Russian Nearing America—The Lena to be Dismantled by Order of the United States—C. P. R. Co. Not Afraid.

London, Sept. 16.—The Daily Telegraph's Tientsin correspondent telegraphs that he hears from a trustworthy source that the Japanese Foreign Minister has issued a circular announcing that it is Japan's intention to turn Port Arthur, when it is captured, and the whole of the Liaotung Peninsula, over to the Chinese, who, the correspondent says, it is understood, will declare Port Arthur an open port.

"On the same authority," The Daily Telegraph's representative says, "I am told that Japan will be prepared to entertain peace proposals after she has taken Mukden and Sakhalin, on the following basis: First, that an international syndicate take over the Manchurian Railway and run it as a strictly commercial enterprise; second, that Russia pay £100,000,000; and, third, that Russia is to hand over all her ships in Chinese waters to Japan. Japan would be prepared to lease Sakhalin to an "American commission for £5,000,000."

Another Russian Nears America.

Victoria, B.C., Sept. 16.—Members of the crew of H.M.S. Grafton, just returned from Comox, reported the presence of the Russian armed auxiliary vessel Korea in the Pacific off the northern coast of Vancouver Island, steaming slowly southward. They expect that the Korea will come to Esquimalt or Victoria. She is described as a larger vessel than the Lena, and is commanded by an officer of high rank in the Russian navy. The news has caused much excitement at Esquimalt, where preparations to deal with her case, should she enter, are now being made.

C.P.R. Not Afraid of Russia.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 16.—The officials of the C.P.R. steamship lines are not alarmed at the rumored presence of Russian vessels in the Pacific, which are said to be on the lookout for vessels bound to Japan with contraband cargo. Mr. A. H. Piers, manager of the steamship lines, said yesterday: "Our company always keeps within the law with regard to this. Of course, all the vessels on the Pacific carry food-stuffs, which the decision of the prize courts, which regarded foodstuffs as contraband of war, is not final as yet, and so we fear little in that respect. The Lena, from all accounts, is quite safe in San Francisco harbor, and it is a question if she will leave there until after the war is over.

A BIG FIRE AT HALIFAX

Over $300,000 Damage Done On the Waterfront.

TWENTY BUILDINGS BURNED

Terrific Gale Sweeps Through the City—A Woman Killed By Tree Blown Down—Insurance Estimated at About $150,000—Some of the Firemen Were Injured But None Fatally.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 16.—Halifax suffered a fire loss of over $300,000 yesterday afternoon by a conflagration which swept a part of the harbor front. When the fire broke out in the large wooden warehouse of N. & M. Smith the wind was blowing a gale over the city at the rate of 52 miles an hour as officially stated by the signal station at the citadel. The flames swept north and south along Water street, destroying twenty buildings and wharves. The firemen gained control after four hours work.

The military and naval fire brigades, numbering about 200 men, were called out with their equipment to fight the fire and protect property. To accomplish the latter purpose they were drawn up in a cordon with fixed bayonets and kept on duty for many hours.

Woman Killed By Tree.

The loss is estimated at $310,000 with insurance of $150,000. While the gale was at its highest two women were on their way to see the fire. A tree was blown down as they passed along, which, striking one of them on the head and throwing her to the ground, killed her instantly. The tree was two feet in diameter, and was uprooted. The firemen were injured, but none fatally.

The heaviest individual loser is the large fish firm of N. & M. Smith, who are estimated to have lost $75,000 beyond the amount covered by insurance.

London Fair Has Crowds.

London, Ont., Sept. 16.—The largest crowd for the week attended the exhibition yesterday, making a record day above former years. The weather was excellent in all respects. The hotel accommodation is inadquate, many people being compelled to walk the streets all night.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Rev. Canon Greene of Orillia Preached to a Large Congregation Last Evening.

Church was Very Beautiful Decorated Emblems—A Hearty and Inspiring Service.

"Come, ye thankful people, come,
Raise the song of Harvest Home;
All is safely gathered in,
Ere the winter storm begin."

The annual Harvest Festival in connection with St. John's church was held yesterday. The services began in the morning when Holy Communion was celebrated at 10 o'clock, a large number being present to offer thanks in the great service of the Gospel. In the evening a public service was held when the church was crowded.

The beautiful edifice was very tastefully and appropriately decorated for the occasion. Emblems of the harvest season as evidencing the prosperity and blessing which has been experienced throughout our land were everywhere manifest and the effect produced was most pleasing. The large pillars were adorned with branches of evergreen, intervened with wheat and elder berries, sheaves of golden grain, fruit and vegetables of luxurious quality were profusely strewn about the rear of the church and along the windows. The pulpit and font were objects of striking beauty, being exquisitely adorned with flowers of various descriptions, but with white and pink asters showing forth with prominent effect. The altar was also beautified with a profusion of white asters. The whole effect was indeed a charming one and the spirit of the services was enhanced materially by the very appropriate and suggestive decorations.

The evening service was of a bright, beautiful and inspiring character, and was entered into by the large congregation with a spirit of heartiness and thanksgiving. All seemed to realize that God's richest blessing had been theirs and that due thanks should be rendered unto Him from Whom all good gifts come.

An address of an appropriate and pleasing character was given by Rev. Canon Greene, of Orillia, who based his remarks upon the words: "Offer unto God thanksgiving and pay thy vows unto the most highest," Psalm 50; 14. The speaker dwelt upon the fact that while the Almighty did not need the offerings of any man, He was pleased nevertheless to receive them in the same spirit as a father takes pleasure in receiving the gifts of his children. It was not the intrinsic value of the gifts which made them beautiful in God's sight, but it was in the fact that there were indications of deep feeling behind and that they were expressions of love and thankfulness of the many blessings which had been received. Indications were sometimes very valuable things in themselves. A watch would keep as good time whether there were hands attached or not, but unless the hands were there to indicate, the value of the watch was completely nullified, and so our gifts were indications to the Almighty of our sincerity and love to Him.

The speaker made reference to the harvest services which touched a tender chord in the hearts of all. These bright happy services were much closer to the idea of religion than wails of lamentations. Our land was one which was continually growing and prospering, and evid nces of God's bounty and goodness were continually being made manifest in a striking manner, and we had every reason to feel thankful that we lived in such a land and enjoyed the rich blessings which are ours to experience. The future was most hopeful and there was every reason to rejoice at the prospect. Moreover we should express thankfulness to Him from whom all blessings originally come from. In the construction of the churches in ancient days the best work of the builder was placed so as to be unseen by man, but was placed so as to be seen by the eye which looks down and not up, and so God sees our acts of thankfulness and love though they may not be known to the world at large.

Rev. Canon Greene congratulated the congregation and the town generally on the beauties of Peterborough. He made especial reference to the remarkable beauty of St. John's church. Naturally the church is a most handsome edifice, but as seen in the glow of glory of the present occasion it was a sight which one was seldom privileged to witness.

The offering of the service was devoted to the fund for the relief of the poor.

On Sunday the thanksgiving service will be continued, when appropriate addresses and music will be given.

The choir under the capable leadership of Mr. R. Gliddon, sang in excellent form. The anthem, "O, Give Thanks Unto the Lord," by Smart, was splendidly rendered, Miss Ruth Dawson taking the solo. The choir also sang Turner's Gloria, Magnificat and Dum Miseresteur.

Voice Culture

Miss Agnes Louise Ross, 3 Dunbar Road, Rosedale, pupil of Mrs. Susie Ryan Burke, Toronto Conservatory of Music, is prepared to receive a limited number of pupils in voice culture. Will be in Peterborough at the millinery parlours of Mrs. Darnley, Hunter street, on Monday and Tuesday, September 19th and 20th, 1904. 5t

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES

The person who should boast that he had laid down a programme years ago and had not departed from it—had never changed his contemplated action to meet altered circumstances—would be justly set down by his neighbours as a peculiar type of man. Having little else to find fault with in the career of the present Ottawa Government, the Tories are fond of showing that it has departed in some respects from the Liberal platform of 1893. That platform was adopted at a time when, owing to Tory mismanagement and other causes, the country was at a standstill if not running behind. Liberals believed that in view of the loss of population, the poor general results shown by the census of 1891, and the stagnation prevailing in the principal industries of the country, expenditure should be reduced and the public debt with it, and that large tariff reductions might be made with advantage to agriculture, which, after all, was and still is the chief occupation of the people. That was their honest conviction, and if the unhappy state of things had continued, they would have given effect to it. No sooner had they entered office, however, than the long nightmare under which the country had suffered began to pass away. They did reduce and readjust the tariff, but handled it carefully, lest changes too radical should prolong the industrial distrust and weakness everywhere apparent. Above all things they saw the necessity for encouraging the upward movement by generous expenditures economically administered — so economically administered, indeed, that our Tory friends have never been able to lay their hands on a case of useless, still less scandalous waste. The upshot has been seven years of unparalleled prosperity—a vast expansion of foreign trade, an extraordinary growth of home industry, a large immigration and dwindling exodus, coupled with the rapid advance of Canada to a place among the richest and most progressive communities in the world; while the connection with the Mother Country has been strengthened by the military assistance given in South Africa and the good effect in a political and material sense of the preferential tariff in her favour.

Let any reasonable-minded Conservative examine the records and he is tolerably certain to agree with Sir Richard Cartwright, that "Canada today is farther apart from Canada as we found it in 1896 than the Canada of 1896 was from the Canada of 1866." And without doubt he will also agree that in view of all the circumstances, the Liberals would have been highly culpable if they had not varied to some extent from the platform of 1893. A general who had resolved in advance to execute a certain plan of campaign would be deemed insane if, in actual conflict, he were to carry it out blindly and without reference to new facts and unanticipated occurrences, on the ground that he was bound to be "consistent." Yet in substance this is what the professional Tory says the Liberal party should have done. Consistency is a good thing in its way, but wise men do not injure their country for its sake any more than an individual sacrifices his personal interests rather than depart from it.

THE COAL QUESTION.

Legislation which diverts transportation from its natural channels into artificial ones does so at a loss and waste of capital proportionate to the effectiveness of the interference with natural laws. An illustration of this is furnished by the duties on coal. Originally imposed in Ottawa to enable the coal owners of Nova Scotia to supply the western market, they operate simply to enhance the price of coal to the Ontario consumer. Nova Scotia coal gets as far as Montreal, but not beyond; from there to Windsor, or rather to Fort William and Rat Portage the Ontario consumer buys American coal with the duty added to the price. The aggregate amount paid by Ontario in duty during the last quarter of a century is well over $30,000,000, a vast sum to be taken from the working capital of the Province. The case is even more serious in New England. Set a coal barge afloat on the Nova Scotia coast and it will drift to Massachusetts. The coal freight rates from Nova Scotia by water to Boston are about one-quarter of the all-rail or combined water and rail rates from West Virginia, which supplies the bulk of the bituminous coal used there. It is estimated that in the past thirty years the New England States have paid $100,000,000 on account of the duty against Nova Scotia coal, from which they have not received a dollar for of direct benefit.

When the Presidential election is over in November, a movement will be started on both sides of the line to bring about reciprocity in coal. If it succeeds, and there is every prospect that it will, Nova Scotia will supply New England to the advantage of both, while Ontario will get her coal free of duty from the mines of Ohio and Pennsylvania. Fortunately the question is not a party one in Canada. When the duties were imposed on American coal five and twenty years ago, Sir Charles Tupper said his aim was to bring about reciprocity; and Mr. Fielding has all along hoped for reciprocity as the true policy for both countries.

THE BLUES

Don't Wait Until Your Sufferings Have Driven You to Despair, With Your Nerves All Shattered and Your Courage Gone.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture. It is usually this way:

She has been feeling "out of sorts," for some time; head has ached, and back also; has slept poorly, been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart beats very fast; then that bearing-down feeling. Her doctor says: "Cheer up; you have dyspepsia; you will be all right soon."

But she does not get "all right." She grows worse day by day, till all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established. Her doctor has made a mistake.

She has lost faith in him; hope vanishes; then comes the brooding, morbid, melancholly, everlasting BLUES.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women, and the story recited above is the true experience of hundreds of American women, whose letters of gratitude we are constantly publishing.

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. If you have some derangement of the female organism try the remedy that has restored a million women to health,

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cheerfully recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my suffering sisters as a perfect medicine for all female derangements. I was troubled with displacement of the womb and other female weakness. Had headache, backache, and such bearing-down pains I could hardly walk across the floor, and was very nervous.

"A friend advised me to try your medicine, which I did, and after using the first bottle I began to improve. I took in all twelve bottles of Vegetable Compound, one box of Liver Pills, also used the Sanative Wash and was cured, and have no return of my troubles. I am as well now as I ever was. I am more thankful every day for my cure.

"I know that your medicine will do everything that it is recommended to do for suffering women." — MRS. DORA ANDERSON, North Muskegon, Michigan.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I want to tell you what your remedies have done for me. Before taking them I used to have a continuous headache, would be very dizzy, would have spells when everything seemed strange, and I would not know where I was.

"I went to our local doctor. He gave me some medicine, but it did not seem to do me any good, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to improve at once.

"I can honestly recommend your remedies to all suffering women, and advise all to give it a trial." — MRS. HENRY SELL, Van Wyck, Wash.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.
Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.
If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She will hold your letter in strict confidence. She can surely help you, for no person in America can speak from a wider experience in treating female ills. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

THE "DON'T KNOW" REFUGE

The stand taken by the Ontario Conservatives, is that the Liberals are guilty of political corruption, while they, the Conservatives, are pure as the driven snow. The other day, in Toronto, Mr. A. Miscampbell, the defeated candidate in Sault Ste. Marie, was subjected to a preliminary examination in connection with the cross petition, which, when first entered, claimed the seat for Mr. Miscampbell, but this claim was subsequently abandoned — and apparently for very good reasons, as Mr. Miscampbell's own evidence demonstrates. In his examination Mr. Miscampbell showed that he was as bad as the witnesses in Muskoka, who "did not know" anything in the witness box. Mr. Miscampbell swore that he got $2,000 from the central Conservative "purity" corruption fund for use in his election. Getting the money was not so bad a thin — he remembered that—but when it came to telling what became of it, how it was used, he "didn't know" what became of the large balance remaining after he had paid his "legitimate" election expenses of $780, and some protest expenses. If Mr. Miscampbell, a leader in the party, cannot remember these things, how can he expect the unlettered witnesses in Muskoka to do any better? It seems to be as easy for a Conservative corruptionist to forget where the money went to, as to forget "where the money came from." Pot calling the kettle black is gilt-edged consistency compared with Conservative "organizers" of Mr. Miscampbell's kidney, denouncing the Liberals for corruption, and themselves claiming to be pure, in the face of what they know, and "don't know," about their own corrupt methods.

THE ELECTION PROSPECTS.

The details of the campaign prospects in the provinces of Quebec and Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, embodying the views of shrewd observers, who are familiar with the conditions and outlook of the respective parties, confirm in the most gratifying manner the opinions we have more than once expressed as to the strength of the Government position in these parts, and indeed in the Dominion as a whole, says the Ottawa Free Press. The Globe, in its yesterday's issue, published a long and eminently gratifying article on the subject.

Our Toronto contemporary, it may be remarked, did not deal with Ontario, preferring on this occasion to reverse the order of the command to the elect to begin at Jerusalem; but there can be no doubt whatever that so far as this province is concerned the situation is vastly changed in the Government's favour by the passing of the Redistribution Act, which removed the iniquities of the gerrymander of the Conservatives and by the establishment of something approximating a just balance between population and representation.

That the gains in Ontario will far more than counterbalance any possible losses in Quebec cannot be doubted. The Government's record and the character of the candidates who have entered the field fully justify this belief.

But the Conservatives have very little hope of improving their position in Quebec, where they hold eight constituencies against the fifty-seven which the Government now command.

It is confidently predicted that while there may be a few gains and a few losses on both sides, the net result will be that the parties will emerge from the conflict pretty much as they now stand.

The Government position is held to have been strengthened in the province by the Transcontinental railway scheme, which is expected to open up the northern fertile belt for settlement; by the appointments of Mr. Prefontaine and Mr. Brodeur, and the Dundonald incident, which the Conservatives hoped to turn to great political account, but which failed to stir a military spirit among the peace loving people in the country districts.

The extraordinary popularity of the Premier remains unabated in the province, while the prestige of the Opposition leadership has greatly diminished owing to the state of feud that prevails among the Opposition chiefs. Mr. Monk is still sulking in his tent, although he has been repeatedly urged to unfurl the Tory banner in the province since the shabby attempt to unseat him was made.

In Manitoba and the Northwest the Liberals feel confident of carrying thirteen out of the twenty seats. With the exception of a single constituency the odds are overwhelmingly against the Conservatives.

In Manitoba the Provincial lists have been Roblinized for Dominion purposes, but even with this advantage the Conservatives are unlikely to improve their position. Mr. Sifton's strength in the province cannot be disputed and the expected appearance of Mr. Thomas Greenway in the Federal arena in Lisgar imparts an important new element of interest to the coming campaign.

Eight out of the ten seats in the Territories are expected to fall to the Liberals, who have strong candidates in the fields, and are well equipped for fighting purposes.

The directors of the Agricultural Society are getting things in shape for the fall fair on Oct. 4 and 5, and the prospects are bright for one of the best fairs in the history of the society. The grounds have been much improved since last year, the space inside the race track being cleared of stones and stumps and levelled. Trees have been planted in any place that would not obstruct a view of the track. Liberal prizes are being offered for all classes of exhibits, and there is no doubt that with good weather our fair will keep up its reputation of being one of the best in the country.

Keene will soon lose one of its most progressive business men in the person of Mr. Sam Mather, who intends moving to Toronto in the near future.

FIERCE GALES AT SEA

Severest Storm in Years on the Atlantic Coast.

MANY VESSELS WRECKED

Delaware the Centre of Hurricane But the Whole Coast Swept—Much Shipping Destroyed and Numerous Lives Lost—Thunder and Lightning Accompany the Gale—A Tug Swamped.

New York, Sept. 16.—A number of lives were lost, much property damaged and several ships wrecked in the storm which swept up the Atlantic Coast Wednesday night and yesterday.

It was one of the fiercest September storms on record—thunder and lightning adding terrors to a howling gale which swept drenching sheets of rain over sea and land. Last night's telegraphic reports say the storm has swept out into the ocean and from the Canadian coast.

The greatest loss of life was near Wilmington, Del. The tug Israel W. Durham, with a crew of six men and four other men employes of the American Dredging Company, was swamped in the Delaware River early yesterday during the height of the storm. Eight of the ten persons on the little craft were drowned. From farther down the coast—Jacksonville—comes the report that five men were drowned off Charlestown. New York suffered comparatively little, although the wind and rain and thunder and lightning were terrific. Nineteen coal barges went adrift in the bay, and last night their wreckage was strewn from the shore from the Battery to the Narrows. No lives were lost.

Potatoes at £100 Per Ton.

London, Sept. 16.—There are no signs of waning in the potato boom originated in Lincolnshire some 18 months ago.

A meeting of growers of a new and exceptionally early variety of potato known as the Recorder was held at Spalding Wednesday, when it was decided that none of these potatoes should be parted with this season for less than £100 per ton.

A number of sales have taken place at this price.

The following are some of the prices actually reached by the best known varieties per ton:

Eldorado	£1,018,000
Pearl	11,780
Northern Star	2,480

Glasgow Council Free Trade.

London, Sept. 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Glasgow Town Council, by a vote of 19 to 6, carried a resolution that the municipal assembly, representing a great manufacturing city viewed with alarm the proposed taxation of either bread or any article that added to our efficiency in the production of goods for the home and foreign markets and requesting His Majesty's Government to discountenance all legislative proposals interfering with free imports. Seven members declined to vote, contending that the question was purely political.

Caught in a Windmill.

Galt, Sept. 16.—Duncan Ferguson, a farmer living between Galt and Hespeler, met with a horrible accident yesterday morning. His hand was caught and terribly torn in the gearing of the windmill in the barn. Held fast by the grinding cogs, it was over an hour before assistance came to him. The tendons of two fingers were torn completely out from the hand to the elbow.

Pullman Car Shops Close.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—The immense Pullman Car Works at Pullman, are shut down yesterday and practically every one of the company's 7,000 employes is idle. The workmen were told to take their tools with them when they left the works, and from this infer that a considerable period of idleness confronts them. It is said that high wages brought about the closing of the works.

Smallpox Suppressed.

Toronto, Sept. 16.—The Provincial Board is pleased to be able to state that the outbreak of smallpox which began in New Ontario about a couple of months ago in the Temiskaming district is now over, the last cases having been released from quarantine and the inspectors having all returned. This includes the unorganized districts and the municipalities of New Liskeard and Haileybury.

Sailor's Terrible Suffering.

New York, Sept. 16.—Semi-delirious and with his body crushed from hips to armpits, Edward B. Graham, second mate of the schooner Theta, who drifted for thirty hours on a single stick of wreckage, after the Theta was run down at sea Sunday night, has arrived at Perth Amboy, N. J., on the schooner Cohasset, which picked him up.

The Wife and Son.

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 16.—Stephen Fellows, a miner, shot his wife and 16-year-old son yesterday in the railroad station at Barnesboro, as they were leaving for New York on account of family troubles. Mrs. Fellows will probably die. Fellows was arrested.

Dundonald Will Come Back.

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—Lord Dundonald has purchased Crichton Lodge, which he occupied during his residence in Ottawa. It is said that Lord Dundonald may be here this fall for a hunting trip.

For Roosevelt.

Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The platform adopted by the Republican State convention yesterday was an endorsement of the party's policies

Report From Mexico That Spaniards Plotted to Kill Him.

Houston, Texas, Sept. 16.—E. Lee Hawes, editor of The Pan-American World, at Mexico City, who has just arrived here, says that a plot hatched in Barcelona, Spain, to assassinate President Roosevelt, has been frustrated in Vera Cruz, Mexico. The Mexican police were "tipped off," according to Hawes, and when the would-be assassins reached Vera Cruz they were apprehended. Where they are at present is not known. Hawes says that the Mexican Government has rigidly suppressed all the facts regarding the plot. The Spanish Government, he says, is trying to uncover the conspiracy.

Killed By Fall of Decayed Bridge.

Stillwater, Man., Sept. 16.—The bridge across Lake St. Croix, which is half a mile long, extending to the Wisconsin side, caught fire yesterday afternoon. The fire created some commotion and the fire apparatus, in responding to the alarm, was followed by the usual crowd of persons. The fire had so weakened one of the spans of the rather ancient structure that when the fire apparatus and the crowd attempted to cross it it fell into the water, twenty feet below. About 20 persons were precipitated with the wreckage into the water. Adolph Boo, aged 22, and George McGrath, aged 16, were killed and five others were seriously injured.

Eleven Live in One Room.

London, Sept. 16.—The record for overcrowding is probably held by Rathdown, County Wicklow.

It was reported to the Rathdown Urban Council Wednesday that in a house in one of their dispensary districts 11 human beings were living together in one room.

Moreover, in the same room were found four dogs, one squirrel, two ferrets, six birds and a cat.

The sanitary officer was directed to take proceedings immediately.

Gartung Goes Free.

Brantford, Sept. 16.—Ernest Gartung, late organizer for the C.O.F., is now free. The end of the case came this morning. Gartung was charged before Judge Hardy with wrongfully converting $1,681 of C. O.F. funds to his own use. He pleaded not guilty. No evidence was presented by the Crown officials, and the judge accordingly dismissed the case.

Lives of Innocents Endangered.

Winnipeg, Sept. 16.—Sans Regret, the half-breed horse thief, who effected a sensational escape Wednesday night, was recaptured in the university grounds, only after he had been shot through the knee. Passersby had a narrow escape, as the policemen, groping for Sans Regret among the bushes, emptied their revolvers at any moving object.

Sheep Butchers on Strike.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Because of alleged discrimination against sheep butchers employed at the Union Stock Yards the sheep butcher workmen have decided to remain on strike. All of the packing companies excepting Armour & Co., are alleged to be discriminating.

How To Keep Well.

The best efforts of the great physicians are now expended in finding out how to keep people well and prevent serious disease. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was prepared with this object in view. It is not only a cure for diseases of the nerves but also a restorative to be used when vitality runs low and the weakened condition of the system invites attacks by fevers or contagious diseases.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Unchanged—No Good Cattle Offering at the Montreal Market.

London, Sept. 15.—Cattle are easier at 8½c to 12c per lb; refrigerator beef, 9c per lb. Sheep, 10½c to 11¾c, dressed weight.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock at the city market were large, 91 carloads, consisting of 1508 cattle, 1845 hogs, 2303 sheep and lambs and 96 calves.

Few shipping cattle were offered, the highest price quoted being $4.70 per cwt., which was paid for three steers, 1275 lbs. each, sold by McDonald & Mayhee, and another load sold at $4.65 per cwt., and one load at $4.50 per cwt.

There were few good to choice butchers' cattle, and it would be safe to say that there was not more than 10 butchers' cattle that sold as high as $4.50 per cwt., and there was not a large number that sold over $4. The bulk of the butchers' sold from $3.25 to $3.75. Common butcher cows sold at $3 to $3.25; inferior and rough, $2.50 to $2.75 per cwt.

This was the first busy day on the market for feeders. Trade in this class was active, as the dealers have commenced to buy for the distilleries, and there was a large number of farmers that bought and others that were on the lookout for choice lots of feeders. The class most in demand is steers weighing from 900 to 1000 lbs. each, and good quality at these weights is worth from $3.70 to $3.90 per cwt. Common rough heavy steers are not wanted. Distillery bulls are worth all the way from $2.50 to $3 per cwt., but the bulk sold at about $2.75 per cwt.

Stockers, 500 to 700 lbs. each, sold all the way from $2.40 to $2.80 per cwt., but there were a few lots of inferior quality that sold as low as $2.25 per cwt.

There was an active trade in milch cows and springers, over 40 being offered and sold at $30 to $51 each.

Prices for veal calves remain steady, but firm. About 90 sold at $4 to $5.50, the bulk selling at about $4.50 to $5 per cwt.

The run of sheep and lambs was large. Sheep for export are firm at $3.80 to $4 per cwt., the bulk going at $3.90 per cwt. Lambs sold at $4 to $4.60, the bulk going around $4.40 per cwt.

Drovers and farmers are still flooding the market with stubble hogs, that are not wanted. Hogs that the majority of farmers would not think of killing for their own use. We saw 42 of this lean, unfinished kind culled out of one load. This bringing of unfinished hogs is helping to depress prices. Selects are easy at $5.25, while lights and fats are slow at $5.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Sept. 15.—About 150 head of butchers' cattle, 25 lambs, 600 sheep and lambs and 20 store hogs and small pigs were offered for sale at the East End Abattoir to-day. There were no good cattle on the market, and sales did not exceed 3½c per pound. A lot of heifers one and two years old, which had evidently been on poor pasture, were sold at 2¾c per pound, and a number of small bulls at 1¼c to 2c per pound. The calves were nearly all two or three months old, and sold at $7 to $10 each, or about 4c per pound. Stripping sheep are 3¾c per pound, and others 3c to 3¼c per pounds. The lambs were a rather poor lot, and sold at $2.25 to $3.50 each. Hogs sold at 5c to 5¼c per pound.

Levi Webster Goes Free.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—T. C. Robinette, K.C., has succeeded in obtaining a pardon for Levi Webster. Webster is the young man who was implicated with Fair in the big jewelry robbery from P. W. Ellis & Co., last May. He was sentenced in June to one year in the Central by Magistrate Denison. This robbery was the sensation of the hour. Webster, who was a trusted employe of the firm, and had been carrying on, with the assistance of Fair, a system of thieving for some time. Detectives Duncan and Verney recovered nearly $5,000 of the stolen goods in Canada and the United States. Fair is still in the Penitentiary.

He broke away late last night on Broadway, near the drill hall, where a big dance was in progress. He was pursued by the police, and many shots were fired on the high-road, but he is uncaught so far.

Kept Poor by Doctor's Bills.

Many a family is kept poor by doctors' bills when just as good and oftentimes better results could be obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills which sell at 25 cents a box of twenty-five doses. As one pill a day is the most frequent dose under any circumstances there is no treatment obtainable which costs so little and at the same time none which brings about such excellent results in derangements of the kidneys, liver and bowels.

A "World" bicycle, the property of a member of the Examiner staff, was taken from the rear of the office to-day and a bicycle of the "Ivanhoe" make left in its place. There has evidently been a mistake made, and the holder of the "World" bicycle is anxiously looked for at the Examiner office.

Mr. D. Belleghem, undertaker and furniture dealer, has recently purchased a new coffin conveyance from A. B. There is accommodation for carrying two caskets, should the occasion require it. The woodwork has been highly finished; the windows are handsomely curtained, and the general work about it is of the highest order, characteristic of the work of the owner, Mr. Belleghem and staff.

COMPARISON OF THE TOWN'S WATER RATE

Peterborough's Rates as Compared With Those in Other Places.

Do Peterborough People Pay More or Less for Water Than Other Towns?—Some of the Rates.

PETERBOROUGH'S WATER-RATE.

Following will be found extracts from the water rates charged by the Peterborough Water Commissioners. They are given in order that a fairly intelligent comparison with the rates in other places may be made:—

20,000 to 40,000 cubic feet per month at 12 1-2 cents per 100 cubic feet.
Over 40,000 cubic feet per month at 10 cents per 100 cubic feet.
For manufacturing purposes 11-4 cents per 100 cubic feet, net.

In view of the recent discussion in the Board of Trade meeting on Tuesday night, on the question of water rates, and the management of the water works, a comparison of the rates in force in Peterborough with those in other places, may be interesting reading. From the "Reproductive Undertakings of Ontario Municipalities," published by the Ontario Legislature [illegible] the rates charged in the various municipalities quoted are taken, although from them, by reason of the fact that the methods made use of in the different municipalities in tabulating the rates are different, it is difficult to make a general comparison, but those interested can make such comparisons as their own special circumstances suggest.

Statements have been made that the rates here were higher than in other places, while, on the other hand it is claimed by some that they are no higher, even with the surplus of from $3,000 to $5,000, which the system is yielding.

The rates charged in some of the towns and cities of a corresponding size to Peterborough are:

FURTHER PROOF IN REGIMENT'S FAVOUR.

Barrie Advance Says Some Things About That False Report.

Should any further evidence be required as to the untruth of the statements published in a Toronto paper on the visit of the 57th Regiment to Barrie, the following editorial note from the Northern Advance, of Barrie should provide it:—

"Some scatterbrained young idiot has written a grossly exaggerated account of the recent visit to Barrie of the Peterborough Regiment, and should the officers of the 57th see fit tob ring an action for libel against the paper which published it, there will be plenty of evidence available in Barrie to assist them in vindicating the honour of the corps. The item is very evidently from the pen of one who has a strong strain of Fenian blood in his veins, and to whom the sight of a red-coat is gall and wormwood. The visitors had a good time and it is doubtful if there ever were livlier times on the streets Barrie, but that they looted the stores in the manner described is scandalously untrue."

—The fire brigade was given a run about 11.45 o'clock this morning to extinguish a blaze at the rear of the C.P.R. Hotel on Simcoe street, where a fence was burning. The flames were soon extinguished, with but little damage.

—St. Luke's Harvest Festival will be held next Wednesday evening, Sept. 21st. The sermon will be preached by Canon Rev. Dr. Cody, of Toronto, and Miss Helen Davies will sing. There will also be other special music.

—Rev. J. G. Lewis will give a lecture in the Mark street church on Tuesday evening, on "Observations and Experiences of a Trip to the British Isles." Mr. Lewis has recently returned from a trip to the old country and his lecture will no doubt be interesting.

—The choir of the Charlotte street church drove to Millbrook last evening, where they were entertained at the home of Miss Mabel Clarry, the organist of the church. Miss Clarry and daughter made excellent hostesses, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

The ladies of Peterborough will be pleased to hear that the Toronto Viavi Co. has arranged for two lectures to be given in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, the first of which will be given on Tuesday, September 20th, and the second on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, and we hope that many of our readers will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing a most interesting and instructive lecture on Physical Culture and Hygiene. The Viavi Company extends a hearty invitation to all. 3d —Niagara District, in the matter of peaches, is the garden of Canada. Under the shelter of the mountain, at St. David's and Queenston, there is a spot where there is never — or hardly ever — a failure. One passing Dutton's market this morning could see a fine bunch of baskets of Queenston selected peaches — beauties to behold, and of a lusciousness of taste to make the mouth of a Kentucky colonel water — a mouth proverbially unfamiliar with that gentle fluid. The vaunted California peach is a wild crab-apple to the luscious specimens of the Queenston article, a fruit that is a peach.

SAGE ADVICE FROM UNCLE RUSSELL

George Gould once tried to interest Russell Sage in a new equipment for cars which recorded the actual distance traveled by the car. Uncle Russell squinted at it a minute, and then he said:

"Does it earn anything?"

"No."

"Does it save anything?"

"No."

"Then I don't want it."

If we were talking about goods which neither earned nor saved, the best thing you could do would be to imitate Uncle Russell.

FRONTAGE TAX VS. A GENERAL RATE.

Views of Prominent Citizens on the Relative Merits of the Systems.

Sidewalks Like Roads Should be Paid for by the Public—Some of the Arguments.

The discussion raised by the Board of Trade at the meeting Tuesday night on the respective merits of the systems of paying for granolithic walks ,by the frontage or a general tax, was one of general interest. The speakers who expressed their views on the question at that meeting spoke on the spur of the moment, not having had an opportunity of giving the matter consideration. It was thought by the Examiner that other citizens who were not at that meeting, but who read of the discussion, might have some ideas on the subject, and the Examiner interviewed some of these this morning, with a view of ascertaining as nearly as possible the attitude held by representative citizens on this live topic.

Dr. George Burnham, who was interviewed, said that he believed the only fair way to meet the cost of the construction of granolithic sidewalks was by a system of general taxes, the same as the cost of road-building. Both are public utilities, and they should both be paid for by the public. He, however, saw a great difficulty in now reverting to the general system, since for a number of years, walks have been built while the frontage tax system has been in force, and of course he did not think it right that those have for a number of years been paying for their own walks, should now be compelled to pay for those of other persons. If some scheme could be devised to place everybody on an equal footing, and if those who have for five or ten years been paying their share of the sidewalk debentures, could be reimbursed he thought the general system should be put in force. Incidentally, he thought that the street watering should be paid for in the same way. All public conveniences should, in his opinion, be paid for by the public.

Mr. D. W. Dumble was seen this morning, and said that he had given the matter further consideration since the meeting of the Board on Tuesday night, and had not changed his position. The public highway was for the accommodation of man and beast, the centre being graded up and made fit for travel by the former. Why the roadway should be paid for by the general public, and the cost of the sidewalk should be borne so largely by the persons whose property it passes, he could not understand. It has been demonstrated that in the apportionment of the cost no figures are recognized as being equitable, in determining the apportionment of the cost as between the public and the owners, by the different municipalities, since in no two places is the same division made. He believed that the only principle, which was the right one, was that which put the whole cost of the street upon the public.

Mr. J. L. Hughes was of the opinion that while payment for pavements by general taxation might seem good it worked injustice to those in the outskirts who had not the benefit of the pavements, and besides he saw difficulty in dealing with the case of those who had already paid many year's instalments on the frontage tax principle. He believed the latter system the better and fairer. It was not a heavy tax distributed over thirty years and the man who paid the tax got the immediate benefit in the use of the walks and increased value of his property.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, was inclined to believe that payment by general tax would not work the injustice to dwellers in the outskirts to the extent claimed by some. While they had not the walks to their doors they nevertheless benefitted by the use of the pavements in other parts of the town, especially the central portion where it has been worked out by actual caluclation that, by a general tax, owing to much higher assessment that form of tax would involve much larger payments in proportion to the outskirts of the town.

MEETING TO ORGANIZE LOCAL MINSTREL SHOW.

A Most Commendable Proposition to be Considered.

Musicians, singers and entertainment specialists, attention! A meeting has been called for next Monday night in the office of Mr. A. L. Davis, George street, with a most commendable object, and that object is to talk over the proposition to organize a minstrel company to put on a first-class minstrel show for two nights. This idea is all the more commendable, as, apart from its intrinsic importance, it will fill a distinct want. We have few entertainments, as it is, and there is no prospect for many this winter. There is no doubt that we have an abundance of talent available in Peterborough to select from — scores of singers of soloist calibre, and it is safe to say, hundreds that would do splendid chorus work, and we have many who are specialists of various kinds. We are better provided than ever before in this way. In the past, with less good material, we had splendid minstrel performances, that were great successes, both from a musical and entertainment point of view, as well as financially. As long as thirty years ago, we had the locally celebrated "Mulligan Guards," with their band, who could pack a hall two nights. What was done then can be far better done now, because we have better material, and much more of it, admitting of a larger range of selection to secure the best.

There is no reason, except not trying, why the proposition should not succeed; as remarked, we have plenty of material, and a prominent local musical enthusiast, capable in every way, has consented to assume the duties of conductor. The musical training incidental to preparation, will be a distinct advantage to those taking part, and any financial balance that may remain, is proposed to form the nucleus of a fund to assist in the formation of a Philharmonic or Choral Society, such as is sorely needed in the town, and for which first class material, if it were moulded into proper shape, is available. Let everybody interested in minstrelsy, music and entertainment, come to the meeting on Monday night and start the enterprise with a good swing. They will be certain of the cooperation of the public, for if those qualified will put their energies together, they can organise and present a minstrel show that will not only invite, but command, crowded houses.

Remember, next Monday night, in A. L. Davis' office, George street.

ROYAL TEMPLARS' SUCCESSFUL MEETING.

Very Enjoyable Programme Presented Last Tuesday Evening.

The Royal Templars of Temperance had a most successful entertainment in their rooms on Simcoe street last Tuesday evening. The event was largely attended, and a great deal of interest was shown in the Society. It was the first of the fall series of meetings, and its success speaks well for the outlook of the Society. The following programme was presented, each number being well rendered, and encores were numerous:

STREET WATERING CAUSES COMPLAINT.

A Citizen Asks if the Contracts for Watering Have Expired.

A citizen this morning, speaking of the street watering contracts asked the Examiner if they had expired. If they had, he wanted to know why they had, and if they had not, why had they expired as far as the actual operation of watering was concerned. To-day George street was in such a condition that a pedestrian had his eyes, ears, mouth and nose filled with particles of mother earth to such an extent that he almost wondered if he were not in the process of returning to the "dust."

He asks why it is that where yesterday there was mud on the streets, so plentifully had water been sprinkled on them, to-day there is dust, and still the taxes for their watering continues to be levied, and the peremptory demand to the tax payer is "down with the dust."

Upon inquiry at the town clerk's office it is learned that the contracts for the street watering do not expire until November 10th, and in view of this fact, the question to-day is, "Where are the watering carts?"

OPENING MEETING OF GEORGE ST. GUILD.

Will be Held Next Thursday Night in Church Parlours.

A meeting of the executive of the George street Young Men's Guild was held last night in the parsonage, when plans for the coming season were discussed by those present. It was decided that the first meeting of the Guild for the season will be held next Thursday night, when a reception to all the young men of the church will be tendered in the church parlours. A programme consisting of musical and literary numbers will be rendered, and the nomination of officers for the coming year will be held.

SPLENDID PICTURE OF THE LIFT LOCK.

A Photograph Three by Four Feet in Size Just Made.

Great strides are being made in the art of photography, and one of the best evidences of this progress is furnished by a magnificent photograph of the Hydraulic Lift Lock, made by Mr. R. M. Roy. The picture referred to may be seen in the window of Mr. H. S. Macdonald, druggist, and is 3 by 4 feet in size, one of the largest ever made. It is decidedly a work of art, and the studio from which it was turned out is to be congratulated upon the enterprise represented by the adoption of such modern ideas.

OOBOURG WON IN THE SIXTH INNINGS

Close Game of Ball at the Lake Town Yesterday—Score 8-6.

"Weakened in the sixth" tells the story of the defeat of the Peterboroughs in a Midland League game at Cobourg yesterday. There was one fatal innings when the Cobourgs bunched their hits and the losers took a short but telling trip in a baloon and when they returned to their senses the Lake Town boys had scored seven runs, enough to win the game. Up until the sixth it was all Peterborough, the locals leading by 4—0 and playing fine ball, hitting hard and fielding cleanly. But in the sixth McCorry was touched up pretty lively and received rank support. After that it was better and the boys played good ball, but could not overcome the lead and were beaten by 8—6. The locals out-batted and outfielded the champions and should have won but some raw base running lost enough runs to lose the game.

The game was a fairly good exhibition of ball and was interesting throughout. Only a small crowd of spectators saw the contest.

The score was as follows:—

PETERBOROUGH.	A.B.	R.	1B.	P.O.	A.	E.

Summary.—Two base hits,—McCorry, Turpin, 2. Sacrifice hits, — Sheridan, Duncan. Base on balls, — Off Downs, 2. Struck out, —By McCorry, 6; Downs, 6. Left on bases, — Peterborough, 9; Cobourg, 6. Wild pitches, — McCorry, 2. Umpire, — Jack Rosewear, Port Hope.

McCorry's work on the slab was good throughout, and except in the sixth, kept the hits well scattered. With proper support at critical times he would have won the game.

Turpin's second two bagger was a beautiful drive over the fence.

The teams play a return game to-morrow. Another close game is assured.

FAIR REMINISCENCES

HISTORY OF FIRST PROVINCIAL AND FIRST INDUSTRIAL.

It Is 58 Years Ago Since the First Provincial Exhibition Was Held in Government House Grounds, Toronto, and the Industrial Dates Back to 1897—Comparative Statement of the Provincial Shows in Several Cities.

The wonderful record-breaking success of this year's Canadian National Exhibition has set grandfather talking and to appreciative audiences he recounts his reminiscences of the first Provincial, held in 1846, fifty-eight years ago, "when he was a boy at school."

Of course, year by year, the number of those who were present at the first of these Exhibitions is diminishing, yet even in Toronto there are a good many people still living whose memories easily carry them back to 1846, when on October 21st and 22nd the first Provincial Exhibition was held in Toronto, in the grounds of the old Government House, in fact in the same grounds as surrounds the present residence on King street west. Only the buildings have been changed since then, and in those which were then existing was extemporized a pavilion, where some of the roots, fruit and lighter exhibits were placed. The total number of entries was 1,150, while the value of the prizes awarded was but $1,100.

This the first Exhibition, as all subsequent ones which took place, was inaugurated by and held under the auspices of the Provincial Agricultural Association of Upper Canada. This Association changed its name some thirty years later to that of the Agricultural and Arts Association.

In the evening of October 21st a banquet was held in Government House, at which some two hundred people were present, Chief Justice Robinson being the principal speaker, and "they all felt gay," for the debut of the Provincial Exhibition was a pronounced success.

The managers of the new undertaking had decided that the annual show should be held each year in a different town, or, rather, should not be held for two years successively in the same town. Accordingly Hamilton, a place in 1846 of barely 10,000 inhabitants, was selected for the Exhibition of 1847. It took place on October 6th and 7th, and was graced by the presence of the then Governor-General, Lord Elgin.

The amount awarded in prizes was [illegible], there being 1,600 entries, a large increase in both, and every one, or nearly every one was happy.

In 1848 Cobourg was the place of meeting, the prize list being $2,300, a slight decrease on the preceding year, a circumstance which did not daunt the managers in the least, for there was no diminution of consequence in the number of entries which were 1,500, while the quality of the exhibits, especially in live stock, was more than maintained.

In 1849, 1850 and 1851, the Exhibition was held in Kingston, Niagara and Brockville respectively, the entries and prizes being'

1849—1,429	$2,500.00
1850—1,638	3,400.00
1851—1,466	3,223.75

In 1852 the Exhibition was again held in Toronto, and was an unqualified success, the entries more than doubling those of the preceding year, while the prizes offered were $1,700 greater.

It took place on September 21st, 22nd, 23rd and 24th, in the fields which then existed north of Simcoe street, at that time above Queen, known as William street. The Presbyterian Church near Simcoe street stands almost on the spot where the principal entrance to the fair grounds was. The amount of prizes in 1852 was $4,913, the number of entries being 3,048.

From the years 1853 until 1857 the Exhibitions were held as follows:

Year.	City.	Entries.	Prizes.
1853	—Hamilton	2,820	$5,298.25
1854	—London	2,963	5,427.50
1855	—Cobourg	3,077	6,941.70
1856	—Kingston	3,791	6,799.50
1857	—Brantford	4,257	8,186.00

As will be seen, the "Fair," for so it was generally described, had not only made steady progress, but there was every prospect of a still more successful future.

After the Exhibition of 1857 in Brantford, it was decided by the Provincial Agricultural Association that the Exhibition should thereafter be held alternately in the following cities, namely, Toronto, Kingston, Hamilton and London, they being regarded as well situated in the eastern, western and northwestern portions of the province to suit the convenience in turn of all exhibitors.

In accordance with this idea Toronto was chosen for the Exhibition of 1858, and what was known as the Crystal Palace, erected for the housing of exhibits other than live stock or heavy agricultural implements.

The Crystal Palace was on the grounds (then a portion of the Garrison Common) to the immediate south of the Lunatic Asylum, the centre of the "Palace" being in exact line with the dome of the asylum. The corner stone of the building was laid July 15th, 1858, by the Hon. P. M. Vankoughnet, Minister of Agriculture.

The Exhibition was opened in the last week in September, 1858, by His Excellency the Governor-General, Sir Edmond Walker Head, with very considerable pomp. It remained open for two weeks, this lengthened time being a great innovation on the established order of things.

For the twenty years succeeding 1858 the Exhibitions were held in the usual rotation, excepting in 1875, when the city of Ottawa was chosen as the place of meeting instead of Kingston. The following is a comparative statement for that period:

Year.	City.	Entries.	Prizes.
1859	—Kingston	4,890	$ 8,067.54
1860	—Hamilton	7,582	12,900.06
1861	—London	6,242	10,188.54
1862	—Toronto	6,319	10,722.06
1863	—Kingston	4,758	9,186.06
1864	—Hamilton	6,892	10,904.28
1865	—London	7,221	11,088.78
1866	—Toronto	6,279	10,288.50
1867	—Kingston	4,825	9,311.50
1868	—Hamilton	6,620	11,120.06
1869	—London	7,849	12,444.76
1870	—Toronto	6,897	12,289.56
1871	—Kingston	6,682	13,008.06
1872	—Hamilton	7,714	13,142.00
1873	—London	8,920	13,797.00
1874	—Toronto	8,162	14,070.00
1875	—Ottawa	7,318	14,951.00
1876	—Hamilton	10,011	15,681.56
1877	—London	10,618	14,387.00
1878	—Toronto	11,255	13,980.06

These figures speak for themselves and do not call for any special comment.

The Exhibition of 1860 is noted for the fact that it was honored by a visit in September 17th from H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, his present Majesty, King Edward VII., who was then making his celebrated Canadian tour. In 1862, when the Exhibition was again in Toronto, it was opened by H. E. Lord Monck, the then Governor-General.

An incident in the history of the function of 1866 was that the regular Imperial troops, then stationed in Toronto, were admitted as visitors "in squads or companies of not more than 100 men at a time."

Lord Lisgar, who succeeded Lord Monck as Governor-General, was present at the Exhibition of 1871 in Kingston, and was heartily received, making a very pleasant speech.

In 1878, which was, so far as Toronto is concerned, the last year of the Provincial Exhibition, Lord Dufferin was present and from the platform in the grounds delivered his valedictory address to the people of Canada, it containing this famous sentence, ofttimes since quoted, "Love your country, believe in her, honor her, work for her, live for her, die for her."

"The reason why, I cannot tell," quoting the old rhyme, but the fact remains that though the Exhibition of 1878 was held in Toronto, the people of that city were by no means satisfied. They thought that as the capital of the province they ought not to be sidetracked for three years; they had built good, permanent buildings since 1874, adding to them year by year and they expressed their opinion most unequivocally that if the Agricultural and Arts Association could not see their way to come to Toronto oftener than once in four years and hold their Exhibition, well, another association must be organized.

Accordingly the Industrial Exhibition, now known as the Canadian National Exhibition, was ushered into existence.

The first Industrial Exhibition was in succession to the Provincial Exhibition, held in Toronto in the present grounds, on September 1st, 1879, continuing open until September 19th. It was visited during that time by H.R.H. the Princess Louise, wife of the then Governor-General, the Marquis of Lorne, now the Duke of Argyll, and proved a great success.

The city was en fete during this royal visit, a ball being given, attended by over 500 guests in the Pavilion in the Allan Gardens, at which the Princess and the Governor-General were present. H.R.H. danced quadrilles with Lieutenant-Governor the Hon. D. A. Macdonald, with Commodore A. R. Boswell, R.C.Y.C., and Senator Macpherson, then before leaving the ball indulged in a polka "played in fast time" with Captain Harbord, A.D.C. Afterwards dancing was resumed, there being nineteen dances on the program, "the witching waltz" being the most prominent.

Besides these gaities there was a military review on the Garrison Common in which the Q. O. R., the Victoria Rifles, of Montreal, the 10th Royals, 13th, 42nd and 46th Regiments took part. Needless to say thousands were present.

Such was the opening, just a quarter of a century since, of the Industrial Exhibition. Its history since is known to nearly all of us.

THE NICKEL INDUSTRY.

Recent Remarks of Director of Ontario Bureau of Mines.

Mr. Thomas W. Gibson, Director of the Ontario Bureau of Mines, has just returned from a tour through the mining districts of New Ontario. He spent over a week with Dr. Coleman's party exploring the geological formations included in the nickel range lying between White Water Lake and Vermillion Lake. "The principal object of our investigation while I was with the party," said Mr. Gibson, "was the location of the acid edge of the eruptive in this locality. The eruptive rock is the nickel-bearing band, the deposits occurring on its outer or basic edge. The acid edge lies next the tuffs, which towards the interior of the basin are followed by slates and sandstones. The country was rough in many parts, both swampy and rocky, but there is a large tract of level and good farming land enclosed by the eruptive rock which surrounds the elliptical area. The axis of the ellipse runs northeast and southwest. This agricultural area is largely taken up by French-Canadians and is now in many places pretty well cleared. The farms would not discredit any part of old Ontario and the crops this year have been immense, especially hay, oats and potatoes. The farmers get far higher prices for their products than do those in old Ontario, their market being the lumber and mining camps.

"The nickel-mining industry is flourishing," said Mr. Gibson. "The Canadian Copper Company has just about completed its new and very extensive plant at Copper Cliff. The company draws most of its ore from the Creighton mine, some five or six miles away, without doubt the greatest nickel mine in the world. This mine contains an immense body of rich ore, which so far is being worked as an open cut. The opening is about 250 by 300 feet in area and 60 feet deep, practically all in ore. Below this at a depth of 80 feet further down, a second level has been opened which has been broken through to the floor of the first level, the intention being to stope out all of the area between the two levels. It is also proposed to open another smaller pit about 500 feet distant on the ore body. There are between 250 and 300 roast heaps of ore burning in the Copper Cliff roast yards.

"The Mond Nickel Company is operating the North Star mine and conveying the ore to Victoria mine. The Bessemerizing part of the Mond Company's plant is being used to treat the Canadian Copper Company's mass pending the installation of converters in the latter company's works."

Mr. Gibson also visited the Massey Station copper mine, where some five levels have been run, a large quantity of moderate grade ore being found, and the Hermina copper mine, where the shaft is down 140 feet and is being sunk on a rich but somewhat narrow vein of cooper ore. At the Shakespeare gold mine, near Webbwood, work is being vigorously pushed. The ore pans gold readily, even where there is no visible gold.

The development of water power is making considerable advance in new Ontario. At Webbwood, on the Spanish River, the pulp company is arranging to utilize several thousand horse-power. At the High Falls on the Spanish River also the development of power is rapidly progressing. At Wabnapitae the Canada Copper Company has almost completed a very extensive power plant and at Vermillion considerable power is to be utilised for lighting Sudbury and for the supply of power to that town.

A Woman of the Day.

The London Star says: Miss Cornelia Sorabji, LL.B., Bombay, has received the appointment of Legal Adviser to the Court of Wards under the Government of Bengal. She has persistently urged the importance of providing female legal assistance for Indian women who are secluded behind the Purdah. Her conviction of this need was upheld by the opinion of several officials in India, and, after consideration had been given to the subject, the Government of Bengal have decided to make a trial in this direction. Miss Sorabji had already privately given legal advice to some of these ladies, but she has now the satisfaction of working officially.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

Declining Chances Recall Archibald Forbes' Great Feat in 1870.

The war correspondents in the Far East have had few opportunities to display their abilities in any line, and none, perhaps, will have similar chances to those which were made use of by correspondents in other wars. Macmillan's Magazine tells some stories of correspondents who thus made themselves famous, or who added to their fame, and here are two: One of the finest achievements of a war correspondent was that of Holt White, a representative of The New York Tribune, in the Franco-Prussian war. He witnessed the battle of Sedan from the Prussian headquarters on Thursday, September 1, 1870. At its conclusion he rode to Brussels, but there the post-office authorities refused to transmit his despatch to London, and even threatened to arrest him for saying the French had been defeated. He then went to Calais, crossed to Dover by special steamer and took a special train to London, where he arrived at 5 o'clock on Saturday morning. Next day there was a description of the battle, six columns long, in The Tribune. It was not till Tuesday that the London newspapers had accounts of the conflict from their correspondents. But the most famous deed of physical endurance in the race for news between war correspondents was told of Archibald Forbes. In the Servian war of 1876, Semlin, the nearest telegraph station, was 120 miles distant from the scene of the battle. So soon as Forbes knew the result he rode off, and all night long he kept at a gallop, changing horses every fifteen miles. At Semlin he had one long drink of beer, and then at once sat down to the task of writing, hour after hour, against time, the tidings of which he was the bearer. After he had written the story of the battle and put it on the wires, he lay down in his clothes and slept twenty hours without waking. He had witnessed the battle, which lasted six hours, ridden 120 miles, and written and despatched a telegraphic message four columns in length to The Daily News, all in the space of thirty hours.

Defines Defined.

The late Miss Rosa Delmonico, the owner of the famous New York restaurant, was all her life fond of children. Children knew Miss Delmonico as Aunt Rosa, and they delighted to visit her, says The New York Times.

One day the good old lady was giving a little girl some etymological instructions. The word "dogma" came up, and Miss Delmonico defined it and then bade her pupil to use it in a sentence.

The pupil, after a little hard thought, composed around the word "dogma" the sentence that follows:

"The dogma had five little puppies."

The Messenger Of Cupid

By FORBES DWIGHT

Copyright, 1904, by K. M. Whitehead

Ogden Patterson Trevor, with innumerable letters of the alphabet attached to his name and fellowships in innumerable dignified societies on both sides of the Atlantic, sat on the top rider of a rickety rail fence, a seraphic smile on his intellectual countenance and a disreputable brier pipe between his teeth. Before him stretched a vista of sloping fields and level meadow lands already taking on a hopeful green in the mellow warmth of the early spring sunshine.

O. P. Trevor was enjoying it all immensely. The air was soft and balmy; the sunshine warmed his blood, and, best of all, he was possessed of the pleasing sense of duty done, for the last corrected proof sheets of his latest technical work on antennae had been returned to the publishers, and at present there was nothing to do but idle on this rickety fence and drink in the glories of the day.

It had created considerable stir in this little community when the eminent young naturalist had decided to tarry here awhile and rest from his arduous labors on antennae. A number of women socially ambitious had arranged a round of receptions and teas in his honor, but these delicate attentions he deftly and politely evaded by quoting his physician's orders for absolute rest. It was a happy thought to armor himself thus with physician's orders before setting out. He smiled grimly as he pulled his battered old hat over his eyes. Rather a clever bit of strategy, he concluded. It effectually did away with the lionizing and left him free to daily in the courts of his beloved nature. He blew a great cloud of smoke and watched it trail away indolently.

Suddenly his whole bearing changed from one of idle repose to alert attention. He pushed up the hat; he took the pipe from his mouth; he leaned forward perilously on the fence and listened eagerly.

"No," he muttered, frowning in perplexity the while. "No, it can't be."

Then he listened again.

"It is," he declared. "As I'm a living sinner, that's a scarlet tanager. Phenomenal—most phenomenal. What on earth is the little beggar doing as far north as this?"

The plaintive, piping notes came from a clump of trees far down the field, and that his eyes might prove the theorem his ears had suggested Ogden Patterson Trevor slid from the fence and started cautiously forward to investigate. He had traversed scarce half the distance to the trees when a small bird rose from the branches and flew to another tree some distance away.

"Amazingly like a scarlet tanager," the pursuer ejaculated, "amazingly so!" And, being a man of some determination, O. P. settled down to the chase.

And the chase was a merry one. The man would be almost near enough to the bird's latest resting place to determine surely whether or not it was a tanager, when away the provoking bit of feathers would fly, with Ogden Patterson Trevor and his innumerable alphabetical distinctions in hot pursuit. He followed the flight across the open fields and through the brambly underbrush of a clump of woods; he wallowed through an alder swamp full of hummocks, and one of the hummocks was treacherous and sent him sprawling into a pool of muddy water. He lost his pipe and tore the rim half off the battered hat, but with unflagging zeal he followed the flight of the elusive bird.

Now, on the other side of the swamp was a sloping garden back of a substantial house, and in the garden was a pear tree, and in the pear tree the bird alighted. The tired, perspiring, disheveled naturalist saw the bird light on the branch, and he started cautiously thither, worming his way up the slope flat on his stomach. Carefully he worked himself to within a few rods of the pear tree where the bird was still perched. He lifted his head from the surrounding grass, took a long look in the direction of the pear tree and smiled beatifically.

"It is a scarlet tanager!" he exclaimed, with unbounded satisfaction.

"I've found you at last! So that's how you do it, eh?" exclaimed a triumphant voice close at hand. "Get up and stand just where you are."

Still smiling beatitudes, O. P. turned. Near another pear tree stood a girl—a charming girl, despite the cold gleam in her eyes and the tight lines about her mouth. In her hand and pointed at the man of science was a long barreled revolver.

O. P. Trevor did as he was bidden. He rose in a stupefied manner and stood before her—a ridiculous, mud stained figure.

"Is it loaded, madam?" he asked, with nervous dignity.

"If you attempt to take a step in any direction you'll find out," said the girl grimly.

"I don't understand," Trevor began.

"Neither did we understand where the lettuce and radishes from our hotbed went to, but we do now," she said significantly. "Oh, such contemptible business!" she burst out. "Of all thieves a sneak thief is the lowest and meanest. If you were hungry, why didn't you come to the kitchen? You'd have been fed for the asking."

Trevor drew himself up. "I wasn't after your garden truck," he said hotly.

"I suppose," said the girl, with cutting sarcasm, "you were taking a stroll for your health and that your manner of approach is your usual method of taking a constitutional."

"I was following a bird," said he, with a dignity that his appearance rendered futile.

The girl's merry laughter rang out at this. She held her side with one hand, and the revolver wabbled about absurdly in the other.

"Following a bird!" she tittered. "For that choice bit of originality I've half a mind to let you go. So poetic too! I suppose you follow birds the year round."

Trevor fished in his pockets and by good luck came across a card, a card with the full alphabetical display after his name.

"Your surmise is quite correct," he said coldly and scaled the card so that it fell at her feet.

She picked up the card and read it. Trevor saw her start and heard her little exclamation of dismay. She glanced quickly at the man standing before her. Something in his face and bearing confirmed the bit of pasteboard in her hands. Her face went scarlet, and she dropped the revolver.

"Oh," she gasped—"oh!"

She turned and fled toward the house, with Trevor following her and shouting:

"I say! Oh, but I say!"

* * * * * * *

Ogden Patterson Trevor, with innumerable letters of the alphabet attached to his name and possessed of fellowships in innumerable dignified societies on both sides of the Atlantic, sat on the top rider of the same rickety fence. Beside him sat his bride. A seraphic smile lighted his intellectual face as he put out his arm and drew the girl to him.

"It was here the chase began," he explained.

He looked thoughtfully across the vista of sloping fields and level meadow lands.

"And to think I should have mistaken it for a scarlet tanager when it was the messenger of Cupid!" he chuckled.

Brides

Are always "beautiful" and always "happy" according to the society reporters, and in this case the report is mostly true. There may be unhappy brides in fiction, but there are few in real life. But how hard it is to look upon many of the wives we know, and believe that they were once beautiful and happy. Pain, the result of womanly disease, has marred beauty and undermined happiness.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhœa, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"I have thought for some time I would write you and tell you of the great improvement in my health since taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" says Mrs. H. S. Jones, of Forest, N. C. "When I began its use I was a physical wreck and had despaired of ever having any health again. Could not sit up all day, and was so weak I could not walk one quarter of a mile. I noted a great improvement in my health before the first bottle was used. Was suffering with almost every pain that a woman is subject to; had inflammation of ovaries, painful and suppressed periods, and other symptoms of female disease. After taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' I felt like a new person. Can ride horseback and take all kinds of exercise and not feel tired."

ANTS' NOSES.

There Are Five of Them, and Each Has Its Own Duty.

In their antennae, or feelers, ants have five noses, each of which has its own duties to perform.

One nose tells the ant whether it is in its own nest or that of an enemy, another nose discriminates between odors of ants of the same species, but of different colonies; a third nasal organ serves the purpose of discerning the scent laid down by the ant's own feet, so that it may be able to retrace the way quite easily; a fourth nose smells the larvae and pupae, and the fifth nose detects the presence of an enemy.

If an ant be deprived of a certain nose, it will live peaceably with enemies, but if it retains its fifth nose it will fight the alien to the death. There is a difference in the functions of nose one and nose five, although they appear to be somewhat alike.

This sense of smell does not come till the ants are three days old. If, therefore, ants only twelve hours old are placed among others belonging to different colonies, they will grow up quite amicably and not understand that they are a mixed lot, because they will have grown up with ideas of scent in accordance with their surroundings. The sense of smell to them is as important as the sense of sight to human beings.

EARTH LIGHT.

Evidences That Our Planet Possesses a Luminous Quality.

In proof that the earth does emit light Humboldt (1808) points to the aurora borealis. The light produced by this luminous arch is distinct from that received from the sun, and its intensity slightly exceeds that of the moon's light in her first quarter. At the poles this glow continues with scarcely a break, reminding us of the planet Venus, whose side turned away from the sun often gives forth a feeble phosphorescent light.

Humboldt goes on to argue that other planets also may possess a similar luminous quality, and in our atmosphere there are other evidences of this emission of light from the earth itself. Such were the famous dry fogs of 1783 and of 1831, which gave forth light perceptible at night, and such is that diffused glimmer which guides our steps in the nights of autumn and winter, when clouds hide the stars and the earth is not covered with snow.

It is therefore not entirely true that, as Sir Norman Lockyer puts it, "the earth cannot give out more light than a cold poker can."

GENIUS AT WORK.

Curious Postures of Some Men to Woo a Flow of Ideas.

Lombroso says that some men of genius in order to give themselves up to mediation even put themselves artificially into a state of cerebral semi-congestion. Schiller worked best with his feet plunged into ice. Descartes buried his head in a sofa while meditating, while Milton composed with his head leaning over his easy chair.

Paisiello composed beneath a mountain of bedclothes, and Rossini found bed the best place for his best works. Cujas worked lying prone on the carpet, and Liebnitz is said to have been obliged to assume the horizontal to meditate at all satisfactorily. Rousseau worked with his head in the full glare of the sun, Shelley on the hearth rug with his head close to the fire, and Bossuet, retiring to a cold room, wrapped his head in hot cloths.

It is possible that some of these devices increased the flow of arterial blood to the head, just as many can think best when exhilarated by rapid exercise or by walking up and down a room.

The Sword.

A sword is out of place in time of peace, and it is of very little consequence in time of war, except to adorn a big general or a lodge man in a parade.

True independence is to be found where a person contracts his desires within the limits of his fortune.

General Manager Hays at Victoria.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 14.—The G. T. P. party has returned from their inspection of the terminal facilities. President Hays made a general inspection of the coast line from the Alaskan boundary line to Bute Inlet. He went up the Portland Canal some distance and also inspected Port Simpson and Tucks Inlet, and proceeded up Skeena River to Hazelton. He went to Kitamat and into Buto Inlet. He says it would be premature to locate the terminals yet, as the land approaches are to be surveyed as well as the water approaches.

RELIC FROM THE STONE AGE

A Body From the Prehistoric Burying Places of England.

In Somersetshire, England, may be seen many "barrows," burying places of prehistoric man. Long ages ago, when the elephant and rhinoceros, the lion and bear, the hyena and wolf, the great elk and the reindeer were among the common animals of England, primitive man and savage beasts lived in caves in this region.

At the entrance to these caves the aborigines, clad in skins, kept fires burning for warmth and for protection from the wild beasts. It was here that they made flint hatchets, knives and arrowheads. Not long ago a trench was being dug within the mouth of one of these caves for the purpose of draining.

It was found necessary to break up a stalagmite floor of two thick layers. Between the layers was a deposit of cave earth and stones, in which was discovered the skeleton of a man of very great antiquity in an excellent state of preservation. With it were found several flint knives and flakes. Experts who made a careful examination of the skull, which has projecting brows and receding frontal bone, have decided that it belongs to the stone age and is of a type intermediate between the paleolithic and neolithic ages.

Apparently the body had been placed in a small passage leading off from the great passages to the stalactite caves and had been prevented from disturbance by stones piled around it. The stalagmite floor had formed over it all, effectually preserving it to the present day.

Old Moore's Foretellings.

"In October, 1905—the date is not yet definitely fixed—there will be a royal marriage with an American beauty, which will bind the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes still closer; there will be much wealth brought from the western republic by pretty bridal American women."

So writes Old Moore in his Almanac for 1905. The cryptic prophet appears to regard 1905 as a fairly quiet year, but to the lay mind, unskilled in measuring the lore of horoscopes, he sets forth a positively appalling catalogue of disaster.

There are fires, collisions, earthquakes, cyclones, wrecks, tidal waves, assassinations, deaths of great rulers, colliery explosions almost monthly, and a number of undefined "appalling disasters."

These, however, are the common upheavals of humanity. Exceptional events are predicted in this form:

"A yelling, surging, savage crowd, fur-coated and thickly clad, desperate through taxation, bad Government and the horrors of war, try to clear the throne of a weak-minded, badly advised autocrat; bullets fly, blood flows and people fall—but not yet. Later will they—like their allies—honor a President of their own choice; but education must march on first and set the workers thinking."

In January—"Death will reap a rich harvest of financiers, but the general health will be good."

In November—"A mighty ruler will pass away with a suddenness that is tragic." A case in the law courts at this time will cause much washing of aristocratic linen in public; and a British gunboat will have to make a flying visit on particular business.

In the last month of 1905 there will be an improvement in maritime means of progression; and there will be three-day trips to New York. Every tradesman will keep a motor car, and horse stables will be condemned as unsanitary.

PRESENTATIONS TO RETIRING LEADER.

Miss Loretta Guiry Remembered by Her Ennismore Friends.

St. Martin's T. A. S. Annual Excursion —New Township Hall at Ennismore.

Last Monday the St. Martin's T.A.S. held their annual excursion to Lindsay, per steamer Stony Lake, and upwards of four hundred, mostly members of the society, enjoyed the sail. Leaving Chemong at 8 o'clock a.m., the steamer called at the Indian Village and again at Gannon's Narrows and reached Lindsay at 1 o'clock p. m. Here three hours were spent by the excursionists, in seeing the town, visiting friends, and doing business. At 3.30 o'clock the Stony Lake again pulled out, and after a delightful trip reached Chemong at 8 p. m. All who had the pleasure of enjoying the sail, are loud in their praises of the Stony Lake and its very kind and obliging crew. This steamer is easily the best and most suitable for excursions of all that ply on the Kawartha waters, and the proprietor Mr. P. P. Young is to be congratulated on his well deserved success. The excursion was well managed and thoroughly enjoyed.

The new township hall is fast nearing completion and a benign smile passes over the cheerful countenance of the architect, as, at each visit, he sees his ideas fast materializing, under the skilful management of Mr. Sam Young.

Last Sunday Miss Loretta Guiry, who for the past four years was in charge of St. Martin's choir, bid farewell to her pupils and associates. She leaves to continue her studies at the Conservatory of Music in Ottawa. Miss Guiry is an exceptionally talented young lady, and if her success in Ottawa is in keeping with the success she was able to accomplish during her three years' stay at St. Joseph's Academy, Toronto, her friends will have every reason to feel proud of her. Both choirs, junior and senior, and the members of the League of the Cross, of which latter she was a valued member, gave expression of their appreciation of Miss Guiry's services, by reading addresses and presenting her with very valuable and appropriate presents. On behalf of the junior choir, Miss Mary Ann Crough, read the following address and Master Frank Moloney presented the retiring organist with a very beautiful lady's companion, consisting of ten pieces in sterling silver each bearing the initial L. G.

We, the members of St. Martin's Senior Choir, having learned with regret of your intending departure from our midst, take advantage of this opportunity of expressing to you our deep appreciation of your ability, of the zeal and earnestness, which you manfested in the actual work of teaching and leading our choir, and of the uniform kindness and consideration which you displayed towards each individual member.

Your many noble qualities of head and heart, your good example of a truly modest, pious life, your cheerful, encouraging disposition, together with your readiness on all occasions to sacrifice time and self for the common good, have endeared you to us all, rendered the work of weekly practice a labour of love, and the task of separating a great pain.

To your increasing efforts, in season and out of season, we owe, in no small measure, the proficiency, we have been able to attain, and of which we are justly proud.

From the bottom of our hearts, therefore, we thank you, and pray, that Almighty God, whose praises you have taught us to sing, may be your reward exceeding great.

We are pleased to know that you purpose pursuing your studies still further, and we hope, with the same honour and distinction, in the future as in the past.

As a proof of our sincerity and kind regards towards you and as an acknowledgment of our gratitude for your honest and unselfish labour in our behalf, during the past four years, we ask you to accept this small present, trusting at the same time that separation will neither dampen the ardor nor lessen the interest you always showed in the success of our choir.

Signed on behalf of the choir,

Mrs. Dan Crough,
Mrs. J. P. Flood,
Wm. Bell,
Jos. Guiry,
Frank Scollard,
J. K. Galvin,
Tim Crough,
Peter Flood,
Lizzie Scollard.

Mrs. Dan Crough the first among St. Martin's many clever organists, read for the senior choir, the following address and Mr. Bell, a valuable member, presented Miss Guiry with a well filled purse in gold.

To Miss Loretta Guiry,

Dear Teacher,—This is for us, your pupils, an occasion of great sorrow, for in bidding you good-bye, we feel that we are loosing the kindest of friends and the most considerate of teachers.

Though young, we could not fail to see the lively interest you took in our advancement.

Two years ago the present class which now makes up the Junior Choir, was organized, and our first attempts at singing, as you will remember, were harsh and discouraging. Still you did not dispair. Saturday after Saturday you met us here, and by your constant encouragement, patience and perseverance, you have at last succeeded in bringing us within sight of the promised land.

We realize, at least in part, the anxiety and worry, our irregularity and tardiness, must have cost you, and we therefore appreciate, all the more highly, your uniform kindness and forbearance towards us, as well as the rapid progress we have been able to make under your wise direction and skillful teaching.

We are, therefore, pleased to be allowed to-day, to give expression to those feelings of love and gratitude which we entertain towards you, which you merit so highly, and which we trust, will serve to bind us closely to you all through life.

Be pleased to accept this lady's companion as a token of our esteem and regards, and with it our most sincere wishes forr a bright, happy and prosperous future.

Signed by Choir members,

Celia Twomey,
Mary Ann Crough,
Lizzie Young,
Fanny Scollard,
Ettie Scollard,
Ida Harrington,
Eliza Flood,
Stella Cadigan,
Agnes Cadigan,
Evelyn Carew,
Frank Moloney,
Michael Fitzpatrick,
Emmett Crough,
Mark Crough,
Earl Hickson.

Next came the members of the League of the Cross, without an address, but with a purse, in gold, much heavier than the former. Father Fitzpatrick was asked to say a few words expressive of the good wishes of the members, and from the tone of his remarks it was evident that he was pleased to see Miss Guiry, so highly honoured by those who knew her best, and who were most competent to judge of her sterling worth. He was sorry to lose so talented and so trustworthy an organist, but was pleased to know that the change was for the purpose of perfecting herself, in a calling for which she showed such marked aptitude. Mrs. Moher, president of the League of the Cross made the presentation. Miss Guiry was visibly affected by such unmistakable evidence of genuine kindness, and some time elapsed before she could give expression to her feelings of gratitude. She thanked all very warmly, for the faithful manner in which they assisted her, not alone in the work of the choir, but in everything she was called upon to do. She thanked Father Fitzpatrick for the kindness he had always shown her and hoped she would be able to realize at Ottawa all that her best friends could desire.

Miss Ida Galvin, who has just completed a three year's course in music at the Lindsay Convent, will succeed Miss Guiry as organist. From Miss Galvin's success at each examination, there can be no doubt of her competency to continue in the good work.

Of the ten pupils from the Ennismore schools who wrote on the entrance examinations, eight passed, while Celia Twomey and Clara Young of S.S. No. 4 stood second and third among those who wrote at Lakefield.

Father Fitzpatrick begins his forty hours devotion next Tuesday morning, and will close on Thursday evening with an instruction followed by the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

To Miss Loretta Guiry,

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

Features of Market as Told by Special Wires.

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

New York, Sept. 16.—To-day's market showed further sharp advances and made more excitement than for some time past. In fact the advances were too spectacular but many of our predictions were fulfilled to-day. Would buy Erie around 36; steels strong; we consider the corn a sale for 14. Would not buy any more steel pfd at present. Ill. C. is a purchase below 138. We consider to-day's reaction more serious than Mondays and think it will be followed by further declines in the general list. We look for further reaction of from 3 to 5 points and then a resumption of the bull movement if nothing happens. L.R. may run up to 15. General list will probably sag lower before going higher.—Wall Street Information Bureau.

Liverpool opening, wheat unchanged; corn 1-8 higher.

The Steamer Sovereign Trips.

The steamer Sovereign continues her daily trips between Peterborough and Rice Lake, with this change. On Fridays, instead of leaving at 9 o'clock in the morning, she now leaves at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, from her landing place below the locks, where she connects with the street railway, returning Saturday morning.

MUKDEN NOW THE JAPANESE TARGET

Vigourous Shelling of Russian Positions by Japanese.

THE RUSSIANS ARE RETIRING

Japanese Said to be Attempting to Cut Off Kuropatkin's Retreat by a Wide Turning Movement—Stories From Port Arthur—Combatants Bitter and Said to be Showing no Mercy.

London, Sept. 19.—It is asserted in a despatch from Tokio to The Express that the Japanese are vigorously shelling the Russian positions at Mukden, preparatory to a general advance, and endeavoring by a wide turning movement to cut off Gen. Kuropatkin's retreat. The Japanese armies, the despatch adds, are disposed in the same relative positions as in the fighting before Liaoyang.

Almost Continual Skirmishing.

Mukden, Sept. 19.—The Japanese are reported to be advancing on both flanks from the east, the southeast and the southwest. The Russian outposts are closely engaged twenty miles southeast of Mukden. Almost continual skirmishing is going on.

From Kuroki.

London, Sept. 19.—A despatch from General Kuroki's headquarters, via Fusan, states that the Japanese front north of Liaoyang is now almost half way to Mukden, and is confronting Kuropatkin's outposts.

It is believed that Gen. Kuropatkin is removing his headquarters to Harbin.

Russians Are Retiring.

Tokio, Sept. 19.—The Russians are retiring upon Harbin. Only two divisions, with the complement of cavalry, are now south of the Hun River. A battle is expected at Shihho.

Oyama Reports Loss.

Tokio, Sept. 19.—Marquis Oyama, commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in the field, telegraphed yesterday morning that General Oku had reported having captured 13 prisoners at the battle of Liaoyang. He also gave a detailed list of the Russian stores which Gen. Oku captured as follows: Thirty horses, two thousand two hundred and eighty-eight rifles, one hundred and seventy-six ammunition wagons, five thousand eight hundred and ninety-two rounds of artillery, six hundred and fifty-nine thousand nine hundred and thirty small arm cartridge. Great quantities of timber, flour, rice, forage, engineering implements, clothing and accoutrements.

Russians Make Chinese Soldiers

Tokio, Sept. 19.—It is reported that the Russians compel the Chinese in Siberia to cut their queues and enlist in the army at the front. Disobedience is punished with instant confiscation of property and death.

Liaoyang Defeat Costly.

Paris, Sept. 19.—A despatch to The Journal from St. Petersburg states that the Russian losses at Liaoyang from Aug. 26 to Sept. 3 were two generals, 21,800 men and 133 guns. The value of the material lost, including the fortifications, is $30,000,000.

Russian Transport Ashore.

London, Sept. 19.—A news agency despatch from Tokio says that a Russian transport carrying arms and ammunition from Shanghai to Vladivostock has stranded on Ituru Island. The prospects for floating her are small. Fifteen of her crew of Americans and Germans have landed.

Gen. Stoessel Expects Defeat.

Che Foo, Sept. 19.—According to Lieut. Prince Radizivil of the Russian army, who reached here Saturday night from Port Arthur, bearing despatches from Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, the commander-in-chief of the forces of the Russian stronghold, to Gen. Kuropatkin, the temper of the belligerents at Port Arthur has reached an absolutely merciless stage. Prince Radizivil declares that the men of both armies are absolutely venomous in their antagonism. Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel has addressed his garrison, saying that if the Japanese soldiers entered the fortress it undoubtedly will be impossible for their officers to control them and prevent a massacre. For this reason Lieut.-General Stoessel is making no objection to civilians leaving Port Arthur. In consequence of the fact that flags of truce are ignored, numbers of dead Japanese who have been lying on the slopes of the hills of the northeast defences for weeks past are still unburied and the stench in Port Arthur from decomposing bodies is almost unendurable.

In the course of the assaults which took place in the four last days of August two companies of Japanese soldiers, according to Prince Radizivil found themselves at the mercy of the Russians and hoisted a white flag. To this, however, the Russians paid no attention, and continued to fire volleys rapidly into the helpless ranks of the Japanese. In the meantime Japanese troops in the rear of the company that had raised the white flag saw what their comrades white flag saw what their comrades had done and expressed their disapproval of the surrender by firing into their rear. As a result of this, 600 men were annihilated.

THE ARCTIC LEAVES

Hon. Mr. Prefontaine's Farewell Address to the Crew.

OFF FOR THREE YEARS' CRUISE

Major Moodie Receives His Commission As Commander-in-Chief of the Expedition From the Minister—Captain Bernier Has Full Command of the Vessel, May Yet Realize Dream of Life.

Quebec, Que., Sept. 19.—There were thousands of spectators on the King's Wharf and on the Dufferin Terrace when the steamer Arctic left at 12.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon for her three years' cruise in the waters of Hudson Bay and Mackenzie River.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. R. Prefontaine, went on board at 12.15 p.m., after having thoroughly inspected the steamer in the morning, and addressed the crowd from the bridge of the vessel. He was introduced by many prominent citizens. Hon. Mr. Prefontaine bade God-speed to the officers and crew, saying that they had a very important duty to fulfill, a very important mission to execute for the Government, the organization of a vast extent of Canadian territory in the northern part of the country.

He expressed the hope that, in three years, they would come back, enjoying good health, after having been true to themselves and their country. He said that next year a relief steamer would be sent to them. Turning towards Major Moodie, he gave him his commission as commander-in-chief of the expedition.

To Capt. Bernier, he said that he had the full command of the vessel and its crew, and that he was responsible for the ship. He (Captain Bernier) would in three years from now, perhaps, be in a position to realize the dream of his life—a trip towards the North Pole for its discovery. The Government thought that, for the moment, there was something more important to accomplish, that is, the organization of the vast territories of the far north.

Hon. Mr. Prefontaine then gave to Inspector Pelletier his commission as head officer of the detachment of Mounted Police on board.

The steamer Arctic then left slowly, accompanied by the Druid, with many officials on board. Mrs. Moodie, wife of Major Moodie, accompanies her husband on the Arctic.

Passenger Train Wrecked.

Port Arthur, Ont., Sept. 19.—Passenger train No 2, eastbound, was ditched at Dexter yesterday morning. Some of the cars were wrecked. No person was injured. A wrecking train from Fort William cleared the track, and the train arrived here twelve hours late.

Big Struck By Train.

Ottawa, Sept. 19.—H. Barnes, an Ottawa drover, was struck by the C.P.R. Pembroke special. The rig was demolished and Barnes seriously but it is not thought fatally injured. The accident happened at March's Crossing, 12 miles from Ottawa.

RATEPAYERS TO VOTE ON BYLAWS

To-morrow Vote Will be Taken on Two Important Measures.

The Town's Need of Increased Fire Protection.-Opening of New Streets.

To-morrow the ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough will vote on two money by-laws. The objects for which this money will be used is set forth in the preamble of the bylaws, one is to raise $12,000 for the purposes as follows:—

It is necessary to rebuild the bridge over the creek on Charlotte street in the town, and to repair the bridges over creek on Simcoe, Hunter and George streets and it is desirable in order to make the bridges more permanent that the one to be rebuilt should be constructed of iron and surfaced with concrete and those to be repaired should also be surfaced with concrete and it is estimated that the cost will be the sum of five thousand dollars.

And it is desirable that certain new streets should be opened in the Town and it is necessary to purchase land for that purpose and it is estimated that the cost of purchasing the land and opening these new streets will be seven thousand dollars, making in all twelve thousand dollars for all purposes and it is desired to pass this bylaw to be submitted to the vote of the electors to authorize the borrowing of the sum of $12,000.

The second bylaw is one to provide for an improved fire protection. The Fire, Water and Light Committee of the Council has reported that it is necessary to provide for improved fire protection by the purchase of suitable land for, and to erect a new and modern Fire Hall thereon, and to equip it in a proper manner, and to install a fire alarm system, and to purchase a chemical fire-engine and other necessary apparatus for efficient fire protection, the estimated cost of twenty-five thousand dollars, and it is desired to pass this bylaw to authorize the borrowing of this sum.

The polls in which the vote will be taken will open at 9 o'clock, a.m., and close at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and the locations are as follows:—

To Seize Attack Capital.

Buenos Ayres, Sept. 19.—According to despatches received here, the revolutionists of Paraguay are concentrating their land forces at towns parallel with the railway, and have cut off supplies and communications with Asuncion. It is evident that the revolutionists are planning to make an early attack upon the capital or to starve the Government into submission.

A Negro's Awful Passion.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Resenting an accidental collision between himself and Charles Meyers, Kalvin Linden, a negro, Saturday night shot Meyers twice through the head. He then turned the weapon against men who came to aid Meyers, shooting George Denards in the back and Guy Jones in the shoulder. Linden knocked John Nolan down and escaped.

Pulled Gun Toward Him.

Winnipeg, Sept. 19.—While Mr. Risum with his son and daughter were driving to his ranch, 16 miles from Claresholm, the boy in picking up a gun, which was in the bottom of the rig, to shoot some chickens, accidentally discharged the weapon as he held the muzzle towards him and the shot entered his side, killing him almost instantly.

Fell to His Death.

THE REAL POINT AT ISSUE.

Political history has a habit of repeating itself — scenes and actors change but the old principles return again and again for settlement. This truth is exemplified by the recent Dundonald agitation, which, in reality, was but the recurrence of an agitation that took place forty years ago over the attempt of the Duke of Newcastle, Colonial Secretary at the time, to deprive Canadians of the hard-won principle of Responsible Government, including Canadian control over Canadian expenditure.

In 1862, when Upper and Lower Canada constituted the Province of Canada, the Duke despatched a military commission to this country to ascertain what steps should be taken for its protection in view of the Civil War in the United States and possible complications between England and the Government at Washington. The commission reported in favour of a scheme of defence involving the establishment of an active militia of 50,000 men with a reserve of 50,000 more. The Macdonald-Cartier Administration undertook to put the measure through parliament, although, as their letters show, both Sir John and Sir George felt that it was an extravagant demand upon Canadian industry and the pocket of the Canadian taxpayer. The Government was beaten, however, by a majority of seven, owing to the defection of independent supporters from the two Canadas, and John Sandfield Macdonald and Mr. Sicotte, the Liberal leaders, succeeded to power. The defeat of the bill caused a good deal of commotion in official circles in England. Here in Canada the "Tory" party tried to make it appear that the country was bound to submit to the Duke's projects, that it was disloyal to do otherwise, and "Keep both hands on the Union Jack" was practically the war cry of the professional politicians on that side.

Encouraged by these demonstrations the Duke resorted to an extraordinary step. In an official communication to Lord Monck, the Governor-General, he actually hinted that it might be necessary to deprive the Canadian Legislature of control over the affairs of the Canadian militia. The reply of the Macdonald-Sicotte Cabinet, dated October 28th, 1862, was couched in the form of a report of a Committee of Council. Here are a few extracts from it:—

"Your Excellency's advisers cannot disguise their opinion that the Province is averse to the maintenance of a force which would seriously derange industry and tax its resources to a degree justifiable only in periods of imminent danger or actual war. The people of Canada, doing nothing to produce a rupture with the United States, and having no knowledge of any intention on the part of Her Majesty's Government to pursue a policy from which so dire a calamity might proceed, are unwilling to impose upon themselves extraordinary burdens. They feel that should war occur, it will be produced by no act of theirs, and they have no inclination to do anything that may seem to foreshadow, perhaps to provoke, a state of things, which would be disastrous to every interest of the Province.

"Without entering into a discussion of the relative merits of direct and indirect taxation, your Excellency's advisers feel that it would not be prudent, suddenly or to any large extent, to impose direct taxation for military purposes. This is not the occasion for adopting a principle hitherto unknown in the fiscal policy of the Province, and assuredly this is not the time for plunging into an experiment for which the people of the Province are unprepared. The wealth of the country is in its lands. If the people are in the enjoyment of comparative wealth, it is so invested as to be not readily available for the production of a large money income. Your Excellency's advisers believe that no Government could exist that would attempt to carry out the suggestion of his Grace (direct taxation for military purposes.)

"Another suggestion embraced in his Grace's despatch is well calculated to excite surprise. Your Excellency's advisers allude to that portion of the despatch in which his Grace proposes to remove the control of funds required for militia purposes from the domain of Parliament. His Grace is evidently aware that the proposition wears the aspect of an interference with the privileges of the representatives of the people, and it is certain that any measure liable to this construction never will be, and ought not to be, entertained by a people inheriting the freedom guaranteed by British institutions. The Imperial Parliament guards with jealous care the means of maintaining the military and naval forces of the Empire. Its appropriations are annually voted, and not the most powerful Minister has dared to propose to the House of Commons the abandonment of its controling power for a period of five years. What the House of Commons in England would not under any circumstances of danger entertain, is not likely to be entertained by the Legislature of Canada. Whatever evils are incident to representative institutions, the people of a British Province will not forget that they are trivial in comparison with those which are inseparable from arbitrary authority. Popular liberties are only safe when the action of the people restrains and guides the policy of those who are invested with the power of directing the affairs of the country. They are safe against military despotism, wielded by a corrupt government, only when the people have in their hands the means of controlling the supplies required for the maintenance of a military organisation."

These dignified words, which, to do him justice, Sir John Macdonald afterwards approved of, should be quoted from every platform in Canada in the approaching campaign. The present question is not whether Lord Dundonald is a brave soldier or not—of his bravery no one has a doubt—but whether, as a person not directly controlled by the Canadian people, he was entitled to institute large militia outlays and direct that portion of the public service in an unauthorised and therefore arbitrary manner. In short, it is not Lord Dundonald's Scottish descent or his conduct at Ladysmith that is in issue, but, as in 1862, the cardinal principle of Responsible Government in this country, which is of infinitely more importance to ourselves and to the Empire than either.

INCREASING DEMAND FOR COOL CURED CHEESE

Building New Curing Rooms—The Patron's Interest.

Judging from the greater demand for cool cured cheese which exists this season, the Old Country merchants are beginning to realize more fully the advantage there is in handling cheese which have not been exposed during the process of curing to a temerature higher than sixty degrees. Cheese factories that are able to offer strictly cool cured cheese are deriving so much benefit that it must be only a question of time, a short time in fact, until all factories are equipped with proper cool curing rooms.

The experience gained at the Government cool curing rooms has demonstrated that, while the first requisite is to control the temperature, it is also necessary to provide for some circulation of the air to carryy off the moisture which escapes from the cheese, and which comes from the increased relative humidity due to the reduction of temperature. If the relative humidity is too high the cheese will have soft skins and develop a tendency to mould badly.

The system adopted at the government curing rooms has worked admirably, and it can be employed without difficulty and at a moderate cost in connection with any cheese factory. Indeed, a large number of factory curing rooms have already been remodelled on this system. The necessary alterations and additions involve the putting in of a cement concrete floor, some extra insulation, and the erection of an ice chamber. Mr. J. A. Ruddick, Chief of the Dairy Division, Ottawa, who has this work in hand, points out that many of the existing curing rooms are large enough to allow an ice chamber being constructed in one end, and still have sufficient room for cheese. This applies more particularly to the older factories in Western Ontario.

Where improvements are proposed for next season, the work should be undertaken this fall, in order to have the ice chamber ready for filling during the winter. Mr. Ruddick has prepared plans showing his system of cooling for all classes of cheese factory and creamery buildings, and he invites those who contemplate improving old buildings or erecting new ones to communicate with him, if they desire to have the benefit of his experience in these matters.

This question of the cool curing of cheese is one in which the patrons of cheese factories should take the keenest interest, because they will gain more through its adoption than any other section of the trade. They should be willing to bear a share at least of the expense of refitting the factory. The present scale of charges for manufacturing cheese is based on the old plan, and it is too low to secure a good service.

Some of the factories with cool cured cheese have during the present season been getting one-fourth of a cent above the highest price paid for the ordinary cured article, and there is not the slightest doubt but that the difference will be greater as cool cured cheese become known. In addition to the increased price there is a saving in shrinkage of about one and a half per cent.

BULLETIN ON WEED SEEDS.

The Seed Division of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, has just issued an illustrated bulletin on the "Weed Seeds commonly found in Timothy, Alsike and Red Clover Seeds." It is well known that large quantities of seeds of many noxious weeds are each year unwittingly sown with grass and clover seed. The resemblance of many weed seeds to the commercial seeds with which they are found makes their detection difficult to an unstrained eye, even if they be present to the extent of several hundred per pound. It is therefore of great importance to be able to identify at least the seeds of those weeds which are seriously injurious in agriculture. The text and illustrations of this bulletin (No. 18 New Series) are published with a view to assist farmers to identify the more dangerous weeds common to grass and clover seed. The illustrations of seeds are from drawings by J. R. Faull, lecturer in Botany, University of Toronto, and the descriptions are by G. H. Clark, Chief of the Seed Division, Ottawa, to whom applications for copies of the Bulletin should be addressed. As the edition is limited, it will be sent only to those who apply for it.

This is one of the district sales under the auspices of the Dominion Cattle, Sheep and Swine Breeders' Associations, and those who may wish to contribute stock can obtain full particulars from the secretary, Mr. J. H. Brown, Port Perry.

ELEMENT OF YOUTH IN GAME OF GOLF.

Facts Show That Young Men Made Good Records.

Youth in golf will not be denied any more than in many other forms of outdoor sport. The fact that the finalists in the recent amateur championship at Baltusrol were mere boys speaks for itself. H. Chandler Egan of Chicago, the new title-holder, is 20 years of age, while Frederick Herreshoff, the representative from Ekwanok, is even younger, as he has yet to celebrate his seventeenth birthday. In these days, when golfers are doing all kinds of apparently impossible things with wood and iron weapons, one must needs be a master at all departments of the game to win out in a championship field. At Baltusrol recently Walter J. Travis, holder of the amateur title for three years, hardly appeared at his best at any stage of the tourney, although it could not be said that he was playing badly with any particular club. The veteran complained of the greens and seemed to hold the latter responsible for his not taking fewer putts. To a close observer it did not appear as though Travis was wasting finary putts. As a matter of fact, he gave himself too much to do after the approach to expect to hole many of his first putts. Then, again, the Baltusrol course is one where the long driver enjoys a distinct advantage. No one ever associated Travis' name with the "swipers." Had Travis been putting on the Garden City carpet-like greens instead of at Baltusrol, his peculiar method of tapping the ball would doubtless have met with more success. To win in a championship one must putt as well as drive, and that was just what Egan did. Using a regulation steel weapon and putting off the right foot, the Chicago boy hit the ball truly in the centre of the club, and on a large majority of his holding out putts there was never any doubt about the ball going down. When Travis won the amateur championship of Great Britain at Sandwich it was his wonderful putting that saved him on many occasions. He holed the ball from all parts of the green with a regularity that fairly astounded Scots and Britons alike. They are noted over there for their deadly game, but the exhibition of the American representative surprised anything they had ever seen.

Some pronounced it superior skill; others a streak of luck. The ordinary putting of Travis in the open championship over the same Sandwich greens a week later would tend to bear out the latter theory. Throughout the recent championship at Baltusrol Egan putted with remarkable precision. There's an old axiom that in real golf there is no need for putting. That was true in a great measure with Egan's play. To green after green his approaches were so accurate as to leave him very little to do with his putter. Take the final round match for instance. His approach to the twelfth hole over the bunker in the morning was so close to the pin that the Westerner had little difficulty in getting a 3. Going to the same green in the afternoon Egan pitched with his mashie to within less than a club's length of the cup and holed another 3. That 3-spot settled Master Herreshoff's championship aspirations. As an instance of how the game has lengthened out during recent years, the way the amateurs play the fourteenth hole may be cited. In the old days the players were pleased to carry the bunker guarding the green on their seconds, using a brassie. Most of the golfers in the recent championship used irons for their second shots, while a wrist mashie sufficed Egan.

It is difficult to estimate the advantage of long driving. No matter how much of a stoic one may be, it's disconcerting to see the other fellow lifting the ball out from ten to forty yards farther at every clip. Egan's tee shots undoubtedly had a demoralizing effect upon Herreshoff in the morning. All through the week the Ekwanok boy had been accustomed to watching his opponents play the odd, but against Egan the conditions were just reversed. As Donald Ball, the professional who caddied for Herreshoff, said afterwards "It was the first time during the week that the boy had gone off on his drives. He began to rush his club on the back swing, with the inevitable result. In the afternoon the boy listened to good advice and settled down to his normal game, but it was then too late."

How To Keep Well.

The best efforts of the great physicians are now expended in finding out how to keep people well and prevent serious disease. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was prepared with this object in view. It is not only a cure for diseases of the nerves but also a restorative to be used when vitality runs low and the weakened condition of the system invites attacks by fevers or contagious diseases.

A BID FOR SILENCE.

Five Million Dollars Was the Sum Offered and Rejected.

Immediately it became known to the Tweed ring that the proofs of its guilt were in possession of the Times an effort was made to buy them. A carefully verified report of this attempt was published in Harper's Weekly for Feb. 22, 1890:

"A tenant in the same building (the Times building) sent for Mr. Jones to come to his office, as he wished to see him on an important matter. Mr. Jones went to the lawyer's office and, being ushered into a private room, was confronted by Comptroller Connolly.

"'I don't want to see this man,' said Mr. Jones, and he turned to go.

"'For God's sake,' exclaimed Connolly, 'let me say one word to you!'

"At this appeal Mr. Jones stopped. Connolly then made him a proposition to forego the publication of the documents he had in his possession and offered him the enormous sum of $5,000,000 to do this. As Connolly waited for the answer, Mr. Jones said:

"'I don't think the devil will ever make a higher bid for me than that.'

"Connolly began to plead and drew a graphic picture of what one could do with $5,000,000. He ended by saying:

"'Why, with that sum you can go to Europe and live like a prince.'

"'Yes,' said Mr. Jones, 'but I should know that I was a rascal. I cannot consider your offer or any offer not to publish the facts in my possession.'"

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is a tablet taken internally.

It is a permanent cure and no case of Piles has ever been found it failed to cure. Money back if it does.

Dawson Governed By Commission.

Ottawa, Sept. 17.—Governor T. Congdon of the Yukon wires to Ottawa that the vote to determine whether or not the civic charter of Dawson should be revoked and the city's affairs carried on by a commission was three to one in favor of revocation.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, but by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WOMAN'S GREATEST ENEMY.

Constipation the Cause of Most Women's Troubles—An Easy Way to Permanently Cure This Painful Condition.

There are few women indeed who do not suffer with chronic constipation. Nearly all are slaves to some kind of medicine to correct this trouble, and yet they get nothing but temporary relief. One period of constipation is followed by another, and it's physic, physic, physic, year in and year out, till life becomes a burden.

There is now a sure cure for this condition and a cure that does not have to be repeated. It is Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill.

Dr. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., is the author of this prescription. He used it for years with wonderful success in his own large practice as a remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness and constipation.

Many ladies who have suffered for years are now enjoying good health and a perfect freedom from the old constipation through the use of Anti-Pill.

Mrs. Tubb, 237 Emerald St. North, Hamilton, Ont., says:—

"I am no longer troubled with constipation. I cannot praise Anti-Pill too highly."

STORY A FALSE ONE

Buffalo Witnesses in North Grey Unworthy of Credence.

DECISION OF THE JUDGES

A. G. MacKay, M.P.P., Unscathed—The Buffalo Bribery Charges Dismissed—Hon. R. J. Davis' Testimony Closes the Taking of Evidence—Conservatives Unready to Proceed and Court Adjourned.

Owen Sound, Sept. 19.—Chief Justice Moss and Mr. Justice Street declared that what are known as the "Buffalo charges" in the North Grey protest are utterly false and untrue, and that the position of Mr. A. G. MacKay, the sitting member, was not touched by them. They severely criticised the conduct of Nelson and Mulloy, and agreed that there was no proof of agency. These charges were the mainstay of the petition, and when they were so thoroughly exposed the Conservatives had nothing else out of 812 charges with which to proceed. The Judges were unable to sit here next week, and after some discussion adjourned the court at 1.40 p.m. until October 31. The feature of the day was the address of Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., who thoroughly exposed what he called a "vile political conspiracy." It is probable that the balance of the charges against Mr. MacKay will be abandoned.

Commissioner of Crown Lands.

Hon. E. J. Davis, the last witness, said that the Province was divided by the Ministers into districts, and that in a general way North Grey was under his jurisdiction. He was present at the nomination meeting on December 19th, and returned the following morning. He came again on Christmas eve to complete arrangements for speakers, and returned the following morning. These were the only occasions on which he was in the riding. On the last occasion he saw Duncan Marshall, the Liberal organizer, but not Mr. MacKay.

In reply to Mr. Blackstock he said he did not know whether there was a central organization in connection with the Liberal party, or who appointed Marshall. He did not know Marshall's salary, or who paid him, as he had nothing to do with the organization. Vance was also an organizer at that time, and he never had a conference with Vance on election matters in his life. He did not know anything about the Ontario Liberal Association, and was not a member. He knew nothing whatever about a fund for the riding, and never received any money from the association. This concluded the evidence, and the argument followed.

About Your Complexion.

A yellow, muddy complexion tells of derangements of the liver, and indicates the presence of bile poison in the blood. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills set the liver and kidneys in action, purify the blood, cleanse the system, and assure a healthy glow to the complexion. As a family medicine Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are of inestimable value.

DEATH OF PRINCE BISMARCK.

Son of Builder of the German Empire Passes Away Painlessly.

Friedrichesruhe, Sept. 19.—Prince Herbert Bismarck died yesterday morning at 10.15. The end was painless. Since he ceased to be Foreign Minister, on the retirement of his father in 1890, Prince Herbert Bismarck has taken part in public affairs only as a member of the Reichstag. His attitude had been that of a man not appreciated by his sovereign, and who was waiting in the background for an opportunity to resume his career.

His delivery as a Parliamentary speaker improved year by year. He always declined to join any political group, steadfastly calling himself an independent.

Prince Bismarck's father trained him for his successor as chancellor of the German Empire, and advanced him rapidly in the diplomatic service until, at the age of 40 years, he was Minister of Foreign Affairs, in which position he took part in nearly every important international transaction.

The title of Prince Bismarck and the large fortune of the deceased will go to his 7-year-old son, Otto. The estate is now estimated to be worth $4,000,000, exclusive of the lands.

Accidents Near Kingston.

Kingston, Sept. 19.—Friday afternoon two lads were in a boat at Collins Lake on a duck-hunting expedition. One drew a gun towards him and it went off. The bullet pierced the body of William Marshe through the groin. He is in the hospital here in a dangerous state. His father was killed by the explosion of a big gun at Fort Henry some years ago.

A daughter of A. Rissenthal of Denbigh, in Addington, got her hand badly injured by a shot while walking on the public road. Dr. Aylesworth had to amputate part of two fingers, and recommended her being taken to Kingston General Hospital for treatment. Who fired the shot, and how the accident occurred is as yet a mystery.

Kept Poor by Doctor's Bills.

Many a family is kept poor by doctors' bills when just as good and oftentimes better results could be obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills which sell at 25 cents a box of twenty-five doses. As one pill a day is the most frequent dose under any circumstances there is no treatment obtainable which costs so little and at the same time none which brings about such excellent results in derangements of the kidneys, liver and bowels.

THE THIBETAN TREATY.

Three Markets For Mutual Trading Will Be Established.

London, Sept. 19.—The Times' Pekin correspondent gives at length the text of the draft of the treaty between Thibet and Great Britain, which has been sent to Pekin by the Amban (the Chinese representative at Lhassa) and which the correspondent believes to be practically identical with the treaty actually signed, which China is almost certain to ratify. It contains a preamble and 10 articles, the most important of which bind the Thibetans to establish three marts for mutual trading between British and Thibet merchants, to allow traffic along existing routes and others which may be opened in future between India and Thibet, Thibet to pay an indemnity of $2,500,000 in yearly instalments. It is stipulated as security for the performance of the conditions of the treaty that British troops shall occupy the Chumtsi Valley for three years and until the indemnity is paid. One article provides that without Great Britain's consent no Thibetan territory shall be sold or leased to any foreign power, and no foreign power shall be permitted to concern itself with affairs of Thibet or to construct roads, railways or telegraphs or open mines in the country.

The British Departure.

Lhassa, Sept. 19.—The departure of the British expedition has been fixed for Sept. 23. The weather is already cold, and there has been hard freezing. The men are ill-supplied with winter clothing and are likely to suffer in crossing the passes on the way to Gyangate, where are some stores of warm clothing.

This resulted in the discovery that a perfectly organized syndicate existed for the purpose of purchasing and importing the profitable vermin for a trifle, and making a large profit on the transaction. The proprietor of the concern and fifteen of his assistants have been arrested.

Boy Incendiary Gets 5 Years.

Doukhobors on the March.

FIELD DAY OF SPORTS WAS GREAT SUCCESS.

Some Splendid Contests Witnessed at Driving Park on Saturday Afternoon.

Second Annual Field day of C. G. E. Company's Mutual Benefit Society—The Prize Winners.

The second annual field day of the Canadian General Electric Company Mutual Benefit Society was held on the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday and proved a most successful affair. There was a fairly large number of spectators present who witnessed some excellent races. All the events were well contested and as a rule the finishes were close and exciting. Considerable interest was centred in the tussle of the 5 mile road race between Burns and Payne, and which was won by the former by about 50 yards. The following is the list of races and the prize winners:—

There were eight entries in the boy's 100 yard dash, which was won quite handily by Oscar Stortz, with George Andrews second and Frank Burdett third.

The 100 yards dash, open to the shop only, was won in easy fashion by Fred McGrath. A Laing took second, R. Dorner and R. Evans were tied for third place. The tie was run off, the latter winning and securing third place in the event.

The fat man had to run 150 yards and had also to tip the scales at 180 pounds or over. Someone said the time was 13 7-11 seconds, but this is not official. There were four entries and three finished as follows: John Murphy, James Murphy, R. H. Shepherd.

The 100 yards shop handicap was a good race, and was won by Archie Laing, who had a handicap of 7 yds. F. McGruth, scratch, was second and P. Adamson, who also had 7 yds. handicap, took third. There were eight entries.

The 100 yards, open, was easy for McGrath. A Laing and G. Gauthier the other two entries, crossed the tape together for a dead heat, the former winning in the extra heat.

McGrath also took first place in the half mile handicap, open to the shop only. There were three entries, W. E. Saunders at 15 yards and G. H. Harrison and McGrath at scratch. The former ran well until the quarter post was reached when his wind failed. McGrath finished strong beating Harrison by about 30 yards.

The boys' boat race provided plenty of amusement and was won by J. Seymour, with A. O'Brien second, E. Moss third and G. McAndrews fourth.

There were six entries in the putting the shot contest, which was won by J. Carl with Jas Murphy second and W. O'Rourke third.

The ladies' 100 yard race was exciting to the finish. The winners were Mable Throop, Lillie Callahan, Millie Moss.

The 100 yard foot race for girls was won in an exciting finish by Bessie Mowry, with Millie Moss second and Mabel Throope third.

The half mile open race was won easy by Burns, with Harrison second. Gauthier also started but did not finish.

The tug-of-war contest resulted in a victory for the Quakers, who defeated a shop team in two straight pulls. The teams were: Quakers—John Murphy, James Murphy, J. Carl, J. Grisdale, P. O'Donnell. Shop—G. Rutherford, G. Gauthier, D. Foley, W. Logan, W. O'Rourke.

The starter was T. F. Manley, the judges, R. E. Layfield, J. O'Brien and P. K. Holmes. The president of the Society is Jas. Hicker and the secretary, F. McGrath.

The committee who had the sports in hand are to be congratulated upon the success of the affair. The events were run off promptly and the program was carried out just as advertised. It is a pity that there were not more spectators present as the contests were far more interesting than is usually the case.

The races were run under the Standard Amateur rules of Canada. The prizes were all valuable and well worth contesting for.

WHISKEY SERVED A GOOD PURPOSE

Saved L. A. Halley from a Serious Loss This Morning.

House was Broken into but Burglar Imbibed too Freely and Remained—An Interesting Episode.

Mr. L. A. Halley thinks it was a mighty lucky thing for him that he happened to have a bottle of whiskey in the house this morning, and he is very likely right.

Between nine and ten o'clock this forenoon Mrs. Halley went out of the house, where she and her husband reside at 394 Aylmer street, to do some Monday morning shopping, and during her absence the window at the rear of the house was pried open and a man entered with robbery in his heart, and that he did not entirely succeed in his designs is due to his fondness for the flowing bowl, and to Mr. Halley's thoughtfulness in placing the bottle containing the spirits conveniently to his notice.

The intruder turned the house upside down, and put on a good suit of clothes belonging to Mr. Halley over his own suit, evidently preparing for the coming winter, took a $20 solid gold watch chain and some other articles. Before quitting the house, however, or perhaps soon after he entered it, he took a deep draught of whiskey from a bottle which Mr. Halley keeps in the house in case of sickness, and which had not yet been opened.

It was good whiskey, and it is likely that during the progress of his work in searching the house the burglar took more than one pull at the bottle, until at last when he had secured all the booty he wished, he was beginning to feel drowsy and when he got as far as the shed he sat down to rest and fell asleep.

Mrs. Halley in the meantime had completed her shopping and returning home found the house upside down, the furniture misplaced, and the drawers in the bureaus pulled out, their contents being scattered over the floor.

Of course she was greatly mystified as to the cause of this condition of things, and upon going to the rear of the house heard snoring coming from the vicinity of the shed. Opening the door she saw the perpetrator of the acts lying asleep, and she at once notified the police, who arrested the stranger. Upon his person were found a six shooter, every chamber loaded, and six cartridges known as "dynamos" used by burglars in blowing open safes.

He is an unknown character to the police, but it is likely that it will be found that he is a notorious character, who may be wanted in other places on burglary charges.

In his pocket were two ripe tomatoes which he had taken from the pantry of Mrs. Halley.

This is one case where whiskey served a good purpose, and a wag has suggested that a bottle of these spirits should always be left convenient for the use of burglars.

Among other things found on the unknown man were two bottles, one containing what is thought to be nitroglycerine, and the other some kind of salve; three cotton and three silk handkerchiefs, a pair of suspenders, a pair of coloured spectacles, a brass watch, No. 1,587,078, a peculiarly shaped screw driver, with "T-40" on the handle, a card with "John S. Walton, room 20, Bark street, Chambly," from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m."; three cartridges, besides the five in the revolver, a new Blue Beard razor manufactured by J. Palmer & Sons, Montreal, a number of small needles, a pocket knife, a watch chain belonging to Mr. Halley, twenty five cents in silver and two American cents, a contrivance for cleaning a pipe stem, a Yale key, No. 557 manufactured by the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Co., a watch guard and a lead pencil.

The prisoner is a young man about twenty-five years of age. When he was asked his name this morning he at first refused in an angry manner to give any satisfaction but later said to the Chief, "To be civil with you, I don't know my own name."

A case containing about $40 in money in a drawer was left, the burglar evidently thinking the case valueless.

This afternoon the prisoner was sleeping, and until he has gotten over his spree it is hardly likely that his name will be ascertained.

EXCELLENT SERMON TO YOUNG MEN.

Rev. Dr. Crothers Preached Last Night on "the Young Men at Home.

Some Good Advice to Young Men—Time at Home Should be one of Preparation.

Last night Rev. Dr. W. J. Crouthers, pastor of the George street Methodist church, preached the first of a series of sermons to young men, the subject of that last night being, "The young man at home," and the text, St. Luke ii, 51, "And he went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them."

Every Canadian, said the reverend gentleman, is proud of his country, proud to be called a Canadian, and as the years go by there are still greater reasons why we should be proud of our country. We are proud of our forests, our mines, and our fisheries, but the most valuable asset Canada has to-day is her young men, for without them the rich, natural products would be valueless. Since the young men are the country's most valuable asset we should be careful of them, and help them. It is not known how many young men there are in Canada, but there must be a vast number, and the young man factor is an important one.

The verse taken from the text refers to the life of Jesus Christ as a young man at home. The picture given of Jesus in this chapter is a beautiful one.

There are twenty years in the life of Christ which are unrecorded; the only thing known of Him during that period is that He "increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man," and there is a world of meaning in these words. The boyhood of Jesus, as far as known, was similar to that of other boys, and there is no reason to believe that He in His youth was greatly different from other boys.

The word home is a precious word, and in thinking of it a flood of precious memories sweeps over one. have really but one home, although we may in after life have residences much more elaborate than that in which we spent our childhood, they never seem like the old home. A quiet religious home is the most important thing in life, if duty and love are the watchwords there.

In considering the home of Jesus, we learn (1) it was a home of poverty, but poverty is not the worst thing in the world; because one is poor, is no reason that he should remain in that condition. Many of the world's most illustrious men have been poor.

Then it was a home of obscurity, and this is not the worst thing that could happen one. It was also a home of toil—He was a carpenter, and there is no disgrace in being a toiler; the disgrace is in slighting one's work. The speaker said there were some people who did not work, and who should be behind prison bars.

The most important point about a Christian home was that it was a home of preparation, and this is what every home should be. He believed that the fact that Jesus was God's son, came to His realisation gradually. There is a world of inspiration for young men in Christ' slife. He lived side by side with men, and was subject to the same trials that come to all young men.

While the young man is at home is the time to make preparation for his future life, and if this preparation is not made then, the life is, to that extent, a failure.

The question which all should ask is, "How can the largest sum of true life power be secured." All the blessings of life are before us, and it is all rigght to want to live long, and achieve success, but we want to do something that will endure, and the time at home is the time of preparation for this success.

Then as to the elements of this preparation. Reading should be one of them, and the principal book to read is the Bible. He thought the present lack of knowledge about the Bible among the young people was lamentable.

The time at home should also be spent in toil, not in idleness. The young man should also be careful of his companions, and should cultivate his powers of observation. He should not neglect his father and mother, but should be a joy and a sunshine to them.

Jesus Christ is the young man's friend, and He asks young men to become His friend.

After the sermon, Miss Bertha Parnell sang very effectively, "Where is my Wandering Boy To-night?"

COUNTY COURT CASES.

Young Man Fined for Stealing—A Hotelkeepers Misdoing's.

At the County Court on Friday, before Judge Edmison, Melville Miller was charged with stealing a sum of $52.00 from Andrew Fairburn, of Smith. He pleaded guilty to the charge. It seems that the defendant was in the employ of the plaintiff, and while the latter with his wife and children were away from home attending a funeral, Miller entered the house and purloined the $52.00 which was lying in a desk. Fairburn suspected the youth and watched his actions. He noticed that he was spending money quite liberally and had his arrest effected. Fairburn in court asked that the defendant be leniently dealt with. Miller paid over the $52.00 besides $15.00 for the plaintiff's trouble, $17.80 costs and a fine of $10.00, making $42.80 besides the stolen money.

On Saturday a case of selling liquor in prohibited hours was disposed of. The defendant was Jeremiah Hefferman, of Westwood, a licensed hotel keeper. He pleaded guilty to a charge of selling in prohibited hours on Saturday, Aug. 27th. He was fined $20 and costs or $25.00 altogether.

LOST HARD LUCK GAME TO COBOURG

Local Midland League Team Defeated by 5—3 Score.

All Runs for the Home Team Came in one Innings—Some Good Plays Made.

The hard luck which has been following the Peterborough Midland League Baseball Team all season, was responsible for another defeat on Saturday by a close score. The game was with Cobourg for three years, champions of the League, and the team now stands a pretty good chance to finish well up again this season. The score was 5—3, all three runs credited the locals coming in one innings, the second, when hits by Long, McCorry, McDonald and Callaghan brought in the three runs.

The locals got a goodly number of hits of the Cobourg south-paw, but the latter succeeded in keeping them pretty well scattered, and good fielding behind him helped considerably. The local team was outbatted, and although in the early part of the game McCorry was effective, in the later stages his offerings were batted freely, and some errors in the field were costly.

For the first three innings the visitors were shut out, and it looked like a win for the home team, but, as the sequel shows, such was not to be the case. The features of the game were Lamont's triple and Graham's splendid catch of a difficult foul fly.

The game was an interesting one, and until the last man was out, there were hopes that the home team would duplicate its feat of the previous Saturday, and win the game in the lucky ninth. The attendance was fair, considering the other attractions in town that day.

THE GAME.

Cobourg was easy in the first. Turpin fanned; Burge went out to Long, Floyd laid one down in front of the plate, and reached second on Graham's throw to Long, and Bently fanned. Sheridan and Graham were both out on liners to third, when Lamont delighted the fans by a corking three-bagger, but Whitcroft retired the side on a grounder to Bulger, the throw beating the runner to first.

In the second, Butler hit to the pitcher, and was out at first. Duncan fanned the air and Bulger sent a hot one, which Lamont failed to connect with in time. Payne got first on Whitcroft's inability to recover the ball quickly enough to catch him at first, but a fly by Downs, which Whitcroft gathered in, retired the side.

The locals scored their trio of tallies in their half. Weatherstone waited for four wide ones, and Long advanced him by a nice single to centre. McCorry's drive to right brought Weatherstone home, and sent Long to third, the latter coming in on McDonald's nice hit to centre. Callaghan followed with a nice one to the left garden, and McCorry came in, making three to cross the plate. Sheridan popped up a fly. Graham sacrified, advancing McDonald and Callaghan, but Lamont flew out and it was all over.

Cobourg tried to score in their third, but the effort was futile. Turpin sent a hot one at Whitcroft and got first. He went to Whitcroft's sack on a wild throw to Long. Graham got Burge's high foul, and Floyd was out by the Whitcroft-Long route. Bently flew to Callaghan, leaving Turpin at third. Whitcroft sent a hard fly which Burge got under. Weatherstone fanned. Long made a nice double to centre, but McCorry hit at Duncan, the ball beating the runner to first.

Cobourg's first run came in the fourth, when Butler singled, and after Duncan had sent a fly at Long, which the latter got. Butler came home on Weatherstone's failure to field Bulger's drive to right. Payne followed with a single, but Downs flew out to Whitcroft, and Sheridan fielded cleanly Turpin's grounder. Score, 3—1.

In the second half three batters faced Downs, McDonald failing to beat out his grounder to Bulger. Callaghan hit to Duncan and was an easy out at first. Sheridan was out, hit by a batted ball.

There was nothing doing in the fifth. Burge hit to the pitcher and failed to reach first. Floyd singled but Bently flew out to Whitcroft and Butler fanned. Graham sent one which Duncan captured, putting him out at first on a nice throw. Lamont got first on Bently's error, the latter dropping an easy fly. Whitcroft sacrificed. Lamont made a daring steal to third, but Weatherstone sent an easy one to Downs.

Another run, which, however, did not cause much uneasiness, came to the visitors in the sixth, when Duncan singled and Payne hit to centre scoring him after Burge had been put out on a grounder to Lamont. Downs and Turpin both flew out to McDonald.

Hits off Downs were now as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. Long fanned. McCorry was out on a grounder to Bently, and McDonald flew out to Duncan.

Cobourg tied the score in the seventh, when after Burge had made a two bagger, Floyd followed with a single to right, which brought the former in. Bently sent one which Long failed to get in time to cover his bag, but flies by Bently, Duncan and Bulger retired the side. Callaghan, Sheridan and Graham were the only home batters to go to bat in their half and neither reached first.

The damage was done in the eighth when Cobourg scored two runs, making the figures 5—3 in their favour. Payne was first up, but was out on Lamont's assist. Downs got a hit, was advanced on Turpin's drive to centre, and scored on Burge's sacrifice. Floyd followed with a hit, scoring Turpin. Bently flew out to Weatherstone; Lamont flew out to Burge; Whitcroft fanned; Weatherstone reached first on Turpin's error, but Long flew to Bently.

McCorry pulled himself out of a hole in the ninth, when, with two men on bases, Butler got a hit, which bounded over Lamont's head, and Duncan on four balls, he put Bulger and Downs out on grounders to the pitcher. Graham caught Payne's foul fly. The locals got a man on bases in the last innings, but it was after two men were out. McCorry flew to the pitcher. McDonald was out by the Bulger-Turpin route, and Callaghan got his base, being hit by a pitched ball. Sheridan flew out to Payne, and it was all over, the score standing 5-3.

The BEST STOVE CO.

PRACTICAL SERMON AT ST. LUKE'S.

The Rector Preaches From the Text "Fools Make a Mock of Sin".

Some Good Advice to his Hearers—The Sin of Intemperance.

The Rector preached last night from Proverbs xiv, 9, "Fools make a mock of sin." He desired to stir the congregation's indignantion and to arouse their better feelings against merry-making of a kind that is worthy only of devils, and that was practised by so many, making light of sin, to treat sin as a joke. Frequently it is heard for the sake of making excuses, that "it does not do to be too strait-laced in these matters," "that a man must live," when an apology for dishonesty is wanted, or that "a young man must sow his wild oats," when it is sought to excuse sin. To make sin pleasant and rob it of its hideousness the devil disguises its true character. Unfortunately there are some men and women who hire themselves to the Evil One to help him in his dreadful work, and most actively is this done by "the fools who make a mock of sin," who so dress it, and disguise it, and speak of it, as to make it appear altogether a light thing, and, indeed not far removed from a joke.

For example, take the sin of drunkenness. Treat this sin lightly, speak of it by those softer, slangy terms which men love to use, and you practically mock at this terrible evil, and rob it of its sinfulness. There are people who see in the wretched sight of a dazed, stupefied creature staggering along the street only something to be amused at. But can any good man or woman ever laugh at the sodden creature, staggering home to his drunken sleep, stops to reflect that there is no sign of merriment in the wretched home to which he goes, that there is no smile on the lips of the broken hearted wife, who awaits the drunken husband; that the starved and ragged children, whose clothes he pawns off their backs, see nothing to be amused at in their father's degradation.

"Again," the speaker said, "is it honest, is it right, to speak of the awful sin of impurity, as nothing more than a "sowing of one's wild oats," or "a seeing life?" Oh, away with such miserable, soul-destroying cant!

The shortest and the saddest word in the English language is "sin." Think of the sorrows, the woes, the suffering that is in the world this very day. Think of the tears that flow at this moment, of the hearts that are breaking, of the homes that are desolate. And think how none of these things would be if there were no such thing as sin.

Look at our hospitals and all the suffering that may be witnessed in them; look at our gaols, with their histories of misspent and wasted lives; at our lunatic asylums, with their sad life stories you may read there; at our penitentiaries, and then think how there would be no gaols, no asylums, no penitentiaries in the world, if sin had not entered into it. Think of the homes out of which the light has gone for ever—of the gaps that can never be filled, and then of those words, "Sin entered into the world, and death by sin." Think of the life of the Man of Sorrows, and whence all these sorrows came and then reflect what it was that made that great Sin Offering necessary. Surely only a "fool can mock at sin."

In conclusion Mr. Langfeldt exhorted his people not to be led away by any sorry jesting at sin. Sin had made a glad world sad; sin had changed men and women into devils, it has ruined homes, it has blighted lives, it has broken hearts, it has peopled hell, and "Fools make a mock at sin!" God will answer the fool according to his folly, and Satan, the author of evil, will pay him to the very last farthing, the wages of sin, which is death."

—At the George street church, yesterday morning Mr. E. A. Frowde sang in splendid voice "Wandering Child, Come Home," and also took the solo in the anthem "I love to tell the Story." In the evening Miss Bertha Parnell sang, "Where is My Wandering Boy To-night."

—At the Charlotte street League this evening Mr. E. H. Jolliffe, B.A. will give a talk on "Mosquitoes," The male quartette will sing.

—An introductory lecture on Home Mission Work in the Yukon will be delivered at St. Paul's mission, Reid street south, next Wednesday evening, by Rev. J. J. Wright, B.A.

—The Examiner is informed that six or eight sweaters belonging to the Peterborough Hockey Club have been taken from the club's locker in the Y.M.C.A. The object of this note is to inform those in whose possession the sweaters now are that if they are not returned the law made to deal with such cases will be put into action.

The ladies of Peterborough will be pleased to hear that the Toronto Viavi Co. has arranged for two lectures to be given in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, the first of which will be given on Tuesday, September 20th, and the second on Wednesday evening at 3 o'clock, and we hope that many of our readers will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing a most interesting and instructive lecture on Physical Culture and Hygiene. The Viavi Company extends a hearty invitation to all. 3d

CORRESPONDENT SAYS STREETS ARE DARK

On Cloudy Nights the Street Lights Should be Burning.

A correspondent writes to the Examiner complaining of the street lighting service, and makes the statement that "when, according to the almanac the moon should shine, whether the sky is filled with black clouds or not, the lights are a minus quality," and says that last night, while the moon was supposed to be doing business his face was hidden, and yet no street lights were burning to light the traveller on his way.

A Unique Policy.

The Western Assurance Company to-day insured the MacFarlane exhibit of oil paintings, now on view at the Y.M.C.A., for $1,500.00 (fifteen hundred dollars.) The entire collection is worth upwards of $2,200.00. We believe this is the largest amount of insurance ever put on a collection of pictures in Peterborough.

TWO THEORIES OF LIFE

"THE SAGE OF THE GRANGE" WRITES OF THE STRENUOUS LIFE."

Dr. Goldwin Smith Does Not Look With Approval on Modern Crowding—Competition vs. Co-operation—Which Is the Fundamental Law of Humanity?—Plea for Consideration of Real Phenomena of Humanity.

Mr. Goldwin Smith writes the following letter, which appears in The New York Sun, under the caption, "The Two Theories of Life."

To the Editor of The Sun—Sir: "You need not expect that people will stand aside because you have come. They are going to crowd you and you will have to crowd them. They will leave you behind unless you leave them behind." Such is the view of human society and life presented by a State Commissioner of Education to a graduating class. The Commissioner's is in harmony with his age. A generation ago his doctrine would have startled us. But ours is the age of materialism, of survival of the fittest, fitness being measured by force; of progress by destruction; of Imperialism, of strenuous life. Against the prevailing tendencies vital Christianity, the belief in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, continues to struggle, though with a force impaired by its entanglement with beliefs which science and criticism has disproved, but which it is hard for an ordained clergy and ecclesiastical organization to cast off. The world is divided again between these tendencies and the parties to which they give birth, somewhat in the same way as at the time of the Reformation it was divided between Catholicism and Protestanism, when the lines of nationality were crossed and superseded by those of religious belief. Not that the orthodox and titular Christianity by any means coincides with faith in human brotherhood and righteousness. Some Churches float with the tide. A diocese of one of them closed its synod with three cheers for the general who was burning the homes of the Boers. But of the essence of Christianity, as it is embodied in the Sermon on the Mount, not a little is now to be found outside the Churches.

Christian ethic has suffered by a belief in the inspiration of the gospels which has led to the acceptance of Oriental hyperbole as literal precept. The injunctions respecting forgiveness of injuries, taken literally, are fatuous. But placability is not fatuous, nor is it undignified.

The Christian doctrine of fraternity is, at all events for many of us, more comfortable than that of mutual crowding and the survival of the strongest. We cannot all be foremost in the race for competition, we cannot all thrust each other aside, we cannot all climb over each other's heads. But we can all do our duty in our place; and, if duty is the pledge of happiness, we can all in a measure be happy.

Is competition or co-operation the fundamental law of humanity? Take any product of human industry, a manufactured article, for instance; trace it back in thought to the multifarious agencies which in countries and ages widely apart have contributed to its production, and say whether it does not speak of a relation very different from that of herds of animals crowding each other. What is human progress altogether but co-operation—a different agency from selection by destruction?

Nobody could be more free from orthodox superstition of any kind than Carlyle, who is one of his essays, after speaking of other agencies of progress, says:

"Or, to take an infinitely higher instance, that of the Christian religion, which under every theory of it, in the believing or unbelieving mind, must ever be regarded as the crowning glory, or rather the life and soul, of our whole modern culture. How did Christianity arise and spread abroad among men? Was it by institutions, and establishments and well arranged systems of mechanism? Not so; on the contrary, in all past and existing institutions for those ends its divine spirit has invariably been found to languish and decay. It arose in the mystic deeps of man's soul; and was spread abroad by the 'preaching of the word,' by simple, altogether natural and individual efforts; and flew, like hallowed fire, from heart to heart, till all were purified and illuminated by it; and its heavenly light shone, as it still shines, and (as sun or star) will ever shine, through the whole dark destinies of man."

It happened that when I laid down Carlyle there met my eyes a gilt cross on the spire of a neighboring church illuminated by the sun. The cross was the emblem of all that was materially weakest, of slavery and the shameful death of the slave. The eagle was the emblem of the Roman Empire, the greatest embodiment of force which the world has ever seen. The eagle and the cross encountered each other. Which prevailed? It may be said, of course, that the cross represented a force. It did, but the force was not that recognized by the State Commissioner of Education. It was not that strenuous life and the big stick.

I have not pretended, nor do I pretend, for my part, to advance any theory of the universe or of man. I only ask that before we embrace ultra-materialism, with its apparent corollaries, moral and social, all the real phenomena of humanity, not only those with which physical science deals and which Darwin's grand discovery covers, shall receive fair consideration, and with the rest the phenomena of history.—Goldwin Smith.

THE FIRST ENVELOPES.

They Were Used in a Private Penny Post in Paris.

The first mention of envelopes occurs in 1653, when M. de Valayer set up, under royal patronage, a private penny post in Paris, and boxes were placed at street corners for the reception of letters wrapped in post paid envelopes.

The earliest uses of the word in English were by Bishop Burnet in 1714 and Dean Swift in 1726. That the "little bags called envelopes," as Rowland Hill described them, were nothing but a revival and were in use as a covering for postal purposes long before 1840, when his postal reform was established, is evident from the following: Under date July 21, 1627, Secretary Conway gives an account of his "opening a letter in the presence of the king, which contained a blank sheet." Lamb mentions them in 1825, and in "Harry Lorrequer," published by Charles Lever in 1837, we find, "The waiter entered with a small note in an envelope."

The early covers were probably rude enough, as machine made envelopes were unknown before 1840, and the "lick of the gum" did not make its appearance till the succeeding year.

The Armenians.

The Armenians are one of the most ancient races in the world. Their country is mentioned by Xenophon and Ezekiel and in the cuneiform inscriptions of Babylon and Assyria. All the nations that surrounded them have passed away, but they remain, though their country has been harried with fire and sword for centuries. The speaker ascribed the permanence of the Armenian race to the virtue of their women and the exceptional purity and stability of their family life. Even in their heathen days polygamy was unknown to them. They have been a Christian nation for more than 1,500 years and have undergone perpetual persecution for their faith from the surrounding oriental peoples.

Earthworms.

Darwin says in "The Formation of Vegetable Mold:" "If a man had to plug up a small cylindrical hole with such objects as leaves, petioles or twigs he would drag or push them in by their pointed ends, but if these objects were very thin relatively to the size of the hole he would probably insert some by their thicker or broader end. The guide in his case would be intelligence." He then goes on to show by reports of actual experiments that this is the method pursued by earthworms. Not only do they adapt the leaves of the trees of their own country to their needs, but the leaves of foreign trees are dealt with in a similar way. The following words of Mr. Darwin are remarkable: "If worms are able to judge, either before drawing or after having drawn an object close to the mouths of their burrows, how best to drag it in, they must acquire some notion of its general shape. This they probably acquire by touching it in many places with the anterior extremity of their bodies, which serves as a tactile organ.

"It may be well to remember how perfect the sense of touch becomes in a man when born blind and deaf, as are worms. If worms have the power of acquiring some notion, however rude, of the shape of an object and of their burrows, as seems to be the case, they deserve to be called intelligent, for they then act in nearly the same manner as would a man under similar circumstances."

A Japanese Story.

In one of his stories Lafcadio Hearn deals with a singular superstition in Japan. A woman had, according to a very common custom in Japan, given her mirror to go into the melting pot to make a bell for a Buddhist temple. After she had given it she remembered that it had been her mother's and her grandmother's and that it must have reflected a good many happy smiles. So she regretted giving it. She longed for the chance of stealing it back, but it never came. As the mirror was given grudgingly it would not melt. She was sure that everybody must know who had done such a dreadful thing as to grudge a gift to a temple, so she drowned herself, leaving a farewell letter containing these words: "When I am dead it will not be difficult to melt the mirror and to cast the bell. But to the person who breaks that bell by ringing it great wealth will be given by the ghost of me." This was a magnificently effective curse, because everybody tried to ring the bell till it should break. The priests were driven to the verge of madness by the ringing and threw it into a swamp, so that nobody could ring it any more.

What They Didn't Know About Air.

Health journals have been in existence time out of mind. One in particular in its day was widely accepted as an authority on all matters of hygiene. An item which appeared in this paper in 1874 says among other things that "it is safer to sleep in a bad air all night—that is, with the windows tightly closed—with a temperature over 50 than in a pure air with a temperature under 40."

Fatherly Conclusion.

Farmer Trefrog—What makes you think Daniel Webster wus a smart man? Farmer Hoptoad—Waal, I've been readin' some of his speeches, an' they seem to agree purty thoroughly with Mary Jane's graduation essays.

Hard Hearted.

She—After all, George, I think a public wedding would be better. He—And give up the elopement? She—Yes. You see, papa has refused to lend us his automobile, so what's the use?

NAPOLEON'S METHODS.

The Way the Great Military Genius Planned His Battles.

In his work on "Napoleon" Colonel Dodge has an interesting passage on Bonaparte's planning out of his battles. It runs:

"Spreading out and bending, sometimes lying, over his maps, with a compass in his hand, which corresponded to about seven or eight hours' march as the crow flies, being nine or ten actual hours' march, marking the position of his corps and divisions with various colored pins, as well as the supposed locations of the enemy, he ordered the movements of his army with an accuracy of which one can scarcely have an idea. Moving his compass across the map, he judged immediately, according to the topography, roads and season, how many marches any corps required to reach on a given day a certain place where he needed it and the rate of speed demanded, and with this knowledge (and his judgment was absolute of what troops could do) he dictated the instructions the execution of which made him so famous. Napoleon avoided such general orders as would inform the enemy of his wholesale plan should they reach him and confined himself when possible to such orders as would apply only to the movements of certain corps. Even in his own army he did not permit the general plan to be known, lest it should leak out. Each corps commander was given orders for his own maneuvers and was told what was essential about the neighboring corps. Just because Napoleon was thus particular were his orders such models of precision and clearness."

"Yankee Doodle."

As for the origin of the tune of "Yankee Doodle," over which there is much controversy, this can be said—that most of the views expressed about its origin are right, but only partly so. It is true the tune is the same as that of "Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket," "Yankee Doodle Came to Town," and that of the Dutch reapers' song, "Yonker Dudal, Dudal Daun," but it is also identical with the old Biscayan "Danza Esparta" (sword dance) and that of a German song which was published at Cologne in the year that Columbus discovered America.

Relative Advantages.

"Which do you think is better," asked the thoughtful girl, "wealth or social position?"

"My dear," answered Miss Cayenne, "with money to give entertainments you can get into the society column, but aristocratic origin does not necessarily insure mention in the financial news."

The Record Lunatic.

"Here's a story 'bout a man what been married ten times!"

Brother Williams seemed lost in thought. Then he spoke up: "What make 'em print sich tales as dat? W'en a man once gits in de lunotic asylum dey orter stop talkin' 'bout him!"

Overdone.

Jasper—I often wonder why Jenkins is not more popular, for he is the most polite man I know. Jumpuppe—That is just the trouble. He is so confoundedly polite he leaves the impression that he wants to borrow money.

Sometimes.

"My husband is a fatalist. He always maintains that men are not free agents."

"You must remember that your husband is married."

Swallows Attack a Cat.

On the top of a disused chimney in his back premises a man in Maidstone, England, observed a huge cat endeavoring to reach a swallows' nest built under a projecting course of brickwork. The parent birds flew around the cat, endeavoring to drive it away. Not being able to do so, they disappeared, returning in a few moments with nine other swallows. These in a compact body charged the cat with such force as to almost dislodge it, and it hurriedly descended to a place of safety.

EFFECTS OF TOBACCO.

In Some Cases It Is Stimulating and In Others Narcotic.

Whether or not tobacco is a stimulant has been a vexed question ever since the time of Oviedo, the first writer to describe it fully, who says that the Indians of Hispaniola used tobacco to produce insensibility, whereas others among the old Spanish discoverers say that the natives smoked to stimulate themselves to fresh exertions.

Men whose business leads to exposure to weather or to violent physical exercise, such as sailors, soldiers, watchmen, navvies and field laborers, all take tobacco as a stimulant and have done so from the first.

These classes are mentioned as specially large consumers of the weed in Dr. Everard's "Panacea," published in 1659. Hobbes and Newton both used tobacco to stimulate. Goethe and Heine hated it. Scott smoked profusely; but, according to Mr. Trelawney, Byron "never smoked pipe or cigar."

Modern experience and observation seem to indicate that tobacco is a stimulant in moderation and a narcotic in excess, in this respect resembling all other intoxicants, using the term in its widest sense, from tea to opium.

Well Known In Peterboro'

Is Mr. W. E. Talbot Who Was Cured of Piles by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. W. E. Talbot, of Talbot Bros., tobacco merchants, 362 George street, Peterborough, states: —"It is from a desire to help other sufferers that I offer a statement of my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for Itching Piles. I was for a long time troubled with this unpleasant and torturing disease and though I tried very many treatments remained uncured until I came across Dr. Chase's Ointment. It was highly recommended to me, and I find that every word of praise is true. I can truthfully say that I am completely cured and knowing the misery that the ailment produces, I am anxious for others to know of the surprising virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

In a Parlor Car

By M. LOUISE CUMMINS

"Goodby."

"Goodby."

"Win the polo match."

"Sure."

Hallett raised himself lazily in his chair as the above conversation struck his ears and, turning slowly, looked across the aisle of the parlor car.

At the open window opposite a girl was bending forward. The knot of dark hair under her wide hat and the graceful shoulders in their silk shirt waist suit were sufficiently attractive to make him rise farther to see whom she thus urged to victory.

Scarcely had he done so than he sprang across the moving car and waved his hand frantically to the young man who stood, hat in hand, seeing the girl off.

"Why, hello, Hall!" the latter shouted surprisedly. Then he ran beside the train.

"Grace, allow me to introduce my chum, Hallett—there behind you. Hallett—Miss Kennard."

The two people thus hastily thrust into acquaintanceship looked at each other for a moment in rather a constrained silence. Then the girl laughed.

"Why, you must be 'the' Mr. Hallett," she said frankly.

"Why that distinguishing 'the?'"

"Oh, hasn't any man who was once stroke of the Harvard eight a claim to distinction?"

"But that was in the remote past, quite three years ago. I presume I am talking to 'the' Miss Kennard?"

The girl looked at him sharply.

"Jack wrote me of his engagement two weeks ago," he explained. "It is beginning to dawn upon me that my letter of congratulation was tame."

Her glance dropped. A demure smile lifted the corners of her lip. It might mean assent or denial. Hallett glanced in quick uncertainty at her left hand, but it was covered by a tan colored traveling glove. Underneath, he supposed, blazed her engagement diamond.

"I think," she said, looking up and surprising his inspection of her, "that my stay in New York is to be with a friend of yours as well as mine—Miss Gierhart."

"Oh, Dorothy; yes, indeed," he said heartily.

"We nearly fell out for life when Yale won, she was so anxious you should come off victorious."

"And you were not?"

"Well, you see, I did not know you then."

She gave him a shy glance.

"I wonder if she is a flirt." Hallett speculated and almost felt sorry for his friend in spite of the girl's unusual beauty. Presently he rose.

"I am afraid I shall have to leave you for a moment," he apologized. "My fox terrier Clip is in the baggage car, and I have to let him have a sniff at me once in awhile to keep him from tearing things to pieces generally."

"Oh, let me go too!" The girl jumped up. "I love fox terriers."

Hallett's brow drew together slightly. He had his own ideas about girls, and this rather too free young woman did not quite fit in with them. Nevertheless he helped her through the swaying train.

She went into ecstasies over Clip, stroking his velvet brown head while he frantically licked his master's hand.

"I think his collar is much too tight," she said authoritatively.

Hallett smiled.

"I took it in a notch on purpose to prevent his pulling his head through," he replied quietly.

She looked the dog over with the eye of a connoisseur, and Hallett watched her narrowly. By the time they left the baggage car he had about concluded that Miss Kennard belonged to that objectionable class of young woman who could tell the good points of a horse or dog, but was decidedly lacking in the more tender and womanly qualities.

In their zigzag way through the day coach she paused suddenly. The car was crowded almost to the point of suffocation. In one seat a fragile looking woman with a boy of four on her lap sat wedged close to the window by a stout man with a handkerchief tucked round his collar, who fanned himself vigorously with a large hat.

"That woman will faint if she remains here," Grace Kennard said decidedly. "She is almost gone now."

"What can we do?" Hallett asked, with a hopeless look around them at the crowded seats.

"I will give her my place in the parlor car."

"You?" His surprise was hardly complimentary.

"Yes, I, Mr. Hallett." Her eyes challenged his for an instant. "If you will help the mother I will take the child," she added coldly.

"Then I insist on your having my chair," he temporized.

"And I will take it—for the boy! Don't you see that he is too heavy for that delicate woman to hold? Oh, what does it matter about me?" she went on impatiently. "I am strong. Let me get them out of this while the mother is able to walk."

While the woman lay gasping her relief in a comfortable armchair and purer air Grace Kennard retired to the narrow seat at the rear of the car usually used by the conductor when sorting his tickets. Hallett went off to arrange things with that worthy, and, returning successful, stood beside her.

"Do you know, I think I owe you an apology?" he said slowly.

Her eyebrows and shoulders raised themselves imperceptibly, as though the subject was not worth pursuing.

"Perhaps you could find a seat in the smoking car," she suggested coldly.

"Does that mean that I am dismissed?"

"No."

He watched the softly flushed face. How tender, how beautiful it had looked as the older and weaker woman leaned upon Miss Kennard's young strength. Hallett looked away from her quickly. Was he forgetting his friend, he who had always prided himself upon being the soul of honor?

Again his glance traveled to her hands.

"Do you always wear gloves when traveling?" he said abruptly.

"What a question!"

"But do you?"

"Of course. Every well bred woman does."

"Would you think it very impertinent if I asked you to remove them?"

"Mr. Hallett," she said hurriedly, "will you kindly bring me my traveling bag? I want to get some violet water for that poor woman. I'm sure her head aches."

With a baffled sigh he started to obey. As he returned she slowly and deliberately withdrew her gloves.

Hallett watched the white, ringless hands like one fascinated, while she fumbled among the dainty contents of the bag.

"I thought"— he stammered. "Surely"—

"Please take this to our friend." She held out a filigree silver bottle.

He took both hand and ornament in a steady clasp.

"Not until you tell me," he said firmly.

"Mr. Hallett!" But something else struggled with the displeasure in her eyes.

"Please tell me!"

"Well, if you must know, I am not the Miss Kennard. Jack in the hurry of his introduction failed to make that clear. It is my older sister, Margaret, to whom he is engaged."

"Whew! Then I may"— Hallett wanted to fling his hat to the roof of the car.

"You do not deserve to be told," she pouted resentfully. "During the first half hour of our acquaintance your opinion of me was anything but flattering."

He bent over her, turning suddenly grave.

"Some day I hope to know you well enough to tell you my opinion," he said earnestly.

She rose hurriedly, for the train was pulling into the Grand Central.

"Goodby," she said, holding out her hand. "Dorothy will be here to meet me."

"Then I shall see you safely into her keeping, and"—he still held the ringless hand in his—"I shall begin tonight to pay my large debt of calls to Dorothy. Will you forgive my saying that life for me has only begun today?"

LOST IN THE WOODS.

In Such a Case Fear Is One's Most Dangerous Enemy.

Every woodman—yes, every Indian—gets lost at some time—that is, loses his bearings and has difficulty in getting to camp. As a matter of fact, the wild birds and beasts will sometimes get lost, although they are wonderfully equipped for finding their way home.

The worst thing a person lost in the woods can do is to get frightened. The truly dangerous enemy is not the cold or the hunger so much as the fear. It is fear that robs the wanderer of his judgment and of his limb power; it is fear that turns the passing experience into a final tragedy. Only keep cool, and all will be well.

A man of little experience usually sets out at a run when he is lost. He wishes to travel twice as fast as usual, and of course that merely wears him out and sends him farther astray. If he sits down calmly he will not only spare himself, but will help his friends to find him, and this he can do by shouting at intervals and, above all, by getting on as high and open a place as possible and there making two smoke fires, the recognized signal, "I am lost."—Ernest Thompson Seton in Country Life in America.

ECLIPSE FORECASTS.

The First One Was Made by Thales to the Egyptians.

The eclipse of May 28, 585 B. C. (total in the east of Asia Minor), is the first that can be fixed with certainty. The prediction of it by Thales to the Ionians brought him lasting fame and excited among the Hellenes the love of science. Its occurrence during a great battle ended a five years' war between the Medes and the Lydians and led to a permanent peace.

The Chinese boast of a series of eclipses recorded in their annals extending over 3,858 years. But these are of very doubtful character. The Egyptians said they had accurately observed 373 eclipses of the sun and 832 of the moon before the time of Alexander the Great, who died 323 B. C.

An eclipse observed at Nineveh, June 15, 763 B. C., is recorded on an Assyrian tablet now in the British museum. A lunar eclipse, occurring at 8:40 p. m., March 19, 721 B. C., was observed, according to Ptolemy, with much accuracy at Babylon. Each central eclipse visible in our time is one of an unbroken series, extending from the earliest historic times to the present and recurring at regular intervals.

Transient Islands in the Pacific.

The Western Pacific is a great place for islands that emerge from waves unexpectedly and as suddenly disappear. Sometimes they come up and stay, but more often they have an existence merely temporary. The wondering skipper misses a familiar landmark by which he had been accustomed to get his bearings, and perhaps the next day he runs his vessel's nose upon a brand new piece of territory that has sprung up out of the water since he last came that way. The region south of Japan is so given to this sort of eccentricity that ships avoid it. Volcanic action is responsible for such phenomena. Reports of them will be noted on the pilot chart in every case, though they are not always reliable, because backs of sleeping whales and schools of fishes running along the surface are frequently mistaken for islands and shoals.

Whistler and His Tailor.

"Curious enough," wrote Mortimer Menpes, "whenever one came in contact with Whistler one entirely forgot one's own affairs and became completely occupied with his. The fit of the master's coat was far more important to me than my own artistic work. At the tailor's Whistler would give an elaborate description of how a certain coat was to be made, and the tailor would carry out his directions literally. But no sooner had the man accomplished the work than Whistler would say: 'This is all wrong. How dare you say that it is what I told you to do? I am a painter. It is not my business to make coats. That is your province. Therefore you should have led me to do what you knew to be right.'"

PROGRESS OF BIG WORK

WHAT IS BEING DONE ON THE CAPE TO CAIRO RAILWAY.

One Be Completed for Twelve Million Pounds Sterling—Will Open Up a Great and Fertile Country—A Network of Railways in the Future—Progress in Stamping Out the Cattle Disease—Line of Working.

Sir Charles Metcalfe, who recently arrived in London, was interviewed by a representative of South Africa, with regard to the subjects of the Cape to Cairo Railway and the industrial prospects of Rhodesia.

"Well," Sir Charles said, in reply to a question as to what progress had been made with the Cape to Cairo line during the past few months, "to go back a little way the line has been open right up to the Victoria Falls since June 30, and the hotel we have built there for the accommodation of visitors is a very comfortable one. It possesses every modern convenience, and from it there is obtained a beautiful view of the Zambesi Gorge. The cable-way across the gorge is working satisfactorily. The foundations of the bridge were being put in when I left and the steel work is now being erected. The line on the other side is being constructed, and we hope to have the bridge itself completed by the end of the year. By that time, too, the rails should be near Kalomo, which is about 100 miles north of Victoria Falls, and is the present seat of the Government of Northwest Rhodesia."

"The line has been surveyed for some distance beyond Kalomo, has it not, Sir Charles?"

"Yes. The surveyors are making for the Broken Hill country, 360 miles beyond the falls. The line will cross the Kafue River at a point where there is no flooding."

"Then the continuation of the line still further north, beyond Broken Hill, will enable you to tap the Katanga copper country, will it not?"

"It will do so presently. Broken Hill is still some distance from the rich deposits of copper in the Katanga country."

"Gordon Forbes, the leader of the Rhodesian delegates, informed me the other day that the people of Bulawayo and Salisbury objected to the profits earned by the Southern Rhodesia Railways being used for the extension of the line beyond the falls, because they contend that such profits should be applied to the reduction of rates, which they say are now very excessive."

"I am afraid those people who object to the extension do not look far enough ahead. They objected to the line going beyond Bulawayo; but, since the section from Bulawayo to the falls was completed in June last, at least 1,000 visitors have passed through Bulawayo, and that means that a great deal of money has been spent in that town. We don't make the railways to do nothing with them. We hope that each section will pay its own expenses. Each section of the railway is built on common-sense lines, and with a distinct objective."

"In linking up the Rhodesian railways with the line from Khartoum, Sir Charles, do you anticipate any serious engineering difficulties?"

"As far as I know, there is nothing to stop us from an engineering point of view. We are very lucky in respect to bridges, for the only big bridge we shall have to build for many hundred miles after crossing the Zambesi will be the one over the Kafue River. After we get to Broken Hill a great deal will depend upon the direction which the line takes, but there are no insurmountable difficulties before us."

"Then the other portion of the route has not yet been settled?"

"Not yet, because we don't make lines without a distinct purpose. We only build them through the districts which we see offer the best chance of giving us a remunerative traffic. If the Egyptian Government carry out the scheme of making a dam at Rosaire, they would probably extend the line from Khartoum to Rosaire, and this no doubt will eventually be joined up with the Uganda Railway, and a line six hundred miles in length would connect up the Uganda line and the Rhodesia line, ending at Lake Tanganyika, and when that is done the Cape to Cairo line will be practically complete."

"It will take a great deal of time and much money to complete the line from the Cape to Cairo, I suppose?"

"I think the line could be completed for twelve millions more—a moderate sum as compared with what has been spent on other transcontinental railways. Unthinking people sometimes ask, 'But will it pay?' Look at the map. There is a line through a fertile country which is from four to five thousand feet above sea level in a continent nearly two thousand miles wide. A hundred years hence there will be a network of railways. We in Rhodesia have followed the old advice, Festina lente, and have only constructed such lines as had a good objective and were necessary for the country. Rhodesia cannot make the full progress of which it is capable without a complete railway system."

"The prospects of the colony appear to be improving, Sir Charles?"

"Yes, they are."

"What has been the effect of the recent depression?"

"The depression has been a very good thing for Rhodesia, because it has made everybody study economy, and has compelled a great number of people to go upon the land. When a new country is laid out on the lines of Rhodesia, everybody wants and expects to make £2,000 a year from the beginning; now no new country can be made upon that basis. The small holders of 160-acre lots make the present wealth of America; and with the railway facilities we now have in Rhodesia, that colony is getting ripe for the advent of the small holder also. We want men out there who will settle

RUGBY.

Peterborough is seething with Rugby excitement. There's a good sporting town.—Toronto Star.

* * * *

The Executive Committee of the Peterborough Rugby Club will meet at the Oriental Hotel to-morrow night.

* * * *

The rugby boys had a splendid workout on Saturday afternoon. There was a large number of wood players out and a couple of hours hard work was put in The management was pleased to see Ernie Green in uniform. He should develop into a strong wing player. Among others out were Pope, Crowley, B. Cameron, Rickey, J. O'Brien, Mulhern, Deanard, O'Brien, V. Hamilton, E Dillon, F. Burnham, Robinson, Shaw, Ford, Morgan, Gillespie, R. Craig, Gilbert, Scriver, E. Green, Caniff, P. Fitzgerald.

* * * *

At a meeting of the Ontario Rugby Union Friday night the schedule for the senior series was drawn up, and C. L. A. players were declared ineligible to compete in the union's games. The first game will be played on October 1. The officers present were:—W. N. Ferguson, President; Vice-President, S. S. Dudfoulin, Hamilton; D. McKeand, Hamilton; W. Hobbs, London; H. Hoyles, Argonauts; Dr. W. G. Woods, Toronto; A. W. McPherson, Peterborough; J. P. Carter, Victorias; J. Haynes, Toronto.

London, Peterborough, Toronto, Victorias and the Argonauts were admitted to the senior series. The old clubs in were Hamilton and Toronto.

The Victoria Rugby Club asked as to the status of H. Pitcher, J. Yeamans and F. Rowntree of the Tecumseh Lacrosse Club.

The Vics wanted to know if these players were eligible to play in the O. R. F. U. A communication from E. Herbert Brown of Montreal, Secretary of the A.A.U., was read, to the effect that C.L.A. senior players were declared professionals on August 8, and not reinstated. It was therefore decided to debar them from playing in the O.R.F. U.

The senior series was divided into two districts and the following schedules drawn up:—

District No. 1 (Toronto, Argonauts and Peterborough):—

Oct. 1—Toronto at Argonauts.
Oct. 8—Argonauts at Peterborough.
Oct. 15—Peterborough at Toronto.
Oct. 22—Argonauts at Toronto.
Oct. 29—Toronto at Peterborough.
Nov. 5—Peterborough at Argonauts.

District No. 2 (Hamilton, London and Victorias):—

Oct. 1—Hamilton at London.
Oct. 8—London at Victorias.
Oct. 15—Victorias at Hamilton.
Oct. 22—London at Hamilton.
Oct. 29—Victorias at London.
Nov. 5—Hamilton at Victorias.

The finals to be arranged by the Executive.

The following recommendations were made, to be presented a tthe annual meeting:—(1) That the Executive consider it advisable that an age limit be adopted, in order to strengthen up the intermediate series and to encourage junior players. (2) That the Executive be empowered to place any club in any series it is considered most advisable.

BASEBALL.

The Torontos lost again on Saturday.

* * * *

Galt, with Flaherty pitching, won the Canadian League championship in the final with Waterloo Saturday by 12-0.

* * * *

Peterborough had their batting eyes in their shoes on Saturday. When the locals played in Cobourg on Wednesday they got fifteen safe swats off Downes! But on Saturday they couldn't hit a balloon and five safe ones was their achievement.

* * * *

Cobourg's victory here on Saturday makes things interesting in the Midland League. Provided Bowmanville's protest against Burge of Cobourg falls through, the standing of the latter team is seven victories and three defeats. Lindsay has won seven and lost two and has one game to play here, which if they lose will place Cobourg and Lindsay tied for first place.

* * * *

Next Thursday's attraction in the baseball line will be the game between the T.A.S. and Bobcaygeon, which will decide the championship of the Kawartha League. A victory for the Total Abstainers will give them the pennant, while if the boys from the northern town come out on top the teams will be tied for first place. The T. A. S. are confident that they can turn the tables from last Friday's game and a fine contest is assured.

* * * *

The Port Hope Guide and the Lindsay Post have some differences as to the present standing of the teams in the Midland League. The Guide says:—

The Lindsay Post man has become somewhat mixed as to the situation in the Midland League and gives out the following:—Bowmanville has three protests—one each with Cobourg, Peterborough and Port Hope. Should they be given these games they can only tie with Lindsay. Looks as though they wish to win the pennant on others' misdoings, and not on the diamond."

Now Bowmanville has only one protest entered and that is against Cobourg. They protested Peterborough some time ago on the same grounds as Lindsay did and both teams, Lindsay and Bowmanville, were ordered to play the disputed game over in Peterborough. Neither team has yet done so and as it is now so late in the season it is not likely that the executive will force the matter, and Bowmanville and Lindsay may count that game as a win. As for Port Hope, they were ordered to play a tie game off with Bowmanville in Bowmanville, but finances are low and consequently this game goes to Bowmanville as another win. And then the Post has the standing of the teams wrong. It has Lindsay with 8 wins and 2 losses, and Bowmanville with 6 wins and 4 losses. Of course giving the disputed Peterborough game as a win to each team the standing of Lindsay as above is correct, but it then places Bowmanville with 7 wins and 3 losses. Further the Post says,—"Bowmanville's protest against Cobourg, cannot be considered a strong one, as he has always lived and played in Cobourg, but is working in Belleville for the summer. He played in both games against Lindsay." There he only about one rule in the Midland League and this is that all players must be residents at least 30 days before a game. According to the Post's own statement, Cobourg has violated this rule and why should they not be penalized. Bowmanville sent a man to Belleville last week and have secured the strongest kind of evidence against Cobourg so it is quite likely they will win ther protests. This will then place Lindsay and Bowmanville on a tie with 8 wins and 3 losses each. A sudden death game will be played here shortly to decide the championship, so both teams can now make preparations for the fray.

It is pretty hard to say where the Guide got the information that the games between Peterborough and Bowmanville and Lindsay were not to be played. The intention of the local team is that the ruling of the Executive shall be followed out, and the games played.

THE TRIGGER.

Mr. F. H. Morris, Manager of the Bowmanville baseball team, took part in the rifle matches at Toronto and Ottawa, during the past two weeks, and is to be congratulated on the fine showing he made. This is Frank's first year at the butts and his scoring was remarkable. He made a score of 94 out of a possible 95, at a thousand yards, which was not beaten by anybody. In the first stage of the Governor-General's match he scored 93 out of a possible 105. His other scores were also high.

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

The following games were played on Friday night:—

R. Matchett	S. Sharpe
S. Robinson	J. Little
D. Patterson	J. McClung
G. K. Martin, 19.	D. H. Moore, 5
D. Bellegbem	A. E. Kidd
A. Moore	W. Smith
W. Talbot	G. E. Whiten
G. Giroux, 14	G. Lech, 10.

HOCKEY.

Eddie Geroux, the star goal-keeper of the Marlboro Hockey club, last season's senior champions of the O.H.A., has taken up his residence in Rat Portage, where he will play hockey this coming winter. He is living with his old chum Tom Phillips, the star forward of last season's hockey. Rat Portage expects to have a strong team next season. Several Ottawa players are expected.

BURNS WON.

Defeated Payne in the Five Mile Race Saturday Afternoon.

Burns added another victory to his string on Saturday by beating Payne in a five mile race. The start was made at the corner of George and Hunter streets and the pace set at the outset was a stiff one. On passing Hunter street on the return run Payne was leading by about half a block and looked like a winner but Burns closed up the gap and took the lead upon entering the Exhibition Grounds. At the quarter mile pole, Burns increased his speed, but Payne was "all in" and was unable to answer to Burns' spurt and the latter crossed the line about 50 yards ahead. Burns finished with a great outburst of speed.

These are all Y.M.C.A. men and they owe their training to a great extend to the Association.

Harrison is a new man here. He shows ability for long distance running.

McGrath's ability is already well known.

RALLY DAY FOR MEN.

Rev. Dr. Stewart Spoke to Many Men at Y. M. C. A. Yesterday Afternoon.

Yesterday was the sixth annual Bible study rally day for the Y.M. C.A. The Association Hall was crowded with men and a male choir occupied the platform and led in a bright service of song which preceded the address for the day. Mr. Homer Herd of Toronto, who leads the choir, sang "Saved by Grace," very impressive effect.

Rev. Mr. Stewart, D.D., president of the Bible Training School, gave a very helpful and practical address on "The Importance of Bible Study, and How to Study."

He said the state of mind and heart of the student had much to do with what he got out of Bible study. Spiritual discernment was necessary for the natural man was not ready to receive the things of God. He must be a B. A. of King's College, meaning that he had experienced the new birth. He must study with earnest attention also, and childlike humility, ready to take the word of God for just what it says. Earnest prayer in the power of the Holy Spirit was another feature named. The Author of the book held the key to its revelation. How was the Bible to be studied?

1st. By its books. Discover the author of each, the great theme of it. Here he illustrated by a short book study of Genesis and Matthew.

2nd. By its truths.

3rd. By its biographer. The lives of the good and bad characters, each had their lessons.

4th. By its chapters.

5th. By phrases and words.

6th. By dates and dispensations. It was necessary to understand the plan of the ages.

In conclusion the doctor said that we would miss all if the study of the Bible did not bring two results:

1. Blessing to the individual.
2. Make him a blessing to others.

Mr. P. K. Holmes, Physical Director, made an announcement of the Bible Study programme in the Y. M.C.A. for the season.

Is Your Piano in Tune?

The change of season affects pianos as well as everything else. Mr. Geo. Gumpricht, practical piano maker and tuner, with twenty-eight years' experience, attends to all orders left at Mr. H. S. Macdonald's drug store.

VISITING DIVINE IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Stewart Preached Sermon on "The Peerless Saviour."

Yesterday morning in St. Paul's church Rev. Dr. Stewart, Principal of the Bible Training School, Toronto, and considered by many as being the best Bible expositor on the continent, preached an inspiring sermon. The reverend gentleman took for his subject, "The Peerless Saviour," his text being taken from Philippians, 2; 9. "God hath given Him a name which is above every name." The sermon was a comprehension address to that given by Dr. Stewart in the afternoon in the Y.M. C.A., when he spoke on "The Peerless Book."

The large congregation which filled the church yesterday morning was highly delighted with the excellent exposition of Bible truth given by the reversend doctor.

The music by the choir was of an especially pleasing character. Solos were given by Mr. J. Laurence, and solo parts in the anthem taken by Miss L. Moore, Miss Helen Davies and Mr. Jas. Dawson.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION ELECTED OFFICERS.

Rev. J. C. Davidson President for the Ensuing Year—This Morning's Meeting.

The Ministerial Association held its first meeting after the summer vacation in the Y.M.C.A. parlour this morning. There were present Rev. Messrs. J. C. Davidson, E. F. Torrance, D.D., J. G. Lewis, A. H. Brace, J. A. Wilson, W. Major, W. Bennett, E. A. Langfeldt.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The election of officers for the year resulted as follows:—

President—Rev. J. C. Davidson.
Secretary—Rev. J. G. Lewis.
Programme Committee—Rev. A. H. Brace, Rev. J. G. Lewis.
Visitation of Homes—Rev. Wm. Bennett.
Visitation of Hospitals — For this week—Rev. Dr. Torrance.
For next week—Rev. J. C. Davidson.

The secretary was instructed to interview the public school inspector re the visitation of schools.

A paper on "Work of the Association" was given by Rev. J. C. Davidson. He dealt on co-operation and consultation, the moral questions to be dealt with by the Association, the advantages of the meetings, the outcome of which would be a better understanding between the members, so that they could present a stronger front before the world.

The meeting adjourned.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets and to-day weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. For sale by all druggists.

Holmes' Inspiration.

There is hardly room for doubt that Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes was encouraged to write his "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" by reading "Table Talk"—being "The Discourses of John Selden, Esq., or His Sence of Various Matters of Weight and High Consequence Relating Especially to Religion and State." The work belongs to 1634-54 and treats of such topics as articles, baptism, Bible, bishops, books, ceremony, Christmas, clergy, confession, conscience, creed, duel, epitaph, faith and works, gentlemen, holy days, idolatry, Jews, juggling, king, law, lectures, liturgy, marriage, money, oaths, oracles, poetry, popery, presbytery, proverbs, religion, sacraments, trade, truth, university, wit and women. For the thousandth time, "Nothing new under the sun!"

KING PETER'S CORONATION

Ceremony Shadowed by the Memory of the Regicides.

RUSSIA CAUSES SENSATION

Czar Will Be the Only European Monarch Unrepresented at the Ceremonies—Some Other Powers Slight the Belgrade King By Merely Formal Representation—Peter I Receives Threatening Letters.

Belgrade, Sept. 20.—The city, which is lavishly decorated, is filled with visitors, but there is no great enthusiasm over the approaching coronation of King Peter, which will occur to-morrow. The weather is cold and rainy and threatens to spoil the festivities, while the meagre harvest tends to give the people the inclination to complain of the waste of money spent in the coronation, although the amount is not large.

Only the Governments of Germany, Austria, Italy and Roumania have sent special messages of congratulations. The other powers will be represented at the coronation in a merely formal manner, and some of them, like Great Britain and Holland, who withdrew their Ministers after the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga, are taking practically no part in the affair. In fact, the memory of the regicides still casts a shadow over the court. It is rumored that King Peter receives threatening letters, and is in constant communication with the secret police.

Caused a Sensation.

Belgrade, Servia, Sept. 20.—All the powers have instructed their Ministers here to attend the coronation of King Peter on Wednesday next, except Russia, whose action has caused a sensation.

RUSSIANS MEET ANOTHER REPULSE

Attempt to Retake a Fort Near Port Arthur Fails.

FIGHTING LASTED FOR HOURS

Unconfirmed Report That Gen. Mistchenko, Commander Cossack Brigade, Has Been Killed—Many Casualities After Heavy Fighting in Russian Reconnaissances on Japanese Front—Quiet at Mukden.

London, Sept. 20.—A despatch from Tokio to a news agency says: "A strong Russian force made a sortie from Port Arthur the afternoon of Sept. 18 and attacked the Itcshan fort, which was recently captured by the Japanese. Fighting lasted some hours, and the Russian were eventually repulsed with heavy loss.

Quiet at Mukden.

Mukden, Sept. 20.—All is quiet here yesterday, but fighting is anticipated in the neighborhood of Sinmintin, thirty-five miles west of Mukden.

Gen. Mistchenko Killed?

London, Sept. 20.—The Morning Post's Shanghai correspondent telegraphs that there is an unconfirmed rumor there that Gen. Mistchenko, commander of the Russian eastern Cossack brigade, has been killed.

Other special despatches from Shanghai report that the Japanese on Saturday last repulsed an attack to the eastward of Yumantzushan, northeast of Yentai, inflicting a heavy loss on the Russians.

According to The Daily Telegraph's Tientsin correspondent Gen. Kuropatkin is in need of supplies, but his orders cannot be filled.

The Daily Telegraph's Che Foo correspondent telegraphs a report which he claims emanated from officers at Port Arthur, that the naval guns on Liaoti Hill fort are worn out from incessant firing, and that consequently the land for about two and one-half miles to the westward has been mined. The correspondent adds that the wearing out of guns is causing great anxiety.

Heavy Fighting.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 20.—Late yesterday a despatch was received from Gen. Kuropatkin announcing that Generals Rennenkampff and Samsonoff are conducting important reconnaissances, which have resulted in rather heavy fighting with many casualties. A despatch to a news agency from St. Petersburg yesterday says the reconnaissance were towards the Japanese front and right flank, resulting in the Japanese being driven back. The Russian losses, according to this version, are said to be slight, and it is not clear whether the "many" casualties referred to by Gen. Kuropatkin were inflicted or received.

Active in the North.

London, Sept. 20.—A despatch to a news agency from Harbin yesterday says the Japanese are displaying considerable activity in North Corea. A skirmish is reported between Japanese troops and a regiment of Cossacks at Fukchang, about 27 miles northeast of Hanuang.

Japanese Advance.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—The Tageblatt's Mukden correspondent, under date of Sept. 19, telegraphs as follows: "The Japanese are advancing slowly with a broad front, the left resting on the Liao River and the right on the mountains, probably the Fushan coal mines, twenty-seven miles eastward. The Russian troops have recovered their spirits."

British Ship Stopped.

Madrid, Sept. 20.—The Correspondents of this city publishes a despatch from Bilbao yesterday to the effect that a Russian cruiser had been seen off Cape Maria, and that she fired two shots at and took possession of a merchant vessel, supposed to be a British steamer. There is no confirmation of the report.

GENERAL ATTACK UPON MUKDEN.

Japanese Said to be Engaging Kuropatkin in Desperate Fight.

Another Assault Being Made on Port Arthur—The Japanese Strongly Fortified Near Mukden.

(Special Despatch to the Examiner.)

Rome, September 20th. — A despatch to the Agenzia Libera says that a great battle between the Japanese and the Russians has commenced at Mukden. General Kuroki, after a wide turning movement, crossed the Luni River, and attacked the Russian right flank with one hundred thousand men. The total Japanese force is three times greater than that of the Russians, and the conditions in the vicinity of Mukden are almost identical with those at Liao Yang, except that the Russian positions are inferior.

Chefoo, Sept. 20. — The Chefoo correspondent of the Reuter Telegraph Company, reports that a general attack on Port Arthur began at daybreak yesterday and continued until night fall. It is believed the object of the Japanese was to capture the main forts to the northwest.

Copenhagen, Sept. 20. — The sailing ship Magnet, which to-day passed Myborg, coming in, reports she sighted in the Gulf of Finland, forty Russian warships standing west.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 20. — The following despatch has been received from General Kuropatkin: "The reconnaisance made Sept. 17th, establishes the fact that the Japanese position at Banipalze is strongly held by a brigade with guns. There was no enemy east of Banipalze, but Japanese reinforcements arrived on September 18th in the vicinity of that village. Large Japanese forces from Liao Yang have already crossed to the right bank of the Laits River."

Shanghai, September 20. — The general attack on Port Arthur, which began yesterday, and in which the Japanese fleet is cooperating, was resumed this morning. The Japanese captured two important forts, one on either side of Suaisse Ying, north of Port Arthur.

PROSPECTS AT THE SAULT ARE GOOD.

Steel Mill Uses Ore From Minnesota Ranges.

In the Market for All Contracts—Has a Capacity of 500 Tons Every Day.

In connection with the prospects of the steel plant at the Canadian Soo the following interview with General Manager Cornelius Shields was obtained by an interviewer for the Philadelphia News Bureau:

General Manager Shields, of the Lake Superior Consolidated Company, says regarding the steel rail mill:—

"The Company placed its steel rail mill, with a capacity of 500 tons of rails daily, in operation on August 23, and after 600 heats the quality of rail secured was so entirely satisfactory that on Sept. 6th, we put on a night and day shift, and from now on the mill will be run continuously.

"We are at present at work on a 10,000-ton contract for the Intercolonial railway for delivery at Montreal, and are forwarding the rails as rapidly as possible by steamer and rail routes.

"When this contract is completed we will start work on other orders for the same railway, as also for the Temiskaming, and we will go right ahead running the mill and will not have any difficulty disposing of the entire output.

"All the ores that we are using at present are from the Minnesota ranges on the American side, and our present contracts guarantee us receiving all that we need to last us till June, next. This will prevent any possibility of any delay, as the steamers will again be running into the Soo with ore by the beginning of May.

"As over 70 per cent. of the ores used at the different rail plants in the United States pass through the locks at the Soo all that is necessary for us to do is to stop enough of it to enable us to turn out 500 tons at our plant daily. There cannot be the slightest question as to the proper equipment of the mill.

"Although when the mill was operated before the collapse came some of the rails were not up to the standard desired by the railways, it was not the fault of the mill, but of what was put through it.

"With a capacity of 500 tons daily we will be able to cater to the entire demand of the Canadian railways at the present time, and will certainly make a bid for all contracts.

"The rail that we are turning out is itself the best argument we can use to show that the manufacture can be effected economically and successfully at the Soo."

ANOTHER TRIUMPH FOR THE EXAMINER

Review Defeated at Lawn Bowling by 15—10 Yesterday Afternoon.

Another triumph for the Examiner. The latest victory for this office over our contemporary, the Review, has come to pass, and this time it is not at baseball or even hockey, but lawn bowling. A game was recently arranged between a rink from each office, but Skip Moore refused to play unless the announcement of the game was suppressed in both papers, as he is nervous when playing before a crowd. But a few of the lawn bowlers got wind of the contest and were there to get some pointers on how to play the game. The play was very exciting throughout. The Examiner took an early lead, but at the 10th end the Review were within one point of tying the score, but a garrison finish gave the match to the Examiner by a score of 15—10. Skip Moore was very downcast over the result as he was very optimistic that for once victory would perch upon the shoulders of the Review sports but it would not be. He says marbles is his last resort.

Miss Agnes Miller, of Chicago, speaks to young women about dangers of the Menstrual Period.

"To Yoopg Women:—I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages [illegible] by neglected colds.

"If young girls only realised how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine which helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment, and was cured a month later. I am like another person since. I am in perfect health, my eyes are brighter, I have added 18 pounds to my weight, my color is good, and I feel light and happy."—Miss AGNES MILLER, 25 Potomac Ave., Chicago, Ill. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The monthly sickness reflects the condition of a woman's health. Anything unusual at that time should have prompt and proper attention.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE STORY

A great deal of indignation, pretended very largely, no doubt, has been expressed by Conservative writers, in dealing with the petty cash of the Auditor-General's report, in inveighing against Liberal extravagance in the details of administration, as well of course, as in finding fault with the increased general expenditures of the country. But they conceal from their readers the other side of the shield. Here are some of the results that have been accomplished by the Liberal Government, or under its auspices, since 1896:

(1) The value of the exports of the home produce of Canada has risen from $110,000,000 in 1896 to $214,000,000, in 1903; in other words has very nearly doubled.

(2) Imports have increased from $118,000,000 to over $240,000,000 while at the same time the average rate of duty has been reduced from 14.55 to 13.25. The orthodox Tory imagines that an import is so much lost to the country; but merchants and manufacturers obviously do not buy goods abroad unless it is to their interest to do so.

(2) The exodus of population from Canada, once constituted a tremendous drain. The United States census of 1900 showed that there were then 1,200,000 native-born Canadians and Newfoundlanders south of the line, more by 200,000 than the number of native-born Englishmen living there. Since 1896 this stampede of the best elements of our population has practically ceased. Young men and young women go to friends and relatives in the United States but there is no general hegira as before.

(4) Meanwhile a torrent of American settlers has been pouring into the Canadian North-west, while the immigration from Britain and Continental Europe has enormously increased. Since 1896 175,000 Americans have come to Canada and over half a million people of every nationality including these. It is impossible to express in figures the gain to the country from the rush of population into it, and the stoppage of the former rush out of it.

(5) The Yukon has been discovered and made self-sustaining, important improvements have been made in the St. Lawrence route. Southern British Columbia has been developed by railway construction, and now the Government has launched the Grand Trunk Pacific, which will not only benefit the Western settler but give an impetus to the older provinces by bringing them in closer contact with his markets and opening the huge back country of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, at present outside the pale of civilization.

(6) The old animosities that threatened the peace of the country down to 1896, have been removed by wise and conciliatory measures. English and French, Protestant and Catholic are now united in the common bond of Canadian citizenship, united so firmly that certain incendiary journals on the Conservative side, which are doing their best to revive the strife, will find the task too much for them. All the signs now point to a great future for the Dominion. Like all other countries we may experience periods of business depression and other trials but in the last eight years the Liberal party has laid the foundations of a mighty and prosperous nation, and if we are true to ourselves we have nothing to fear.

One might go on reciting the accomplishments and successes of the Liberal Government but these points will commend themselves to all Canadians irrespective of party creed. Why should anyone desire a change? What more could Mr. Borden do? Is this the time for giving men of the calibre of Mr. Geo. Taylor and Col. Sam Hughes a chance to display their statesmanship; or had we not better trust the present leaders under whom with the blessing of heaven so much has been wrought for our common country?

WATCHING THE FARMERS INTEREST

The Conservatives are After the Farmer,s Vote.

Two large columns of a Conservative campaign sheet are devoted to showing that Liberals have neglected to protect the farmer. They should have increased the duties on foreign wheat, flour, cornmeal, meats and so on in order to raise the price of those articles here at home, but have not done so because they are bent on "sacrificing him to their free-trade theories."

Drawing a bow at a venture, we suspect that the campaign sheet in question, which has been suppressed, was suppressed because Mr. Borden did not relish the job of having to convince the fishermen of Nova Scotia that their interests would be served by making those commodities dearer.

That higher duties would not and could not increase the price can be proved by the simple process of asking:—If what you say be true, but we are importing too much cheap American produce, pray explain why American produce should be cheap considering that it is protected up to the hilt; and show us how your nostrum, which on our own admission is of no benefit to the farmer over there, could benefit the farmer here. That done, kindly tell us why, when they were in office, the Tory chiefs did not put up the Canadian duties to the McKinley level? Did they too neglect the farmer, or were they convinced in their hearts of the truth of the doctrine, plain even to the way-faring man, that high duties are of no avail in an exporting country, the price of whose staples is fixed abroad?

In Canada there is what is sometimes called a geographical market for certain American farm products, just as along the frontier of the United States there is a geographical market for Canadian products; that is to say, at these points it is more advantageous to import from the neighbouring country than to buy at the place of growth in your own. The Americans in New England, for instance, buy immense quantities of Canadian hay, while the Maritime Provinces buy certain lines of goods from New England and in parts of British Columbia they import hay, eggs, etc., from the States immediately south. The Tories themselves know better than to cut off this trade by prohibitory duties. If any one were to propose to-day to levy a duty of $5 on American cornmeal Mr. Borden would be the first to object in behalf of Nova Scotia.

But, speaking generally, nothing can be more absurd than to argue that we could raise the price of wheat or cheese or butter or of any other article exported from Canada in large quantities by putting a heavier duty on the driblets that enter from the United States to meet the geographical demand. A duty of $50 per ton would not enable the farmer in Quebec or Ontario to sell his hay at Nelson or Rossland with as good results as he could derive from shipping it to Boston, and $1.00 a bushel on American wheat would not, except perhaps at a few remote places, add a cent to the price in Canada, which, as everyone knows, is practically determined in England. All the duties the Tories could impose on agricultural produce would not benefit the farmers, but the higher duties they desire to put on factory goods—goods we have to import—would undoubtedly add to the price, and that is really what the brethren are after and all they care to accomplish.

NO DIFFERENCE.

No distinction is made as to the kind of Piles that Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid cures.

The names Internal, External, Bleeding, Blind, Itching, Suppurating, etc., are simply names of the different stages through which every case will pass if it continues long enough.

Piles are caused by congestion or stagnation of blood in the lower bowel, and it takes an internal to remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is a tablet taken internally.

It is a permanent cure and no case of Piles has ever been found it failed to cure. Money back if it does.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and diarrhoea remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of man-

In Our Grandfather's Youth.

Paralysis was almost unheard of in the youth of our grandparents, and now nearly every newspaper contains a record of someone being stricken with this dreadful form of helplessness. Paralysis is in reality a starving of the nerves, and can always be prevented by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, a preparation which has no rival as a creator of nerve force.

BEAT A WIFE BEATER.

Summary Punishment Meted Out to Him Out West.

Manda, Man., Sept. 20.—About 7 o'clock last evening J. R. Spears of Third street was heard by neighbors beating his wife. A number of men gathered together, went to Spears' house and took him out. He was beaten with sticks, and a bluff at preparations made for lynching him. When the rope was round his neck Spears promised not to further illuse his wife. He was taken home and the crowd left word with his wife that he would be more roughly handled should he break out again.

Spears had just returned from Brandon, where he had been sent on suspicion of having tried to set fire to a house. He was, however, acquitted on account of lack of evidence.

About 8.45 Spears again started to beat his wife, and tried to escape from the crowd which gathered at a signal from a picket. His retreat was covered by old John Greene with a shot-gun. Spears was found in the garden a short way off, and taken down east on the prairie. Preparations were made for tar and feathers, when it was decided to give him twenty lashes with a rope instead. This was done. He was made to promise to leave town by six to-night. Greene was to have been treated in the same way, but being an old man was let off with the same promise as Spears.

Only Did His Duty as He Saw it

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy," says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and post master at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything. Very often to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure the flux (dysentery.) You are at liberty to use this testimonial as you please." For sale by All druggists.

WOMAN'S GREATEST ENEMY.

Constipation the Cause of Most Women's Troubles—An Easy Way to Permanently Cure This Painful Condition.

There are few women indeed who do not suffer with chronic constipation. Nearly all are slaves to some kind of medicine to correct this trouble, and yet they get nothing but temporary relief. One period of constipation is followed by another, and it's physic, physic, physic, year in and year out, till life becomes a burden.

There is now a sure cure for this condition and a cure that does not have to be repeated. It is Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill.

Dr. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., is the author of this prescription. He used it for years with wonderful success in his own large practice as a remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness and constipation.

Many ladies who have suffered for years are now enjoying good health and a perfect freedom from the old constipation through the use of Anti-Pill.

Mrs. Tabb, 237 Emerald St. North, Hamilton, Ont., says:—

"I am no longer troubled with constipation. I cannot praise Anti-Pill too highly."

THE G. T. P. SURVEYS

Government May Not Accept the Grand Trunk Work.

THE SURVEYS TOO FAR SOUTH

Construction Commission Have Applied to the Grand Trunk For the Surveys—In the Event of a Dispute the Act Provides For Arbitration—Canadian Civil Engineers in Demand.

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—It is reported that the surveys made by the Grand Trunk Pacific between Winnipeg and Lake Abitibi will not be suitable for the purpose of the Government line, as the country explored is too far south. This report cannot be verified until the surveys have been received and examined by the Government Engineer. The Construction Commission have applied to the Grand Trunk for them, and as soon as Mr. Hays returns to Montreal they will doubtless be forwarded. In the event of a dispute between the Government and the Grand Trunk Pacific with respect to the location of the line the act provides for a reference to arbitration.

Civil Engineers in Demand.

The Government Railway Construction Commission will have some difficulty in getting all the Canadian engineers they need. There is a good demand for "the native-born" members of the profession just now, and before all the projected survey parties have been sent out there is reason to fear the available supply of competent engineers will be exhausted.

MR. BORDEN AT SARNIA.

A Cordial Welcome But No Enthusiasm Manifest in the Meeting.

Sarnia, Sept. 20.—Unless they closed their eyes to the pall of smoke from 30 acres of oil refineries, their ears to the hum of the immense sawmills, employing over 400 men, and to a young city of 10,000, growing on every hand, Mr. Borden's party must have seen the beneficent fruits of "adequate protection," as interpreted and enforced by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Few of the smaller cities of Canada could show so plainly the fruits of a tariff adapted to the needs of Canada as is seen here in the extension of the oil industry from 125 to 425 hands in a few months since the readjustment of the duty, and the results of the Ontario Government's timber policy, which has made of this a large lumber manufacturing centre. At the same time the twin city of Port Huron, on the American side, is on the decline.

Largest Crowd of Tour.

The Opposition leader, who was heard here by the largest crowd so far in his Ontario tour, made a visit to the town's large industries, and in his speech last evening made no allusion to the oil question, nor did any of his colleagues. The welcome given Mr. Borden was cordial, but there was little demonstration during or at the conclusion of his speech. In addition to a lengthy discussion of the transportation and tariff questions Mr. Borden made a further allusion to the necessity for purity in public life. The Sarnia meeting was held in the interests of Mr. James Clancy, who is the Conservative candidate in West Lambton, his old seat, Bothwell, having been wiped out in the redistribution.

THREW AN AXE AT NEIGHBOR'S HEAD.

Two Norwood Women Became Involved in a Quarrel.

Pails of Water, Hoes, Hatchets, Stones fill the air—Interesting Case Before Judge Edmison Yesterday.

Women are generally considered great at giving each other tongue threshings. They sometimes pass remarks concerning one another which are not regarded as the highest of compliments, but when it comes to hurling hatchets, hoes, pails of water and other things at one another's heads, the law steps in and says "Quit!"

A rather interesting and somewhat amusing case came before Judge Edmison at Norwood yesterday, when Harriet McMillan, a woman of over 70 years of age, was charged with assaulting Nancy A. Clarke, a middle-aged woman. The two principals in the affair live in houses separated by two gardens. Mrs. McMillan's garden is one of considerable size and yields a sufficient supply to provide the owner with many of the necessaries of life, while Mrs. Clarke's garden is confined to the growing of cabbages. The line which separates the two gardens is not as distinctly marked as it might be, and hence all the trouble.

Last Saturday evening Mrs. McMillan, as was her custom, was hoeing the cabbages in her garden. Presently the head of Mrs. Clarke loomed up at her window. She regarded her neighbour thoughtfully for some time, and raising her voice in an authoratative manner said:

"You're digging my cabbages!"

"I ain't," replied Mrs. McMillan, resuming her work.

"You are, too," said Mrs. Clarke, "and if you don't quit I'll throw a pail of water over you."

"Like to see you do it!" rejoined the other, without even so much as raising her head.

Mrs. Clarke vanished from view, and in a few seconds appeared at an upper window with a pail of water, and before her neighbour had a chance to move she had experienced the sensation of a cold shower bath, and was drenched to the skin.

Filled with wrath and a desire for revenge, Mrs. McMillan hurled the hoe with which she had been working straight at Mrs. Clarke's cranium. There was a sound of falling glass and of cracking wood. The window was a wreck but, to Mrs. McMillan's chagrin, Mrs. Clarke had dodged the missile and had escaped uninjured.

Mrs. McMillan returned to her house, where she lives all by herself, and, picking up a pail, started for the well which is situated between the two houses and which is used by both the parties in question. There is a small fence separating the plot of ground containing the well from Mrs. McMillan's garden and Mrs. Clarke, being foxy fastened the gate securely with strong wire while Mrs. McMillan was in the house getting her pail. Mrs. Clarke had no desire apparently to experience the same damp sensation which had been the pleasure of her neighbour.

When Mrs. McMillan found the gate tied, she whispered a few things about Mrs. Clarke and how she loved her and returned to her house and got a hatchet. While she was in the act of chopping the wire to fragments, lo! who should appear on the scene but Mrs. Clarke, who was carrying that obnoxious pail which, as was afterwards proved, contained a considerable quantity of aqua pura.

Taking careful aim, Mrs. Clarke again hurled the contents of the pail at her friend and again was that aim true and again were the effects distressing and also wet to Mrs. McMillan. The latter, as one would naturally expect, was raging and ready to eat her adversary. She brandished the weapon corresponding to that which George Washington used and whied it at Mrs. Clarke's head. The missile struck Mrs. Clarke on the forehead and the tent with this Mrs. McMillan pickruddy gore began to ooze. Not conced epicurean stores, but it is said that her aim was not true. Whoever heard of a woman hitting anything she threw at with a stone or the like.

The neighbours concluded that it was time to put a stop to the engagement and the police was summoned and Mrs. McMillan was conveyed to the police station.

After hearing both sides of the story Judge Edmison concluded that the defendant was not justified in throwing such a dangerous weapon at Mrs. Clarke, and was guilty of more violence than was necessary under the circumstances. She was convicted of the charge of assault, but sentence was suspended for a month in order to give the Village Council an opportunity to provide another house for the defendant as it was apparent that it was not advisable to allow her to remain in the vicinity of Mrs. Clarke.

—The address to be given this evening in the Mark street church, by Rev. J. G. Lewis, on his trip to the British Isles, gives promise of being largely attended. Rev. C. E. Cragg, B.C.L., is expected to occupy the chair.

The ladies of Peterborough will be pleased to hear that the Toronto Viavi Co. has arranged for two lectures to be given in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, the first of which will be given on Tuesday, Sept. 20th, at 3 p.m. and the second on Wednesday, at 8 o'clock, and we hope that many of our readers will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing a most interesting and instructive lecture on Physical Culture and Hygiene. The Viavi Company extends a hearty invitation to all. 3d

MISS DELANEY.

CHARLOTTE ST. LEAGUE INTERESTING MEETING.

Large Number of Young People Heard an Address on "Mosquitoes" Last Evening.

A very successful meeting of the Charlotte street Epworth League was held last evening. There was an unusually large attendance and the programme proved one of much enjoyment. An interesting talk on "Mosquitoes" was given by Mr. E. H. Jolliffe. The speaker gave a description of the mosquito and of the different stages of its life. The eggs from which it originates are always laid in the water. From this state it changes to what is known as the larva or the "wiggler" as they are seen in the water. From the larva, it changes to the pupa state and from this into the mosquito. An explanation was given of how mosquitoes carry malaria fever. They are the chief means of spreading this dread disease in countries where it is prevalent by biting a person affected and subsequently biting another person, thus carrying the germ in the blood of one into the blood of another and giving the latter the disease. If one could keep from being bitten by mosquitoes such a one would not be a victim of malaria. There are two classes of mosquitoes. Those which carry the malaria being somewhat different from those in this country. The unpleasant sensation which follows a mosquito bite is caused by the poison saliva which has been injected by the insect after an opening has been made in the skin by a very fine needle.

During the evening a selection "Medley of Palestine Songs" was rendered by the Charlotte street male quartette, and Miss Florence Hall sang "Blue Bell" in a very enjoyable manner. Miss Sidney Lee occupied the chair during the meeting.

No More Operations.

The day of operations for piles is past for all who know of the efficacy of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for this horrible ailment. It doesn't matter what form of piles you have so long as you use Dr. Chase's Ointment carefully and plentifully, it will soon bring relief and cure. Ask your friends and neighbours what they know about this preparation.

SUNDAY SERVICE AT ALL SAINT'S

Thanksgiving Service Will be Held on Friday Evening.

The attendance at both services on Sunday was very large, and were hearty throughout. The anthem by the choir in the morning was exceedingly well rendered, the solo part being taken in splendid voice by J. W. Edwards.

At the evening service the solo, by Miss Mabel Rickey, "Abide with Me," was rendered with splendid effect.

The rector preached at both services and gave two splendid and helpful sermons. He took for his text in the morning, Mark xiv, 37, "And he cometh and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter, Simon sleepest thou? Couldest thou not watch one hour." In the evening his text was II Kings, v, 11th and 12th verses, "When Naaman the Assyrian, came to Elisha to be healed of his leprosy."

On Friday evening at eight o'clock the harvest thanksgiving service will be held. The choir is preparing some special music for that evening, and if we can judge by the splendid music the choir has given in the past, we can assure those a treat who avail themselves of the privilege of hearing them on Friday evening. The Willing Workers will meet each evening to decorate the church for the occasion. Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, the Chancel Guild.—Com.

BEFORE THE MAGISTRATE.

Man Sent to Jail for Two Months for Non-support, Another Case.

At the Police Court this morning, a man was charged with non-support. The evidence showed that his conduct about the house was very obnoxious and that he was continually getting drunk and failed to support his wife and family. He was sent to jail for two months.

A case of assault was dismissed by the defendant paying the costs, which amounted to $6.00. Drunkenness was the cause of the assault and the defendant promised to reform and cease indulging in that which intoxicates.

EPWORTH LEAGUE'S SOCIAL EVENING.

Delightful Time Spent at George Street Epworth League.

One of the most successful social evenings ever given by the George street Epworth League was that held last night in the Sunday school room. About 175 young people were in attendance and a thoroughly delightful evening was spent.

The first part of the evening was devoted to an autograph contest, in which those present were given an opportunity of securing the autographs of their companions, the one securing the greatest number being given a prize of a yearly subscription to the Epworth Era. The prize was won by Miss Alice Whiten, who secured 75 names.

After this a delightful programme was rendered, included in which were solos by Miss Bertha Parnell, Messrs. J. Bowes and J. Browne, a violin solo by Miss Crothers and a recitation by Mrs. Dr. Morgan.

At the close of the programme refreshments were served by the young ladies, and this constituted by no means the least enjoyable part of the evening's entertainment.

The members of the Social Committee under whose auspices the evening was given, wish, through this medium to thank all those who assisted in the programme, and by whose efforts the evening was such a success.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR MINSTRELS

Meeting Held Last Night Resulted Very Satisfactorily.

There were a goodly number of men present last night at the meeting held in Mr. A. L. Davis' office to talk about a minstrel show. All who were present expressed themselves as being very favourable to the project, and it was believed that the past successes in this line could be more than duplicated with the greater number of musicians in town. Nothing definite was accomplished last night, as it was decided to appoint a committee to wait upon the promoters of the C. G. E. Benefit Society minstrel show, before deciding to go ahead. It was thought advisable to, if possible, work in harmony with each other, and the meeting was adjourned for one week, at the end of which time fuller information will be available.

The adjourned meeting will be held next Monday night in the same place.

The BEST STOVE CO.

GREATEST FAIR IN COUNTY'S HISTORY

Will be that to be Held in Peterborough Next Week.

PROGRAMME OF THE EVENTS

First Visit of His Honour Lieutenant-Governour Clark—The Black Watch Band Concert.

There have been exhibitions and exhibitions, but that to be held in Peterborough this year will, according to present prospects, surpass them all. There is every indication that the fair, which will open to the public at Exhibition Park, next Tuesday morning, will be, by far, the most successful of any ever held in Peterborough. This has not been accomplished without a great deal of hard work on the part of the Directors, but they have willingly given themselves to the task, and, when it is all over, will be able to look back upon the result of their energy with satisfaction.

Not only have all the most desirable features of previous exhibitions been retained, but a great many new features have been introduced into the programme for the fair this year, and, when the gates swing open, next Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, the public will see the best conducted and the most attractive fair in the history of the Peterborough Agricultural Society.

Monday will be preparation day, and only exhibitors, or those in charge of the exhibits, will be allowed on the ground. All inside exhibits must be in place on Monday night. The director in charge of the space informs the Examiner that all the available space has been contracted for, and whereas in other years there has been some difficulty in inducing the merchants to exhibit, this year there have been more requests for space than have been able to be granted, and the building will this year present a most attractive appearance.

THE OPENING DAY.

Tuesday morning at nine o'clock the gates will be open to the public, and the judging in the stock rings for horses, cattle, sheep and swine, will commence at nine o'clock. All the exhibits will be in place, and the stock will all be on the grounds, and Tuesday morning will be as good a time as any to visit the fair, before the crowds make it inconvenient to get around.

His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Mortimer Clarke will arrive on Tuesday morning, and during his stay here will be the guest of Hon. J. R. Stratton. At one o'clock Tuesday afternoon the 57th Regiment Band will leave the Central Park for the fair grounds and will be on hand to receive His Honour when he arrives to officially open the fair at two o'clock.

Lieutenant-Governor Clarke will deliver an address at the opening, and it is probable that other prominent public men will be present and speak, after which the fair, with its special attractions, will be officially opened to the public. Among the special attractions that will be on the grounds the first day of the fair, are the famous string of prize hackney horses that won the championship prizes at the St. Louis World's Fair, owned by Mr. Robert Beith, M.P., Bowmanville, and the prize imported Clydesdales owned by Messrs. Graham Bros., Claremont. A feature of Tuesday, especially interesting to stock-men, will be the auction sale of pedigreed Shorthorn cattle, swine and sheep, which will take place at one o'clock sharp. The sale will be conducted by Mr. Gardiner. The speeding events in the ring on Tuesday afternoon will include a trot, a hurdle race and a flat race.

During Tuesday afternoon the judging of the special class for delivery horses will take place.

The Band of the 57th Regiment will render a concert from the stand Tuesday afternoon. The programme will be as follows:—

March, Crimson Flush, ...Alexander
Overture, Poet and Peasant, Von Suppe
Novelette, The Gondolier, ...Haynes
Selection, Ermani ... ... Vardi
Serenade, La Paloma ... ... Yrdier
Cakewalk, Allacazan, ... Hoitman
Reminiscences of Scotland, ...Godfrey
Descriptive, Down by the Swanee River, Mydleton.
Medley, Georgia, ...Huffman
March, Monisat,..... ... ...Brook

A fitting climax to the first day's programme will be the concert to be given in the Brock street rink by the Black Watch Band. This band played at the Toronto Exhibition and won many golden opinions, and since the close of that engagement has been travelling through Western Ontario, where the audiences have simply went wild with enthusiasm over the music rendered by the band. This band is attached to the famous 42nd Highlanders of Scotland, and the opportunity to hear a genuine Highlander band will then be afforded the citizens of Peterborough and the surrounding district.

The band will arrive at 7 o'clock by special train from Lindsay and will be met at the G.T.R. station by the 57th Band, who will play them up town.

The plan of the seats is now open at Madill's drug store.

WEDNESDAY'S PROGRAMME.

On Wednesday morning bright and early, the grounds and buildings will be open to visitors, and there will be something to interest and instruct from early morning till the gates close at night. The judges will continue their work on Wednesday, and the announcement of the names of the horse judges is sufficient to show that they are men of continental reputation. They will be Messrs. Robt. Beith, M.P., Bowmanville; William Hendrie, Hamilton, and Colin Campbell, Montreal.

The side shows including the English Gypsy fortune-teller, will be in full swing on Wednesday, and a regular midway with its attractions will be features. The racing events on Wednesday will be very interesting and well contested, and a special feature will be the grand parade of live stock, which will take place immediately after the judging has been completed Wednesday afternoon. This alone will be worth the price of admission.

A NEW DEPARTMENT.

A new department of the fair this year will be an exhibit made by the woman's Art Association of Canada, of which the Countess of Minto is the Honourary President. This exhibit will include work done by the French-Canadians in home-spuns, woollens and linens, couvertures with quaint historic patterns woven in a distinctive style, besides the characteristic designs in bead-work, porcupine quill embroidery, basketry and mats of the North American Indians, fine Honiton and point laces from English and Irish settlers, and embroideries and drawn linen from Doukhobors and Galicians.

This exhibit will be one which will be of great interest especially to the ladies, and the work of the Association, that of retaining and developing all artistic tastes, as well as all characteristic designs and crafts will be encouraged. A number of the local ladies are interested in this Association and they will have charge of this exhibit.

Another interesting exhibit will be that of the Kindergarten Department of the public school, which will include work done by the pupils in this department of our local schools.

This year the street railway will run direct to the grounds, and six cars and trailers will be in the service during the days of the fair so that there will be little or no waiting. This fact alone should greatly increase the attendance, and the great array of special attractions will make the fair of 1904, without a doubt, the greatest in the history of the country, and one which will do credit to the directors and the town.

ANIMAL HABITS.

Why Horses Have and Donkeys Have Not the Shying Habit.

Horses shy because they are descended from ancestors accustomed to roam over plains, where any tuft of grass or bush might conceal an enemy waiting to spring on them. Under these circumstances they must often have saved themselves by at once starting away on observing any sudden or unexpected movement or on coming without warning upon some strange object. This is supposed to have become a habit which has descended to their domesticated descendants.

The donkey, on the other hand, is descended from animals which dwelt in the hills, among which there were precipices and dangerous paths, hence the sure footedness and comparative slowness of the donkey. His ancestors were not so liable to sudden attacks of wild beasts and of snakes. Moreover, sudden and wild starts on alarm would have been positively dangerous to them. Hence they learned to avoid the very habit which proved so useful to the horse in the plains.

The habit of eating thistles, which is almost peculiar to the donkey, is also supposed to come from these same ancestors. Living in dry and barren localities, they found little food and hence learned to eat hard and dry and, if necessary, prickly plants.

Our Funny Bone.

The "funny" bone, or "crazy" bone, as it is commonly called, is in reality no bone at all, but a nerve, and its peculiar name, of facetious origin, is a pun on the word "humerus," the cylindrical bone which runs from the shoulder to the elbow, the ulnar nerve passing around it.

The nerve is here superficial and therefore comparatively unprotected, so that it may be easily compressed, and then a blow upon it causes a strange tingling sensation in the course of its distribution, which is felt as far away as the little finger. The humerus has been the occasion of humor in others, for Locker wittily writes in "An Old Muff," published about 1740:

He cannot be complete in aught
Who is not humorously prone.
A man without a merry thought
Can hardly have a funny bone.

A Lifetime's Eating.

Science Sittings tells us that if we could see the amount of food one would consume in a lifetime pass before us the sight would be quite appalling. If a man lived seventy years, he would consume during that time about 100 four pound loaves of bread a year, or a total of 7,000 substantial loaves. Of meat he would consume, if he ate all beef, forty bullocks; of potatoes, an average of 200 pounds per year. If he ate only two eggs a week, it would require about 7,000 eggs to feed him during his lifetime; of tea and coffee on an average a pint a day, or for a lifetime about 3,220 gallons.

Jumping.

Long and high jumping alike give elasticity of movement to the person with sluggish, heavy gait. The high jump should be practiced over a piece of cotton fixed to two poles or other supports. This cannot possibly occasion a fall. A piece of white paper run on the cotton near the center will be easily distinguishable. The student unused to jumping should begin with a nominal height, say twelve inches, increasing this as advance is made in proficiency.

Left the Farm Forlorn.

Gollifer—You used to make a good living in the country, but you don't seem to be making your salt in town. Why did you leave the farm? Gosch—Because I couldn't bring it with me. It was held down by a mortgage.

Good Taste.

"What a homely shirt!"

"Yes. My wife picked it out."

"Why, man, haven't you any taste yourself?"

"Not for a quarrel with my wife."—

Her Case Exactly.

It is related of a clergyman who was the happy father of a charming and beautiful daughter that one day while preparing his Sunday discourse he was suddenly called from his desk on a mission of mercy. The sentence at which he left off was this: "I never see a young man of splendid physique and the promise of a glorious manhood almost realized but my heart is filled with rapture and delight."

His daughter, happening to enter the study, saw the sermon and read the words.

Sitting down, she wrote underneath, "Them's my sentiments, papa, exactly."

Dr. Fuller's Memory.

Among those who have performed great feats of memory may be mentioned Dr. Fuller, author of the "Worthies of England." He could repeat another man's sermon after hearing it once and could repeat 500 words in an unknown language after hearing them twice. He one day attempted to walk from Temple Bar to the farthest end of Cheapside and to repeat on his return every sign on either side of the way in the order of their occurrence, and he did it easily.—London Mail.

Comforting.

It is very comforting to a man who is just recovering from a lingering illness and has managed to crawl out on a warm, sunshiny day to get air to have a neighbor come along and about cheerily: "Hello! Been away, haven't you? Had a good time? You are looking well!"

THE NAME BLACKGUARD.

It Was Originally Applied to Link Boys and Servants.

The earliest record of the term blackguard is in the churchwarden's account of St. Mary-at-Hill, London, where, under date 1532, is, "Item, received for iiij Torches of the Black Guard iiijd." This and the following old lines seem to show that the name was then applied to linkboys:

Her Cupid is a blackguard boy
That rubs his link full in your face.

The name was also given to menial servants in the king's kitchen. In the "Calendar of State Papers" is the following entry: "Aug. 17, 1535, Sir William Fitzwilliam to Mr. Secretary Cromwell—Refusal of the workmen to work for less than aixpence a day. Two of the ringleaders had been for some of the time blackguards of the king's kitchen." These "blackguards" were responsible for all cooking utensils and coals.

According to Miss Strickland, the historian, the scullions of the royal kitchen were for many centuries clad in black and were called the blackguards of England.

A MODEL OF CAUTION.

Yet an Innocent Remark Was the Cause of His Death.

The father of Gueau de Reverseaux had been a distinguished lawyer, and through his influence he held important offices under the government. When the revolution began he gave up his office at La Rochelle and retired to Chartres.

From the time that the revolution began Gueau de Reverseaux devoted his attention exclusively to preserving his own safety. He wrote no letters. He would receive no letters. He saw no visitors and paid no visits. He spoke to no person and allowed no one to come near him. It would have been impossible to be more prudent than he was.

However, he wanted some sheds built on his farm near Chartres and ventured to consult a carpenter. The carpenter told him that he could not undertake the work immediately, as Gueau de Reverseaux wished, because most of his workmen were drafted to join the army at once.

Gueau de Reverseaux replied: "The workmen need not go. They can send substitutes."

This remark was heard by the workmen, but only the first phrase made any impression on them. They reported everywhere that M. Gueau de Reverseaux, who must be good authority, had said that they need not go. The news went to headquarters that Gueau de Reverseaux declared that the drafted workmen need not obey the government. This was considered to be conspiracy, and he was condemned to death and executed.

Letter Perfect.

Rustic poets do not always find rhymes come easily and naturally. At least the following epitaph in a country district would seem to suggest it:

Here lies the body of William Lee.

Nevertheless there is no fault to be found with the actual rhyme as such. —London Globe.

ALCOHOLIC CRIMINALS.

The Dreamy Mental State That Leads to Murder or Suicide.

In a paper on the criminal responsibility of the alcoholic the medical officer of Pentonville prison said that "no one becomes mad when drunk who is wholly sane when sober."

Referring to the dreamy mental state of morbid drunkenness, the doctor said that what ordinarily happened was that after many years of intoxication the individual acquired a peculiar susceptibility to alcohol, so that relatively small doses led to more or less lengthy dream states, in which the patient might seem to speak and act pretty coherently, though in reality he was in a sort of somnambulistic state and knew nothing at all afterward of what he had done or had only a hazy recollection of it. In one of these phases he will probably murder his family or attempt suicide.

The admission of morbid drunkenness as a condition excluding full responsibility was especially desirable in that it would further the trend of public opinion to adopt preventive measures against the criminal alcoholic. When, therefore, the chronic alcoholic had once shown the disposition to dream states with impulsive tendencies, especially homicidal or suicidal, he ought to be dealt with on the same footing as the impulsive epileptic —immune from ordinary punishment, but unfit for ordinary freedom.—London Globe.

STAINED GLASS.

What Old Makers Got by Accident We Now Get by Design.

There are no lost secrets in the art of making stained glass, though at one time the art itself was in abeyance, so that when Winston, with the aid of Messrs. Powell & Sons, sought to revive it they found that much of its tradition had died out.

Modern science proved equal to the task of solving the mystery. It was soon discovered that the artistic merit of old glass was due to its chemically imperfect composition, for it was irregular in thickness and color and also striated and flecked with air bubbles. The light coming through it was therefore broken up and deflected, as if by an infinite number of tiny prisms, and hence came its lustrous richness of tone in comparison with the crudity of chemically perfect material. What the old makers got by accident the modern get by design.

Old glass has one advantage due to its age and its lack of uniformity. Some particles, being more alkaline than the rest, have been washed out of it by the rains of ages, and it has been left on the weather side rough and "fritted;" hence have come more prisms, more refraction and softer, mellower colors.—London Standard.

Took the First Tow.

John H. Hamline of Chicago was one of the foremost advocates of civil service reform in that city, says the Outlook, and was instrumental in securing the passage of the law that established the merit system there. Although the mayor who appointed the first civil service commission was notoriously hostile to the measure and planned to render it useless, Mr. Hamline did not hesitate to accept a place on it.

"How can you compromise with the opposition," he was asked, "by getting on a commission like that, which will have no power?"

"When I am going anywhere," he replied, "I do not wait for a star. I hitch my cart to anything which happens to be going my way."

It is worthy of note that, having climbed aboard his cart, he managed, to the mayor's amazement, to keep it straight in the path of municipal reform and made the law effective despite all opposition.

How Horace Walpole Dressed.

In the early part of the eighteenth century, says the author of "Social England," a fashionable gentleman ordinarily wore a toupee of curls raised high over his forehead. For daily wear most gentlemen were dressed like George I., dark tie, wig, plain coat, waistcoat and breeches of snuff colored cloth and stockings of the same color; for ceremony, like Horace Walpole, in a lavender suit, the waistcoat embroidered with a little silver or of white silk embroidered in the tambour frame, partridge silk stockings, gold buckles, ruffles, lace frill and powdered wig. The linen for shirts was bought in Holland, costing from 10 to 14 shillings the English ell.

Corelli and Caine.

Marie Corelli's first story, "A Romance of Two Worlds," which made her name, was sent to the London publishing house of Bentley. Hall Caine was the principal reader of that house, and his report condemned the book so strenuously that it was rejected. Miss Corelli was deeply discouraged, but after some time she was persuaded to send the manuscript to another publisher. He accepted it eagerly and made a big fortune out of it and out of her later novels.

An Exposure.

"Johnny," said the teacher, "a lie can be acted as well as told. Now, if your father was to put sand in his sugar and sell it he would be acting a lie and doing very wrong."

"That's what mother told him," said Johnny impetuously, "but he said he didn't care."—London Tit-Bits.

Pandora Range

Strong Grates

"Pandora" grates are composed of three bars, with short bull-dog teeth, which grip, chop up and throw down the gritty clinkers, but squeeze the hard coal upwards.

The two outer bars work on the centre one, and all three are held together in one strong iron frame, which can be removed by merely unscrewing one bolt. This is a great point in a range. Most range grates require expensive experts to take out old ones and put in new grates. You can do the trick on a "Pandora" in ten minutes, with a ten cent piece for a screw driver. Isn't that simple, convenient, inexpensive?

The more you know about the "Pandora" the better you'll like it.

BRIEF TWILIGHT.

At the Equator It Lasts Only a Little Over an Hour.

As twilight is caused by the refraction of the atmosphere, without which we should be instantly in darkness at sunset, all parts of the earth have twilight, though of varying duration. When the sun has sunk eighteen degrees below the horizon no more light can be refracted anywhere, but the path of the sun at the equator is so nearly vertical that its disappearance is proportionally rapid.

The shortest twilight at the equator is one hour and twelve minutes at the equinoxes in March and September; the longest is one hour and nineteen minutes at the solstices in June and December.

In London from May 22 to July 21 it is twilight all through the night. No wonder, with a disparity so great, people speak of night in the tropics as coming on almost suddenly. Farther north still, in the Shetlands and Norway, we speak of the midnight sun, where men never lose sight of the orb of day and twilight is unknown.—

THE ..... INTERRUPTED FLIGHT

By S. L. TINSLEY

Copyright, 1904, by S. L. Tinsley

"Tomorrow then at the latest, but it would be worth a thousand dollars more to you if you could leave on the midnight train."

Mr. Factore took up the roll of papers and started toward the door.

"If you change your mind so that you can manage to leave tonight, why, call me up, will you?"

Mr. Franklin Thickerton, who was opening and closing the drawers of his desk, turned around hastily.

"Yes, yes, I'll see, my boy, I'll see!" Pierce Factore nodded his head, and was about to leave the room when Mr. Thickerton whirled around suddenly in his chair, with an expression of dismay upon his thin, smooth face.

"Eloise! What will I do with Eloise?"

Pierce Factore uttered an exclamation of impatience.

"Marry her to some one!" exclaimed Factore in exasperation, hardly knowing what he was saying. To his amazement Mr. Thickerton seized upon his idea with delight.

"By George, the very thing! Glad you thought of it. I'll attend to it at once. Perhaps, after all, I'll be able to leave on the midnight express." Then, whirling his chair around, Mr. Thickerton applied himself to work.

Having finished his letters, Mr. Thickerton hurriedly rang the bell and then impatiently awaited the arrival of his daughter, Eloise. Eloise Thickerton was a tall, slim girl, with a pale face, large gray eyes and short, curly, light brown hair. When she entered the room in answer to her father's summons, she looked about her with a frightened expression. A summons from papa meant something extra.

Mr. Thickerton was always too busy to say more than good morning or good night to his daughter. When Eloise had closed the door, her father began speaking.

"My dear, I must leave at once for Russia on business. I may be gone months, and I may be gone years."

Eloise grasped her father's arm in surprise.

"Papa!" she exclaimed.

"Yes, I must go at once. This deal means much money for me. Therefore I have sent for you to tell you that you are to be married at once—this evening by 8 o'clock at the latest. That is all, my dear. You run away. I am busy, very busy!"

Poor Eloise! The room swam before her eyes. She sank into a chair, because she could not trust herself to stand.

"Papa, dear—dear papa, what do you mean?"

Her voice was so pitiful that even her busy father found time to turn around and look at her.

"There, there, my dear, don't fret; it will soon all be over."

Eloise shuddered. "Papa, dear, you don't mean it, do you? You're just teasing me, aren't you?"

She clasped her hands. He did not look at her, but shook his head and drummed nervously upon the desk.

"There, there, my dear, run away now and don't bother me. I am very busy. But remember, be ready by 8."

Eloise walked sadly toward the door. Then she hesitated and looked back timidly at her father.

"Whom am I going to marry, papa?"

Franklin Thickerton did not understand his daughter's question, and he was too busy to ask her to repeat it. So he answered absently, "Never mind, my dear, never mind."

Eloise silently left the room.

One hour later Franklin Thickerton was sitting in Judge Wilton's office. The judge listened while Mr. Thickerton talked. The conversation concerned Judge Walton's son.

"You have always favored a marriage between Eloise and Harry. As I start for Russia tonight and have no one with whom I could leave my daughter, why not let us have the marriage performed this evening? What do you say?"

The lawyer looked at the judge.

"What does Eloise say?" replied the judge.

"She will do what I say."

"Very well, Harry shall be on hand at 8 o'clock tonight."

The two men shook hands, and Lawyer Thickerton hurried away to make the final arrangements for his journey.

At a quarter before 8 o'clock the Thickerton household was in a state of excitement. Eloise was missing. The housekeeper was weeping in the sitting room. The lawyer had locked himself in the library. The servants were huddled together whispering in the kitchen.

Eloise had left the house an hour before, and her father had expected her to return in a few minutes. She had not returned, and the housekeeper had found a note in her room addressed to Mr. Thickerton.

This note informed the lawyer that his daughter would not be married that night. She had gone away and would never again trouble her father's business arrangements. She expressed the hope that he would be successful with his Russian business transactions, then she bade him goodby.

When Eloise's father had read this note he seated himself before his desk and for fully ten minutes opened and closed the drawers in rapid succession. He seemed to be searching for something—perhaps Eloise. At this moment the door swung open, and Judge Wilton hurried into the room, his face pale, his hands working with excitement.

"Thickerton," he cried when he had gained control of his voice, "my son has gone!"

Franklin Thickerton looked at the judge as though he had never before seen him. "He has my daughter!"

* * * * * * *

Eloise Thickerton looked around the waiting room of the depot, a frightened expression in her large gray eyes. She held her muff tightly in both hands and watched the people coming from and going to the ticket windows. Eloise had not fully made up her mind just where she wanted to go.

When Harry Wilton, carrying his satchel, came into the waiting room, the first person he saw was Eloise Thickerton. The young man looked at her in amazement, then he slowly drew out his watch; it was 8 o'clock. Of course she must be looking for himself. Poor girl, the idea of being deserted was intolerable to her. Walking quickly across to Eloise's side, Harry touched her lightly upon the arm. The girl gave a little startled cry.

"Oh, Mr. Wilton, I'm so nervous. I—I—really am so glad to see you. I want you to buy me a ticket, will you?"

Harry was bewildered.

"Going away, did you say? Why, I understand that you—you—were to be married this evening. Why doesn't your—your husband buy the ticket?"

Eloise flushed scarlet. She turned her face away and looked across the room, then out into the train shed, where bells were ringing, smoke puffing and whistles screaming. Mr. Wilton was waiting for her answer. When she again turned her face toward him, Harry saw that her eyes were filled with tears.

"I couldn't do it," she whispered. "I couldn't marry that horrid little Mr. Glade. Perhaps he is nice. Perhaps papa meant well, but he's old and, well—I hated him. So I just determined to run away."

Young Wilton was staring at the girl in silent amazement. "Why," he stammered, "why, when did your father change his mind? When did he tell you that you must marry that man, that Mr. Glade?"

"Papa never told me whom I was to marry. He said 'never mind' when I tried to question him, but I know that it was to be Mr. Glade. I know because he always looks at me so funny, and then he was invited to breakfast, and to lunch, and to dinner today. Anyway, who else could it possibly be? No one else would marry just poor, plain me!"

For a moment Harry Wilton was silent; then, drawing a step nearer, he looked down into his companion's face.

"Mr. Glade was not to be your husband. I was to be the man."

"You?"

"Yes, but when the time came I couldn't do it. I felt that I was being forced upon you, and—well, I just decided to leave you in peace and go away!"

"You?" Eloise repeated. "Why, I never thought that you cared about me!"

"Yes, I cared so much that I could not bear to hurt you. I suppose, of course, your father told you."

"No." Eloise lingered her eyes timorously. "No; if he had perhaps I might have"—

"Yes." Harry drew closer to the girl's side.

Her cheeks were flushed and she dared not raise her eyes to the young man's face, for she knew that he was looking at her. When she spoke her voice trembled.

"What are we—that is—I mean, what are you"— But Eloise did not finish her speech. Her voice suddenly failed and she hid her face in her muff.

Nevertheless Harry Wilton understood her meaning. A moment later and he had settled her future.

"I am going to be married tonight." Eloise lifted her face. "Are you?" she whispered. "Who to?"

"You?"

"Me?"

"Yes." And together they walked toward the ticket window.

A Bet With a Schoolmaster.

"I had a friend," said a congressman to a group of listeners, "who was a cotton planter near New Orleans. One evening he boarded a Mississippi river steamboat bound north. Becoming lonesome, my friend began looking for a little game of draw. He was not long in finding it and sat in. He lost from the start, and as the game progressed the stakes kept getting higher.

"About 4 o'clock in the morning my friend began to realize that his chances of getting even with that game were slim, when just then the steamboat whistle blew loud and long. The planter pushed his chair back from the table and said:

"'Gentlemen, I have played in this hyar game all night. I have lost and have nothing to say on that account, but I'll bet $100 that I can holler louder than the whistle on this boat.'

"The stakes were put up and one of the gamblers hastened to the engineer and bribed him to put on all the steam possible. The party repaired to the deck. The whistle was blown. The planter yelled, but his voice was not heard.

"'Gentlemen,' said the victim of the poker sharks, 'in this hyar yellin' contest I lost my money fa'r and squar', but I had a better chance to win than I had in that pokah game I sat in all night.'"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Not to Her Taste.

"Do you care much for Lamb?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle as she took a seat in the sumptuous library and picked up a fine edition of the "Last Essays of Elia."

"No," replied her hostess; "to tell the truth, I don't. Josiah does, but give me a good beefsteak any time."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Good Watch Stands Hard Knocks.

"The knocks a good watch may be subjected to and yet come out uninjured are most remarkable," said the jeweler as he attached his glass to one eye and peered into the workings of a timepiece. "This watch is supposed to have fallen a distance of more than a hundred feet, and I can detect not the slightest disorder. A few days ago a countryman brought a watch to me which he wished examined. He had lost it in a field, and it had lain out there, exposed to the elements, for six weeks, part of the time being submerged in water. It was in perfect condition, not even a speck of rust in the case."

Animals' Love of Sweets.

This love of sweets is very common in our animal neighbors, from the bee to the horse. If you want to please a horse try giving him two or three lumps of sugar. Not only the bees, but the wasps, flies, butterflies and indeed nearly all insects, are conspicuously attracted to sweets, and it is this sweet tooth which leads the insect to visit flowers and thus help them to produce seeds.

Thought.

"But you can't make a machine that will think."

"No," replied the inventor, "and I wouldn't if I could—if I thought it would think as some people do."

Narrow Chests.

The old theory that consumption was inherited is utterly discredited by modern medical science. The germs of consumption must be received from without. These germs are everywhere. They are constantly being received and cast out by the healthy system. It is the narrow chested whose inheritance is weakness who fall a prey to consumption because they are too weak of lung to resist and throw off disease.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate deep-seated coughs, bleeding lungs, weakness, emaciation and other conditions which if neglected or unskilfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

"In the spring of 1900 I was taken with hemorrhage of the lungs, and became very weak and short of breath, lost flesh and had no appetite," writes Mr. E. L. Robinett, of Kerens, Texas. "I was persuaded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The first few bottles seemed to do me but little good. Thought I would soon be a victim of that dreaded disease, consumption. Had almost given up in despair when my friends persuaded me to give your 'Golden Medical Discovery' a fair trial. I commenced to use. I weigh 160 pounds now, and when I commenced I only weighed 140 pounds. If any one doubts this statement I will be pleased to answer any inquiry."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." Nothing is "just as good."

BLOOD POISON

On account of its terrible effects, blood disease is called the king of all diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted; so while it may not be a crime to have the disease, it is a crime to permit it to remain in the system. It may manifest itself in the form of Scrofula, Eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, stubborn sores, eruptions or blotches, pimples in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, falling out of hair, disordered stomach, and a general degeneration of the system. If you have any of these symptoms don't neglect yourself. You have no time to lose. Beware of "old form" treatment—Beware of mineral poisons—Beware of Quacks and Fakirs. OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure this disease, never to return. Bank Bonds will protect you. Our treatment is not injurious in any way, but reaches the very root of the disease and all traces all poison from the system. The symptoms of disease gradually disappear. The blood becomes pure and enriched, the whole system is cleansed and purified, and the perfect peace prevailed never for the duties and the pleasures of life. RUGBY.

The executive of the Rugby Club will meet to-night when some important matters will be discussed.

• • • •

The Argonauts who play here two weeks from Saturday held their first practice last night.

• • • •

The younger players are showing up splendidly at practice and it will keep Capt. Crowley hustling to pick his wing line from the abundance of good material available.

• • • •

Chris Graham has not been out to the Saturday practices yet as he is playing with the baseball team. Chris, however, is always in the best of shape and a few rehearsals will fit him for a hard game. His work at quarter last year was excellent and he should be a valuable man this season.

• • • •

The senior series this year looks to be the best for several seasons. There are more teams and the districts are more compact.

• • • •

Gowans will again captain the Victorias this season.

• • • •

Yesterday afternoon a special committee of the Peterborough Rugby Club consisting of Messrs. E. S. Clarry, President; C. G. Graham, Secretary-Treasurer, and K. Eardley-Wilmot and R. F. McWilliams, interviewed the Peterborough Radial Railway Company with reference to the matter of placing lights on the Agricultural Grounds to enable the team to carry on nightly practices. Mr. Arthur Stevenson, manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, was appointed by the Street Railway Company to receive the deputation. The members of the deputation impressed upon Mr. Stevenson the desire of the Rugby Club to work in harmony with the Street Railway Company, believing that there would be mutual financial benefit. They pointed out the prospects for large attendances, etc., which would be a direct revenue for the Street Railway Company. Mr. Stevenson was very sympathetic towards the proposition of the Rugby Club and promised to give a definite reply to-morrow to the proposition submitted. He assured the Rugby Club that the Street Railway would do every thing possible towards assisting the Club and he also held the view that mutual financial benefit would be the result.

The Chemong Football Team two weeks ago Monday played the Bridgenorth team on the latter's grounds, a game in which neither side scored, and the Chemong team is now anxiously waiting for the Bridgenorth eleven to give them the return game which they were promised before the first contest. The Chemong team is under the impression that they are somewhat afraid of their prowess on their home field.

• • • •

At the request of the President, of the Agricultural Society, Mr. R. R. Hall has kindly donated a handsome silver cup, which will be open for competition by association football teams in the county at the coming exhibition. The first games will be played on Tuesday the 27th, and the finals will be run off on Wednesday. The cup will be well worth winning and there should be a large number of teams enter the competition. Entries should be made at once to the secretary.

• • • •

The Sporting Editor of the Toronto Saturday Night has the following item on Rugby, in which a reference is made to the Peterborough team:—

The rugby teams are organizing and soon the boom of the football will be heard in the land. Hamilton Tigers are at work already, with a lot of new material, including a deaf and dumb gentleman who should be an especial favourite of the referees, who do not approve of "back talk." Hamilton won the championship last year in a field that was hardly better than Intermediate strength. This season, the return of the Argonauts to the field and the dropping out of the weak West End Pleasure Club of Hamilton will greatly improve the quality of the teams. Peterborough has decided to play in the senior series, and should have a first-rate twelve. The city on the banks of the Otonabee is a good sporting centre, but the local club will require something more than enthusiasm to run the team. Hard cash is needed, and if the Peterborough fellows continue to play their matches on unenclosed grounds the other clubs will certainly decline to admit them to the charmed senior circle. The Peterborough club has never made a success of collecting any decent gates, which is not to be wondered at when it is remembered that the place has a population of only twelve thousand. Even in London, which is more than three times larger than Peterborough, the citizens are loth to turn out to see football. The trying conditions under which matches are often played certainly has much to do with this state of affairs. Still, in Ottawa and Montreal, where the weather is usually worse than in Toronto, the people muster in thousands.

The Port Hope Guide writing of the baseball situation in the Midland League says:—

Things have taken a change in the Midland League since Cobourg defeated Peterborough on Saturday last. Before it looked like Bowmanville and Lindsay, but now should Bowmanville lose their protest they have entered against Cobourg it will leave Cobourg and Lindsay a tie with 7 wins and 3 losses each. It will all be decided at to-night's meeting of the Executive and it is hoped that they will hand out a fair unbiased decision. If Bowmanville in their evidence prove that Burge was a non resident at the time he played against them, then throw him out and give the game to Bowmanville. This plan of dropping the player and having the game replayed is no good. When a team violates the rules it is nothing but right that they should be penalized and this practice of playing the protested game over is no penalty at all. Then these Peterborough games that Lindsay and Bowmanville protested of course the Executive ordered them to be replayed and can hardly withdraw their decision. As it now stands Lindsay has 7 wins 3 losses, Cobourg 7 and 3, and Bowmanville 6 and 4 with a protest against Cobourg.

MORNING WEDDING IN THE CATHEDRAL

Miss Alexina Goselin Married to Mr. Harry Riches.

This morning at 8 o'clock a very pretty wedding took place at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Miss Alexina, the daughter of Mr. Francis Goselin, of 139 George street, was married to Mr. Harry Riches, in the presence of a large number of the friends of the contracting parties. The bride, who was very becomingly attired in a blue voille dress tastefully trimmed with white, was attended by her niece, Miss Mary Louise Goselin, who also was very prettily gowned, while Mr. Fred Riches, brother of the groom performed the duties of groomsman. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Galvin. Lohengrin's wedding march was played very effectively by Miss Doherty, while solos were sung by Miss Loretta Clancy and Miss Mary Coster, the former's selection being "Peace be Still," while the latter sang "Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest," both solos being well rendered.

After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the home of the bride where a wedding breakfast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Riches will reside in Peterborough.

A PAIN ACROSS THE STOMACH

Can Always be Relieved by a Few Doses of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I could not take the simplest food without a pain across my stomach." That was the miserable condition Marie Ann Bujold, of Maria Cap, Bonaventure County, Que., was in. Thousands of Canadians can sympathize with her; for they know just how miserable she was. They are that way themselves. But listen to the rest of Miss Bujold's experience: "I finally consulted the doctors, but they did me no good. Then an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. One box completely cured me."

No one can appreciate the amount of condensed happiness contained in a box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, till they have suffered as Marie Ann Bujold did and found the relief that came to her. That relief can always be found in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

VERY DANGEROUS PRACTICE OF BOYS

Manager Larmonth Writes to Warn Parents of Their Children's Danger.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir, — We would like to call the attention of the public to a habit the boys of Peterborough have developed since the street cars started to run, and which is not only dangerous to themselves, but very annoying to the company and its employees. This is the practice of stealing rides, the boys hang on and sit on any part which projects from the body of the car. The other night one boy was found curled up in the fender which had been folded up against the back of the car. We do not blame the boys very much, as it is quite natural for them to do tricks of this kind, but we wish the parents to distinctly understand that we will not be responsible for any accidents which occur to the children when they are stealing rides, and if they would point out the danger the children are running, in doing so they would probably stop. It is a great wonder some of them have not been hurt already as they jump off the cars as soon as they see the conductor coming towards them and in several cases the boys have narrowly escaped being run over by horses travelling on the road. If the parents will kindly see that the children do not indulge in this practice any more this will not only confer a great favour on the company, but probably save their boys from being seriously injured. We shall be obliged in future to have boys arrested who persist in hanging on to the cars.

Yours truly,

The Peterborough Radial Railway Co.,
J. HERBERT LARMOUTH,
Managing Director.

The matter dealt with in Mr. Larmouth's letter is one which should receive the careful consideration of every parent, because if the children continue to indulge in the extremely dangerous practice of jumping on and off moving cars, a serious accident will be reported some of these days.

No later than last night a gentleman was wheeling up George street, and met a car going south at a rapid rate. When near the corner of Sherbrooke street a boy was seen to jump off the street car while it was running at full speed, and alighted almost directly in front of the bicyclist. It was a miracle that both the boy and the gentleman on the wheel where not thrown under the wheels of the car, and the officials of the company will be doing the public a service by punishing severely any boys who endanger their own lives and that of others, by jumping off and on cars while they are in motion.

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

Features of Market as Told by Special Wires.

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

New York, Sept. 20.—We said in Saturday's letter that stocks should have a good reaction and then would be a purchase. We also said stocks should do do better to-day. At this time we did not know that to-day was a Jewish holiday, which kept many important operators away, however the market is alright. Penna is a purchase around 139 1-2. If it should decline a point further be sure and buy some. It will sell at 137 before 127. Buy Erie around 30 1-2 for 10 points. Ice pfd is a big purchase around 36. We expect it to sell above 50 within 2 months if not sooner. U.S. Rubber is all right, buy it for 10 points around 28. Pac Mail is a buy around 33. Mop. at 97, St. P. below 157 and Tex below 81. MR around 121; MR sec around 89. USQ should cross 70. SP is a buy around 55 and Lead 54. The market may remain irregular a while longer, but on any weakness our bull specialties should be bought. Remember weak spots do not mean strong spots.—Wall Street Bureau of Information.

New York, September 20.—Some rally is due to-morrow, but it is not likely to be anything startling. The bull campaign is over. Pac Mail referred to last week it promises as well as anything, and if certain events develop favourably might get up 40 or 50 points this winter. BRT and MR will go up when the rest of the market is falling. Of the general list I see no encouragement in buying anything. The bull campaign is over. When a pronounced move does come it is 10 to 1 it will be downwards and brief I look for a good trading market for the present, with the trend downwards and later on a real bear campaign.—Ridgeley.

Liverpool opening, wheat 3-4 lower; corn 3-8 lower.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC SCOT'S PERFORMANCES

An Incident of the Visit of the Black Watch Band at London.

At the Black Watch Band concert in London the Princess Rink in the evening was crowded with close on to three thousand people. One elderly Scotchman had come a distance of three hundred miles from a town west of Chicago. When the Pipers marched in among the audience playing their tunes, one elderly Scotchman who was sitting on the elevated seats at the side of the rink, could not restrain himself, and got up in his place, and commenced to dance to the music of the pipers. He was in full view of the audience, and the cheering of the pipers developed into shrieks of delight at the enthusiasm of the old gentleman. Another old Scotchman who was down in the audience inspired by the spectacle climbed up to the elevated seat where his countryman was and joined in the dance. Suddenly it occurred to them that they were perhaps furnishing too much diversion for the crowd, and the one who first commenced to dance stopped suddenly, in spite of the encouragement of the other to continue. After that his Scotch caution returned to him, and he did not venture on any outbursts for the remainder of the evening. The music of the band itself, however, aroused the greatest of appreciation, and there were double encores all through the programme, ending with lusty national choruses and loud cheers.

Obituary.

At the Nicholls Hospital yesterday morning the death occurred of Herold Birtwistle, aged four years. Death was due to scarlet fever. The deceased with his mother came to Peterborough about six weeks ago from England. The father died about two weeks previous to the sailing for Canada. The funeral took place this afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets and to-day weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. Held Up at Petrolea.

Petrolea, Sept. 20.—On Saturday evening a bold highway robbery was committed in this town. Edward Metcalf of Glencoe and William Wilcox of Oakdale were walking on the G.T.R. track, about 10 p.m. A little north of the pork factory they came up with a stranger to whom they bade good-night, for reply he pointed a revolver at them and demanded their money. The former handed over $17 and the latter $22. The highwayman ordered them to walk backward about 100 feet, which they did. The stranger then hurriedly departed in the opposite direction. The men ran downtown and informed the police, and though a thorough search is being made no clue has yet been found to trace the highwayman.

JAPANESE MAKE A GENERAL ATTACK

Port Arthur Bombarded by Land and Sea by the Japs.

JAPS MEETING WITH SUCCESS

Captured Two Forts on Either Side of Sutszeying, North of Port Arthur—Interest at St. Petersburg Concentrated on Port Arthur—Nine Japanese Divisions are Marching on Mukden.

Che Foo, Sept. 21.—Authoritative information has been received here of a general attack upon Port Arthur by the Japanese forces which began before daybreak yesterday and continued until dark. All indications point to an effort to capture certain of the northeast main forts.

Two Forts Captured.

Shanghai, Sept. 21.—The general attack on Port Arthur in which the Japanese fleet is co-operating, began yesterday morning. The Japanese captured two ports on either side of Sutsuying, north of Port Arthur.

Attack Near Waterworks Repelled.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, commanding the Russian military forces at Port Arthur, reports by telegraph that on the night of Sept. 16 the garrison repelled two attacks on the redoubt protecting the waterworks.

St. Petersburg Interested.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—Interest is again concentrated upon Port Arthur, owing to news that a general storming of the fortifications there has begun. A few belated telegrams from Gen. Stoessel, the commander at Port Arthur, strengthens confidence in the ability of the defenders to hold out, despite the furious onslaughts of the Japanese.

The last attack mentioned by Gen. Stoessel took place the night of Sept. 14 and was directed against redoubt No. 3, which protects the water supply of the city. The redoubt is about two miles beyond the line of permanent forts and the attack upon this shows that the Japanese were not within striking distance of the main fortress.

The sensational announcement that Gen. Kuroki has crossed the Hun River unopposed, and that the whole Japanese army is advancing upon Mukden does not receive credence here.

Battle Imminent.

Mukden, Sept. 21.—A battle is imminent. The Japanese are advancing with eight, and possibly nine, divisions.

The crops of tall millet have nearly all been harvested, affording a better field over which to form on the flat plains.

The Hun River is the direct front of the Russian army.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

First Annual Meeting Held—Pacific Terminus Not Yet Selected.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Grand Trunk Pacific was held at the general offices of the Grand Trunk Railway at noon yesterday. The former directorate was elected, and the meeting then adjourned.

Mr. Hays on his return from the tour of inspection of the West, said yesterday that the western terminus for the Grand Trunk Pacific had not yet been decided on, but Port Simpson and other places of possible choice along the coast to Vancouver had been visited.

Experts, he said, were now collecting data as to the approaches, both by land and water to several ports, which would later on be submitted to the directors, following which an announcement of the choice of a terminus would be made.

HEAVY FROSTS GENERAL.

Average Wheat Yield Will Not Be More Than 16 Bushels.

Winnipeg, Sept. 21.—Heavy frosts were general throughout the west Monday night, ranging from 2 to 8 degrees, practically no district escaping. Although the great bulk of wheat is now in, certain sections in Saskatchewan and Northern Assiniboia have still a considerable percentage to harvest.

According to the C. P. R. weekly crop reports, given out yesterday, wheat growers all over the country are being greatly handicapped by the rains of the past week. In some parts it has been raining continually for the past four or five days, while in other places, frequent showers are putting a complete stop to threshing. As a result, at some points, from 5 to 25 per cent. of wheat and oats still remains to be harvested.

Many sections of country were not visited by rust at all, but at many of these places frost has nipped the grain considerable, although, in no instance, in comparison to injury by rust. It would appear that the average yield of wheat will not reach higher than 16 bushels to the acre. Some points show a yield as high as 30 bushels, with oats averaging up to 40 bushels, but these places are extremely rare.

O.J.C. FALL RACES.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—Weather showery, track slow, were the conditions of the third day of the O.J.C. fall races yesterday. The record:

First Race—5½ furlongs, maiden 3-year-olds and over, 1 Persistence, 2 Conspiracy, 3 Margaret O. Time, 1.12.

Second Race—½ mile, 2-year-olds, foaled in Canada, 1 Caper Sauce, 2 Sampan, 3 Moonraker. Time, 1.17½.

Third Race—One mile, Strathcona Plate, 3-year-olds and up, 1 James T., 2 Light Brigade, 3 Early Boy. Time, 1.43½.

Fourth Race—½ mile, maiden 3-year-olds, 1 Hazel Baker, 2 Step Dance, 3 Pelion. Time, 1.04.

Fifth Race—1 1-16 miles, Dominion Autumn Handicap, 3-year-olds and up, foaled in Canada. 1 War Whoop, 2 Nimble Dick. Time, 1.51½.

Sixth Race—½ mile, 4-year-olds and up, 1 Minotaur, 2 Prince Light, 3 Arachne. Time, 1.17.

C.P.R. After Another Line.

Tillsonburg, Sept. 21.—C. C. L. Wilson of Ingersoll, vice-president; J. H. Teall, general manager and W. A. Dowler, solicitor, of the Tillsonburg, Lake Erie and Pacific Railway Company, and A. L. Hirtzburg, engineer of the western division, and A. L. McMurchy of Toronto, solicitor of the C.P.R., met here yesterday and discussed the matter of the leasing of the T., L. E. & P. Line by the C.P.R. Co. The officials declined to give information for publication. Another meeting will be held at an early date to settle the matter.

NORTH YORK TRIAL

The Inquiry Must Be Confined to Bye-Election Incidents.

HON. E. J. DAVIS EXAMINED

No Money Was Spent Except For Legitimate Expenses As Returned By His Agent—Investigation of Charges of Bribery By Elias Pegg—Money Picked Up in a Barn—An Unwilling Bribee.

Newmarket, Sept. 21.—The trial of the protest against the return of Hon. E. J. Davis to the Legislature for North York and the Liberal cross-petition against Mr. T. Herbert Lennox, opened yesterday morning in the Town Hall before Chancellor Boyd and Mr. Justice Teetzel. The tables of the Judges and lawyers were placed on the platform, and from the body of the hall the proceedings were watched by a large crowd. Mr. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., Mr. J. M. McEvoy, K.C., and Mr. T. H. Lloyd are the counsel acting for the Liberals, while Mr. Lennox is represented by Mr. G. Tait Blackstock, Mr. James Baird and Mr. S. B. Wood.

General Election Matters Ruled Out.

Early in the day an attempt was made to go into matters connected with the general election, but the court pointed out that the statutes clearly forbade this, and ruled that no general election incident could be gone into until first shown to be connected with the bye-election. The whole afternoon was taken up with the Pegg group of charges. Henry Hodge swore that Elias Pegg had dropped $5 for him in his barn, while Henry Silkwood claimed Pegg forced $2 upon him, notwithstanding the fact that he had repeatedly refused to vote for Davis. The latter charge Pegg denied, and in connection with the former swore that on the day in question he had lost $5, and this must have been the money that Hodge found.

Hon. Mr. Davis Examined.

With a view to showing general agency Hon. E. J. Davis was then examined as to the composition of the convention at which he was nominated. He had not, he said, taken any special steps during the campaign to familiarize himself with the organization in the riding. He had left that to his friends in the riding.

"Did you introduce into the riding any persons from the outside?" was asked.

"Personally, no."

"Did you know that there were persons from the outside in the riding on your behalf?"

"I knew that Mr. Duncan Marshall, one of the Liberal organizers, was in the riding."

"Where you in any way responsible for his coming into the riding?"

Marshall Was An Agent.

"I don't think so specially. In my examination for discovery I assumed responsibility for Marshall as agent in the riding. His business was to organize the riding and arrange for public meetings. He was here during most of the campaign."

"Did you entrust any monies to Marshall for expenditure?"

"I did not."

Mr. Davis said he had paid no money to Marshall for expenses, and he did not know who had remunerated Marshall for his services while in the riding. He was one of the organizers for the Liberal party.

An Objection Raised.

Mr. Blackstock was proceeding to ask whether witness had received any sum of money from Mr. Hugh Blain in connection with the general election, when Mr. Aylesworth objected. Chancellor Boyd ruled that matters concerning the general election could not be gone into, unless it were shown that they were connected with the bye-election.

"Did any of the funds of the general election come into the riding for the bye-election campaign?" asked Mr. Blackstock.

"No," answered the Commissioner. As far as he was concerned, no money was spent, except what was shown in the statement of expenses filed by his agent.

RATEPAYERS TURNED DOWN BY-LAWS

Both of Those Voted on Yesterday Were Defeated.

Majority Against Fire Hall 38, and the Street Opening By-law 34—A Small Vote.

Yesterday the duly qualified electors of the town voted on two by-laws, and the result was that both were defeated. The votes polled were very small, the majority of the electors apparently taking very little interest in the questions upon which the votes were asked.

The bylaw to provide for the erection of a new fire hall and its equipment, a new fire alarm system, and other improvements to the fire protection appliances of the town, was defeated by a majority of 38, while that to open new streets, and repair bridges, was turned down by 34 majority.

A great many of those qualified to vote on these bylaws were not aware that the vote was being taken.

SEVERAL CASES BEFORE THE MAGISTRATE

Italian Goes to Gaol for Selling Liquor Without License—Other Cases.

At the Police Court this morning, judgment was given in the case of Camille Deluke who was last week arraigned before the Magistrate on a charge of selling liquor without a license. The judgment read as follows:—

Information herein charges Deluke with selling liquor without license, contrary to the statute.

The evidence shows that defendant kept a lodging house for Italian labourers. They paid him for the use of his room and bought food and cooked for themselves.

There was evidence of defendant getting liquor, quantities of lager beer and whiskey, and of his selling lager to boys and to the Italians. In August defendant got from one liquor restaurant 35 kegs of lager and three gallons of whiskey. In the first nine days of September he got 20 kegs of lager and last Friday, Sept. 11th, he got 5 kegs of lager and 2 gallons of whiskey.

The defence was that the Italians clubbed and bought the lager for their own use, the defendant simply buying it for them as their agent. The defendant kept a supply of groceries such as Italians use and had accounts with them in his book, which was produced. An examination of the book shows very many entries charged against Italians, including beer at 5 cents per bottle. These charges for beer are in most of the accounts. The only explanation defendant could give of these entries was that the word "beerie" was "Beanee," a man's name. This explanation was not satisfactory.

I find that the defendant sold the lager in contravention of the law, and I adjudge that he do forfeit and pay $50 and costs to be paid forthwith and in default of payment that he be confined in the county jail for three months.

The costs come to $6.55. Deluke was unable to pay his fine and was taken to jail.

Another information against Deluke for selling liquor to minors was withdrawn.

Two young men were fined $2 and costs, or $5.35 each for being drunk and disorderly.

Thomas Henderson was charged with being a vagrant. He was sentenced to six months in jail with hard labour.

Gilbert Hudson was found sleeping in a stable and was charged with vagrancy as a result. He promised to leave town at once and was discharged.

BROKE HIS THIGH

Serious Accident to an Italian at Pontypool Yesterday.

While unloading ties near Pontypool yesterday, Mori Gubetta, an Italian, had the misfortune to have one of the ties fall upon him, fracturing his left thigh. The break is a very serious one. He was brought to Peterborough last evening and taken to the St. Joseph's Hospital where he is resting as well as could be expected to-day. Dr. Gray is attending him.

A PASTOR'S WIFE

CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Pe-ru-na.

MRS. ANNA B. FLEHARTY, recent Superintendent of the W. C. T. U. headquarters, at Galesburg, Ill., was for ten years one of the leading women there. Her husband, when living, was first President of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, at Lincoln, Neb.

In a letter written from 401 Sixty-seventh street, W., Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Fleharty says the following in regard to Peruna:

"Having lived a very active life as wife and working partner of a busy minister, my health failed me a few years ago. I lost my husband about the same time, and gradually I seemed to lose health and spirit. My daughter is a confirmed invalid, and we both felt great need of an invigorator.

"One of my neighbors advised me to try Peruna. A bottle was immediately secured and a great change took place in my daughter's as well as in my own health. Our appetites improved very greatly, the digestion seemed much helped, and restful sleep soon improved us, so that we seemed like new women.

"I would not be without Peruna for ten times its cost."—Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

What used to be called female diseases by the medical profession is now called pelvic catarrh. It has been found by experience that catarrhal diseases of the pelvic organs are the cause of most cases of female diseases.

Dr. Hartman was among the first of America's great physicians to make this discovery. For forty years he has been treating diseases peculiar to women, and long ago he reached the conclusion that a woman entirely free from catarrhal affection of these organs would not be subject to female disease. He therefore began using Peruna for these cases and found it so admirably adapted to their permanent cure that Peruna has now become the most famous remedy for female diseases ever known. Everywhere the women are using it and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, DeGraff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Congressman Thad. M. Mahon, of Chambersburg, Pa., writes:

"I take pleasure in commending your Peruna as a substantial tonic and a good catarrh remedy."—T. M. Mahon.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

IMMIGRATION FROM GREAT BRITAIN.

The Ottawa Free Press in discussing the results of the vigorous immigration policy which Mr. Sifton has inaugurated, of which the rapid settlement of the West affords striking evidence, emphasizes the achievements of the Minister in Great Britain.

In the first place, newspaper advertising was made use of on an extensive scale. Neat display advertisements were inserted in numerous papers. These advertisements were got up in a style much more attractive and striking than the advertisements usually seen in British papers, and they had an immediate and pronounced effect in the personal and written enquiries received at the immigration agencies which the Dominion Government had established.

Specially attractive immigration literature was prepared and very widely distributed, the Canadian immigration officials getting it circulation through communication with the clergy of the various churches, the schools, and the mayors and other officers of cities and towns. Parish and village reading rooms and public libraries were supplied with it, and various other means were used of getting information disseminated in regard to the advantages offered by Western Canada to settlers. The sympathy and co-operation of many public spirited people were enlisted on national and imperial grounds, and advantage was taken of every means to Canada prominently before public attention. To take advantage of the interest thus aroused, agents were placed at all the smaller points. The co-operation of the steamship agents was enlisted by giving them appointments as sub-agents, for these are a class with a great deal of influence upon people about to emigrate, and their aid is valuable. In short, attention was paid to every detail of the work, and an organization completed that is characterised by system and thoroughness, and which has energy, keen alertness and enterprise for its watchwords.

But general organization work was by no means all that was done. From time to time the Dominion Government took special steps in addition. The erection in Whitehall, London, of the Canadian wheat arch for the coronation was the greatest single advertisement ever given to any country. It was a chief attraction in London for weeks after the coronation. Millions of people saw it, and pictures of it were published in leading papers and magazines throughout the world, with inscriptions describing Canada as the "Granary of the Empire," and offering free farms of the best land in the world. With characteristic energy the Department of the Interior followed up this magnificent advertisement of Canada with another equally effective. Two parties of newspaper men from the leading papers of Great Britain were taken on a tour through the Dominion in the harvest time. The articles descriptive of the tour and the comment and discussion they evoked, were the very best possible kind of advertisement of Canada as a field of immigration.

Another immensely successful feature of the Canadian immigration work in Great Britain under Mr. Sifton's direction was the sending of fifty farmer delegates from Canada to the Old Country, most of them immigrants of some years before. The arrival of so large a body of delegates for such a purpose was a unique event in Great Britain, and and aroused a great deal of attention. They were fifty living object lessons of the success that awaits the worker who settles in Western Canada. They visited their native towns and counties, lectured, and widely interviewed.

To turn now to the actual results secured by all this work, of which only the outlines have been indicated, we find that the total number of settlers from the British Isles since the Liberal Government took office is as follows, year by year, for the fiscal years ending June 30:—

1897	11,288
1898	11,008
1899	10,699
1900	10,360
1901	11,810
1902	17,259
1903	41,787
1904	50,915

Enough has been said above to show that the increased flow of British settlers to this country is the result not of chance or of mysterious causes, but of the vigorous policy inaugurated by Mr. Sifton and carried out by the officers of his department to impress on the British mind the advantages offered by Western Canada as a field for settlement. The entire character of the propaganda was new. The work in its present completeness was not evolved in a day. Each new feature has added to the strength of the whole, the work was originated and is being carried out by the Liberal Government and to the Liberal Government belongs the credit.

No More Operations.

The day of operations for piles is past for all who know of the efficacy of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for this horrible ailment. It doesn't matter what form of piles you have, so long as you use Dr. Chase's Ointment carefully and plentifully, it will soon bring relief and cure. Ask your friends and neighbours what they know about this preparation.

A GOVERNMENT OF DEEDS.

Mr. E. T. Galt, son of the late Sir Alexander Galt, who has probably done more than any other man in promoting the development of southern Alberta, while in Otttawa recently, gave some valuable information for publication respecting his various Northwest enterprises. "Our first and hardest struggle," he said, "was in developing our coal deposits and finding a market for the product. We were ahead of the times. We commenced more than twenty years ago with steamboats and barges, which were operated between Lethbridge and Medicine Hat. By this means we established the quality and value of our coal. But water transportation in the absence of improvements to navigation was too costly. We then obtained more capital and built 110 miles of railway from our mines at Lethbridge to Dunmore, on the C.P.R. The market was still insufficient, and we were compelled to build the Great Falls and Canada Railway from Lethbridge to Great Falls, a distance of 200 miles. We had expended large sums and we were compelled to go ahead to protect what we had already invested. We, therefore, organized the Alberta Irrigation Company and the St. Mary's River Railway Company. Under these new charters we have constructed about 120 miles of irrigation canals, which reclaim practically about half a million acres of land which was previously semi-arid, and forty-seven miles of narrow-guage colonization railway, following the lines of the canal. The amount invested in these enterprises was about nine million dollars, and while I am not satisfied with past results, I have confidence in the future. The demand for coal is steadily increasing; settlers are locating on our irrigated lands, towns are springing up, and in the early future the Lethbridge district will be second to none in the Territories.

"One of our new towns, Raymond, has a population of 2,000 and a beet-sugar factory erected at a cost of half a million dollars, which, and within a year or so, will form the principal source of the sugar supply for the Northwest. Our irrigation canals and narrow-guage railways were not regarded with much favour by financial people, and I am free to say it is due to Mr. Sifton, the Minister of the Interior, that from the moment he became convinced of their value as a colonization factor he gave us encouragement and liberal assistance, without which our development expend two would have ceased. With this co-operation our efforts are proving successful, and the country at large will benefit, as there are millions of acres of Government land which by irrigation can be made to produce crops independent of drouth or dry seasons."

"What are the general conditions in the Northwest?"

"Excellent, and most encouraging for the future."

"Do you think the Western policy of the Government is the best that could be adopted?"

"I regard the policy which is being followed to push forward the West as most effective and satisfactory. I do not see how it can well be improved, and I hope it will be continued."

Only Did His Duty as He Saw it

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy," says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and post master at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything. Very often to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure the flux (dysentery.) You are at liberty to use this testimonial as you please." For sale by All druggists.

Loud Voiced Africans.

The timbre of the voices among central Africans is usually good—deep and strong in the men, very melodious and sweet in the women. One notable peculiarity about the people is the forced key in which they always carry on conversation. The ordinary quiet tones of civilized speech are scarcely ever heard among them. They literally shout, and, such being their habit, it is a matter of indifference to them whether the person to whom they are speaking is close by or twenty yards away. "They are most tireless chatterers," says a traveler. "I doubt whether any other people in the world talk so much or laugh so much. Their laughter is particularly healthy, natural and unrestrained, a most exhilarating sound."

NEWS FROM THE ENGLISH TURF.

Special Letter to the Examiner Dealing with English Turf News.

Important Week in Turf Matters—The King at the Doncastor Meeting.

The Examiner has received the following special letter from England, dealing with turf topics which will be read with interest here:—

This has been an important week for "turfites" with the publication of the acceptances for the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire and the decision of the St. Leger. No fault can be found with the 50 acceptances for the long distance event but all sportsmen are sorry to note that Sceptre (top weight) has been scratched. Throwaway and Union Jack are also important discontents and top weight is now held by Bachelors Button 5 years, 9 st. 4th Maximum 11. 9 St. 13 lbs and Hammerkop (10 lbs extra 8 St. 12 lbs next. Sceptre has also been withdrawn from the Cambridgeshire and Pretty Polly (10 lbs extra) stands at the head of the handicap with an impost of 8 St. 12 lbs, with Caine 4 years, 8 St. and Union Jack 4 years, 8 St., next. Sixty one out of the one hundred and seven entered for the Cambridgeshire have accepted. Much may happen between now and the decision of the two races under notice and the majority of would be backers will stay their hands yet awhile. Hood Pigeon, who leads the quotations on the Cesarevitch is a three year old filly, trained by J. Chaloner, and is almost unknown. Her weight is 6 St. in the long distance race and 6 St. 2 lbs in the Cambridgeshire and she is favourite for both at twelves and twenties respectively. Of the light weight division Catgut, 6 St. 11 lbs, Dean Swift, 7 St, and Foundling, 7 St 1 lb, also catch the eye. As to the Cambridgeshire, one naturally wonders what Mayor Loder's intentions are regarding Pretty Polly. The filly has won her races so easily that the Cambridgeshire under 8 St 12 lbs might be within her compass. Foxhall the American, won as a three year old under 8 St and Florence 4 years carrying 8 St 1 lb to victory in 1884 which is the highest winning impost so far. Switchback, 7 St 5 lbs, Dean Swift, 7 St 4 lbs, and Lancashire, 7St cannot be ignored and Marsden, with 7 St 4 lbs (including 10 lbs penalty) will also find supporters.

Though Sceptre cannot now meet Pretty Polly in the Cambridgeshire the cracks of 1903 and 1904 may try conclusions in the Championship Stakes. In this Sceptre's weight is 8 St 11 lbs and Pretty Polly's 4 lbs less.

(Doncaster)

The Doncaster meeting opened under favourable conditions and the King and a most distinguished company were present. Interesting in the extreme is the best discription of the racing and dead-heats and victories by about heads were quite the order. Those who do not believe in the Gallinule stock as stayers got a set back when Mayor Loder's Hammerkop, won the Great Yorkshire Handicap run over one mile an 1454 yards. As a result the half sister to Pretty Polly earnt a 10 lbs penalty for the Newmarket races. Many famous colts and fillies have scored in the Champagne stakes, which on Tuesday produced a dead heat between Mr. E. Dresden's Galangal 9 St, and Lord Derby's Verdiana, 8 St 11 lbs, while Mr. L. Robinson's, Costly Lady, 8 St 11 lbs, was only a head away. The stakes were worth 1740 sovs and the 5 furlong 152 yards occupied 1 min 11 2-5 secs.

(The St. Ledger.)

That Pretty Polly won the St. Leger is of course ancient history by now. How Mayor Loder's filly won, however, may be of interest to readers of these notes. The field numbered half a dozen with a view of testing the Stamina of Pretty Polly, K Cannon forced the running with Ft Amant. The result was that the Derby winner was settled half a mile from home and the filly won by three lengths from Henry the First without being extended. And now for a few facts. The winner covered the course of one mile, six furlongs and 122 yards in 3 min 44-5 secs, the previous best being 3 min 32-5 as Costy Coridas. She was not distressed at the finish and there is no saying what the flying daughter of Gallinule-Admiration is really capable of doing. Lane rode the winner and it was his first success in the race. Altogether he did well at Doncaster and again passed Madden in the race for Cadership amo the jockeys. Pretty Polly's win in the St. Leger made her fourteen successes and brought the amount of stake she has credited her owner with to 30,607 sovs. This, however, is by no means a record as Donovan won 55,153 sovs in his first two seasons—and Flying Fox 40,094 sovs.

Space only allows of brief reference to other events. Mr. J. B. Joel's famous sprinter Sundridge, 9 St 7 lbs, only failed by a head to beat Lord Carnarvon's, Santry, 7 St 13 lbs, in the Portland Plate of 1095 sovs, five furlongs and 153 yards the field numbering seventeen.

(Doncaster Cup.)

Only three contested the Doncaster Cup of 1000 sovs, over two miles, this afternoon when Lord Carnarvons Robert Le Diable beat more fancied animals in Bachelors Button and Palmy Days. Pretty Polly turned out for the Park Hill Stakes of 15 sovs each with 300 sovs added, run over the old St Leger course and gained her fifteenth victory. Another important item on the card was the Prince of Wales's Nursery Plate of 1000 sovs, 1 mile in which Mr. Singer's, Kuroki, accomplished a smart performance by defeating twenty-two rivals.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, but by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

IN LOVING REMEMBERANCE

Of Mary O'Donoghue Who Died Aug. 21st. 1904.

In loving remembrance of Mary O'Donoghue who died August 21, 1904.

Death has called another, loved one,
Left another vacant school
Sent another bud to blossom
Within Heaven's golden shore.

This lovely bud so young so fair,
Called home by earthly doom
Just came to show how sweet a flower
In Emblemore would bloom.

To her parents she was lovely,
To her county a delight
Everyone seemed to be enamoured,
With this pretty flower so bright.

She felt her life's blood ebbing fast,
She knew her end was nigh
She kissed her mother saying,
That is the last before I die.

I leave my impress on your lips
For father and sister three,
Likewise for my five brothers,
And my aunt who was so dear.

Oh, we miss you in the school house
Where your face was often seen,
But now we know you are sleeping
Where the grass is growing.

Her last request dear children
To show kindness every day
To her little sister Gurtie
When she is passed away.

Yes she is gone her presence here
Seems but a passing wave
Like yesterday teaching school
To-day she fills a grave.

Fold up all her little treasures
Lay them carefully away,
Put aside her book and papers
Which reminds you of her day.

Aunty, hide away her lines of music
Lay the stool and cushion by
They will make you weep no often,
Make you think of days gone by.

Oh, I know you miss your darling,
Grieve for her when you're alone,
Her mother was kind to lend her to you
God was kinder to take her home.

Sometimes you, perhaps, will wonder
Why God took Mary away,
You'll all know why He took her,
When the mists have cleared away.

You may picture her as noble,
Had she lived to womanhood's years;
But remember, she is happier
Than if she lived for years.

Dear, dear, Mary, thou has left us
And your face we see no more,
Oh, may they who now are mourning
Meet you there to part no more.

She may be our "guardian angel,"
Waiting for her friends to come
To our bright and Heavenly home.

—Her co-mate, Mrs. T. F. Crowley, Downeyville

COINS NEW PHRASE

Chamberlain Scheme Declared to Be Empireschism.

LORD ROSEBERY AT LINCOLN

His Lordship Delivers a Fighting Speech—All the Evidence Entirely Against the Hypothesis That the Colonies Had Made a Preferential Offer—An Implication From Speech of Mr. Borden.

London, Sept. 21.—Lord Rosebery, speaking at Lincoln yesterday, said that Mr. Chamberlain began by ringing the Imperial chime and telling the country it would be criminal to neglect the offer made by the colonies, and, in the second place, that the preferential tax included a tax on food. All the evidence was entirely against this hypothesis. If the colonies had come to the motherland and asked us, in the interests of Imperial unity, to consider whether it was not possible to find some method for the mutual exchange of our products and theirs that would have been worthy of the consideration of the committee of experts.

There was no offer from the colonies, and the leading authorities of Canada and Australia had given no evidence that they intended such. The leader of the Opposition in Canada had declared in favor of Mr. Chamberlain's policy, which implied that the Laurier Government was not in favor of the scheme of Mr. Chamberlain. The agitation had been proved the baseless fabric of a dream. He considered a tax on the food of the people would not found an Empire, but would be the most dissolving and disintegrating influence that could be applied to the Empire. The agitation was becoming a little ridiculous when it left the region of argument and entered into the region of farce. This was not the way to raise great Imperial issues. It was not Imperialism but Empireschism.

London Press Comments.

The Standard, referring to Lord Rosebery's speech, says he had no difficulty in showing that the so-called offer from the colonies was a figment of the protectionist imagination. "We agree that a serious and definite demand from the colonies for an Imperial preferential tariff would deserve to be seriously considered by this country, though we might not accept it. We have positive evidence there would be strenuous resistance on the part of the Canadian manufacturers to any further lowering of the tariff imposed on British competitors. The mere suggestion would raise a storm in Canada, and so long as this is the Canadian policy we may in vain make an offer."

The Graphic said if Lord Rosebery read the colonial newspapers he would have been saved making so many absurd misstatements.

The Daily Chronicle, referring to Mr. Drummond's speech, calls the preference advocated by him a delusion, Britain receiving nothing in return for a preference on food and raw materials.

The Times, combatting Lord Rosebery's statement, that the colonial offer rests only on the conference of 1902 says it rests on the visible evidence of preferential treatment accorded by more than one of the self-governing colonies, also avowed the colonial readiness to enter into negotiations and, lastly, on Mr. Drummond's speech. Mr. Chamberlain's policy is based on a policy already adopted. The colonies are not to be dismissed by flouts and jeers.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS.

Committee Meetings Arranged After Which Reception Was Held.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—The thirty-third meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convened yesterday at the Windsor Hotel. The morning was taken up with arranging the committee meetings of the various trades.

A reception was held in the afternoon, and the first business meeting took place in the evening. Rev. Dr. Barclay pronounced the invocation, after which Mayor Laporte extended the welcome to the city to the delegates. Mr. McGill, president of the Montreal branch, and W. K. George, vice-president of the association, replied. The vice-president referred to the progress made by the association in three years, when it increased from 800 to 1,500 members.

George E. Drummond, president of the association, then read the annual address.

Fear a Yankee Raid.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Rumors of the formation of a filibustering expedition in the United States, directed against one of their number, has caused agitation among some of the Central American Republics. King's Prisoners Made Sergeant.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 21.—Private Perry, King's prize winner, was entertained at dinner Monday evening by the officers and men of his company in the sixth regiment, Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles. Mr. Brown Re-Nominated.

London, Sept. 20.—Cattle are firmer at 10c to 12¼c per lb.; refrigerator beef, 8¾c to 9¼c per lb. Sheep 10½ to 11¼c, dressed weight.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock were 102 car loads as reported by Messrs. Fox & Hay of the C. P. R. and G. T. R., composed of 1512 cattle, 859 hogs, 3100 sheep and lambs, 859 hogs, 111 calves.

There seemed to be no demand for shipping cattle, and had there been any dealers wanting them they could not have got any of choice quality. There may have been one or two loads that were intended for exporters, but they were bought up as feeders. Export bulls, of which there were several, sold at $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt. One choice quality 2-year-old. Bulls, brought by W. H. Bailey, weighing 1470 lbs., sold at $4.60 per cwt., but this was the best quality bull seen on the market in months.

There were few good quality butchers' cattle offered and only a limited number brought over $4 per cwt. The highest sale reported was for a picked lot of 8 weighing 1025 lbs. each at $4.37½, sold by Maybee Wilson; Corbett, Henderson & Mayne sold two weighing 1100 lbs., each at $4.35; and McDonald & Maybee sold 24 weighing 1170 lbs. each at $4.25, and one lote of 24, averaging 1010 lbs. each, at $4.15 per cwt., and another lot of 5 cattle at $4.05; and Maybee & Wilson sold a lot of 20, weighing 1000 lbs. each at $4.12½ per cwt. Medium sold at $3.50 to $3.75; common sold at $3 to $3.25 and inferior rough at $2.50 to $2.75 per cwt.

The bulk of offerings of feeders and stockers, which was large, were of common to inferior quality, only a limited number of choice lots being offered. Trade was good for the best qualities, but slow for inferior lots. Feeders weighing from 900 to 1000 lbs. each sold all the way from $3.60 to $3.90 per cwt.; those weighing 800 to 850 lbs., $3 to $3.40; stockers of good quality $2.75 to $3 for those weighing 700 to 700 and inferior qualities at $2.25 to $2.50. Distillery bulls, 1300 to 1800 lbs. each, at $2.75 to $3.12½ per cwt.

There was a liberal supply of milch cows and springers, many of which were of medium to good quality. The demand for them was good and prices ranged from $30 to $53 each. The bulk of offerings sold from $35 to $45 each.

The demand for veal calves was good for all of good to choice quality. Prices ranged from $3.50 to $5.25 per cwt. for the general run, with extra choice quality at $5.50 per cwt.

The run of sheep and lambs was large, over 3000 being sold. Sheep were firm at on Saturday last. Mr. Harris reports at $3 to $3.25 per cwt.; culls sold at $2.50 to $3.50 per cwt. Lambs sold at $4.12½ to $4.65 per cwt., the bulk going at about $4.40 per cwt. While the trade was reported as being good for sheep, the lamb trade was reported as being much slower.

Deliveries of hogs were not large and prices were easy at the decline reported on Saturday last. Mr. Harris reports reports the quality as not being good, in many instances he had to cull out a large percentage of lean stubble hogs, with little or no fat on them. Price for selects was $5.15, lights and fats $4.90 per cwt.

Best Package For Apples.

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—In response to departmental instructions, agents in Great Britain are reporting to the Department of Trade and Commerce as to the style of package most favored in England for apples. The report of the commercial agent in Leeds and Hull was received at the department, and its contents quite upset the theory that the box is the apple package universally approved in England. Of a dozen centres of importation to which enquiries were addressed, half of them reported in favor of the barrel, while others were divided in opinion as between the barrel and the box, preferring the latter only for the choicest varieties of apples.

INTERESTING EVENT IN SOCIAL CIRCLES.

A Delightful Wedding Ceremony This Afternoon on Park Street.

Miss Annie Arnold Brace Married to Mr. Arthur J. Black of Chatham —A Delightful Occasion.

This afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, the residence of Rev. A. H. Brace, the pastor of the Park street Baptist church, on Park street, was the scene of a delightful wedding event, when his only daughter, Annie Arnold, was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur J. Black, of Chatham, son of William Black, of Abingdon, Ont. The event was one which created wide-spread interest, the bride being a very popular young lady in town, and particularly so amongst the members of the church of which her father has charge.

About one hundred guests were present at the wedding, which was performed in the drawing room, beautifully decorated for the auspicious occasion by the members of the bride's Sunday school class. Under a large arch of chrysanthemums the bridal party stood, the bride entering the room on the arm of her father, and the ceremony was performed by the following clergymen, Rev. A. H. Brace, father of the bride, Rev. A. P. Brace, of Newtonbrook, the bride's brother, and Rev. M. McKinnon, pastor of the Gilmour Memorial church.

The bride was beautifully gowned in a stylish dress of ivory silk with bertha of satin ribbon, on a ground work of lace, and a shurred silk yoke. The skirt was shurred, and frills of silk around the bottom further relieved it. She carried a shower bouquet of white bridal roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Lyllie Butler, of Hamilton, was dressed in a handsome gown of champagne silk voile over taffeta, trimmed with chiffon and lace, with chiffon bertha, and silk yoke; She carried pink roses. The bride's mother was gowned in a black silk voile over taffeta, with bertha of real lace. As the bridal party entered the room Mendelssohn's wedding march, was played by Master Lincoln Brace, brother of the bride, while another brother, E. Garfield, of Toronto, assisted the groom.

After the ceremony, dainty refreshments were served, and the bride held a reception to her friends, before leaving on the wedding tour, upon which Mr. and Mrs. Black left on the 5.10. C.P.R. train, the itinerary of the trip including Toronto, where they will be guests at the King Edward Hotel, Newtonbrook, Hamilton, Brantford, London, and to their future home in Chatham. The trip will occupy about three weeks.

The bride's going away gown was of blue ladies cloth, tastefully trimmed with black silk and buttons, with a hat to match.

That the bride was a very popular young lady, was attested to by the fact that there was an unusually large array of very beautiful presents, numbering over one hundred, and many of them of considerable value. The gifts of the groom to the bride were a Gourlay piano, and a beautiful pearl crescent. The bride's Sunday school class presented her with a handsome silver mounted biscuit jar of ornate design, while other gifts were sent from Vancouver, B. C., Regina, N.W.T., and other places at a distance.

Mrs. Black starts out on her married life with the best wishes of her very large circle of friends here and elsewhere, by whom she has has made herself greatly beloved.

MISS DELANEY.

SOCIAL-MUSICALE A GREAT SUCCESS.

Delightful Programme Presented at the Y. M. C. A. Last Evening.

Season of 1904-5 Opened—Very Large Number Present—Introduction of of New Physical Director.

The Y.M.C.A. season of 1904-5 was opened under very auspicuous circumstances at the Association Hall last evening when one of the most successful social-musicales ever held in connection with this institution was given. The event attracted a very large number of the gentlemen of the town and their lady friends who were present in such large numbers that the Assembly Hall, the three adjoining class rooms and the hallway were crowded to overflowing. The turnout was certainly one such as should encourage the management by the assurance that not only the young men but the citizens generally are in hearty sympathy with the work of the Association.

A programme of more than usual merit was presented by local talent and was heartily enjoyed by the large audience. Col. E. B. Edwards, President of the Association, made a capital chairman.

The first number was a piano solo, Rubenstein's "Impromptu," which was rendered with splendid effect by Miss Alice K. Roger. Mr. Jas. Dawson was very successful in his rendition of Tosti's "Good-bye," which was highly appreciated. Miss Maude Crothers, violin solo, "Berceuse," from Jocelyn, was excellently executed, the tone being sweet and pure, the technique accurate and the shading effective. Miss Crothers responded to a hearty encore. A very enjoyable number was Mrs. K. Bardley-Wilmot's solo "Forget, Forgive," which was sung with deep feeling and in fine voice.

The chairman then introduced to the audience Mr. Percy K. Holmes, the new Physical Director of the Association. The chairman spoke of the work of the Y.M.C.A. which was represented by a triangle, the three sides of which were the spiritual, mental and physical. The spiritual formed the base or foundation of the work, though it was ably supported by the other two departments. The Y.M.C.A. gave much attention to the social side of life and they were pleased to welcome their lady friends on the present occasion. He referred to the lady who founded the Y.M.C.A. work in Peterborough, saying that all should be thankful for her spirit of liberality which did so much for the work in this town. The physical department was doing a great work, for it was well to have one's physical powers developed to a high degree to fit man better for the battle of life. The Association believed that in securing the services of Mr. Holmes they had got the stamp of man they had been looking for, an all round man who was developed in all sides of Y. M. C. A. work.

Mr. Holmes thanked the audience for the hearty manner in which he had been received, stating that since coming to Peterborough he had received nothing but the greatest of kindness on all sides. He was glad to return to Canada after spending some time across the border. Canada was a country with a great future, its resources were endless, its advantages were many and its prospects of the brightest. The young men of the Dominion were constantly congregating at the great centres and it was necessary to do something to keep them from the many evil influences which surround them. The speaker referred to the first Y.M.C.A. organized in London many years ago. In 1844 the work extended to America where a great deal of good has been accomplished. With the co-operation of the Y.W.C.A., Y.M.C.A. and the churches in town, there should be a great work accomplished among the young men.

Mr. J. Laurence scored a great success in his solo, "Sing Me to Sleep." Mr. Laurence's delightful tenor voice was heard to much advantage in this number which was very expressively rendered. For an encore he sang "Violets." Miss Crothers' second number was a Nevitna, by Bohm, and was played in a manner doing great credit to this talented young musician. Mr. R. N. Jolliffe sang "The Sailor's Grave," and for an encore sang "I Long For You." Mrs. Wilmot sang "A Cradle Song," with splendid effect and for an encore gave "Only a Rosebud."

The accompanists for the evening were Miss A. K. Roger, Miss Crothers, Miss E. L. Jolliffe and Mr. G. Schneider.

After the programme refreshments were served by the Social Committee and a most pleasant time was spent. The event was certainly a pronounced success in every way.

The Trent Valley Navagation Company's steamer, Empress, has been taken off the Lakefield, Stony Lake points and Burleigh Falls route for the season. 2d

The Deputation's Visit to Ottawa was Successful—Mr. R. R. Hall Sends Word to That Effect.

A telegram was received this afternoon from Mr. R. R. The telegram says: Satisfactory arrangements made with the Government for the immediate acceptance of our proposition."

The proposition made to the members of the Government by the deputation was that the Government should advance $10,000 towards the purchase of the Murray street school grounds upon which with those of the Central Park the new drill hall and Collegiate Institute should be erected. The town will raise $10,000 and the School Board has already voted a similar amount, so that with the ready acceptance by the Government of the town's proposition the plan as outlined will be carried out, and it is now practically decided that the new drill hall for which an appropriation has already been placed in the estimates, and the Collegiate Institute will both be erected on the grounds, now occupied by the Central Park and the Murray street school, turning this into a beautiful spot in the centre of the town.

CONCERT ATTRACTIONS FOR THIS SEASON

First of a Series of Concerts on Tuesday, October 11th.

The winter season is coming on again. There is still no opera house in Peterborough, and the probabilities are that this town will be no better looked after in the way of attractions than it has been in the past. This much is certain, that there will be no dramatic or operatic productions and the public will have to depend on concert attractions for their amusements again this season.

A syndicate of young men, who realize this fact, and who are actuated solely by the desire to provide good high class concerts, have arranged for a series of concerts to be given during the winter, and the first of the series will be given on Tuesday, October 11th, when the following artists will appear:

Miss M. V. Michaelis, Meriton, Conn., soprano; Mr. Frank Bemrose, tenor; Mr. Paul Hahn, 'cellist; Miss Wilhelmine Gumpricht, pianist; Mr. Jack Challis, Toronto, boy soprano.

These artists have a good reputation, and the combination should present an exceedingly good programme.

PETERBOROUGH BOY WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Mr. Fred. J. Sawers Secured $400 Scholarship at Montreal Theological College.

The many friends in Peterborough of Mr. Fred J. Sawers, son of Mr. A. Sawers, of town, will learn with genuine pleasure that he has been very successful in his recent examinations in Montreal Diocese Theological College, and secured a scholarship of $100. Mr. Sawers, who has until quite recently been on the teaching staff of the Trinity College School, Port Hope, will probably in the future be associated with Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal.

This success of a well known and highly respected Peterborough boy will be welcome news to the many friends of the clever young man here. The Examiner adds its congratulations.

DELIGHTFUL LECTURE BY REV. J. G. LEWIS.

Interesting Description of a Recent Trip to the British Isles.

The Places Visited by the Party and the Main Incidents of the Trip—Lord Aberdeen's Kindness.

Last night a good sized crowd gathered in Mark street Methodist church to hear Rev. J. G. Lewis give a lecture on his recent trip to the British Isles, and those who attended were thoroughly pleased with the evening's entertainment. The reverend gentleman has evidently good power of observation, and couple with that the faculty of explaining in an interesting manner, the objects of his observation. As he described the many places visited by him on his trip, the audience followed him with wrapt attention, and although the lecture occupied about ninty minutes in its delivery no one was wearied in the slightest, and it was with a feeling of regret that the conclusion of the talk was listened to.

The party of which Mr. Lewis was a member, included Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Samforth, of Trenton, and Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis. They left for England towards the close of June, and spent Dominion Day on the Atlantic, and upon that day the Canadians passengers gave a patriotic concert. On the Sunday spent on the water Mr. Lewis preached the sermon. The trip over occupied 10 days, most of the time the boat travelling through dense fogs. The boat arrived at Liverpool on Sunday and the party had the pleasure of hearing Rev. Ian MacLaren, the great Scotch writer and preacher. Chester, an historic city was next visited, and the old walls and fortifications were seen. A delightful trip into Wales formed the next stage of journey, and the scenery here was described as being unsurpassed. A visit to the region of the slate quarries was one of great interest to the tourists, and the methods made use of in the production of this commodity were fully explained. Rev. Mr. Lewis took a side trip to the southern part of England where he visited the old home of his father, and afterwards went to the world's great metropolis, where many highly interesting sights were witnessed. En route, a stop was made at Stratford-on-Avon, Shakespeare's home, and his birth place visited.

While in London the party visited the Parliament Buildings, and through the courtesy of Hon. Edward Blake were admitted to the British House of Commons, and Lord Aberdeen, a former Governor-General of Canada, escorted the party through the House of Lords, and showed them marked attention, explaining fully many interesting features.

The trip back to Liverpool was made on one of England's fast trains, going the 240 miles in four hours, which is pretty fast running for that distance. All road crossings go over the tracks on bridges, thus greatly lessening the danger to parsons driving.

A delightful part of the trip was the ten days spent in the Emerald Isle, and here much of great interest to the traveller was seen. The city of Dublin very favourably impressed them and the time spent in the country was indeed pleasant.

The return trip was made on the "Canada," of the Dominion Line, the same steamer upon which the Black Watch Band crossed the Atlantic, and two concerts each day were given by that famous aggregation of musicians, to the great delight of the hundreds of passengers.

All these incidents of the trip, and many others, were told by the speaker in a most interesting way, and the evening was certainly an enjoyable one.

Interspersing the lecture the choir gave several selections, including anthems, male quartettes and cornet duets, and at the close a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the speaker, being moved by Rev. C. E. Cragg, S.T.L., of Manilla, and seconded by Mr. Jas. Stubbs.

To-night Rev. Mr. Lewis repeats the lecture at Union Hall, Otonabee.

ART COLLECTION OF GREAT MERIT.

The Work of Miss Wallis, a Former Peterborough Lady.

An Artist of More than Continental Reputation—A Great Treat for Art Lovers in Peterborough.

On Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday there will be an interesting exhibit of objects of art, statuary, etc., at the Y.M.C.A., to the view of which the public is cordially invited. Such an opportunity should not be neglected for outside of the few rare good things in art in private residences there are no public collections such as are to be found in cities, to exercise an educative influence. It is only by accident that the choice little collection referred to is not delighting art-loving visitors in the art gallery of the St. Louis Exposition. This collection is largely composed of the work of Miss Wallis, a former resident of Peterborough, and now here on a visit. Miss Wallis by the place she has won in the guild of artists, has brought honour to this town and to Canada. For the past four years she has had her atelier in Paris, France, a renowned art centre, where she pursued her studies in sculpture, having previously studied with the best masters in England. Miss Wallis' art was born with her. At an early age she had accepted at the Edinburgh Art Exhibition, a copy work. This acceptance was to be considered a great credit to her artistic skill, for while original works of only modest merit are accepted, a copyist must show decided skill and talent to secure a place. She now takes rank with the artists of the French Capital. The acceptance of her works by the Paris Salon is the "hall mark" of merit, for none but the best artistic work is accepted.

Miss Wallis having available several pieces of her work designed to make an exhibit at St. Louis, with a spirit creditable to her Canadian patriotism, instead of making her exhibit under British or American auspices, as she was invited to do, she aimed to do so under Canadian auspices. Her collection was forwarded to Canada—to the gallery of the Canadian Royal Academy of Arts, Montreal. But it was found that made from Miss Wallis' collection of sculpture, which received the highest commendation of the highest Government officials and prominent judges of art, there was not sufficient works of Canadian sculpture of sufficient merit and number to warrant the making of a national exhibit at St. Louis. Miss Wallis brought her collection to Peterborough where it will be on public view. The following comprise the chief of this collection, beginning with:

Marble bust of child "Mignonne," exhibited in the Royal Academy, London, 1903.

Replica of bronze statute of a Dachshund—exhibited at the International Art Exhibition, Dresden, 1901. The original was purchased by the Dresden Exhibition authorities to have a permanent place among the art treasures of this noted art city.

Bronze statuette—"La Toilette"—a replica in stone—exhibited in the Royal Academy, London, 1901.

The work of other artists on exhibition is represented by a terra cotta group—"Lion attacking a Wild Boar," the splendid work of an eminent Parisian artist.

An interesting photograph in the collection is that of a group by Miss Wallis — the original being in the Paris Salon of this year — "Mercury Charmed by his own Invention." This statue may, perhaps, be regarded as, so far, Miss Wallis' chef d'oeuvre, and has received most satisfying encomiums. The Examiner has been favoured with a view of several letters on the subject. Mr. Hector Fabre, Canadian Commissioner General in France, writes to Miss Wallis:

"I went again with an experienced judge of works of art, to see your statue at your studio. This has more than confirmed my first impression at the Salon, and my friend agreed with me, as other critics and artists have done before — that you had displayed a skill and talent of a very high order, and that some recognition ought to be extended in my own country to an artist who has attained such a degree of eminence in a foreign land, and in an artistic centre like Paris."

Elizabeth Nourse, the most celebrated American artist, in Paris, writes:

"I was most happy to see your work at the Salon, and very much pleased to see what strong work can be done by a woman. I hope the figure has gone to St. Louis, and that you may not have to bring it back to Europe. I really think your Government should buy it, as a handsome acquisition to some museum, and also to encourage art amongst its own children, as France does."

Mons. Waldmann, an eminent French sculptor, writes.

"Miss Wallis has shown her habitual talent in conception and execution of her work — 'Mercury Charmed by His Own Invention,' sent to Paris Salon, 1904, catalogued No. 3366. This work does the greatest honour to its clever executant, for it is entirely due to her own chisel."

Miss Wallis has also on exhibition, photographs of paintings in the Louvre. Copies of these paintings, by excellent artists, may be obtained through Miss Wallis.

WHEREABOUTS OF LILA PRESTON

Mysterious Disappearance from the C. P. R. Station of Little Girl.

A strange disappearance is reported from the C. P. R. station. A little girl, named Lila Preston, was sent from Cavanville to Peterborough by the C. P. R., arriving here last Monday morning on the 11.35 C. P. R. train. Upon her arrival at the station she went into the waiting room to await the arrival of her friends, who were to come for her, but on going to the station after the little girl they were surprised to find that she had disappeared, and no trace of her could be found, and although diligent search for her has been made her whereabouts has not yet been learned. She wore a blue dress and a white pinafore, and wore on her head a blue and white straw hat.

Any information as to her whereabouts will be gladly received at the police station.

CANADA'S ARCTIC LAND

RECENT WORK DONE BY THE GOVERNMENT VESSEL, THE NEPTUNE.

Major Moodie, Governor of Hudson Bay, Tells What Has Been Accomplished by the 1903 Expedition During the Twelve Months They Were Shut Off From Civilization in These Far Northern Waters.

Major Moodie, who has been appointed Governor of Hudson Bay, is at Ottawa, where, with Mrs. Moodie who will accompany him, he is preparing for their next long residence in the north. This time he has full authority to administer the territory, and will remain in the north two years before returning to civilization. The headquarters of the party will be made at Fullerton. This place is on the northwest side of the Bay and may now be formed as the capital of the territory.

When Governor Moodie goes north again it will be by the Gauss, recently purchased from Germany to permanently replace the Neptune, and the ship is now fitting out at Quebec with provisions, frame houses, and a reinforcement of ten men for Major Moodie.

The story of the Neptune's work is thus interestingly told by a special correspondent at St. John's, Newfoundland, who interviewed Major Moodie on his return not long ago. Having no ship suitable for ice work, the Government chartered the sealing steamer Neptune, of this port in July, 1903, and fitting her out for this extended voyage, despatched her north on August 22 of that year.

The Neptune was in charge of Captain S. W. Bartlett, the Newfoundland ice master who commanded Peary's ships, and her crew composed of fifteen other Newfoundlanders, all skilled in ice work. The expeditionary party consisted of two sections—the scientific, under A. P. Low, of the Geological Survey, and the military, under Major Moodie, of the Northwest Police, empowered to establish himself there with his detachment of five men, build a fort and assume official control of the territory. Including cooks, stewards and subordinates, the ship carried forty-three persons and a year's supplies for them.

The Neptune first proceeded to Cumberland Gulf, an inlet on the east coast of Baffinland, the country which bounds Hudson Bay on the northeast. This is a sub-Arctic region, only scantily peopled even by natives, and its interior was explored. Cumberland Gulf is one of the last resorts of the now vanishing species of northern or "right" whales, and the hunt for these is conducted in rather rudimentary fashion by a United States and two Scotch concerns, which have established stations on shore, whence the fishing is conducted.

There is one white man in charge of each, and all the work is done by the Esquimaux, who become as expert as any others in the use of whaling boats and weapons, and as they are hired for a weekly ration of four pounds of "hard tack," two pounds of molasses and four plugs of tobacco, it is easy to understand that the industry is very economically prosecuted. They hunt the whales with harpoons and lances of modern type, using first class whale boats, and the "bone" is cleaned and the oil tried out on shore. These products are sheltered in capacious outhouses for the annual visit of the supply vessel Alert, which brings provisions and other articles and takes the oil and bone away.

About one hundred and fifty natives are attached to each station—men, women and children—and when whales are scarce they hunt walruses or go into the interior after deer, or venture out on the ice floes for seals, which they use for food, the skins being converted into inside and summer clothing and for covering their kzacks (boats) and tepees (tents). In winter they clothe themselves in deer skins and live in igloo (snow houses).

Two white men who had run away from whale-ships and settled among these natives, marrying into the tribe and adopting their manner of life, were found at one station, and declared themselves quite satisfied with their lot.

The visit of the Neptune to these stations was to hoist the British flag over them, assert Canadian authority by compelling them to pay duties on their outfits, and promulgate Canadian laws in the region, and these matters having been accomplished without any friction she came south again early in September and entered Hudson Bay through the straits of that name. There she sought for the United States whalers which visit there every summer, but only one was found, the Era, of New Bedford, Captain Conner in charge.

She was called upon to accept the altered status of matters and pay duty on her equipment, and did so without demur, and a similar policy was adopted with a third Scotch station found in Repulse Bay. This comprised the sum of what might be termed the Neptune's aggressive work, and she next sought a haven in which to shelter for the winter months. This was found in Fullerton Harbor, on the northwest side of the bay, where the Era also found winter quarters. The ship's company landed the lumber and materials to erect the barracks for Major Moodie and his men, and this was carried out, so that Fullerton may now be termed the capital of Hudson Bay. A native tribe settled near, and the place came to be by no means lonely.

For the nine months the ship was frozen in nothing was done beyond taking tidal and meteorological observations daily. On July 18 of this year the ship got free once more, and being now short of coal, made for the outlet of Hudson Strait again, where a steamer was to meet her with an extra supply as well as another year's provisions.

This steamer, the Erik, met her as expected, and, having transferred these indispensables to her, came back to St. John's and Major Moodie availed himself of the opportunity to return by her to confer with the Ottawa Government upon affairs of State.

The Neptune after having coaled started to proceed as far into the higher latitudes as she could, hoisting the Union Jack at intervals and annexing all the territory once more for Canada. This course is taken because there has been talk of the United States, and also of Canada, purchasing Greenland and the adjacent regions, and it was felt to be wise for Canada to have secured every acre of land there whose ownership was disputed, against the possibility of United States acquirement of the remainder. When she can get no further north she will return to the bay again and conduct investigations in its different areas as to the marine wealth thereof, in order to determine what fisheries of commercial value exist there.

On that point there is a wide diversity of opinion, and the Neptune's experience is expected to settle the question. If it is favorable Government aid will be given for a railroad from Manitoba to Port Churchill, on the west shore of Hudson Bay, from where grain ships will ply to Europe sufficiently long to take out the wheat crop the fall it is harvested, whereas if the report is adverse the scheme will be abandoned and the existing route will have to be relied upon as heretofore.

The cruiser work and law enforcement will in future devolve upon the Gauss, which will be re-named the Arctic. One of the questions which took Major Moodie to Ottawa is that of the action to be taken against the United States whalers. According to Canada's claims the whole of Hudson Bay from the very jaws of the strait where it meets the Atlantic is a closed sea and all who are not British subjects are poachers in its waters. Major Moodie is also concerned over the illicit trading carried on around the shores of the bay by whalers, traders and fishers, and proposes an altered method of dealing with it. The present plan is for the police post at Fullerton and the cruiser to patrol the bay. But its perimeter is about six thousand miles altogether and it affords unequalled facilities for smuggling and illicit trade, especially as for half a century the whites frequenting the region have been accustomed to do as they liked.

The wealth of Hudson Bay both on land and water has hitherto been garnered almost wholly by the Hudson Bay Company. That concern monopolised the trade in peltries. It also controlled the traffic with the natives. It enterprised the whale fishery and engaged in the chase of seals, walruses, wiwhales, narwhals and porpoises, and the salmon fishery in the rivers was its alone. But of late years a number of rivals have arisen and are cutting into its business.

All the whalers traffic in peltries, ivory, hides, feathers and the like. The Newfoundland fishermen tempt the natives to barter with them in Labrador and Ungava. A French company to engage in the fur trade has been formed in Paris and has two steamers in the bay this summer, while other ventures of a similar kind are being contemplated in Canada and New England.

The Dominion Government obtains no revenue from the ships of all these parties which enter the bay, and the Canadian laws against the slaughter of wild animals are utterly disregarded.

Hogue Will Hang.

TO KEEP FRIENDS.

Be Interested In Them, but Never Descend to Curiosity.

If you would have friends be interested in them.

There is a difference between interest and curiosity. Never be curious.

Interest asks nothing, but is glad of others' joys and sorry for others' misfortunes. Curiosity seeks to find more than is written upon the surface, seeks it for the purpose of distribution, for innocent slander.

One's friends like one to be interested. They detest one who is curious.

To be interested in those one meets needs but to wish them well.

To see the best of those about us will cause us to wish them well.

To our wellwishers we pour out our joys and sorrows. They are interested. They understand.

The interested friend always understands. The curious acquaintance never sees through motives. The curious one is blinded by his own interpretation of causes and his prejudiced view of results.

Don't, therefore, seek to know what is hidden. If your friend conceals something from you he has a reason for doing it. Prove your interest and your lack of vulgar curiosity by trusting him in spite of the concealment.

Those who are truly interested and never curious are surrounded by friends.

A CITY WITHOUT TAXES.

All Its Expenses Are Paid by the Income From Its Property.

In the Black forest of Germany is the little city of Freudenstadt, with about 7,000 inhabitants, a busy industrial place with iron and chemical works of some importance.

Small as it is, Freudenstadt is a full fledged city, with a mayor, aldermen, half a dozen policemen and a fire engine. The public business is conducted on an economical basis, and the total expenses do not exceed £5,000 in a year.

Freudenstadt has the distinction of being the only city in Germany and perhaps in the world which does not tax the citizens a shilling for municipal expenses. The yearly net revenue from the public property covers all the expenditure.

This property consists of about 6,000 acres of fine forest, which, being managed under the best forestry methods, is a permanent source of income. One or more trees are planted for every one that is cut down. No tree is cut till it can yield the maximum profit.

After deducting all the expenses of the industry the annual profit to the acre is about £1.

Origin of Texts.

The custom of taking a text as the basis of a sermon originated with Ezra, who, accompanied by several Levites in a public congregation of men and women, ascended a pulpit, opened the book of the law and, after a prayer, "read in the book in the law of God distinctly and gave the sense and caused them to understand the reading."

Previous to the time of Ezra the patriarchs delivered in public assemblies either prophecies or moral instructions, and it was not until the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity, during which they had almost lost the language in which the Pentateuch was written, that it became necessary to explain as well as to read the Scriptures to them.

The Frolicsome Scallop.

The scallop takes life less seriously and servilely than his cousins, the clams and oysters. The oyster can't move from his place; the clam can, but rarely does. The scallop is as free as a bird almost to the end of his days. Then, again, the scallop has temperament. He exhibits the frolicsomeness of childhood, as higher animals do. We see little scallops by tens and dozens darting swiftly here and there in the water by a quick opening and shutting of the two valves of their shells. They are as graceful as a flock of snowbirds and as vivacious. Capture one, lay it on the sand, and it snaps its valves, impatient of the interruption, if we interpret the signs aright. It is altogether happy if put back in the pool.—Country Life In America.

ODD BURIAL CUSTOMS.

Some Strange Observances Among Australian Tribes.

There are some queer customs observed by the native Australians, their modes of disposing of the dead being noticeable and varied. When a mother loses a favorite child she carries the dead body about with her in a box or casing of bark until decomposition forces her to dispose of it either by burial or fire.

In the case of some prominent person of the tribe dying his nearest relatives cut off his hands and keep them as sacred remembrances, only parting with them after the odor from the dead members has become unendurable. Then they are thrown into a stream, hidden in a hollow tree or burned.

Women are held in such contempt among the Australian tribes that often they receive no burial at all, and it is a rare thing to see one mourned for by family and friends. But at the funeral of a man or boy the lamentations are loud and long, the female mourners being the most demonstrative.

With some of the tribes the practice of throwing the bodies of the dead over the branches of trees and leaving them for nature to dispose of is observed.

Right to the Point.

To do even the most humble work worthily and well something more than blind mechanical service must be given. A young mistress once asked her cook about a certain recipe. "Just how much flour do you put in, Mary?" "Law, mum, you don't follow any rule; you just use your jedgment!" "But suppose you don't have any 'jedgment,'" returned the puzzled mistress. "Then don't cook!" was the reply, succinct and to the point.

FEATHERING THE NEST

By LWELLEN TETERS

Copyright, 1904, by Lwellen Teters

"You see," Young went on confidentially, "Tom's income is very small, but when two people fall in love what else can they do but marry? He works from 8 to 6 every day and can't attend to feathering the nest himself, and she lives way up in the country. He wants me to select a four room flat and get all the furniture. Would you help me? I'd be so grateful."

She glanced away from the eagerness of his face. The open piano reminded her of the pupils coming for lessons in the morning. Some stockings stuffed tightly in her workbasket near by warned her of necessary darning. There was a hat to trim over so she could go to church on Sunday. Countless other petty duties arrayed themselves silently before her in stubborn protest.

It had required a veritable pocketing of pride for her to apprise Goring of her arrival in town, because of his forgetfulness of her in the time following their last meeting. Had he not been the only one she knew in the big, throbbing city doubtless the dainty little missive would never have been sent. But fate pends on trivialities, and May Carlton feared solitude more than she feared the past. A distasteful suitor was wooing her with all of the gilded persuasiveness of his wealth, championed by her aunt. But Goring did not know of this. He knew only that May Carlton was temporarily domiciled at a chilly, stuffy boarding house which breathed of frying meats at no matter what hour he called and that there was wistful pleading in her eyes.

"We will go to lunch first," Goring put in insinuatingly; "that is, if you will?"

"Thank you, but I am afraid I cannot possibly go until afternoon," she said firmly, with inward sacrifices, the hat could go until next week; surely there were greater sins than not attending church.

It was much easier selecting a flat than the furniture, as they discovered after weary pilgrimages through department stores trying to perform that miracle commonly known as buying what one wants at the price one can afford, for the flat, provided over by a smoky, generously whiskered janitor, who insisted on taking them for his prospective tenants and asking them at disconcerting intervals the size of their family, was decided on almost at first glance merely because Miss Carlton liked the parlor mantel and Goring admired the size of the icebox.

But each time she returned from the cheerful little home that they were so engrossed in preparing for the bride and groom it was to sink aghast at the loneliness of her own life as she climbed up the three interminable flights of stairs to her room. Her few scholars barely sufficed to meet the exactions of her landlady. The thought of the little flat uptown mocked her with its insinuating air of home and domesticity. The instinct was strong within her for a nest of her own. It was only because of the inherent fondness for the home, as the bird builds its nest and feathers it tenderly for its mate, that she had been interested in the labor.

When Goring called for her that afternoon to complete the final arrangements in the little home, there was no trace of the grief she had endured the previous evening. As he was announced she was even beginning a letter to her distasteful suitor, and she thrust it into her pocket in her haste to accompany Goring.

"Do you think they'll like it?" she asked anxiously.

"Like it? They'll be crazy over it! Wouldn't you?"

"Yes, I would like it." She stifled a sigh that echoed in her heart.

She had been about to sign her name to that bit of paper which would mean for her a splendid mansion, horses and all the accessories of affluence, but her heart yearned for the tiny nest in which she stood and the one man to share it with her. Something suffocating arose in her throat.

"I'm sorry it's finished," Goring broke in. "I had no idea it was so interesting. Tom left three days ago for the wedding; they ought to be here tomorrow. I suppose they won't have a house warming."

May Carlton looked at him impulsively; tomorrow was her last day in town; she had resolved to seal her fate and go back to that other man, afraid to pit her puny strength longer against the world. She longed for one more taste of happiness, reluctant to take the decisive step.

"Why couldn't we arrange it as a surprise?" she cried eagerly. "It will be awfully cheerless for a bride, coming to a dark house without one light to greet her. Oh, please!"

Goring glanced into her flushed, wistful face, thinking of that summer time past and the man who rumor said had robbed him of her love.

"Well, we will. I'll see a caterer"—

"A caterer? When I can bake the most poetical biscuit and make ambrosia from mere coffee. Oh, what do we want of any ignorant, expert food maker?" she cried.

"In your hands then," he bowed in mock gravity.

Sundry mysterious parcels dispatched by Goring kept arriving all afternoon after May reached the flat, each breathing its own delectable secret. She donned a huge white apron and began her preparations early, for Goring had telephoned her that he thought the couple would arrive at 6 and he would drive up with them.

But he stepped in alone, unannounced, for he had retained one of the keys, and entered an atmosphere of delicious, savory odors. A bright light radiated from kitchen and he stood silently in the doorway, unseen by her, admiring her as she stooped to baste the golden brown fowl in the oven. Goring said nothing. There was a telegram in his pocket, and he hesitated to mar her pleasure all at once.

"Oh!" She nervously dropped her cooking spoon as he crossed the threshold.

"It's better than an Alma-Tadema," he commented, drinking in the homelike suggestions.

"I hope they'll be happy." She gave the fowl an undeserved prick with the fork, fluttering at something indefinable in his manner.

"Would—you be—here?" he asked unsteadily and with abruptness.

A piercing whistle at the dumb waiter interfered with her reply. It was the ice cream coming up with convulsive movements and noisy creaking, sent by an overpunctual confectioner. Metaphorically Goring received it as a cold douche to his hopes.

"Isn't it almost time for them?" she inquired anxiously, regretting the lost opportunity which had rudely interrupted the hovering sentiment. "I thought you were going to meet them?"

Slowly he took the telegram out of his pocket, extending it toward her.

"What is it? Nothing serious I hope!" she cried in alarm.

"No! Only Tom has been ordered west by his firm to manage a branch house. It means the making of his future. They're not coming here, after all."

"Oh, and the turkey so beautiful!" She sank weakly in a chair, tears filling her eyes. "I'm so sorry"—

Goring crossed the room and placed his arm around her.

"Look here, you're not crying?" he said, peering into her face. "There, there! It is a shame, I admit. But you and I can enjoy that dinner just as much as they."

"Yes, but what about the flat? Will they sell everything? And we fixed it up so pretty"—

She was sobbing quietly now.

"Can't—can't—we pretend that it's our home for always?" he asked softly, with a tremendous beating of his heart. "And—and can't you—make it come true, dear? I love you—you must have known that; but I heard you cared for some one else. Tell me, May"—

She tried to steal her handkerchief from the bloused front of her shirt waist, but something white and diminutive and square tumbled out with it. It was her answer to that other man, in which she had so nearly signed away her happiness. She took out the letter, forcing him to read it, and taking infinite relish in his visible symptoms of agitation. The futility of his love stared at him uncompromisingly. It was as he had feared; he was too late.

The cheer and cosiness of the toy house taunted him. He turned away from it and away from the woman he loved.

"Well?" said Miss Carlton sharply, compelling his attention. Her lips were quivering, her eyes mutinous at his easy defeat.

"You've ruined my life—for the second time," he said, unsmiling.

She grasped the letter from his hand and tore it into innumerable tiny pieces which scattered over the floor like snow.

"That's my answer," and her voice trembled happily.

How the Athlete Escapes Falls.

The circus man spread his hands. "You see, we have no use for a man who endangers his life. What we want is a man who can do acts that appear appallingly dangerous, but can do them without any risk to himself. That is what all these men can do and are paid for doing—that and nothing more."

An English bareback rider undertook to explain:

"It is all done with the shoulders," he said. "The shoulders are the center of gravity in the air. It is with the muscles of the chest that the lift and turn are both made. For example, in a back somersault you do not throw yourself over with the kick from the ground. You merely leap into the air, and then, with the muscles of the stomach and chest, whip your legs up over you, revolve around your shoulders and come down on your feet. That is the reason why all circus performers are widest under the arms and smallest around the waist. They are built like greyhounds."—Success.

The Last Note.

A prominent musician recently told a little anecdote which will be appreciated by musicians and perhaps by laymen as well.

He was teaching his young son the piano keyboard by the inductive system, and the boy, having learned all the notes, both white and black, the teacher began to review the lesson by asking, "And now, Henry, show me A flat."

Henry soon figured it out.

The next question was, "Where is G sharp?"

That also proved easy.

After asking the boy several more questions about sharps and flats, the teacher said, "Where do you think we shall find C flat?"

Henry looked at the keyboard long and curiously; he put his finger on C, and next on B, then he got down close to the piano and after examining it carefully replied, "I don't know, papa, but I guess it's gone down that crack between B and C."

CAT'S CRADLE.

Origin of the Name of the Familiar String and Finger Game.

Cat's cradle has been familiar to most of us from childhood as a game for two players, in which the first winds a looped cord over the fingers of both hands in a symmetrical figure, and the second inserts his fingers and removes it in such a way as to produce a different figure. This they do alternately several times, always changing the formation. The art consists in making the right changes.

The cord forms a rude representation of a manger, and the name originally was "cratch" cradle, cratch being a manger (creche, French), such as that in which our Saviour was laid. "They layde hym in a cratche," was Wyclif's translation of Luke ii, 7. The word is still used in Roman Catholic countries in that particular sense.

The Abbe Prevost says in his "Manuel Lexique," "Cratch is the name given to a manger for cattle and which is consecrated by the birth of Jesus Christ." To the present day the racks which stand in the fields for cattle to eat from are called cratches.

Just a little too far and the woman who reaches over the cliff for the coveted flower goes crashing down into the abyss below. Just a little too far and the woman, who, day by day, neglects to cure the womanly diseases which weaken her is prostrated upon a bed of sickness.

No woman should trifle with the diseases peculiar to her sex. Neglect to-day means a worse condition to-morrow.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a safe and reliable remedy for the cure of diseases peculiarly womanly. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"My wife, Mrs. Mary Estes, has been taking your medicine and received great benefit from it," writes Mr. Geo Wm. Estes, of Springgrove, Va. "Was troubled with female weakness, heavy, bearing-down pains, severe pain in back and head, and a tired, worn-out feeling all the time. Tried all the remedies we could hear of, but they did no good. Finally we wrote to you and my wife commenced taking 'Favorite Prescription.' Took ten bottles, and is in better health than before in a long time. We shall always recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to all who are thus afflicted."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

DIAMOND HALL

ENTHUSIASM IN RUGBY PROSPECTS.

Full Meeting of the Peterborough Rugby Club Executive Held Last Night.

The Rugby Club Dance to be Again Held—Practice on the Exhibition Grounds—Future Games.

The executive meeting of the Peterborough Rugby Club, which was held last night, was undoubtedly the most largely attended, and most enthusiastic in the history of the club. A great amount of business was cleared up, and encouraging reports were received from the various sub-committees, officers, etc.

The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. E. S. Clarry, and there were also present, Mr. R. F. McWilliams, Hon. Vice-President; William Crowley, Captain, and First Vice-President; Fred A. Clarke, Second Vice-President; C. G. Graham, Secretary-Treasurer; A. A. Hollingshead, Frank Burnham, Frank Bradburn, E. Hurtubise, Arthur Noble and E. Ford.

Mr. J. H. Larmouth, Managing Director of the Peterborough Radial Railway Co., was present at the meeting, and stated that his company had favourably considered the proposition of the Rugby Club re lighting the exhibition grounds for night practices, and that the lights would be installed during the latter part of this week. He assured the Rugby Club that the Railway Company was desirous of assisting the former in every way possible.

The executive thanked Mr. Larmouth for his kind expressions for the success of the club, after which he withdrew from the meeting, and the executive proceeded to discuss other matters.

The matter of the schedule was then taken up. It was thought that the club would require all the matches, exhibition and otherwise, that were possible. With that end in view the secretary was instructed to arrange exhibition matches with outside clubs for all open dates that the Peterborough club may have. It is therefore likely that the Victorians of Toronto, will play here on Oct. 1st, and Varsity 1 on October 22nd. It will be understood that League games will be played with the Argonauts on October 8th, and Torontos, on October 15th.

It was decided to, if possible, to get a coach for the team, and it is likely that a capable man will be on hand by Saturday next.

On Thursday afternoon a practice will be held on the field to the north of the Canadian General Electric Company's premises, and Capt. Crowley has asked that there be a full turn out.

On Saturday afternoon a grand practice match will be held on the exhibition grounds. Two teams will be chosen for the event.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the receiving of a cheque for $7.56, from Mr. Hollingshead, on behalf of the Britannias, a junior club, that has been disbanded, and which had a small balance on the right side of the ledger. A vote of thanks was tendered to the Britannias for their donation.

There was a full and frank discussion as to the development of junior players. It was admitted that there was a good deal of junior material in town that needed development, and the members of the executive expressed themselves freely as to best method to encourage the younger players. The idea of going into the junior series was abandoned, as it was felt that the nearest team with which the local juniors would have to play would be the Toronto teams. It was finally decided to have a competition on the lines of a city league, but to be financed and managed by the Peterborough Rugby Club. With this end in view a meeting of the representatives of the different teams of the town will be held in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night, when further arrangements will be made towards carrying out the project. The teams that will enter will likely be the Y.M.C.A., T.A.S., Rough Riders, and All Saints. The representatives of these teams are asked to bear the date of the meeting in mind.

An important matter then came up for consideration. It was the question of whether or not the annual dance should be held. It was unanimously agreed to resurrect this important social function, and a special committee consisting of Messrs. R. F. McWilliams, A. A. Hollingshead, and Frank Bradburn, were appointed to obtain data as to the most opportune time and place, etc., to put on the big event. It is not improbable that the dance may take place on Friday, October 21st, the evening just previous to the Varsity game, when the University boys would be guests at the affair.

Amongst the correspondence that was read at the meeting was a letter from Mr. Jos. Mahar, secretary of St. Peter's T.A.S., thanking the Rugby Club for the hearty support of the society in the promotion of clean amateur sport.

CANADIAN GOLF PLAYERS AT ST. LOUIS

Lambton Club Represented by Players Well-known Here.

A Despatch from St. Louis, Mo., to the Toronto Star, gives some golf news in which members of the Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, and well known in Peterborough, figured prominently. The despatch reads:—

The Olympic golf championships commenced here on Friday afternoon with a driving contest for accuracy and distance. There was a very large entry, and first prize went to H. Chandler Egan of the Exmoor Golf Club, Chicago, the United States amateur champion. His longest drive was 234 yards. Havemeyer of Seattle Golf Club took second prize. No drive less than 175 yards was counted. The scoring was done by points. The course was marked off into squares from 175 yards on and each square counted as many points so that keeping straight with distance most points were counted.

On Saturday night a putting contest was held by electric light. There were over fifty entries. B. P. McKinnie of Normandy Park, G. C. and C. E. Smeet of the Exmoor C. C. of Chicago tied with 41 each. In the play off the Normandy Park player won rather easily in 23 to 26. The putting course was very tricky, being 9 holes over rolling ground.

On Saturday afternoon the team match was played off. There were only two teams entered, one from the Western Golf Association, the other from the Trans-Mississippi Association. The match was at medal play, 36 holes. The Western team won as follow:—

Trans-Mississippi Team.

Stewart Stickney, St. Louis C.C. ...	177
B. P. McKinnie, Normandy Park G.C.	178
Dr. Maxwell, Keokuk	183
J. D. Cady, Rock Island	186

Art Stickney, Omaha, G. C.	178
Total	1,770

Eastern Golf Association Team.

H. C. Egan, Exmoor C. C.	165
D. E. Sawyer, Wheaton G. C.	168
Warren Wood, Hornewood G C	173
Mason Phelps, Midlothian C. C.	177
R. E. Hunter, Midlothian C. C.	179
W. E. Egan, Exmoor C. C.	186
C. E. Smoot, Exmoor C. C....	174
R. Edwards, Midlothian C. C.	179
E. M. Cummins, Exmoor C. C.	187
N. F. Moore, Lake Geneva	188
Total	1,749

Some of the prominent golfers here are paired from the qualifying round in the championship event to-day as follows:—

H. C. Egan, Exmoor, C. C., plays B. P. McKinnie, Normandy Park.

Walter E. Egan, Exmoor C. C., plays H. W. Allen.

Geo. Brockaw, Gardan City, plays E. Lee, Jones Lake, Geneva.

R. E. Lambert, Glen Echo C. C., plays R. E. Hunter, Midlothian C. C.

D. Sawyer, Wheaton G. C., plays S. T. Price, St. Louis.

G. S. Lyon, Lambton G. and C. C., plays Nimpson Faulis, Wheaton G. C.

A. E. Austin, Lambton G. and C. C., plays H. Potter, St. Louis C. C.

Bertie Austin, Lambton G. and C. C., plays Louis Allis, Milwaukee C. C.

The Glen Echo Golf and Country Club have spared no expence in putting the course in good shape. The course is a long one—6,148 yards—and well bunkered, requiring good play to avoid getting in'o difficulties. The best score made by any of the players so far is 78 by B. P. McKinnie, of Normandy Park. The course is bogied at 79 and it requires good playing to beat the colonel.

EPITHELIOMA

Covering One Side of Face and Reaching to the Eye

CURED BY CUTICURA

Which Acted Like a Charm After Doctors and Hospitals Failed.

Here is another of those remarkable cures of torturing, disfiguring skin humours daily made by Cuticura Resolvent, assisted by Cuticura Ointment and Soap, after physicians, hospitals and all else had failed.

"I feel it my duty to try to help those suffering from skin diseases. My case was a very bad one, covering all of one side of my face and had reached my eye. I had two or three doctors prescribe without any relief. They said my disease was Epithelioma. I was then advised to go to one of our hospitals, which I did, taking their treatment for some time. I had given up all hope when my husband asked me to try the Cuticura Remedies. My face being in such a very bad state, I used the Cuticura Soap with luke-warm water and a small silk sponge and then applied the Cuticura Ointment. I took one teaspoonful of the Resolvent four times a day. They acted like a charm, and in one week's time my face was cured entirely and has remained so. I certainly can recommend the Cuticura Remedies as infallible."

The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made Cuticura Remedies the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the world.

Cuticura Resolvent, Pills and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. LATEST SPORT

LACROSSE.

The Vancouver News Advertiser says: "If the Nelson lacrosse team gets Lambe and Querrie from the Canadian League and plays them against New Westminster next month there will be a grand opportunity to compare eastern and western players, for the two men mentioned have been tooted as two of the stars of Toronto lacrosse. Hugh Lambe is said to be one of the best playing the game, but if he runs up against Fred. Lynch for a check, as he probably will, well, go and see for yourself." Lynch is an old Peterborough boy and is well known in this section of the country.

GOLF.

The first round of the club championship to be played off a week from to-day is as follows:—

Hamilton—Neil.
Eastwood—Laurence.
Dean—Mulholland.
Sykes—Moore.
Roy—Ritchie.
McFall—Burnham.
Dennistoun—Burnett.
Campbell—Stratton.

BASEBALL.

A meeting of the Midland League Executive was held in Port Hope on Monday night. The protest of Bowmanville against Cobourg was sustained, but instead of following the usual custom of simply throwing out the game and order it to be replayed, the executive awarded the game to Bowmanville. This decision makes Lindsay and Bowmanville tied with 7 wins and two losses each. Both these teams have protested games to play off here and the games should be very interesting.

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

Features of Market as Told by Special Wires.

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Dever & Co., correspondents:—

Chicago, Ill., Sep. 21, 1904.—Evening letters. Some very clever people are operating in wheat on the theory that until much more is known in regard to the volume of marketing of spring wheat, and more is known as to the quality of the wheat and its flour making properties, the market is likely to fluctuate within a range of a few cents. Market was evidently a little over bought yesterday and this accounts for the realising to-day. The damage to the crop as reported by several experts and as re-viewed by the officials ten days ago is there and the wheat is not there at least not in sufficient quantity to justify bearishness at anything less than $1.25 per bushel in this market. Minneapolis millers have been buying nearly every bushel available in Southwest and they don't hesitate to pay the ruling figure for it, this in itself looks as if things are not as rosy as the bears would like to make out.

Corn, lower on improved weather conditions. Bears hammered the price. Spencer took a little. In Washington last night, Sec. of Agriculture Wilson, said that there was nothing to indicate that corn crop would be less than normal. So far as the figures of the department show that barring frost there will be a yield in excess of 1 billion bushel. The Sec however, pointed out that a single killing frost might do great damage and result in loss of millions of bushels. Oats held pretty strong but very slow.

LOSS HALF A MILLION.

Big Blaze in Montreal's Wholesale District On Wednesday.

Montreal, Sept. 22.—A disastrous fire broke out about 1 o'clock yesterday morning in the block bounded by St. Sulpice, Debresoles, Leroyer and St. Claude streets, near the rear of Notre Dame Church. The block was devoted entirely to the wholesale trade in various lines, and it is estimated that the loss will be $530,000.

The fire broke out in the premises of the Canadian Hardware Company, midway in the block between St. Sulpice and St. Claude streets, and the five flats were soon a raging furnace. From there the fire spread to the Central Agency's warehouse on the west, and Chaput, Fils & Co., on the east. The Central Agency is the warehouse of the British Thread Trust, while Chaput's carry one of the largest stocks of groceries and liquors in the city, and occupy a larger warehouse than the other two firms put together. The value of their stock is computed at close to half a million dollars.

The Revised Fire Losses.

A revision of the loss places the total at $530,000, and the insurance $385,000. The losses and insurance are distributed as follows:

Chaput, Fils & Co., loss $320,000, insured for $250,000.

Canada Hardware Company, loss $150,000, insurance $75,000.

Hotel Dieu, owners of buildings, loss $50,000, fully covered.

Central Agency, loss $10,000, fully covered.

JAPANESE WERE AGAIN REPULSED

A Turning Movement was Checked by Machine Guns.

FOR THE CLASH AT MUKDEN

Armies are Both Rested After Liaoyang and Preparing for the Approaching Battle—Kuropatkin Has an Immense Available Force—He is Entrenching and Constructing Defences—From Kuroki.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 22.—General Kuropatkin, telegraphing under Tuesday's date, declares that the situation at the front is unchanged. He describes an outpost fight Tuesday at Dai Pass, half way between Bentsiaputze and Sintaintin. A Japanese force, consisting of four companies, marched up from Dxiantchan, twenty-three miles northeast of Saimadzi, and tried to capture the pass and turn the Russian left flank, but the Russians repulsed the attack, and the turning movement was checked by machine guns.

Pushing Northward.

Gen. Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field, via Fusan, Sept. 22.—The Japanese are slowly pushing northward. The outposts are in touch near Yentai, and skirmishes between outposts and patrol parties occur daily. It is believed that the Russians are gathering a force at Yentai, preparatory to making a strong stand for the protection of the coal mines.

Battle Expected at Mukden.

Tokio, Sept. 22.—An impression is growing general that an engagement will soon take place at Mukden. Gen. Kuropatkin is evidently preparing to make a determined resistance to any attempt to dispossess him, and is entrenching and constructing defences. He has an immense force available, but the opinion is expressed that Tie Pass would be a more favorable location for defence. The Russians, however, are unwilling to suffer the loss of prestige which would be involved by the abandonment of Mukden. Both armies are now resting and have recovered from the effects of the fight at Liaoyang.

Troops Were in Touch.

A telegram received yesterday from military headquarters in Manchuria says that portions of the Russian troops engaged in reconnaissance while returning from Ping-Taitsze continued in touch with the Japanese lines along the Mukden and Fushu roads on Sept. 18. There was no fighting.

Hun River Not Crossed.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 22.—The reports that Gen. Kuroki has crossed the Hun River at Fushun turns out to be false. The Russians strongly hold the road to Fushun and Bentsiaputze. It is pointed out that if the Japanese had occupied Fushun the Russians would have been compelled to evacuate Mukden, since Fushun is nearer to Tie Pass.

Russians Doubt It.

While the despatches to the War Office do not indicate that Field Marshal Oyama's main armies have yet resumed their forward movement, advance detachments of Japanese are feeling out the strength and disposition of the Russian forces and Japanese flanking columns are already pressing northward.

Mukden Battle News Premature.

The reports that a battle at Mukden is imminent are, however, regarded as premature. All that seems to be definitely established is that Oyama is again essaying to flank Gen. Kuropatkin from the east. His advance forces are seeking to obtain command of the roads leading twenty to thirty miles east of Mukden. Tuesday they attempted to seize Di Pass, on the road to Fushun, in order to turn the Russian left, but they were repulsed. In addition to the two Russian corps already mobilizing, seven other corps are to be called to the colors.

JOE THOMPSON MUCH WANTED.

Said to be an Expert Safe Cracker

Peterborough Police Made a Good Capture—Burglar Wanted on Several Charges.

According to Inspector Stark, as stated in yesterday's Examiner, the police captured a "bad lot" when they got the handcuffs on Murphy the other day, and that he was secured here is a credit to the efficiency of the local force. It was extremely lucky that he was arrested so soon after his arrival in town, otherwise he might have done serious damage. The Toronto News last night said:—

"In the person of 'Joseph Murphy' the Peterborough police have captured Joseph Thompson, one of the most expert handlers of nitro-glycerine for safe-blowing purposes in the country. Thompson was found drunk in a Peterborough residence on Monday. He had evidently intended to despoil the premises of all conveniently movable valuables, but his visit to the wine cellar turned his thoughts in another direction, and he quickly rendered himself incapable of carrying out his project. The police of that town found a loaded revolver, dynamite cartridges, nitro-glycerine, and other tools of the profession in his pockets. He gave his name as Joseph Murphy, but the description forwarded to Inspector Stark disclosed immediately his real identity.

"Thompson lived at one time in Toronto, and he has on two occasions been sent to the Central Prison for eighteen month terms of imprisonment for burglery. Inspector Stark pronounces him one of the most expert safe-crackers and sneak thieves on the continent. He was a partner of Edward Kimball, who was convicted about the time of the Varcoe murder in 1900, for having in his possession various chemicals for purposes of burglary and safe-blowing. Some years ago Thompson was engaged with the famous desperado, Joseph Fitzstephen, in sundry crimes near the Ottawa River. Thompson turned Queen's evidence and was released; Fitzstephen was sent to the Kingston Penitentiary for a long term. It turned out to be a life sentence for he fell off the scaffold one day in the penitentiary grounds and broke his neck.

"Inspector Stark also asserts that Thompson was an accomplice and advisor of the Quackenbush gang.

"Thompson is wanted in Toronto on a minor charge of street theft, but the authorities of Eastern Ontario towns have probably a greater claim on him than this city, for he has avoided big operations here for many years. Several police chiefs of smaller towns in the East have charges to lay at his door. It is probable that he will be sent to the penitentiary before he can be delivered into the hands of the Toronto police."

The Ottawa Free Press adds its testimony as to the reputation of Thompson or Murphy, as follows:—

"Thompson is said to be the man who, with a companion in crime, named Fitzstephen, broke into Dr. Graham's residence in Hull in 1900, getting away with about $400 in cash and a gold watch. They quarrelled over the booty and separated, but Thompson was arrested later for some robbery committed near Guelph, and sent to the Central Prison. He is alleged to have squealed on Fitzstephen at the time of the former's capture, and was confined in St. Michael's Hospital. Acting on the information received Chief Genest of Hull went up to Toronto and arrested Fitzstephen, bringing him to Hull where he stood his trial and being convicted was sentenced to five years in prison. On this occasion Thompson was a witness against his former pal."

In connection with the above the Chief has received the following letter from Chief Grasset of the Toronto police, which is self-explanatory:

Toronto, Sept. 13, 1904.

The Chief Constable,
Peterborough, Ont.

Re Joseph Thompson, alias Murphy.

Sir,—In reply to your letter of 10 inst., I beg to inform you that we identify Murphy as Joseph Thompson, a safe-blower and all-round criminal, with a record of two eighteen months terms for burglary in Central Prison. He is reputed to be an expert in the use of dynamite and nitro glycerine and has been associated with most of our prominent criminals in the past ten years, notably, Edward Kimbell, who got a long term for having a very large quantity of dynamite in his possession here at the time of the Varcoe murder, and whose place on Victoria street was the resort of all tramp thieves of that day. Joseph Fitzstephen, with whom he was associated in the commission of a series of burglaries in Quebec Province, and against whom he turned Queen's evidence, resulting in the former getting a long term in Penitentiary and later the Quackenbush gang. Charles Burk now serving a three year term for attempting to release Chas. Quackenbush from Central Prison, was associated with him in the Cooper robbery here some two years ago for which they were not convicted, however, owing to Mr. Cooper's inability to identify them.

Thompson, we understand, came originally from Montreal and may possibly have a record there. He is a reckless criminal of the Frank Rutledge type whom you will require to watch closely. He is wanted here for theft.

Your obedient servant,

H. J. GRASETT,
Chief Constable.

GOVERNMENT MADE A WISE CHOICE

Mr. J. H. McClellan Will Make a Good Superintendent of the Canal.

The Government's Policy to Push Forward the Completion of the Work—Its Great Importance.

The Ottawa Free Press yesterday published a half-tone cut of Mr. J. H. McClellan, the newly appointed Superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal, and said of him:

"In choosing a business man of such wide attainments and with a splendid shipping experience, the Government seems to have found the one man in Canada best fitted for the position of superintendent of the Trent Valley Canal.

"Mr. McClellan's more recent residence in Peterborough, where he has watched the steady continuous progress of the work, places him in the happy position of being able to take up the work of commercializing the canal and bringing it to the attention of shippers.

"Already at the expense of but $4,000,000, there are now 170 miles of open and continuous navigation, and the Government is determined to push forward the completion of the work in carrying out its policy of developing the rich resources of Western Canada.

"An estimated expenditure of $4,600,000, will complete the canal from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario, and Canada will then have a short cut railway from the northern lakes, which will place the Manitoba wheat many days nearer its ultimate destination.

"This canal, costing but $10,000,000 to complete, will have a greater commercial value than the Erie Canal, on which the American Government is expending in improvements alone, $101,000,000."

MYSTERY OF GORDON McEWAN.

Man Said to Come From Peterborough Badly Injured Near Buffalo.

No One Here Knows of Him—No Trace of His Relatives Can Be Found.

Buffalo, Sept. 21.—A man supposed to be Gordon McEwan was found seriously injured in the Grand Trunk yards here to-night. It is supposed he was struck by a New York Central train. At the hospital it was found necessary to amputate the man's right arm. The surgeons say his skull is fractured. Papers found on him indicate he is a telegraph operator in the employ of the G. T. R. at Peterborough, Ont.

The G.T.R. officials here know nothing whatever of this man, and state that he was not in the employ of the company here. This morning Mr. Sandy, the Grand Trunk station agent received the following telegram:—

Niagara Falls,

To Agent G. T. R., Peterborough:

An advice from Buffalo that a man named Gordon McEwan, said to be a G.T.R. telegraph operator was struck by a train at Black Rock and badly hurt. If so notify his friends and ask them to communicate with the Chief of Police, Buffalo.

AGENT G. T. R.

The Grand Trunk local officials have made enquiry and cannot find anyone here who is a relative of the injured man, and they state that he has never been in the employ of the Company here.

Newmarket, Sept. 21.—The trial of the petition against the election of Hon. E. J. Davis, commissioner of Crown Lands as member of the Legislature for North York, which began here on Tuesday, was concluded this morning. The result was that the seat was declared vacant, Mr. Davis being unseated on the charge that W. H. Robinson, of Meaford, who was reported for corruption in North Grey worked in the riding during the North York campaign in the Liberal interest.

THE "STATESMAN" AT WORK.

(The Globe.)

Lord Dundonald may well ask to be saved from his friends. Most of his troubles have arisen through their interested championship. They do not care anything for his Lordship, except as they can use him to injure the Government. They have been quite unsuccessful in the latter purpose, whereas the late General officer Commanding has certainly not been advantaged by their attentions.

The latest enterprise of these unhappy friends is that of The Mail in claiming for his Lordship the authorship of the militia act passed last session. Not only has that claim broken down, but it has done more. It has brought out Dundonald's real views with reference to the armament of this country. For particulars the reader is referred to a despatch from Ottawa. We are not at all disposed to read into the matter anything more than a fair interpretation would warrant, but impartial men may be asked if the sum of the changes Lord Dundonald desired to have made in the constitution of our citizen soldiery does not proclaim as out of touch with the sentiment of the vast majority of the people of this country with regard to the important question on which it was his duty to advise the Government. It may be argued that many of the suggestions of the late General Officer Commanding were mere changes of words, such as "militia" to "army" and "active militiaman" to "soldier," for example. But words are things, and are especially so in acts of Parliament. These suggested changes, taken in connection with the more radical alterations proposed, proclaim that with a stroke of his pen Lord Dundonald would have largely changed the spirit of the organization for the defence of Canada. Power is already possessed by the Government to make a levy en masse in case of need, but the militia system in this country has been conducted on the voluntary principle. No man has been compelled to serve, and it has for that reason been considered a mark of honourable distinction to wear the King's uniform. Lord Dundonald would have changed that situation so far as he could.

In the schools we have the cadets, a voluntary organization of lads, proud of their militia guns and looking forward to real firearms and real duty later on. Lord Dundonald would have made compulsory what is now a service associated with boyish enthusiasm. He would begin his system, therefore, with lads of fourteen, and put the impress of compulsion on it from boyhood to middle age. We are singularly out of touch with feeling in this country if this would have met with approval. Will The Mail describe these proposals as "the work of a statesman?" Will it say of them as it said of the author of the actual militia bill: "Here is no 'military monster,' no martinet laying down the law and binding it in red tape. Rather do we see a broad-minded man of the world, by profession a soldier, using his utmost to harmonize warring interests?" We would ask our readers to ponder the Ottawa despatch, and, after making what allowances they please ask themselves whether they would like to trust the author of these suggestions with the final word as to militia matters uncheckd by the Minister as the representative of the people.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. It is a wonder that our band does not start now, as the cold weather and concerts will soon be here as well as skating. It would be a nice thing to see the band again in shape.

The local baseball team ran up against the real article to the tune of 7—11 at Campbellford last Friday. This game ended the series with the three teams tied—everyone winning on their own grounds. In Campbellford the Havelock bunch chased them pretty well up to the 7th innings, it being from 5—6 up to 7—8 in the seventh. Then the boys through the hard wind seemed to go to pieces and the Campbellford bunch ran up a score of 11, and up to the ninth no other score was made.

NOTES.

Dorricott in the box for the local team, put up a first class article of ball for the first time in that position.

Williams on first played his usual brilliant game.

The wind was so strong that to catch a man stealing second was almost an impossibility.

The line up for Havelock was: — Dorricott p, Rose c, Williams 1b, Ford 2b, White 3b, Baltaun ss, Kelsey rf, Toman cf, J. Campbell lf, A. Rose, spare man. Umpire, Sargent; scorer, R. Campney.

The boys this year have certainly run up against a streak of hard luck in regard to pitchers. First of all the regular man, D. Ford, after the third game, broke a sinew in his arm. Then Thompson left town. Campney, who was a likely man with plenty of curves and all kinds of speed, had the misfortune to sprain his wrist. Then E. Dorricott, our reliable second baseman, had to be put on the rubber, and he certainly did well.

Although the series is ended, and all a tie, it is left now to be played off on neutral grounds. We hope it will be soon.

The post office has got an improvement in the shape of two incandescent lights. A bystander who was watching the work being done made the remark that it would be a good idea to jack up the lights and put a new post office under them.

John Wilson, cleaning ditch at Springville, ... 1 50

P. Hamilton Co., sundry repairs to grader... ... ... 1 25

These accounts were passed and ordered to be paid.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, of Peterborough, appeared before the council representing the Peterborough Radial Railway Co., and asked the council to finally pass a by-law authorizing the Reeve and Clerk to execute a franchise agreement between the Township and the Company, permitting the Company to construct and operate a street railway on the boundary road from Charlotte street corner north to Jackson Park, the rails to be laid upon the west side of the roadway.

The clerk reported that the passing of this by-law had been advertised and posted up according to law.

Mr. G. W. Hatton appeared representing himself and Mr. R. A. Morrow, interested ratepayers of the township who objected to the street railway track being laid upon the west side of the road as this would prejudically affect this property.

It was finally agreed that the company lay their rails upon the centre of the highway and construct a roadway suitable for public traffic upon both sides of the railway track.

The by-law numbered 543 was then given the necessary readings and finally passed and the Reeve and Clerk signed the franchise agreement.

By-law No. 537 was then passed appointing a collector of rates for 1904. Mr. Jos. Barnard was re-appointed appointed upon similar conditions as in the year 1903.

The matter of repairing culverts in various parts of the township was referred to committees and council adjourned until the next regular meeting in October at 7.30 p. m. in the Town Hall.

STRANGE STORY OF A SEA SERPENT

A Listowel Story Which Surpasses Faction.

The Listowel Banner publishes the following remarkable story:

Jared Johnston, who lives on lot 38 on the eighth concession of Wallace and whose reputation for veracity and sobriety has never been questioned, tells of having seen an animal so strange and unheard of that his story was at first treated as a joke, but he stoutly maintains that he is as sure of what he saw as he is of his existence.

On Saturday afternoon last while it was still light, he went to the back pasture field for his cattle. He was skirting the shore of the lake which the field adjoins, and was watching the effect of the high wind in driving the water up a narrow bay when he heard a crack and saw a dead hemlock stub, about twenty feet high, fall to the ground. The stub was on a point directly across the bay, not more than 100 yards away. Just before the stub reached the ground some kind of an animal sprang from it, spread out a pair of wings, and rising over a bank of reeds, plunged into the marshy waters of the lake. Mr. Johnston had a good view of the strange creature in the air, and he estimates its length at between 7 and 8 feet, made up mostly of neck and tail. These were about two inches thick but widened towards the body, which was not more than 5 to 6 inches at its heaviest point. The wings were of some membraneous material and did not seem to have a wide spread though they moved rapidly. The skin was smooth, of a dull greyish colour and did not appear to have scales or feathers. Mr. Johnston could not tell whether it had feet or not, but did not notice any. It seems to have been sitting motionless close to the tree with its tail down the trunk and its neck sticking out like a dead limb, and Mr. Johnston feels sure that had the wind not blown the tree over he would never have noticed it. There is no sign of a limb of any kind on the stub. The strange animal sailed gracefully enough through the air, using its long tail to balance itself and guide its flight. It seemed to glide rather than splash into the water and did not again appear. Mr. Johnston has lived on the lake shore since boyhood, but never saw anything unusual before. He is not a superstitious man or he would be inclined to believe he saw a supernatural visitor. We give this story for what it is worth without attempting an explanation.

It is with deep regret that we chronicle the death of Mrs. John Bennett, which occurred on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock, after a short illness. She had been ailing for some time with lung trouble but was not thought to be in any immediate danger, till about two weeks ago, when she became worse. In spite of unremitting care from doctor and nurse and loving friends, she gradually sank till death released her from her sufferings.

The deceased lady, whose maiden name was Ellen Neish, was only 28 years of age, and was married about four years. Besides her sorrowing husband, she leves her father and mother, three sisters, and one brother to mourn her loss.

The late Mrs. Bennett was a consistent member of the Keene Presbyterian church and always worked earnestly and helped in every good work. She was a very popular young lady and her sudden death has cast a gloom over the village. The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon from the family residence, Main street, to the Keene cemetery.

The reading room will be opened on Saturday evening, and all who are interested in the good work are cordially invited to be present on the opening evening.

A grand concert under the auspices of the Improvement Association will be given on the evening of the second day of the Fair, October 5. More definite announcement later.

NORTH YORK ELECTION TRIAL

Did Mr. Davis Know W. J. Robinson Was Working for Him?

SEAT MAY DEPEND ON A POINT

Second Day of the North York Election Trial Sees An Interesting Legal Point Raised—The Foggy Charges Proved, But No Agency Established—Court Reports Four Men.

Newmarket, Sept. 22.—An interesting question of law has arisen at the trial of the North York election protest in connection with the work in the riding during the campaign of W. J. Robinson of Meaford. The North Grey election of 1902 was voided by mutual arrangement between the parties on the charge that this same W. J. Robinson illegally hired a rig for the conveyance of voters. Robinson, it was shown yesterday by a number of witnesses, took an active part in the North York bye-election, and the Conservative petitioner now contends that in consequence Hon. E. J. Davis should be unseated under section 178 of the Ontario election act, which reads as follows:

The Law in the Case.

"If, on the trial of an election petition, any candidate is proved to have personally engaged at the election to which the petition relates, as canvasser or agent in relation to the election, any person, knowing that such person has within eight years previous to such engagement been found guilty of any corrupt practice, by a competent legal tribunal or by the report of the judges upon an election petition, the election of such candidate shall be void."

Not Known to Mr. Davis.

Hon. E. J. Davis, called by Mr. Aylesworth, said he had signed in blank all the appointments of scrutineers, and he did not know who was appointed for Sutton. He had nothing to do with selecting the persons who should act. At the Sutton meeting Mr. Lennox had read a list of men who were in the riding for illegal purposes. In his reply he (Mr. Davis) had stated that among those named were some of the best men in the riding. With reference to Robinson, he had said that in the North Grey case both parties had agreed that the election should be voided, and had selected a charge, not of bribery or corruption, but of illegal hiring of conveyances; he could not recall the name of the man who had been selected for the voiding of the election. At that time he did not know Robinson at all. As to the committee meeting at Virginia, he had stayed over night at the village on his way to Sutton, at the request of Mr. George Evans. During the evening the latter had taken him to the committee meeting, where there were about twenty men, half of whom he did not know. He had no recollection of meeting Robinson either there or at Sutton, and when Robinson stood up in court yesterday for identification he could not remember ever having seen him before. He neither spoke nor wrote to Robinson asking him to take part in the election.

Cross-examined by Mr. Blackstock, the Commissioner said he had given a fair and full account of his relationship to the charge.

Argument on the point was not concluded when the court adjourned, but in the course of Mr. Blackstock's speech Chancellor Boyd remarked on the meaning of the word "personally."

The Pegg Charges.

Chancellor Boyd and Mr. Justice Teetzel agreed that these charges had been established, but that agency had not been proven.

That Elias Pegg paid his son-in-law, William Rolling, $5 by dropping it in his buggy and calling attention to the fact.

That Pegg paid Harry Hodge $6 by dropping it in the stable and telling Hodge "you'll find the money for yourself."

That Pegg paid Henry Stickwood $2. He handed him the money. Stickwood objecting to the roundabout methods suggested.

It was shown that James Hison got $2 from Pegg, but nothing was said about the election, and the charge was dismissed.

Pegg, Rolling, Hodge and Stickwood were reported for corrupt acts.

Parker For Africa.

London, Sept. 22.—(C. A. P.)—Sir Gilbert Parker, who has been spending a few days with Mr. Chamberlain, visited Gravesend yesterday prior to his leaving on a four months' tour in South Africa. He proposes to submit a land settlement scheme to the Governments of the Transvaal and Orange River colonies on a principle already approved by them and the home Government.

London, Sept. 22.—(C.A.P.)—The London Tatler contains an illustration of King Edward and Sir Gilbert Parker talking together at Marienbad.

To Release Grounded Steamer.

Kingston, Sept. 22.—The Donnelly Salvage and Wrecking Co. has sent a steamer to release the steamer Howe, which ran on a shoal near Thousand Island Park, while en route to Oswego with a cargo of pulpwood. The vessel is on very hard, and is owned by the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Co. of Duluth.

Mayor to Get $1,200 a Year.

London, Sept. 22.—The mayor's salary after Dec. 1 next will be $1,200 per annum, instead of $700

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 22.—A fierce gale swept this region yesterday. The schooner Amy Louise, 114 tons, of St. John's; schooner Bobs, 97 tons, of Parrsboro, N.S., and the schooner Elinor, 86 tons, of Plymouth, have been driven ashore. The schooner Ripple, 70 tons, of Quebec, has been lost, with five men. The Labrador mail steamer is delayed. It is feared that last week's gale has devastated the Labrador seaboard. Reports from St. Pierre show that gales have severely damaged the French fishing fleet. The catch of cod is the poorest in ten years.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and diarrhoea remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of man-

WILLIAMS AND SMITH DROWNED.

Upsetting of a Sailboat in Moffatt Straits, Near Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Sept. 22.—In Moffatt Straits, about noon Tuesday a sailboat with three fishermen, Harry Shelly, Thomas Williams and Robert Smith, was suddenly capsized by the wind. Smith was lost sight of on the spot, the boat turned on end, and Williams and Shelly hung on to the mainmast. About two hours later Williams gave up, and was also drowned, Shelly securing his body to the mast. About 4 p.m. James Gerson, who was on his way to Rossport with a tug, picked up Shelly, who was still hanging to the boat, and Williams' body. Williams was single, and had been in this vicinity for a number of years. Smith leaves a wife and three children in Port Arthur.

Died in Dentist's Chair.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—Miss Lottie Borthwick, aged 18, daughter of Thos. Borthwick, Gloucester township, a niece of ex-Mayor Borthwick, of Ottawa, died yesterday afternoon while under the influence of an anaesthetic in Graham & Beatty's dental parlors, Wellington street. She asked for an anaesthetic, and nitrous-oxide, commonly known as laughing-gas, was administered. Dr. Baptie, coroner, who was present for an hour, trying to restore respiration, returned a report to the Crown Attorney that death resulted from an anaesthetic accident, with no one to blame.

Three Injured While Blasting.

Collingwood, Sept. 22.—Three men—Reuben Ayers, John Bell and John McFarlane—were injured while blasting out a drain at the Imperial Steel and Wire Co.'s works Tuesday night. The accident was caused by a slow fuse, which the men took for a misfire. Their injuries are not of a serious character, consisting chiefly of cuts about the face and head.

Escapes Death at Crossing.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—Local C.P.R. officials were advised last night of a level crossing accident a short distance west of Ayr Station. Thomas Henderson, 20 years of age, a farmer, was struck by an eastbound freight train while attempting to drive across. His collar bone was broken, and he was considerably bruised about the head. Of the team of horses he was driving one was instantly killed, while the other was badly hurt.

Two Trainmen Hurt.

St. Thomas, Sept. 21.—Morley Jones, Wabash engineer, who resides at No. 74 Bellaclava street, and his fireman, Fred Oliver, who lives at No. 126 Alma street, were injured at Canfield Junction on the Wabash yesterday morning. Their engine was running light and they did not notice another engine ahead of them until it was too late to avoid an accident. They then jumped and the engine was derailed.

Woman Severely Burned.

St. Thomas, Sept. 22.—Mrs. Wm. Bromnall was severely burned by the explosion of gasoline Tuesday night.

Only Did His Duty as He Saw it

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy," says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and post master at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything. Very often to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure the flux (dysentery.) MAGNIFICENT NEW ARMOURY BUILDING.

Government to Erect Structure to Cost Over $100,000.

Will Advance $10,000 Towards Cost of Site—Collegiate Institute and Armoury on the Site of Murray Street Grounds.

The members of the deputation which went to Ottawa to interview the Government yesterday with reference to the proposition to purchase a site for the Armouries and Collegiate Institute, returned this morning, and, as reported in yesterday's Examiner, were successful in their attainment of the object of their trip.

The deputation consisted of Messrs. R. R. Hall, J. J. Hartley, W. G. Ferguson, R. B. Rogers, V. Eastwood, S. R. Armstrong and Ald. Adams.

They arrived in Ottawa yesterday morning, and went to the Parliament Buildings, where they were received by Hon. Chas. Hyman, acting Minister of Public Works. Mr. R. R. Hall introduced the deputation to the Minister and in doing so pointed out the importance of Peterborough as a military centre, stating that there was already here a city regiment composed of eight companies, and the number of residents in the town and county who are interested in militia affairs make this town from a militia standpoint an important one.

He urged upon the Minister the necessity for the erection of a suitable armouries building for the accommodation of the city regiment with ample inside space for drilling purposes as well as spacious grounds for outside drill.

He then outlined the proposition which the deputation had to submit, which was that the site known as the Separate School Grounds be purchased for $30,000, and the Armouries and Collegiate Institute be both erected on these grounds. He explained that competent valuators had placed the value of the grounds themselves at $20,000 and the building now on them at $10,000. The proposition further was that the School Board would contribute $10,000 to the cost of the grounds, the Town Council a like sum leaving $10,000 to be contributed by the Government.

The work of the deputation was made comparatively easy because of the fact that for months Mr. R. R. Hall had been urging upon the Government the importance of Peterborough as a military point, consequently when Mr. Hyman had heard the views of the different members of the deputation he expressed his willingness to accept the proposition as submitted. The fact that the representations made by Mr. Hall had borne fruit was shown by the fact that $20,000 additional had been placed in the estimates supplementing the $10,000 already voted, and making $30,000 now voted for the armoury, and additional sums will be voted as the work progresses.

Hon. Mr. Hyman expressed himself as being pleased at the site selected and assured the deputation that the Government would proceed as soon as possible with the erection of the new building, which, in view of the importance of this town, will be of a character in keeping with that importance. A building similar to the armoury in London, costing over $100,000, will be erected.

The Government felt that since the officials and men of the Regiment gave their time practically for nothing, they should be encouraged, and in recognition of this fact they have come to the decision to erect an armouries which will be a credit to the town and to the regiment. Hon. Mr. Hyman said that the armouries would be of an architectural design to correspond with that of the Collegiate Institute, and with this in view, and as a guide to the Government architect, Mr. Hartley promised to send to the department as soon as they are decided upon, plans of the Collegiate Institute which will be erected.

The members of the deputation are highly pleased with their reception by the Minister, and at the success of their mission, and it is now an assured fact that Peterborough will have a modern Collegiate Institute and a modern armouries, and that this property will be a decided augmentation to the natural and architectural beauty of the town. The Government will have the three southern lots facing Murray street, while the Collegiate Institute will be on the northern half, fronting on McDonel street.

Mr. R. R. Hall has worked indefatigably in the interests of the town in securing the Government's acceptance of the proposition, and deserves great credit for the successful outcome.

FATAL ACCIDENT THIS MORNING

George Cowling Meets Death Under Distressing Circumstances.

Fell a Distance of Ten Feet While Working at Meldrum's New Mill—Strange Mistake of the Police—Lingered for About Two Hours.

At Nicholls Hospital at one o'clock this afternoon, the death occurred of Mr. George Cowling under most distressing circumstances. Death was due to an accident which befel him this morning about 10.30 o'clock. Deceased was employed as carpenter in the erection of Meldrum's new mill at the foot of Simcoe street and was standing on the cap on a large beam, engaged in fixing the gin used for raising the cars, which are about five feet long by a foot square. The cap was not nailed to the upright beam and Cowling, not being aware of this, stepped out towards the end of the cap. One of the men working with him shouted at him that he was in danger, but before he could retreat, the cap fell to the ground and the unfortunate man fell upon it. The distance of the fall was about 10 feet. Although somewhat severely shaken up, he did not appear to be suffering from any particular injury and he shortly resumed his work and continued working for a period for about one half an hour when he began to feel unwell. He concluded to leave his work and consult a doctor and mounted his bicycle to go to Dr. Greer's office. While crossing the bridge between George and Aylmer street on Hunter, he fell from his wheel in an unconscious state.

The police were notified that a man was lying on the road in a drunken condition, as was thought, and the man was picked up and driven to the police station and confined to one of the cells. After a period of about fifteen minutes the true circumstances of the case were learned and he was taken to Nicholls Hospital in the Dan Spence Ambulance. Everything possible was done to restore him to consciousness, but without success, and he died at 12.50 o'clock, never having regained consciousness from the time he fell from his wheel.

Death was due to a rupture of a blood vessel in the brain. Whether it was caused by the fall from the beam or the fall from the wheel, it cannot be said, but it is thought that the latter was the cause.

The late Mr. Cowling, who was 27 years of age was born in Harwood and has been a resident of Peterborough for about 5 years. He leaves a widow who will have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in the time of her irreparable loss. The deceased's mother is living at Harwood, and two brothers also survive him, Arthur of Colbourne, and Thos. of Millbrook.

The late Mr. Cowling was Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, local court, and was a most highly respected citizen. His very sad demise will come as a great shock to a large circle of friends.

Upon going to press the arrangements for the funeral had not been made.

NO TRACE OF THE MISSING GIRL

Lila Preston has not yet Been Found by Her Friends.

The friends of the little girl, Lila Preston, whose disappearance was chronicled in yesterday's Examiner, have still heard nothing from her, and are very anxious for her safety. It will be remembered that on Monday morning the girl wandered away from the C.P.R. station, while she was waiting for her friends to come for her, and has not been seen since. Anyone finding her will confer a great favour upon her friends by at once notifying the Chief of Police.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT ST. LUKE'S.

Rev. Dr. Cody Preached to a Large Congregation Last Evening.

An Excellent Sermon—Reasons for Being Thankful—The Music.

The annual harvest festival in connection with St. Luke's church, was held last evening when a large congregation was present. A bright and inspiring service was conducted, the congregation taking part in a hearty manner, evidencing a spirit of thankfulness and joy appropriate to the occasion. The church was very prettily decorated with flowers and emblems of the bountiful harvest were displayed on every hand.

The preacher for the occasion was Rev. Canon Cody, D.D., Rector of St. Paul's church, Toronto, who preached an eloquent and powerful sermon from the text, "When thou hast eaten and art full then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which He hath given thee." Deut. viii, 10. There was a constant danger of forgetting the common and simple elements, not only in life, but in religion. There were some truths so extremely common that they are forgotten and some duties so obligatory and simple that they are not performed. One great truth to be remembered is the absolute and momentary dependence on God for all we have and hope to be, and our duty to show constant thanksgiving to Him. It was appropriate to have a set time for showing our thankfulness for the many mercies received from time to time. It was well to have some special provision for giving an expression to God, even though the heart may feel thankful at all times. We are met here this evening, said the speaker, to offer our hearty and humble thanksgiving with a spirit of repentance, and to present ourselves to God, not through any merits of ourselves, but through the merits of Him who is our Saviour.

There were certain elements which make a service of thanksgiving a possibility. In the first place it was necessary to acknowledge and confess belief in a personal God. In the second place, our belief in the doctrine and reality of a Divine Providence. God was constantly watching over us, and was working out a great Divine plan. Most people do not recognize it, but nevertheless through all ages, God was working out a beneficent and steadily growing plan. In the third place, belief in God, from whom comes every possible form of goodness, was necessary. Congregations, communities and even nations can be united in national righteousness, and there should also be national thanksgiving. We should give thanks for both temporal and spiritual blessings, which God has lavished over our fair Dominion during the past.

The preacher referred to some of the many great benefits for which we should be very thankful. Firstly, there was the blessing of common Christianity. The blessings of this life were only pledges and promises of what we would experience in the higher life. We should be thankful for the redemption of Jesus Christ and the hope of glory. If we contrast our Christian civilization with the heathen civilization at its highest and best, we will realize what we owe to God.

In the second place, there is the blessing of religious freedom. This truth is now so common that we are apt to underestimate the whole value of it. It was an inherited possession from our forefathers who had shed their blood in obtaining this religious freedom. We need to guard this priceless boon with the greatest vigilance.

In the third place, we should be thankful for the blessing of the harvest which had such an effect on our commercial development. Agriculture was the basis of prosperity and our land was rich agriculturally. Should the wheat crop fail and seed time and harvest be not bound together, we would come to realize how dependent we are upon the Almighty. God had been very gracious to our country which had not been visited by the blight of famine which had caused so much distress in so many countries. In 1868 the total trade of Canada was 131 millions, in 1896 it was 239 millions and in 1903, 403 millions. The capital invested in manufactures alone was over 620 millions of dollars. Everywhere there were outward signs of temporal prosperity and everyone had reason to feel optimistic of the prospects for the future of the Dominion.

In the fourth place, there was the blessed boon of peace. May the time never come, said Dr. Cody, when our fair Dominion will be dyed with the blood of our sons or those of any foreign power.

We have been slow in realizing what a great heritage God has given us. We have been trusting too much in what political parties can do, but when we come to realize our heritage will go forward without regard to party. The speaker touched upon patriotism, referring to this characteristic as being strongly manifested in the Japanese and as being largely responsible for their success so far. Too many live simply in the country and not for the country. Patriotism is one of the most valuable of any nation's assets. One should cultivate a legitimate pride, not in himself, but in his country.

Canada was a country with a vast territory and vast resources. Its vegetable and mineral deposits are enormous, its water powers unsurpassed. The wonderful waterways meant a potential force in the industrial struggle, and there was no country better fitted to enter upon the twentieth century than was our own. Ontario was a province of which we might well be proud, and was the premier province of the Dominion. There were still about 1.0 million acres of land to be occupied in the Northwest, which part of the Dominion had a brilliant future.

What of our race, asked the speaker. We come from a worthy stock of noble men and women and we should be a good race. The austerities of the climate should enthuse us with energy and force of character. The speaker referred to the political relations in which we stand to the Mother Country across the sea. Though we glory in our national independence we glory in that silken tie, which is still unbroken, and binds us to that dear old country. We are fellow countrymen of a noble army of leaders in every walk of life. It is something to be a citizen of no mean state, and to say, "I am a Briton!" Our country stands for truth, righteousness and liberty.

There are some things which we should guard against, however. There was a tendency to over-criticism, or irreverance for the past. We have many lessons to learn from the older civilization and we should not be too self satisfied and involved. Then there was the temptation besetting every growing country, that of taking materialistic views. We should remember that a man's and a nation's life does not depend on the things possessed. The worst example of the development of materialism is shown in the tendency to idolize money. There was no form of evil which needed to be combatted so strenuously as the love of gold. Other dangers to be guarded against were those which every democratic country must contend with. There was the danger of a popular rush in a wrong direction at the bidding of some demagogue, though this danger was not so prevalent here as in some other countries. There was a danger of political corruption. He said that the duty of the pulpit was to preach righteousness and to impress upon the people to use the ballot as a sacred trust, as one committed by God Himself. We would have no reason to complain of our heritage if we work hard, and industriously and vote honestly. Let the keynote of our life be thankfulness, and let us show our willingness to spend and be spent in God's work.

The music was of a very enjoyable nature. The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Jos. Legg, sang the anthem, "What shall I Render?" in a most creditable manner, the solos being taken by Messrs. Legg and Shepherd. Miss Helen Davies sang, "Come unto Me," in a delightful manner.

New York Musical Courier, Oct. 30th, 1901: "In the Temple of Music at the Pan-American, Mr. Fairclough was assisted by his pupil, Master Jack Challes, boy soprano, of Toronto, who sang "The Palms," by Faure, and "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," by Buck. PRETTY WEDDING LAST EVENING

Miss Maud Helen Williams Married to Mr. John J. Menzies.

A very pleasant event took place last evening at the residence of Mr. John Williams when his daughter, Maud Helen, was united in the bonds of matrimony to John J. Menzies, of town. The bride's wedding gown was of white taffeta cloth over white taffeta silk, trimmed with applique, and she carried a bouquet of white roses and asters. The bridesmaid was Miss Edith Williams, sister of the bride, and she wore a dress of white organdie trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and asters. The groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. Albert Menzies, of Fenelon Falls. Miss Estelle Duncannon and Miss Victoria Allen acted as flower girls, they were dressed in white organdie. Miss Estelle carried the ring in a basket of sweet peas. The wedding march was very beautifully played by Miss Nellie Allen, cousin of the bride. The house was decorated with autumn foliage and flowers. The groom's gift to the bride was a silver tea service, to the bridesmaid an opal ring, to the groomsman a gold tiepin set with pearls and to the flower girls, gold brooches. Among the many handsome presents received by the bride was a clock and fruit dish from the employees of the C. G. E. Company, and a cheque from her father. The bride's travelling suit was of navy blue pebbled hop-sacking and she wore a white beaver hat. After the wedding ceremony which was performed by Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, about sixty guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding dejeuner, after which the happy couple left on the nine o'clock train for a two weeks' wedding trip to Toronto, Niagara and Buffalo, followed by the good wishes of a host of friends.

HUGH CLARK SUSTAINED.

No Evidence Presented in the Centre Bruce Election Case.

Walkerton, Ont., Sept. 21.—Major Hugh Clark, M.P.P., for Centre Bruce, is confirmed in his seat. The hearing of the protest against his election only occupied ten minutes yesterday morning.

Mr. Hartley H. Dewart, K.C., appeared for the petitioner, Dr. J. M. Stewart, of Chesley, the defeated candidate. Mr. E. A. Du Vernet and Mr. Arthur George, of Chesley, with Lieut.-Col. Scott, of Walkerton, represented Major Clark.

Chief Justice Moss and Mr. Justice Street, presided.

Mr. Dewart informed the Court at the outset that the petitioner, while satisfied there had been corruption, was unable to prove it and would offer no evidence.

Mr. Du Vernet took issue as to any evidence of corruption. "I have gone into the evidence carefully," he said, "and have been unable to find anything to support any charge of corruption. Mr. Clark's expenses were only $73.10. He took the precaution of allowing no outsiders to interfere with the campaign. He thought the people of this community should attend to this matter themselves, and he feels they did so without interference and in most cases without canvass."

Mr. Justice Street—"What was his majority?"

Mr. Du Vernet—"Forty-four."

"In view of the statements of counsel," said the Chief Justice, "nothing remains for us to do, but order the dismissal of the petition with costs. The result shows the value of the prudence that has been pursued by the respondent in this case by relying on the support of his friends and the voters and not seeking outside assistance, or, as perhaps it may be termed in some cases, interference. It must be gratifying to him to find that by his own unaided efforts he has succeeded in carrying the constituency. With regard to what has been said about corrupt practices we have to assume that none can be proved or they would be presented to the court. The election was of a pure character, and as far as we can see the respondent can boast of it. The fact that the majority was small and that the petitioner had no evidence to offer contradicts the idea of there having been any corruption."

Sir Howard Vincent.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—Sir Charles Edward Howard Vincent, K.C.M.G., C.B., J.P., Senior D.L., for the City of London, A.D.C. to the King, Colonel Commandant of the Queen's Westminster Volunteers, and M.P. for Central Sheffield, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon. At 3.30 o'clock Sir Howard Vincent addressed a special meeting of the Board of Trade.

In the evening, at 6.30, Sir Howard was entertained by the Empire Club to an informal dinner.

Cracking of Trees.

The catalpa never shows the sear and yellow leaf in autumn like the sumac, hard maple, etc., for the reason that its leaves are caught in a green, unripened state by the first severe frosts. In one night their bright green is turned to a dingy black. This sudden check gorges the cambium layer and new wood of the stem with water. An excess of water swells the protoplasm of the cells to such an extent as to rupture the inelastic bark, and in trees where the cell structure of the wood is not ripe the crack will extend into the wood often with a noise like an explosion. This often occurs in the fall when it is not cold enough to stop plowing. Sometimes there is much loss in nursery in this way with varieties not fully ripe when the first frosts come. Sometimes, indeed, it injures very hardy varieties. In such cases the swelling of the protoplasm comes from the water absorbed at the ground surface when combined wet and cold come together in autumn. The cracking of cherries and pears comes from the same cause—that is, by absorbing water on wet days, causing an expansion of the protoplasm. With trees the best treatment is to cover the rupture with moist clay and then wrap to exclude the air as much as possible.

SPORTING RIGHTS.

Only Source of Income of Many Titled English Families.

Were it not for the enormous sums paid for fishing and shooting rights many people of ancient names and goodly title would, in the most literal sense, have no means of livelihood whatever, and only the other day one of the best known property agents of the west end of London drew up for the writer a list of a dozen people mixing in society of an exclusive kind, every penny of whose income is derived from the letting of sporting rights.

Nearly all the money thus expended has been made in commerce, and the agent referred to above showed documentary evidence proving that there are lots of men who do not mind paying as much as £100 for every deer, £3 for every trout and £20 every salmon they kill, plus the sport of killing them. One of the most remarkable features of this letting is the fact that only about one in every hundred of the owners of ancient sporting rights ever enjoys his privileges as a sportsman. He either prefers or is compelled to part with such privileges, and those who take advantage of them are nearly all people in business.

This renting of fishing and sporting has even extended down to comparatively humble people in the provinces. Many a small Yorkshire farmer is being kept, and well kept, not by his farming, but by the letting of some comparatively insignificant sporting right.—London Tit-Bits.

Don't be a slave to your range—range-slavery, is household drudgery, it's nerve-destroying, health-breaking—it's killing.

If your old range is making your life a burden, throw it out and get the "Pandora." A new "Pandora" range costs less than a new set of nerves.

The "Pandora" is easy to run, it robs kitchen work of half its labor, it robs it of all the worry, it cooks on time, it cooks economically, it uses all the heat for cooking, not for making a hot kitchen.

OLD TIME MANNERS.

The Exaggerated Courtesy of the Eighteenth Century.

In Social England the following appears as indicating the exaggerated courtesy of fashionable people early in the eighteenth century: "Chesterfield teaches that it is boorish to congratulate a friend on his approaching marriage with merely 'I wish you joy,' when he should have said, 'Believe me, my dear sir, I have scarce words to express the joy I feel upon your happy alliance with such and such a family.' The 'compliment of condolence' on a bereavement should not be, 'I am sorry for your loss,' but 'I hope, sir, you will do me the justice to be persuaded that I am not insensible of your unhappiness, that I take part in your distress and shall ever be affected when you are so.' His child began his lessons in 'breeding' at nine years old, having till then learned Latin, Greek, French, history and geography. He is warned to beware of using proverbial sayings in his speech, such as 'One man's meat is another's poison,' or 'Every one to his taste, as the good man said when he kissed his cow.' He must attend to the graceful motion of his arms, the manner of putting on his hat and giving his hand. Horace Walpole's entrance into a room is described by an eyewitness as 'in the style of affected delicacy which fashion had made almost natural, chapeau bras between his hands, as if he wished to compress it, or under his arm, and feet on tiptoes, as if afraid of a wet floor.'"

Put Conductor Next.

The Liverpool Post tells a story of a director of the London & Northwestern Railway, who chided a ticket-collector who went past him without looking at his pass. "No matter if you do know who I am," said he in reply to the collector's excuse; "I am entitled to ride free only when I am traveling with the pass. You don't know whether I have it or not." The collector, a little nettled, then demanded to see the pass. "That's right!" exclaimed the director; "here—why—where—well, I declare! I must have left it at the office," "Then you'll have to pay your fare," said the collector firmly. And he did.

AN ODD PHENOMENON.

Showers of Rain Can Come From a Cloudless Sky.

It appears that rain can fall from a cloudless sky. This is true of a thin drizzle which falls in France, known as "serein." As the atmosphere looks quite clear when it falls, the probability is all in favor of the moisture having been brought by the wind at a great elevation. In the island of Mauritius the phenomenon is by no means uncommon during the prevalence of southeast winds, slight showers falling in cloudless evenings when the stars are shining brightly. There the rain is thought to be due to invisible vapor in the upper reaches of the atmosphere, being condensed at once and falling in drops without passing through the intermediate stage of cloud. Ross said that in the south Atlantic it rained on one occasion for upward of an hour while the sky was altogether free from clouds. Says a Genoese naturalist, "The night was clear, the stars were shining with their accustomed brilliancy, when a shower of rain, consisting of large lukewarm drops, fell during six minutes upon the town." A similar view was once observed at Constantine, in Algeria, about noon, the sky being all the time a splendid blue. Some believe that these showers are the result of particles of ice formed in the higher regions melting and falling, while others attribute them to currents of warm and cold air traveling in opposite directions, with the result that the latter condenses some of the moisture in the former and causes it to fall.

Early Action In Tuberculosis.

The whole secret of success in the treatment of tuberculosis is to so increase the resistance of the patient as to bring about the arrest of the tuberculosis process and to prevent secondary infection. Early recognition and proper management in the beginning of the disease are the chief elements of cure. If the family physician encourages the hopeful patient to believe that "it is only a bad cold" and that it "will wear off," or when warm weather comes he will be "all right," he not only seals the patient's doom, but fails to take advantage of the opportunity presented today for the cure of consumption.—Suggestion.

The Demand Was Granted.

A certain city in England sent a deputation to Charles II., who was very ill, soliciting some favor. The orator, without any mercy to the sick man, made a long, tedious discourse. "Have you anything more to say?" asked the merry monarch impatiently. "Nothing," replied the orator, "except that if you do not grant our request I am instructed to recite my speech over again." Charles ordered that all his demands should be freely and instantaneously complied with.

John Morley Coming.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—Hon. Richard Harcourt received an interesting letter from Rt. Hon. John Morley yesterday.

He had written him in regard to his approaching visit to Pittsburg and expressed the hope that he would not lose the opportunity of visiting Canada.

In reply Mr. Morley said that he hoped to be in Toronto for a day or two in October prior to his visit to Pittsburg.

Mr. Harcourt said that arrangements would be made to give him a proper reception, and the university would tender him an honorary degree.

SLUGGISH RIVERS.

The Volga Falls Only About Three Inches Per Mile.

Considering its length the Volga is the most sluggish river. In 2,325 miles it falls only 665 feet, or slightly over three inches per mile, while at one point about the middle of its course the bed is fully fifty feet below sea level. Thus all the water to that height above the bottom must be still, save when stirred by floods.

The Volga also is singular among great rivers in having no mountainous course. It rises among marshes and lakes, and is so sluggish even then that a dam has been erected, which makes it navigable from its sixty-fifth mile onward. Almost within the historic period it must have been an offshoot from the Caspian, which then stretched far into the interior of Russia, drying up into a series of river connected lakes. The Volga has taken the place of these, along with many of their characteristics, including a general sluggishness.

The Scheldt is proverbially a slow river and is practically lost in a maze of canals, but its fall from source to sea is about fourteen inches in its total length of 240 miles.

Time's Changes.

"Is the story you have written a historic novel?"

"No," answered the litterateur in hard luck. "It's a modern novel now. But I guess it will be historic before I get it published."

ECZEMA ON LEG FOR TEN YEARS.

Would Scratch Till the Blood Flowed—Entirely Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. Hiram Frey, Norwood, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for ten years with eczema on one leg. The itching was terrible, and when scratched the blood would come. The doctors could not cure me. Fortunately I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and its persistent use has completely cured me. There is now no trace of the disease left.

My little girl two years old, has also been cured of Eczema by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Her face was a mass of sores and we had to bandage her hands to keep her from scratching it. To-day her face is clear of even the scars which the ugly sores made, and she is thoroughly cured. I am glad of an opportunity to let people know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved itself to be."

LIFE'S GRAB BAG

By KEITH GORDON

Copyright, 1904, by Keith Gordon

"Life," meditated Cynthia as she tucked in the ends of her veil more neatly, "is nothing more than a grab bag on a huge scale. Day by day you put your hand in and grab something, but until you take it out and unfold it you never know whether it is a joy or a sorrow!"

With a droll smile at the idea, she picked up her gloves and card case, took a last comprehensive survey of herself in the oheval glass and then passed down the stairs and out into the street filled with the gentle exhilaration that her view of life induced.

One did not know, for instance, what charming adventure might befall, even in the pursuit of so banal a duty as a round of formal calls. Musing thus, she turned into Fifth avenue, her face alight with eager expectancy of the next thing and trying to imagine what it was going to be.

This might be the great day of her life—one couldn't tell. Perhaps before the afternoon was over she would meet the man—that godling of her dreams who moved in the time honored Olympian manner, enveloped in a mist that hid his face from view. Apparently the afternoon held nothing more than a pleasant stroll, broken by a half dozen calls, but the beauty of the thing lay in the fact that one couldn't be sure! Perhaps on that very afternoon—

These pleasant speculations suddenly came to an abrupt end. Her card case—where was it? She felt blindly in her muff, thrust her hand into one side of her coat and then the other, but in vain. It was gone—lost—just as numberless purses, opera glasses, fans, muffs and umbrellas had gone before it, until she was a byword among her friends and the gifts of her intimates were invariably accompanied by a beseeching: "Don't lose this, Cynthia. Do try to be a little bit careful."

And now her new card case, a gift on her birthday a few weeks before, had gone in the usual way, just when she was expecting the very best of life too! Her optimism disappeared like the sun behind a cloud, and, with an aggrieved sense of misplaced trust, her steps slackened and she came to a standstill, wondering if it would be worth while to go back and try to find it.

"Scarcely," she decided, as the moving crowd of pedestrians slowly filed past her, and, with a sigh, she resumed her way northward once more, a little comforted by the reflection that, after all, some honest person would probably find it and return it to her.

Meanwhile a tall, athletic young man who was swinging up the avenue in the same direction a block or so behind her, unconsciously rejoicing in his mere physical vigor and not philosophising at all, found his attention attracted by a small, dark object ornamented with a gleaming disk of silver that was lying near the edge of the sidewalk.

Picking it up, he glanced in this way and in that, but the handsomely gowned women who were making their way in both directions gave no indication of distress, so he examined the monogram on the clasp, with a grunt of masculine disdain for such devices.

Then he bethought him that it might be a good idea to open it, and, suiting the action to the impulse, he discovered in one compartment a latchkey and in the other a bunch of cards. "Miss Williar, No. 4 West —th street," he read, taking out one of the cards. And, having thus satisfactorily established the ownership of his find, he tucked it into his pocket and strode on toward the University club, idly wondering if this Miss Williar could be related to the little Cynthia Williar he had known in his boyhood. It was this wonder that impelled him to wait to see Miss Williar personally when, just before the dinner hour, he stopped at the address given on the card.

He had not long to wait. A tall girl with a look in her eyes that said plainly that life was an interesting experience entered the room, and he found himself face to face with what seemed to him a larger, older and greatly glorified copy of the small, freckled girl upon whom in moments of rare generosity he had sometimes bestowed his boyish approval.

"Why, Jack Mayhew," she exclaimed with unfeigned gladness, extending her hand, "where have you dropped from?" while his hearty "Jupiter, Cynthia, if this isn't luck!" uttered with enthusiastic heartiness while he conscientiously wrung her hand as if it had been that of another man, placed them at once on the plane of good fellowship where they had parted ten years earlier.

In their delight and surprise at the meeting they talked volubly and sometimes both at once, asking about boy and girl friends and referring hilariously to the pranks of those dear old days. But if their tongues were busy their minds were doubly so.

"He's magnificent," Cynthia was saying over and over to herself, with a thrill of delight, though ostensibly she was listening with rapt attention to his account of himself since he left Elmwood and had grown up, while he, filled with admiring wonder at this new Cynthia, suddenly lost the thread of his story and floundered helplessly, after the manner of persons who try to think about one thing and talk about another.

"As I was saying," he observed impressively, making a frantic but ineffectual attempt to recall what he had been saying, "as I was saying—that is—oh, hang it all, Cynthia, I was so busy looking at you that I forgot what I was saying. Don't know where I'm at."

Doing for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place, but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

DISCOURAGED

The expression occurs so many times in letters from sick women to Dr. Pierce; "I was completely discouraged." And there is always good reason for the discouragement. Years of suffering. Doctor after doctor tried in vain. Medicines doing no lasting good. It is no wonder that the woman feels discouraged.

Thousands of these weak and sick women have found health and courage regained as the result of the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"In the year 1899 I was taken sick," writes Mrs. Eliza Crowder, of Ripley, Lauderdale Co., Tenn. "My limbs ached, had severe pains in back and lower part of bowels, with difficulty in urination, and smarting and burning pain after. I tried many kinds of medicine and four of the best doctors in the country, until I gave up all hope of recovery. In January, 1901, I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and received from him a letter, telling me to try his medicines. I took eleven bottles, six of 'Favorite Prescription,' five of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of 'Pellets,' and used one box of 'Lotion Tablets' and one of 'Healing Suppositories,' and am now able to work at anything I want to. Thanks to you for your valuable medicine and kind advice."

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. R. V. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

At this plain avowal they both laughed, and he went on with masculine frankness:

"I say, you've done yourself proud. You're ripping, you know!" And he gazed at her with so much of the old boyishness in his face that the reproof that rose to her lips was suppressed. Then a black thought suddenly clutched at her.

"You aren't married, are you?" she demanded so abruptly and intensely that she winced the moment the words were out, while his prompt negative was tempered with a certain shame as he recalled some events of the previous year. Cynthia was so direct that she inspired him with a desire to meet her on her own ground.

"No, I'm not married, but I am afraid that I should have been except for the firmness of the young lady's mother," he acknowledged honestly. "She had other views for her daughter. You see, I wasn't rich enough, and I'm mighty glad I wasn't—now," he added with a fervor that was beyond suspicion.

Still, Cynthia's manner seemed to take on a slight coating of ice. "So you're a blighted being!" she said thoughtfully, her chin resting on the back of her hand and her eyes fixed upon his face speculatively.

They parted a few minutes later, reluctantly, it is true, yet with the feeling that the fine glow of the meeting had suddenly faded.

"He's mourning for that horrid little thing with the mercenary mother," reflected Cynthia scornfully and without any compunction whatever anent the injustice of calling an unknown damsel "a horrid little thing," while Jack Mayhew, his eyes dazzled by the fine, open face of his old playmate, wondered how he could ever have fancied pretty little pink and white Dorothy.

As he remembered Cynthia's mouth, with the little curlycues at the corner that looked like baby smiles, his face grew gloomy.

"Depend upon it, old fellow, you'll find there is some man in the background," he confided to himself darkly on the way homeward. "Don't get the idea that there's any chance for you. A girl like that"— Here he gave up at loss for words to express his convictions on the subject.

But in spite of this mutual cynicism Miss Williar and Jack Mayhew were seen together very frequently during the next three months. They affected palm rooms and art galleries and such places where a certain soft splendor and quiet made for sentiment and low toned conversation.

It was upon one such occasion that a patron of art who had closed the book of romance before the young people in this story were born overheard the following extraordinary bit of conversation. He was sitting with one eye screwed up critically in the effort to form a judgment of a Claude Monet on the wall before him when he heard the young man murmur anxiously:

"You don't suppose your mother will say that I'm not rich enough, do you?"

"Indeed, no!" replied the girl at his side confidently. "My mother is not that kind. Besides, didn't our mothers know each other before we were born?"

The patron of art looked slightly puzzled. From the tail of his cool, estimating eye he sent furtive glances at the pair, vainly endeavoring to follow the young lady's reasoning.

There was an ecstatic silence for a second, during which the patron of art found the two decidedly interesting from an artistic standpoint. It was an eloquent moment—and paintable. It was really a pity. Then the girl's face dimpled and she began to speak.

"Oh, Jack," she said, and her tone was a caress, "isn't it lucky that I got you out of the grab bag after all?"

The patron of art moved away, shaking his head as if the times were getting beyond him. "Got him out of the grab bag," he murmured, just to see how it would sound—"got him out of the grab bag!"

A Bill That Never Passed.

Congressmen sometimes adopt queer expedients to gain the good will of their constituents. Years ago a member from a western state was very much afraid he would be knocked out in the approaching campaign. He had not managed to make himself a power in congress. In fact, his constituents had never heard of him doing anything besides voting with his party when his name was called and drawing his salary. He was desperate. Something must be done to please his people at home or he would be buried out of sight. A bright young woman to whom he had described his troubles said to him:

"You live near the center of the United States, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Then why don't you introduce a bill to have the capitol moved to the principal town in your district?"

"The very thing."

And he introduced the bill. It worked to a charm. The people of his district at once concluded he was a great man and with much enthusiasm sent him back for another term, so that he might press his removal bill and secure its passage. In the next congress he reintroduced the same measure, and, though it was promptly pigeonholed in the committee room and of course he never got a chance to make a speech on it, his people stood by him and gave him a third term as a reward for his genius.

The Roman Forum.

There were many forums in Rome, but the oldest and most famous was not created like a building at a certain time. The Forum Romanum was originally the lowlands between the Palatine, Capitoline and Quirinal hills, used as a meeting place for barter and politics by the tribes living on the hills named and on other hills near by. The development of this crude trading place and neutral ground into the Roman forum of later times was very gradual and irregular.

Lady Teacher's Suicide.

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—Miss Harmon, principal of the Harmon School for Ladies, committed suicide Monday night by jumping off the Alexandria Bridge. She was evidently mentally deranged, as a note in her pocket read: "Dr. McCarthy has killed me with his theories about keeping boarders. Take my body to Rogers' morgue, Rideau street, and from there to Montreal to Kate." She jumped off the bridge into the Ottawa River about 10 o'clock, and her body was recovered yesterday morning.

DIAMOND HALL

QUARTERLY MEETING OF THE PRESBYTERY.

Was Held on Tuesday Last at Campbellford.

The Business Transacted—Good Progress During the Quarter.

At Campbellford the 20th day of September, 1904 the Presbytery of Peterborough met according to adjournment and was duly constituted by Mr. Atkinson, Moderator. There were present Messrs. Bennett, Torrance, Potter, Reeves, Atkinson, Yule, Camp, Macfarland, Goodwill, MacLennan, Whitelaw, ministers, and Messrs. Barr, Black, Clark, Roxburgh, Buchanan, elders.

Commissions were received on behalf of the following elders as representatives of their several Kirk Sessions, and their names were added to the roll of membership, viz. — Michael Barr, Warsaw; Samuel Black, Warkworth; John Clark, Campbellford; W. E. Roxburgh, Norwood, and Peter Buchanan, Havelock.

The minutes of the former quarterly meeting being in printed form and in the hands of the members, were held as read and were sustained. A docket was read to which it was agreed to adhere as the order of business.

It was agreed that the names of Mr. W. Bennett and R. Harrison should be added to the list of members of the Home Mission Committee appointed at last meeting.

Reports at this stage were called for from those who had visited Augmented congregations.

Dr. Torrance read the report of Mr. MacDonald in his absence, who had visited Warsaw. The report indicated progress, but the people still made request for the same grant $100 as last year.

Mr. Reeves gave in the report of his visit to Havelock. The report indicated faithfulness on the part of the minister and prosperity on the part of the congregation, and made request on the part of the people, for a grant of $200 from the Augmentation Fund.

Mr. Camp reported as to his visit to Pontypool and associated stations. This report showed somewhat of a decrease in the number of families but made request for the same grant as last year.

These reports were received and ordered to be handed to the Augmentation Committee for consideration with instructions to report in the afternoon.

On motion of Mr. Macfarland it was agreed to grant the request of the Norwood Session to insert in their records a historical narrative covering the inter regnum between the present and the late pastorates.

The reports from delegates to Home Mission fields was now called for.

Mr. Whitelaw reported as to his visit to Cardiff, giving full particulars as to the state of matters in the field, and indicating clearly as to the improvements needed.

Mr. MacLennan gave an interesting report of his visit made to Cordova and Marmora, setting forth the present position and future prospects of the field.

These reports were received and ordered to be handed to the Home Mission Committee for examination with instructions to report in the afternoon.

The reports from Chandos and Oak Hill which have been delayed, were ordered to be forwarded on their arrival to the H. M. C. for consideration.

Next meeting of Presbytery was appointed to be held in St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, on the second Tuesday of December, at nine o'clock.

A letter was read from Mr. McIntosh of Centreville, tendering the resignation of his pastoral charge, and asking to have it disposed of at an early date.

The Presbytery appointed an adjourned meeting to be held at Millbrook on the 4th October at 2 o'clock for the disposal of the resignation, and for the transaction of any other necessary business.

Mr. J. A. Wilson, assistant pastor, Peterborough, was appointed to exchange with Mr. McIntosh on next Sabbath, and to cite the congregation to appear at Millbrook, on the 4th October.

On the recommendation of the committees appointed to examine them, the Session records of Warkworth and Warsaw were ordered to be attested as carefully and correctly kept.

The consideration of the papers from the Toronto Presbytery regarding the licensing of students, was deferred until the next meeting.

A lengthened conference was held as to a possible re-arrangement of the fields under charge of Mr. Whitelaw and Mr. Yule, so as to make the work more easily overtaken. It was eventually agreed, on motion of Mr. Macfarland, that a commission of Presbytery be appointed, consisting of Messrs. Potter, McLennan, ministers; and Mr. R. Henderson, elder, to visit the congregations concerned in the change, and to bring in a finding to next meeting of Presbytery.

Mr. Macfarland reported as to a plan whereby to meet expenses of delegates to meeting of assembly. The report was received and its recommendations, in part, considered. On motion of Dr. Torrance, it was agreed to defer final action until the December meeting.

Mr. R. Harrison submitted the report of the Augmentation Committee, with the recommendation that the same amounts as last year be applied for in aid of the augmented congregations.

The report was received and its recommendations adopted.

It was agreed, in accordance with instructions of Assembly, that all congregations paying a less stipend than $800 and manse, should be visited with a view to an increase in stipend contributions.

The following appointments for visitation were made, in order to accomplish the object in view, viz., Hastings, Mr. McDonald; Springville, Mr. Whitelaw; Roseneath, Mr. Skene; Brighton, Mr. Macfarland; Colborne, Mr. Lord; Millbrook, Mr. Abraham.

According to the request of the author, the manual by Mr. R. C. Tebb was presented to the notice of the Presbytery.

The Clerk was instructed to correspond with congregations in arrears with a view to having these wiped out at once.

Mr. Harrison, on behalf of the reams of stipend to the pastor, with Committee on the increase of stipends, reported 17 cents per member for augmentation purposes would suffice to enable the Augmentation Committee to add $59 to the salaries of ministers in augmented charges. The clerk was instructed to correspond with ministers and sessions on the question, and show in each case what is expected of them in the matter of increase of stipends in weak congregations.

The clerk was instructed to make the usual assessment for Presbytery and Synod Funds, and notify the congregations as to what is needed from them.

Mr. Potter submitted the report of the Home Missions Committee as follows:—

After reviewing the various reports from the Mission fields of the Presbytery, your Committee beg leave to submit the following recommendations:—

1. That we recognize the good work done by the Rev. T. W. Goodwill, M.A., Cordova and Marmora; Mr. S. H. Pickup at Lakehurst, Mr. F. W. Rowan at Clydesdale, Mr. A. R. Evans at Elizabethville and Mr. Andrew Lang at Cardiff.

2. That Mr. F. W. Rowan, Mr. A. R. Evans and Mr. Andrew Lang be certified to their various colleges.

3. That the sum of $3.00 per week be asked for Cardiff, Harvey, Chandos and Oakhill, and $5.77 per week be asked for Cordova and Marmora.

4. That Cordova and Marmora be permanently united under the care of this Presbytery if agreeable to the Kingston Presbytery.

5. That authority be given the Home Mission Committee to consider the present condition of the Cardiff field and to enter into negotiations looking towards a better arrangement either with the Kingston Presbytery or with other Christian churches.

6. That a suitable man be appointed to take charge of Cardiff for the winter with special care of the lumber camps in that section.

8. That Mr. A. R. Evans and Mr. S. H. Pickup be appointed to their respective congregations for the ensuing six months.

9. That the Presbytery has learned with satisfaction of the payment of $130.00 on principal, and $44.00 on interest by the congregations and ministers, and would adopt the same system for the ensuing year according to the following schedule:—

TUG-OF-WAR TEAM ISSUES CHALLENGE.

The Quakers After Six Years of Success Will Meet any Team at the Fair.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

The old canal tug of war team known for the past two years as the Quakers, has had a most creditable record.

Six years ago they won the J. R. Stratton's trophy at the 1st of July picnic in Ashburnham and since then have had eighteen contests, of which they have been the victors of sixteen, only losing two. They are now in the pink of condition to meet all comers at the Peterborough Exhibition and six of the heaviest of the team are also prepared to run with any other six men, or of any other tug of war team, for 100 yards from $10 to $100.

We would feel much obliged if the secretary of the turf club would give us some information about the T. Club Cup, which we won four times and since, have heard nothing about it.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space,

QUAKER TUG OF WAR TEAM.

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

Features of Market as Told by Special Wires.

By private wire from Richmond & Co., inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

Sept. 22.—We said last night that the very worst that could happen was a further reaction of about a point, but that we considered that as most unlikely and the market would be higher soon. This forecast has proved correct as the market certainly boomed to-day. Ice pfd which we advised buying advanced 3 points to-day and will positively sell above 50 soon. It will sell at 56 before 25. We consider as sure as anything can possibly in Wall street. Rdg sold near 45 and then advanced to 46 7-8. It will sell above 80. Pa will positively sell at 137 before 127. Buy S.P. below 54. MR Sac went to 81 1-2, we hope you bought it at 80. MR is a buy for 120. Buy BRT around 54. Our Prediction of 43 before 51 is good. Erie is a buy around 30 and 2nd near 44. In fact the whole market acted well and will go higher. Such reactions are buying opportunities. You cannot get stocks cheap when they are strong it is still a bull market.—Wall Street Information Bureau.

New York, Sept. 22.—There is nothing new to say—the rally to-day did not amount to much outside of U.P. It is not at all likely that the general list will advance some to-morrow in sympathy with U.P. I am not favourable to buying stocks unless for a quick turn. I do not believe U.P. will go any higher, but in case it should continue to advance other stocks will follow.

LATEST SPORT

RUGBY.

The nightly practices will commence next week at the Exhibition Grounds.

• • • •

Every rugby player should be out for Saturday's practice. There is only two weeks before the first league game with the Argos.

• • • •

It is to be hoped that the effort to reorganize the City League will be successful. It is a splendid way to develop young material.

• • • •

The Toronto senior teams are hard at work and the locals will need to be in the best possible shape to trim them.

• • • •

With a good kicking back division the locals should make a splendid showing in the senior series. There is a great bunch of strong wing players to choose from and on the wing the Peterboroughs will be able to hold their own with any of them.

• • • •

The Victorias are said to be dissatisfied with the senior schedule as they have two games out of town and their home dates conflict with those of the Varsity team.

• • • •

In the grouping of the Junior O.R.F.U. teams at Wednesday's meeting of the O.R.F.U. Executive, Peterborough II. and Lindsay were grouped as possibilities. The question of junior rugby was considered at a meeting of the local Executive and it was deemed inadvisable to put a junior team on the field this season.

BASEBALL.

The Toronto team has at last won a game by defeating Newark in one contest of a double header.

LACROSSE.

Orillia and Chatham were to play the final game for the intermediate C.L.A. championship in Galt yesterday afternoon. Chatham, however, appeared on the field with a lot of ringers, including Pitcher, of the Chippewas, Richardson, of St. Catharines, McKay, of Seaforth and Pickering, of Mount Forest. Orillia at once spotted these well known players and Chatham defaulted the championship. An exhibition game was played resulting in favour of Chatham's bunch by a score of 2-1.

POPULAR OTONABEE LADY MARRIED

Wedding Yesterday of Miss Cassie G. Williams and Mr. T. G. Gillespie.

At noon yesterday a delightful wedding took place at the residence of Mr. George Robertson, Otonabee, when his second daughter, Cassie G., was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. T. George Gillespie, of Burlington, son of Mr. Peter Gillespie, of Otonabee, and nephew of Mr. T. G. Gillespie, of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, B.C.L., pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church, in the presence of a large number of friends of the popular young couple.

The bride looked extremely well in a white muslin dress beautifully trimmed with chiffon, while the bridesmaid, Miss R. Donell, of Peterborough was attired in cream muslin, similarly trimmed. Mr. Peter Gillespie, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man.

After the wedding dejeuner was served, and a few hours spent in a reception by the bride before the party left for Peterborough to take the 5.10 C.P.R. train for Burlington, where they will make their future home.

The bride is a very popular young lady, and was an active worker in the Coldsprings Methodist Sunday School, having been teacher of the primary class. Upon the occasion of her wedding the Sunday School presented her with a beautiful silver, gold-lined sugar bowl and cream pitcher, and one dozen silver tea spoons, and the primary class gave her a silver salad dish, as a mark of their appreciation of her services on behalf of the class and the school.

JAPANESE RAPID ADVANCE ON MUKDEN

JAPS PLAN IS DEVELOPING.

Russian Stubborn Resistance Likely to Retard Decisive Operations—Kuropatkin Barring the Way to Mukden With Strong Forces—Japanese Nearing Port Arthur—Russian Losses at Liaoyang.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 23.—Gen. Kiropatkin telegraphed under Wednesday's date that the Japanese continue their attempts to turn the Russian left, but without success. According to the latest information received by the War Office Field Marshal Oyama's advance forces are still thirty miles south and southeast of Fushun. The War Office does not expect a battle at Fushun until after a series of rear guard engagements.

Japs Against Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 23.—The Japanese operations against Mukden are rapidly developing. Gen. Kuropatkin announces that the Japanese army at Bentsiaputze is beginning to advance northward. The outposts Wednesday tried to capture Kaotou Pass, commanding the road to Fushun. The Russians are offering a stubborn resistance, which is likely to retard decisive operations. Kuropatkin has placed strong forces astride the Mukden, and Fushun roads to Bentsiaputze. The Russians are also holding all the passes of the Daronge, eastward of Bentsiaputze.

A despatch from Harbin announces that another Japanese regiment is moving further eastward, but it is regarded as improbable that the Japanese will move in considerable force from Dsiantchan along the roads leading to Mukden, Fushun and Sintsintin. Severe fighting is probable before the Japanese succeed in reaching the Hun River.

Unconfirmed Rumors.

London, Sept. 23.—Various unconfirmed rumors have reached London that the Vladivostock cruisers have sailed out, that Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel has made a counter attack and captured a fort from the Japanese, that Madame Stoessel was wounded in the shoulder while attending wounded soldiers at Port Arthur, that the Russians are leaving Mukden, etc.

Russian Loss at Liaoyang.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 23.—The general staff has issued a revised list of the Russian casualties at Liaoyang, showing that 1,810 men were killed, that 10,811 were wounded, and that 1,218 were left on the field. Fifty-four regimental officers were killed, and 252 were wounded; two generals were killed and three were wounded. Five officers were left on the field. Of those wounded at Liaoyang 1,334 men and 34 officers have already returned to duty. Those reported to be missing are probably dead.

Nearing Port Arthur.

Tokio, Sept. 23.—While official confirmation is lacking it seems certain that the Japanese possess a fort on another height westward of Itzeshan, which they carried by desperate assaults and have since resisted all attempts to recapture by the Russians. Both these heights overlook Port Arthur, offering excellent gun positions

SERIOUS CHARGE AT POLICE COURT

Man Accused of Stealing Gold Watch and Chain and Sum of Money.

At the police court this morning, R. S. Parks, was charged with selling tobacco to minors. The charge was proved, and the Magistrate imposed the smallest fine possible, that of $10 and costs, or $13.40 in all.

Edward Taylor was charged with stealing a gold watch and chain, and a sum of money, between $25 and $30. It seems that on Wednesday a traveller at the National Hotel, who was the complainant, was in company with the defendant, and both became the worse of liquor. They went out for a walk, but the complainant had no recollection of what happened or where they went. They started out some time in the afternoon, and about seven o'clock in the evening the complainant found himself in bed. He got up and noticed that his watch and chain, to which was attached a gold locket and a Mason's emblem, were missing. He went down stairs and asked some of his friends if they had seen the watch, and became aware of the fact that his money, about $25, was also missing. The money had been taken out of his pocketbook, which was still in his pocket. He had one ten, two or three fives, and some twos, and a one dollar bill. It seems that the bartender had in the morning served drinks to Taylor, who said he had no money, but expected some before the day was over. In the afternoon he returned, and paid for some drinks, producing a one dollar a ten dollar bill. He also had a gold chain, corresponding to that which the complainant wore. Taylor was consequently arrested, he being suspected of having robbed the traveller. This morning the latter saw Taylor at the police station and the latter promised to return his property if the traveller withdrew the complaint. The latter agreed to this, and he received his watch, the sum of $19, with the promise that the chain and the remaining cash would be given him also. The traveller wished to drop the case, but the Crown was not willing as it was a case of such a serious nature that it could not be overlooked. The traveller was very reluctant in giving his evidence this morning against Taylor after having promised to withdraw the information, but the case was out of his hands.

An adjournment was made until four o'clock this afternoon when further evidence will be taken.

Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown and Mr. F. D. Kerr for defence.

MONTREAL CITY'S COSTLY EXPERIENCE

Defective Fire Appliances Yield a Million Dollar Fire.

Montreal a day or two ago suffered a million dollar fire, which, it is asserted, never would have attained such disastrous proportions had not the city authorities neglected to provide necessary fire fighting appliances. On this point the Herald says:—

"Montreal is not to be allowed to forget its fire protection problem. Another big fire has come to remind all and sundry of the hazardous position. In this latest instance there was no shortage of water supply. But there was a shortage of water towers. There was one at work; there should have been two, and we have the melancholy satisfaction of knowing that another one, broken five years ago, might have been on hand if it had been repaired."

In view of these disastrous results of neglect to provide effective fire apparatus, it is a matter of deep regret to Peterborough that a movement to provide an effective fire-fighting system has met with the disapproval of the ratepayers. It is now up to the council to deal with the deadlock.

A VILLAINOUS ACT.

Man Entered a Stable and Cut off a Horse's Foot.

A dastardly act was committed in the township of Smith three weeks ago and when the scoundrel is caught the punishment which he will receive should be very heavy. The stables of Mr. T. Donaldson, lot 17, concession 4, were entered during the night, and the front foot of one of his most valuable horses was cut off. The horse, which was valued at over $150, had to be shot as a result of the villainous act. Mr. Donaldson believes that he has knowledge of who the guilty party is, and an arrest may be made. Anyone who would perform such a villainous act is deserving of punishment of a very severe nature, and it is to be sincerely hoped that the scoundrel may be speedily captured and dealt with in the proper manner.

NEWMARKET WANTS THE TRENT CANAL

An Effort to Have it Connect With That Town.

Newmarket is the latest town to see visions of prosperity resulting from the Trent Valley Canal. At a public meeting held in that town last week, a project was approved of, looking to the deepening of the Holland river, a distance of only four miles, giving Newmarket and Aurora access by water to Lake Simcoe, and with the world at large through the Trent Valley Canal. That waterway gives promise of being congested with traffic from the day it is opened, and there should be no delay in awarding the contract for the Georgian Bay section

BARNEY CONWAY DIED IN TRUCKIE

Man Said to Come From Peterborough Died in California.

The postmaster this morning received a telegram from Sierra Nevada Wood and Lumber Co., of Truckie, Cal., to the effect that a man named Barney Conway died there yesterday, and asking the recipients to notify the relatives of the man, who were supposed to be living in Peterborough.

The deputy postmaster upon receipt of the message instituted a search to ascertain if the deceased had any relatives here and upon inquiry learned that he had none. None of the families in town of that name have a Barney Conway who was related to them.

There is a possibility that the man referred to may have come from the county of Peterborough, and that he may have relatives living in the country, but, if such is the case, it is not known.

The telegram gives no particulars as to the cause of his death nor of the duration of his illness.

LILA PRESTON HAS BEEN LOCATED

Wandered Away Down the C. P. R. Track to Farm House.

The friends of the little girl, Lila Preston, whose disappearance from the C.P.R. station on Monday, under peculiar circumstances have been greatly relieved to learn that she has been found and will be returned to her friends. It appears that Monday morning when she got off the train here, instead of waiting in the waiting room for her friends to call for her, she wandered off down the track, and after going several miles was taken into a farm house near the track between here and Indian River, where she was kindly cared for and a letter sent to her friends here telling them that the child was safe and that they would look after her until she was called for. To-day a friend of the little one went after her and restored her to her home.

TWO SPLENDID LECTURES.

Large Turnout at Y. M. C. A. to Hear Lectures on Viavi System.

The two lectures given by Miss C. F. Shaw-Hillier of London, Eng., in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday last, were listened to with much interest by a large and appreciative audience. The Viavi System of treatment in conjunction with Physical Culture and Hygiene, has long been known in Peterborough, but during the last few months owing to the lectures given, a deeper interest has been aroused in this rational, common sense, method of treatment, which has its thousands of adherents, not only on this continent but in every civilized country in the world. Miss C. F. Shaw-Hellier had intended returning to Toronto on Saturday, but her many engagements will keep her in town until Monday.

BIG ORDER FROM TORONTO GLOBE

The Colonial Ink Company Gets Order for Year's Ink Supply.

The Colonial Ink Company, one of the rising young industries of Peterborough, to-day received a telegram from the Toronto Globe, ordering a year's supply of printers' ink. This order will be a big one and that the local concern has been able to secure it is a triumph of no mean order, and speaks well for the quality of the product of the company.

The Globe uses more ink than any other single concern in Ontario, if not in the Dominion, and their decision to obtain their entire supply from the Colonial Company is a matter for congratulation.

NORWOOD KICKERS HAVE ORGANIZED.

Football Club Elected Officers and Prospects are Bright.

Norwood, Sept. 21.—(Special to the Toronto Globe.)—An enthusiastic meeting of the High School football players was held in the auditorium on Wednesday night for the purpose of reorganization. The following is a list of the officers elected for the fall terms:—Honorary President's, Dr. Robertson, J. Davidson, M.A., L.L.B.; President Charles Kelly; First Vice-President, Ormond Weir; Second Vice-President, George Armour; Secretary-Treasurer, Fred Lamey; Field Captain, Ivison Tucker; Curator, Thos. Millar; Executive Committee, the officers, together with Messrs. Power, McFee and Keenan. From the large number of players this year Norwood High School will place two Association football teams in the league, a senior and a junior. For the past twenty years the High School has been the nursery of some of the best football teams in Ontario, and the interest in this manly sport is not lessening this year. Last year the team, though made up of young players, neither lost a match nor a goal in the league games. The Secretary will be pleased to arrange matches at once with outside teams.

The satisfaction of having the washing done early in the day, and well done, belongs to every user of Sunlight Soap. 10B

Miss Hapgood tells how she was cured of Fallopian and Ovarian Inflammation—and escaped an awful operation by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for four years with what the doctors called Salpingitis (inflammation of the fallopian tubes) and ovaritis, which are most distressing and painful ailments, affecting all the surrounding parts, undermining the constitution, and sapping the life forces. If you had seen me a year ago, before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and had noticed the sunken eyes, sallow complexion, and general emaciated condition, and compared that person with me as I am today, robust, hearty and well, you would not wonder that I feel thankful to you and your wonderful medicine, which restored me to new life and health in five months, and saved me from an awful operation."—MISS IRENE HAPGOOD, 1023 Sandwich St., Windsor, Ont.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries or fallopian tubes which adjoin the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries, indicated by dull throbbing pain in the side, accompanied by heat and shooting pains, should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital operation, with all its terrors, may easily result from neglect.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.

"Before I wrote to you telling how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money in medicine besides, but it all failed to do me any good. My menses did not appear in that time, and I suffered much pain. I would daily have fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing down pain, and was so weak that it was hard for me to do my work.

"I used your medicine and treatment as directed, and after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, menses appeared, my womb troubles left me, and I have been regular ever since. I used fourteen bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier together, and am now restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you, I would have been in my grave.

"I will always recommend your wonderful remedies, and hope that these few lines may lead others who suffer as I did to try your remedies."—MRS. T. C. WILLADSEN, R. R. No. 1, Manning, Iowa.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

WILD ESTIMATES RE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC COST.

Conservative journals are fond of insisting upon the statement that the Grand Trunk Pacific will cost the country some one hundred and seventy millions of dollars, or $31.60 per head, and Mr. Borden, the leader of the Opposition, is practically repeating the fable in the speeches he is now delivering on his Ontario tour. Speaking on Wednesday at Stratford, he said: "For the whole line the country assumes obligations in cash and credit of not less than $150,000,000 to $170,000,000." By reference to Hansard it will be seen that this extravagant estimate is not justified. A letter from Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, an official appointed by a Conservative Government, estimated the cost per mile, from Moncton to Quebec, 400 miles, will be $25,000, and from Quebec to Winnipeg, 1475 miles, $28,000. This covers the entire Eastern Section, 1875 miles long, which is to be built by the Government and leased to the Grand Trunk Pacific Company, and makes the cost of it $51,000,000. To be on the safe side Mr. Fielding estimates the cost at $64,000,000, on which the company, after a period of seven years, will pay three per cent. per annum, the rate at which the Government expects to be able to borrow the money.

On the Prairie Section, from Winnipeg to the Rocky Mountains, the Government does no constructing but merely guarantees three-fourths of the cost, the amount so guaranteed not in any case to exceed $13,000 per mile. The length of this section is 1,800 miles. No further liability here.

On the Mountain Section, 180 miles long, the Government guarantees three-fourths of the cost, no limit being stated. But, taking the Opposition estimate of the cost, viz., $60,000 a mile, the sum to be guaranteed will not exceed $40,000 per mile. The company will not begin payment of interest on the amount till the expiration of seven years from the close of construction. In other words the Government will have to pay the interest for that period.

If it be true, as the Opposition say, that the bargain is a favourable one one for the Grand Trunk Pacific, if it is true, as Mr. Borden claimed at Stratford, that the Grand Trunk Pacific will get the lion's share of profits from Northwest operation, then the Government is not going to lose a dollar by that Company as its tenant on the Eastern Section, or as the beneficiary of its guarantees on the section west of Winnipeg.

But for party purposes it becomes necessary to try and frighten the people, with grossly exaggerated estimates of cost, and with stories at one time of extravagant profits for the railway at the public expense, and at another stories of an entire and utter failure of the railway enterprise, which would mulct the people in extravagant bills of costs, without compensating advantage.

Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, in dealing with the subject, pointed out what is plain in the Act, that the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific together must fulfil all their obligations to the Government, before they can make a dollar out of the enterprise. The only liability really devolving on the Government is that it must make provision for receiving no rental from the Eastern Section, and no interest payments on the amount guaranteed on the Mountain Section for a period of seven years in each instance. And, as Mr. Fielding has stated, actuaries calculate that these two liabilities could be met by setting aside at the present time a capital sum of $13,833,000, or something less than the surplus last year, at three per cent.

There are no land grants or traffic monopolies in connection with the scheme, while rates will be controlled by the Railway Board. It is out of sight a better bargain for Canada than that made with the Canadian Pacific. Aside from the benefits it will bring to the Western settler, it will prove of enormous advantage to the older Provinces in opening up their back country, and bringing them in closer contact with the Western markets.

NEW DISCOVERIES IN NORTERN ONTARIO.

It will be remembered that about four years ago when the Ontario Government decided to send out a number of surveying parties to explore the part of this province lying north of the height of land there was a general feeling throughout the country that the venture would prove unsuccessful. There had always existed a prejudice and a feeling that this district was of no value as it had never been previously explored except by trappers and hunters in search of furs, and it was also thought to be in such a cold latitude that the fertility of the soil would not be suitable for the raising of cereals. It had therefore been looked upon as doomed to become a wilderness.

These surveyors have now made their report which is most encouraging, and shows the wisdom of the Government in sending out these men who have explored from the Quebec boundary west as far as Thunder Bay and far north from the main line of the C.P.R. They found that there were at least sixteen million acres of splendid land, principally a rich clay soil which is admirably adapted for agriculture and that at present most of this land is covered with very valuable timber. The climate was also found to be not unsuited for the successful growing of grain and the country is not too rough to admit of railways being built.

Many reports have since reached the public concerning this newly explored section and they are all of a very glowing and encouraging nature. Not far to the north and east of Chapleau on the Canadian Pacific a splendid tract of land has been discovered, extensive enough to contain eight townships, which will when settled, as it is sure to be soon, prove a great source of profitable transportation for the Canadian Pacific and the National Transcontinental railways, from both of which it will be in close proximity.

Mr. Patten, who is one of the most competent of the Provincial surveyors, reports the location of an immense area of splendid land on the northwest of Lake Abitibi and about 150 miles from Lake Temiskaming. Mr. Patten has had a very wide experience in surveying in the northwest as well as in Northern Ontario and his report is received with much gratification by the citizens of Ontario. He also found great quantities of valuable spruce timber as well as other kinds. This soil is also of a rich clay particularly well adapted for agricultural use. These reports go a long way to show to what benefit the new Transcontinental Railway will be in opening up this vast and valuable country, through which it will pass for hundreds of miles. It is no wonder the people in Canada are so anxious to see this road built and so pleased with the terms by which this country is to secure it.—Exchange.

WARSAW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The re-opening services at the Methodist Church on Sunday and Monday evening were largely attended. The services on Sunday being of a highly spiritual character. The Rev. Dr. Carman for a man of his years and labours is wonderfully preserved in power of utterance and energy of expression. His sermons on Sunday were master pieces of eloquence and spiritual fervour. The large congregations paid strictest attention to the close of each service. First-class music was the order of the day by a union of the Methodist and Presbyterian choirs, the Rev. Mr. Atkinson having kindly withdrawn his evening service. The church has been tastefully renovated and presents a neat appearance. The tea on Monday evening was largely attended. The repast was beautifully served in the basement on tables laid in good order. The Rev. T. E. Robeson, of Fraserville, under whose administration the church and parsonage were erected was present and delivered an address appropriate to the occasion. The choir of the Methodist Church, Lakefield, rendered beautiful and appropriate music. The address of the evening was a lecture by Dr. Carman, "Christian Citizenship" and for over an hour he held the house spell bound by his eloquent expressions. The visit of Dr. Carman to Warsaw long be remembered. Receipts of tea will reach about $140.

Mrs. (Rev.) Atkinson, we are pleased to say is somewhat improved in health.

Miss Edith Williams of Sarnia is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. S. R. Payne.

Some talk on an electric plant being installed. Well, we are all here, as well as elsewhere, in need of more light. May it soon flash upon us "that greatest of all blessings."

The Rev. Mr. McQuade goes to Grenville Co. to see a brother who is in a very low state of health while Mrs. McQuade at the parsonage has been in a low condition for several weeks, and is only slightly better as yet.

Some new citizens are moving into town.

The hum of the thresher can be heard in all directions.

A slight tint of autumn can be observed on the foliage and landscape in general. How quickly the seasons pass and so do we.

No More Operations.

The day of operations for piles is past for all who know of the efficacy of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for this horrible ailment. It doesn't matter what form of piles you have, so long as you use Dr. Chase's Ointment carefully and plentifully, it will soon bring relief and cure. Ask your friends and neighbours what they know about this preparation.

THE SERVIANS' KING

Peter Karageorgevitch Crowned As the New Ruler.

NO HOSTILITY IN EVIDENCE

Nor Was There Any Attempt Made to Carry Out The Threats Made Against the New King's Life—A Brilliant Procession—Peter I. Consecrated By the Metropolitan—Crowned By Himself.

Belgrade, Servia, Sept. 22.—Peter Karageorgevitch was crowned King of Servia yesterday. There were no hostile demonstrations and no attempt to carry out the numerous threats which had been made against the new king's life. In the solemn ritual of the Greek Church and in the elaborate state procession which preceded and followed the coronation the tragedy of Servia's previous ruler found no echo. Amid the thunder of the saluting guns from the royal palace and the garrison King Alexander's murder was at least outwardly forgotten.

A Dawn Salute of 21 Guns.

Here and in every garrison town of Servia the dawn of day was marked by a salute of 21 guns and before the gun was well up King Peter, on horseback, rode out from the palace. The brilliant procession then started for the cathedral through the troop lined streets. Behind the soldiers were packed dense crowds who in spite of the rainy weather stood patiently awaiting to see the King. The Royal Heralds, Cavalry and Life Guards (the Heralds bearing the Royal Standard) and carriages with the Montenegrin and Servian princesses, preceded the monarch. Beside King Peter rode his two sons, George and Alexander.

Metropolitan Consecrated Him.

The cathedral was reached shortly after 8 o'clock. There the representatives of the foreign powers, the Cabinet Ministers and others had already been waiting for some time. As King Peter entered the metropolitan consecrated him and more military salutes were fired. The King then took up his position under a canopy and the metropolitan, assisted by many bishops and other clergy, commenced the solmen service. After the prayer the Premier and other ministers handed the crown and regalia to King Peter.

Peter Crowned Himself.

He kissed the crown, placed it on his head and robed himself in the royal garments. An artillery salute of 101 guns then announced to the people of Belgrade that King Peter had been crowned.

Wearing the crown on his head and fully robed the king left the cathedral, remounted his horse and rode through the crowded streets to the palace. There, in the grand festal hall, King Peter received the congratulations of the diplomatic corps, ascended the throne and once more took the sceptre and orb in his hands.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, but by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

NOMINATIONS IN LIBERAL INTEREST.

Mr. McCool For East Nipissing and Mr. Cowan For East Lambton.

North Bay, Sept. 22.—A Liberal Convention was held here yesterday for the purpose of nominating a candidate to represent East Nipissing in the House of Commons. C. A. McCool, present member; Z. Mageau of Sturgeon Falls; John Armstrong, mayor of New Liskeard; Angus McKelvie, of Haileybury; A. G. Young, wholesale merchant of North Bay, were nominated, all retiring except Z. Mageau and C. A. McCool, the present member. The vote was 120 for him and 66 for Mageau. On motion of Z. Mageau, the convention was unanimously given to Mr. McCool. Last evening a meeting was held in the opera house, at which the following were present: Sir William Mulock, C. A. McCool, Mr. Lemieux, Solicitor-General; Dr. James, M.P.P.; A. Dyment, M.P., of Thessalon. Sir William Mulock spoke for an hour, and Mr. Lemieux spoke in French for half an hour. The meeting broke up about 10.30, with three cheers for C. A. McCool, and the Liberal Government.

East Lambton.

Watford, Sept. 22.—A convention of the Liberals of East Lambton, was held here yesterday afternoon to select a candidate to contest the riding for the House of Commons at the coming election. There was a large attendance. About twenty nominees were placed before the convention, but all retired in favor of John Cowan, K.C., of Sarnia, who was made the unanimous choice of the convention. R. Holmes, M.P., for West Huron, delivered an address on the issues of the day, dealing largely with Mr. Borden's policy on the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Favor Advanced Legislation.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 22.—The reception of reports occupied the time of the Manufacturers' Association yesterday. The decision to send a delegate to Great Britain next year, and the diplomatic move to meet representatives of the Labor Congress, now in session, met with approval. The Association also passed a resolution approving of the placing of express companies under the control of the Railway Commission.

Canadian Robbed in Detroit.

Detroit, Sept. 22.—The man who was picked up on Wednesday evening last on Washington avenue, unconscious, and who was supposed to have been assaulted and robbed, regained consciousness Tuesday night long enough to say that his name was Gibbs, and that his wife and child lived in Amherstburg, Ont. He said that he had fifty dollars just before he was found. He is in a critical condition.

THREATENED HOLY WAR.

Buddist Pilgrimage to Mouran in February Causes Comment.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 22.—It is rather significant that, with the success of the British expedition to Thibet and the protest of Russia against the British-Thibetan Treaty, some of the Russian papers have suddenly become greatly disturbed over the importance of the Buddhist pilgrimage to Mouran in February. According to information which has been drifting eastward from the depths of Mongolia, the agitation for a holy war, noted at the time of the pilgrimage to Ourge, in July last, continues. Wandering Lamas are spreading the agitation. According to reports at Ourge, there is a general agitation among the Buddhists in favor of freeing themselves from the dominion of China, some of them favoring the removal of the Dalai Lama to Northern Mongolia and entering on a holy war for the establishment of a Buddhist kingdom, while others advocate appealing for the protection of Russia.

North York Election Voided on a Point of Law.

A CASE UNIQUE IN CANADA

Hon. E. J. Davis Loses His Seat, But Commissioner of Crown Lands Not Morally Culpable—So Say the Judges, But Law Was Violated By Allowing a "Reported" Man to Work.

Newmarket, Sept. 23.—The court yesterday morning voided the election of Hon. E. J. Davis in North York on a point which has arisen for the first time in Canadian legal procedure. W. J. Robinson of Meaford, who was reported in North Grey for hiring a vehicle for the conveyance of voters, was held to have participated in the North York election, and agency was established. No attempt was made to show that Robinson had been guilty of wrongdoing, but the act provides that no one "reported" by an election court, no matter for what reason, shall for a period of eight years take active part in another election. The Chancellor, in giving judgment, held that there was no moral culpability on Mr. Davis' part, and that one more versed in law than he might quite easily have made the same mistake of differentiating between bribery and a merely illegal act. In the present instance it was most regrettable, as Mr. Davis' majority was 449. Mr. Justice Teetzel, in concurring, stated that the provision of the act was a harsh one, but they could only give effect to the law as they found it. Mr. Aylesworth stated the case would probably be appealed, and the court ordered that the other charges and the question of costs should stand in the meantime.

Chancellor Boyd's Decision.

The Chancellor, in giving judgment said that he and his colleague agreed in the result, though they might not reach it in the same way. This was not a case of disputed facts, but one in which, on the ascertained facts, it was necessary to apply the act to find if there was an evasion of the act. It was quite true that there was no crime or immorality attached to what had been done. Robinson appeared in the riding on the 11th of February, was found taking a prominent part in looking over the voters' lists, engaged in telephone messages, arranged for meetings, and distributed bills. "He was hand and glove with the Chairman of that section," said His Lordship, "doing various kinds of activities, and at work at the time from February 11 or 13 to the day of polling. He was not disturbed, but went on doing work in that conspicuous way, in charge of Sutton.

"I think that it clearly establishes agency of a prominent character. As I understand the English cases, the personal engagement is not in writing, but where the candidate is in personal touch with the man. The candidate here unquestionably knew Robinson, was introduced to him, knew he was an active man, participated in the benefit of the labors he was engaged in, and, knowing he was in charge of Sutton, and being in conference with him, there was that personal element in it, and seems to show that on the whole case there was a personal engagement of this man as agent."

An Error Often Made.

Taking up the next question of personal knowledge of Robinson having been reported for corrupt acts, the Chancellor reviewed the evidence, and went on: "On this evidence Mr. Davis had notice, not only notice, but personal knowledge, of the facts which are the main facts here. He knew of the controversy in North Grey, and that the one charge on which the case was decided was this of the hiring of a rig. Mr. Davis is not singular in believing that was an illegal act, but not a corrupt practice. Many lawyers have made that mistake. It is not proven a corrupt act, but the provision of the act is that it shall be deemed to be a corrupt act. It is not to be wondered at that Mr. Davis should make this mistake, but the error which he made, though freeing him from moral culpability, does not free him from legal responsibility. He must have known there was a judgment, and that the act Robinson was guilty of was a corrupt one under the statute, one which the judges were bound to report, and which they did report.

Mr. Davis' Mistake.

"He might have satisfied himself by inquiry from the proper source which was right, in their recollection. But, getting the confirmation of Mr. Lennox, who, as a lawyer, might be expected to have knowledge, he went on without taking the trouble of making inquiry. On the next day, after he had heard this from Mr. Lennox, he made this appointment of him as his election agent. It seems to me the statute is aimed at this, the employment in an election as an agent by either candidate of persons who have broken the election law. This is one of the punishments attached to the man guilty of corrupt practices, that they are not considered competent to be agents in an election, and that if a candidate employs him, is in personal touch with him, is aware of this incompetency, the consequence is that his election is void. It seems to me that Mr. Davis was aware and had reason to be aware that Robinson was not a proper person to employ. I do not know that a private letter spoken of by Mr. Aylesworth, would be more potent than public notice."

"No doubt there is much wild speaking at the election meetings, but after Mr. Lennox made his statement at the very place where the man was acting, one would have thought it reasonable that steps should be taken to ascertain the truth of it. Mr. Davis seems to have relied on his own recollection that Robinson's act in North Grey was only an improper act and not a corrupt act, but unfortunately the statute made it so. Still, he was aware of the essential facts, and could easily have satisfied himself of the others.

Document Not a Mere Form.

"Then we have this appointment of Robinson as a scrutineer. I cannot agree with Mr. Aylesworth that this is a matter of blank paper. It seems to me he is responsible for whatever name is put in there as the document he has signed. The signing cannot be passed over as a mere form. The law requires an appointment in writing, and if a candidate fills up an appointment in blank he is responsible for the same put in. According to the very letter of the statute, there was a very personal engagement of this man Robinson as an agent in the election. To my mind there was more than that; there was personal knowledge of the agency of Robinson preceding and a retention of him in that position, as agent in charge of Sutton, and the adding to his duties by this appointment of the 19th of February to act as scrutineer.

There is no doubt that the personal engagement preceded knowledge of the incompetency, but the moment knowledge of incompetency came to the notice of Mr. Davis the personal engagement attached with the meaning of the statute. I regret the result that in a constituency where there was so large a majority as 449 the election should be affected by a transaction of this kind in which there is not any moral culpability. It was an insiderate act, but I see no way or escape from the consequences of the action my opinion the result is that the election is void because of that."

WILL HEAR ARGUMENT.

Does the Net Income of the C.P.R. Exceed 10 Per Cent?

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—(Globe Special.)—The Supreme Court at its coming term will hear argument as to whether the net income of the C.P.R. Company exceeds 10 per cent. per annum of profit upon the capital actually expended in the construction of the line. Upon the determination of this question rests the issue as to whether or not there shall be Government control of rates. Under its charter the company is freed from Government control of rates until its net increase reaches the amount stated. As to whether his stage has been reached in the company's finances there is a difference of opinion between the Minister of Justice and the officers of the company, and it was thought that a judicial determination of the questions involved would materially assist in arriving at an understanding of the mutual rights of the Government and the company and the obligations or liabilities of the company in this behalf.

Northwest Legislature Opens.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 23.—At the opening of the Northwest Legislature yesterday the speech from the throne was of a formal nature. It expressed thankfulness for the continuance of prosperity, declared that throughout the greater part of the territories the harvest is bountiful and referred in eulogistic terms to the visit of Lord and Lady Minto. The Government did not propose to introduce legislation on any large public question, and it was a matter of gratification that the private bills to be promoted indicated the forward march of the territories. Regret was expressed that the movement for their establishment on a provincial basis had not been materially forwarded during the past year.

North Bruce Liberals.

Port Elgin, Sept. 23.—The North Bruce Liberal convention yesterday nominated J. E. Campbell of Hepworth as the Liberal candidate for the riding in the House of Commons. Every municipality in the constituency was represented. The contest was between J. E. Campbell and John Tolmie, M.P., the vote of the delegates standing 83 to 79 in favor of the former. Resolutions were passed approving of the legislative and administrative policy of the Liberal Government led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. G. W. Ross. The new riding of North Bruce extends from Kincardine to Tobermoray. The Conservatives meet at Tara on Oct. 4 to select their standard bearer.

Engineer on C.P.R. Sentenced.

Winnipeg, Sept. 22.—Engineer Crowell, an engineer running on the Regina division of the C.P.R., was sentenced yesterday morning at Regina to two years in the penitentiary for being intoxicated while on his engine. Crowell was taken off his engine under this charge alone, no accident being at the root of the trouble.

Shot in a Restaurant.

Montreal, Sept. 22.—Belanger, a rag-picker, was shot in a Dominion street restaurant yesterday afternoon by Leon Lecallion, the proprietor. A quarrel over a lunch served to the rag-picker led to the shooting. Belanger was hit in the region of the heart, and may not recover.

REVISE THE TARIFF

Canadian Manufacturers Make Protection Their Slogan.

COLONIAL TRADE RELATIONS

Sir Wilfrid Laurier on Canada and the Empire—A System of Mere Concessions Advocated—Notable Speech By Premier Ross—Speeches By Hon. G. W. Ross and Sir Howard Vincent.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association closed its convention yesterday by adopting the strongest resolution in favor of a revision of the tariff recorded in its history.

A resolution was also adopted in favor of the establishment of a fire insurance department on account of the excessive rates now charged.

W. K. George of Toronto was chosen president of the association.

The closing meeting in the morning was held behind closed doors. It was afterward announced that the report of the tariff committee had been adopted as presented, with some immaterial changes.

The last paragraph proposed that the association should pledge its members to support candidates in favor of a higher tariff. It was decided to use the word "recommend," instead of "pledge."

Let State Own Phones.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—At the C.M.A. convention yesterday a resolution was adopted commending the consideration of the Parliamentary committee to the resolution of the Windsor Board of Trade, favoring the acquiring of the telephone system by the Dominion Government. The committee is to report at a future meeting.

The Banquet.

The Manufacturers' Association ended its session last night with a banquet at the Windsor Hotel, at which the Premiers of Canada and of Ontario, Sir Howard Vincent, Hon. Geo. E. Foster, and Hon. C. H. McCarthy of Trinidad, were the principal speakers. The oratory was of a high standard, and the menu excellent. The declarations of Mr. George, the newly-elected President, were, he affirmed, non-political, but they were emphatically in favor of high protection. He expressed great satisfaction that the free trader and other "pessimists" were practically extinct. Sir Wilfrid Laurier delivered an address, in which he referred with pride to the part played by the French-Canadian people, who in the darkest hour for British power on the American continent remained loyal to the Empire, even when England was deserted by her own kith and kind.

Sir Wilfrid admitted that he did not quite see eye to eye with the chairman in all matters of tariffs, but refrained from the discussion of anything of a controversial nature, and expressed the belief that the future of the Empire could be secured by careful arrangements for closer trade relations between its various parts.

A feature of the gathering was the speech of Hon. Geo. W. Ross, who in a carefully reasoned address expressed his belief that the interests of Canada would be best served by retaining entire control of the fiscal situation and refusing to make a reciprocity arrangement in treaty form with either the United States or the Motherland. If it were considered advisable to give a trade preference to Great Britain that could be done, and done generously, without entering into treaty obligations, which were often irritating.

Ohio Charged With Manslaughter.

Melrose, Mass., Sept. 23.—The death list of nine, resulting from Wednesday night's disaster, in which a well-filled car was blown to pieces by dynamite, was not increased yesterday, although six of the injured are regarded as being in a critical condition, and may not survive their wounds. The principal action of the authorities yesterday was the arraignment in court of Roy C. Fenton, the driver of the express wagon, from the tailboard of which the fifty pound box of dynamite dropped to be struck later by the ill-fated car. Fenton was charged with manslaughter.

Brantford Mill Badly Burned.

Brantford, Sept. 23.—At a fire in the Massey-Harris works here yesterday afternoon, John Jamieson, 99 Peel street, this city, received burns which will probably prove fatal. Jamieson was engaged in cleaning a tank in the works. A torch he was carrying set fire to the surrounding woodwork, and he was unable to get it out. The fire was quickly extinguished by the city brigade. Jamieson was rescued in an unconscious condition.

20 Out of 40 Killed.

Siloam Springs, Ark., Sept. 23.—While forty men were working yesterday on an iron bridge, which is being erected over Grand River, near Grive, I. T., forty miles northwest of here, the bridge collapsed and 20 are reported killed and many others injured.

Ontario Man Hurt.

Winnipeg, Sept. 23.—Wm. Doudle, foreman on the steel structure at the new wing of St. Boniface Hospital, fell from the scaffolding to the ground, a distance of 50 feet, yesterday at noon. His recovery is doubtful. Doudle has been here but a short time. His home is at Martintown, near Cornwall, Ont.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Receipts of live stock at the city market from all sources since Tuesday were the largest of the season, amounting to 152 car loads, consisting of 2406 cattle, 1217 hogs, 3080 sheep and lambs, with 109 veal calves.

The general opinion amongst the leading butchers operating on the market was that they never at any time saw so few good to choice cattle for sale, considering the heavy deliveries. Many of them were of the opinion that farmers were short-sighted in sending cattle that were not half fat to market, when grass is so plentiful. George Rountree, buyer for the Harris Abattoir Company, reported having bought 350 cattle and out of this number there were only 30 that he classed as good to choice, for which he paid from $4.40 to $4.50 per cwt. This shows that choice butchers' were not any lower in price. The bulk of the butchers' cattle sold from $3.25 to $3.75 per cwt. Choice picked lots of butchers' cattle, weighing from 1050 to 1150 lbs. each, sold at $4.40 to $4.50 per cwt.; loads of fair to good at $3.90 to $4.20; medium at $3.60 to $3.80; common butcher cows, at $3 to $3.40; inferior rough lots, at $2.50 to $3, and canner bulls and old worn-out cows at $1.25 to $1.60 per cwt. It will be seen by the many sales quoted that there were comparatively few loads or lots that sold at $4 per cwt. and over.

The annual feeder and stocker trade is in full swing and there was a good demand for choice quality. The leading dealers for distillery cattle have commenced to buy as well as many of the leading farmers and live stock dealers from all parts of the country. All the commission salesmen did a good trade, some of them shipping many loads to all orders from the country. Feeding steers, good quality, 925 to 1050 lbs. each, sold from $3.50 to $3.80 per cwt.; steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.40; stockers, 500 to 700 lbs. each, at $2.75 to $3; off colors and inferior, at $2.25 to $2.50; distillery bulls, 1100 to 1300 lbs. each, at $2.50 to $3.12½ per cwt.

There was a fair delivery of milch cows and springers, for which there was a good demand at $30 to $50 each.

Over 100 veal calves sold at unchanged prices, $2 to $10 each, or $3.50 to $6.25 per cwt. Extra choice would bring $6.50 per cwt.

The run of sheep and lambs, especially the latter, was very large, over 3000. But all were reported as sold, the demand being good, but lambs sold at lower prices. Wesley Dunn, who was the heaviest dealer, reports sheep at $3.75 to $3.90 per cwt., and lambs at $4 to $4.25, that is for the bulk. Picked lots, 90 to 110 lbs each, sold at $4.25 to $4.40.

Deliveries were not what might be termed large, 1217. Prices were reported by Mr. Harris as being unchanged at $5.15 for selects, and $4.90 for lights and fats.

Some of the drovers from east of Toronto were not altogether satisfied with the above prices. These drovers report the representatives of Park, Blackwell & Co. as well as the Peterboro buyers, as paying $5.08 to $5.10 per cwt. free, on board cars, at Locust Hill and Claremont. We also heard of $5 being paid at several other points.

Veals—Receipts, 300 head; steady, $4.50 to $7.75.

Grand Trunk Report.

London, Sept. 22.—The half-yearly report of the Grand Trunk Railway Company contains little more than the preliminary statement issued a month ago. The directors attribute the poor results to the unprecedented severity of the weather during January, February and March. The efforts made to neutralize the diminishing revenue by reducing the expenditure have been successful. The general meeting takes place to-day week.

Snake by Mail.

An extraordinary case of attempted murder has just come to light in Western Australia. A package containing a venomous snake was posted to the wife of a well known hotel keeper who was in a very delicate state of health at the time. The snake was packed in a parcel with a hole at one end to admit air. The postal officials, however, noticed the exceptional weight of the packet and, feeling the contents moving, looked through the aperture and into the eyes of the snake. The snake was duly killed, but the author of the outrage has not yet been found.—London Post.

VERY SUCCESSFUL TEA AND CONCERT.

In Connection With St. Mark's Church Last Evening.

Event Largely Attended—Speeches by Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. J. A. Sexsmith—The Music.

The Thanksgiving tea and entertainment which was held at Zion last night, in connection with St. Mark's church, was largely attended, not only by the people of that particular neighbourhood, but by many young people from Peterborough as well. The affair was held in the Foresters' Hall and the dining room was well filled for hours previous to the commencement of the entertainment.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, accepted the invitation of Rev. Mr. Langfeldt to be present, and a feature of the programme was an interesting and instructive address by that gentleman on the growth of the agricultural industry in Ontario. Hon. Mr. Stratton, after referring to the pleasure it gave him in being present, and congratulating Rev. Mr. Langfeldt and the congregation of St. Mark's upon the success of their Harvest Festival, referred to the prosperity of the farmers of the present day. They had a good deal to be thankful for although this year may not be quite up to that of the preceeding year. Hon. Mr. Stratton then traced very minutely the various advantages and disadvantages of the agriculturalists since the war of 1812. Concerning the McKinley Act of 1860 which temporarily deprived the farmers of this country of a market for their produce, he stated that it was really one of the kindest acts towards us that the American Government have ever passed, inasmuch as it caused the people of Canada to find a new and better market for their produce in Great Britain. Hon. Mr. Stratton after touching upon the matter of more recent legislation in the interests of the farmers, concluded by speaking in eulogistic terms of the Rector of St. Mark's, Rev. Mr. Langfeldt and his esteemed predecessors, Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, now unfortunately deceased, and Rev. Dr. Symonds, one of the most prominent men in the church in Canada, all of whom were personal friends of his, and whom he felt sure were beloved by their parishoners.

Mr. John A. Sexsmith, Conservative candidate for the Dominion House of Commons, in East Peterborough, who happened to be present was given a seat on the platform, and spoke briefly of the pleasure he felt in being present.

During the evening Mr. Jos. Legg rendered several vocal solos which were highly appreciated and Miss Weir was a popular artist in her well rendered recitations.

The choir of St. Luke's church also assisted in the programme.

Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, who was chairman of the meeting, thanked those present for their interest in the affairs of the church and the affair was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Special mention should be made of the very excellent supper that was provided by the ladies of the parish.

"UNCLE BARNEY'S" ANNUAL PARTY

Mr. B. A. Matschke Entertains a Number of his Young Friends'.

A delightful party was that given yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Matschke, Dublin street, when her son, Mr. B. A. Matschke, or "Uncle Barney," as he is known by his numerous young friends here, entertained a crowd of young people in a right royal fashion. Mr. Matschke makes a trip home every year and the party to his young friends is an annual event, which is looked forward to with great pleasure both by the host and the guests. That of yesterday was one of the most pleasant ever given. About twenty girls and boys were the guests of "Uncle Barney" on a trolley ride and were afterwards given ice cream and cake and other dainties at Mrs. Matschke's home. The children, in their turn assisted in the entertainment, giving recitations and solos, and just before the party broke up all joined in singing "God Save the King."

Mr. Matschke is a great favourite with his host of young friends here, and his visits are always times of pleasure for them, while he too finds great delight in giving the young people a good time. The little guests yesterday were:—Misses Ada Graham, Emily Cooney, Minnie Erskine, Spray Erskine, Mary Gibson, Marjory Mann, Irene Booth, Addie Ray, Bessie Ray, Helen Harper, Gladys Fife, Elsie Clinkscale, Katherine Kincaid, Mildred Micks, Nouna Pratt; Masters Charles Graham, Norman Graham, Mortimer Erskine, Willie Pratt. Among those present also were Miss A. Weir, Mrs. James Graham, Mrs. H. Fife, Mrs. B. A. Matschke and Mr. Geo. Matschke.

PRETTY WEDDING IN DOURO CHURCH

Miss Emma Frances O'Leary Married to Mr. Charles Fitzgerald.

At nine o'clock on Tuesday morning September 20th, a very pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Joseph's church, Douro, when Miss Emma Frances O'Leary, eldest daughter of Mr. Daniel O'Leary, "Riverside", Otonabee, was made the bride of Mr. Charles Fitzgerald, of Cranbrook, British Columbia. The ceremony was performed by His Reverence Father Kelly the Parish Priest of Douro, in the presence of the relatives of the contracting parties and a large number of friends, the church being well filled. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Teresa Garvey, of Asphodel, while the groomsman was the bride's brother, Mr. Daniel O'Leary. The bride was given away by her father.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by the organist, who also sang "Ave Maria, Guardian Dear" and "On this day, Oh, beautiful Mother."

The bride was beautifully attired in a blue Llama cheviot travelling suit and carried white asters and carnations. Miss Garvey was very becomingly attired in white silk and carried pink asters.

After the ceremony a delightful wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father and everybody was as happy as a clam at high water.

An informal reception was held from 11.30 until 4 o'clock and the bride and groom left on the 5.10 C. P. R. train for a trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls.

The bride was one of Otonabee's most popular young ladies and her very large circle of friends will wish her every happiness and prosperity in her married life. The groom was always highly thought of. A few years ago he went to British Columbia where he greatly prospered. Charley is all right. In a few weeks himself and his bride will leave for their home in the west. May they live long and die happy—so say they all.

SUDDEN DEATH OF RONALD BROWN

Son of Mr. George Brown Dies Suddenly in Yamir B. C.

Sad intelligence was conveyed to the home of Mr. George Brown at Barnardo and Bennett streets, this afternoon, when a telegram was received from Yamir, B.C., informing Mr. Brown of the death of his son, Ronald, in that town.

The deceased went to the West some few years ago, and prior to his departure was one of the most popular young men in Peterborough.

The news of his death came as a great surprise to his friends here, as it was not known that he was ill. The parents of the young man hear from him and his four brothers every week, and in none of the recent letters has any mention been made of the illness of any of them.

The message stated that he had been killed in a mine.

THE DANCE WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Very Enjoyable Affair in Foresters Hall Wednesday Evening.

The first of a series of informal dances to be given this season in the Foresters' Hall, was held on Wednesday evening, and to say that it was a great success, would be putting it mildly. There were about forty couples who "tripped the light fantastic" for several hours, and most heartily was the affair enjoyed. The sentiment of sociability evidenced was such as to make all present feel that sense of pleasure conducive to the success of all such events, and if the succeeding dances are as delightful as that of Wednesday evening there is a season of much merriment and pleasure in store for many of the young people of the town. The list of dances was a lengthy one, and the music, which was supplied by Prof. Musgrove of Toronto, was most excellent.

The patronesses were Mrs. Dr. Reid, Mrs. J. Crane, Mrs. A. L. Davis, Mrs. A. H. Stratton and Mrs. G. Dame. A great deal of the success of the affair is due to the efforts of Miss O. Bradburn, E. W. Bradd, H. Wilmot, and B. Moore, who formed the refreshment committee.

At the conclusion of the dance, which broke up about 1.30 o'clock, three hearty cheers were given for Prof. Musgrove and for Mr. J. Laurence, whose efforts were largely instrumental in bringing the affair to such a successful issue.

INTERESTING LECTURE ON YUKON MISSIONS

Given by Rev. J. J. Wright Wednesday Night in St. Paul's Mission.

On Wednesday night Rev. J. J. Wright, the representative of the Presbyterian church in the Yukon, with headquarters at White Horse, gave a lecture in St. Paul's Mission, under the auspices of the Home Missionary Society of that church, when a large crowd gathered and listened to what proved to be a highly interesting and instructive talk on the work of the Society in the Yukon.

Rev. Mr. Wright, who is an interesting speaker, dwelt upon the extent of the country, its characteristics, the people, and the work, enumerating some of the difficulties in conducting the work of Missions in that land. The lecture was in substance similar to that given in an interview which the Examiner had with Rev. Mr. Wright some weeks ago, and was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

The chair was occupied by Rev. J. A. Wilson, the associate pastor of St. Paul's church. A pleasing feature of the meeting was a solo, "Face to Face," rendered in excellent style by Miss Effie Best.

A PRESENTATION TO A FORMER SECRETARY

Miss Agnes Dickson, Guest of the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday Evening

The young ladies of the Y.W.C.A. were pleased to welcome back to town again Agnes I. Dickson, former secretary of the local association. Miss Dickson, who is in Montreal for some time and is on her way to Vancouver whither she sails on the 30th of the month for China to undertake work in the Macoa Mission. Several of the young ladies who were members when Miss Dickson had charge presented her with a beautiful Nave Topical Bible as a token of their love and esteem. A short address was read and a very pleasant informal evening was spent. Miss Dickson left yesterday for the West.

DETROIT PAPERS PRAISE THE BAND

Black Watch Band Meeting With Great Success on the Trip.

The enthusiasm at the concerts of the Black Watch Band during the first week of its tour in Western Ontario has been even greater than that inspired by the Coldstream Guards. Every number has been encored, and the audiences have cheered the playing of the band and have concluded each concert with rising and singing the patriotic choruses, and giving a rousing "Hurrah!" At the music of the pipers the audience have not contented themselves with mere cheers, but have shrieked with delight. The Black Watch were heard under very disadvantageous circumstances at the Toronto Exhibition, what with circus shows and midway sounds, and in the morning lacrosse matches going on beside them, but on tour where a proper hearing can be obtained, it has not only made good but has surpassed its reputation as being Scotland's greatest band, and one of the finest military bands in the world to-day. When the band appeared in Windsor, the Detroit critics spoke in the most glowing terms of their playing.

The BEST STOVE CO

REJECTED BYLAWS.

The rejection of the two bylaws voted upon on Tuesday confronts, not only the Council but the people at large with a serious problem — the problem of overcoming the sort of dead lock which that rejection involves. Two facts stand out patently; a new fire hall or at least improved fire extinction appliances and conveniences, must be provided, else we run a double risk or rather a risk and a certainty. We risk serious destruction of property in case of fire with the imperfect means of fighting it at our disposal, and we are exposed to the certainty of having the price of insurance advanced to a degree that will mean a larger outlay by ratepayers than would have been caused by the adoption of the bylaw. For it seems certain that the expenditure for fire purposes will have to be made and there seems no other way open at present than adding the amount of necessary expenditure to the annual tax bill. By this means we of to-day will be paying for improvements of which a coming generation will get a large share of the benefit. Whereas, if the bylaw had been adopted the payments would have extended over many years and the whole burden would not have fallen upon the ratepayers of to-day. The same remarks apply generally to the bridges bylaw. The bridges must be looked after, the expense must be incurred, and the cost must be met by, so to speak, a lump-payment by the ratepayers instead of being spread over a long term of years.

The blame for this condition of things is divided. Primarily and technically the blame rests with the ratepayers, who rejected the bylaws submitted by the Council. In the second place the blame rests with the Council in a double sense.

The council, in view of the interests involved, might have been at greater pains to educate the people to the importance and necessity of passing the bylaws. That duty was all the more important because in the minds of many taxpayers the council has forfeited the confidence of the latter; who reasoned, from the manner in which the public money has been expended to indifferent advantage, and with very unsatisfactory results as reflected in the deplorable general condition of our streets, that money raised under the bylaws in question would not be dealt with in a satisfactory manner.

The resulting conditions are unfortunate. There is no escaping the conclusion that the ratepayers have not taken the wisest course in condemning the bylaws. The expenditure to be provided was necessary, and must, even now, it seems, be met in some way or other. Nor is there any escape from the conclusion that the council did not take the wisest course in withholding their confidence from the people, and in thrusting the bylaws upon the public notice in a sort of stand-and-deliver manner. True, the formal conditions of notice were complied with, but that was not enough. The whole circumstances should have been earlier placed before the people, and the definite explanations which were due them made clear and unmistakable. If the people are impressed with the necessity and importance of an expenditure for public purposes, as a rule, they will consent to it. But in the event of a proposition being, in a certain extent, sprung upon them, they are likely to take what they think is the safe course, and vote it down.

AN EXCELLENT IDEA

"Peterborough" Suggests That Piece of Sculpture be Purchased for Y. W. C. A.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Would it not be a good idea for some local patron of art to buy for the Y.W.C.A. the excellent piece of sculpture "Bust of a Child" by Miss Wallis at present on exhibition in her little collection in the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Gourlay, of Toronto, has already bought "La Toilette" and it is quite possible that the other may go in a similar way. As an admirer of my successful country woman and of one who is a native of this town this suggestion appeared to me so good that I venture to borrow it and to put it before the public through the medium of "The Examiner". It would be a striking and suitable adornment for the Y.W.C.A. Hall.

Yours etc.,

OPENING MEETING GEO. STREET GUILD.

The Young Men of this Guild Start the season's Meetings.

A Pleasant Evening Spent—Nomination of Officers for the Year.

Last night the first meeting of the Young Men's Guild of the George street church, for the season, was held, and while the attendance was not as large as it has been on some previous occasions, an interesting meeting was held and the prospects for the Guild for the coming season are very good.

The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. W. B. Warne,, and after the opening exercises the chairman gave an address in which he dealt briefly, but interestingly, with the history of the Guild, the objects which it seeks to attain and the prospects for the coming season.

This was followed by a reading by Mr. J. J. Jefferies, which was thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. F. H. Dobbin then gave a humorous talk on his recent trip to the World's Fair, in the course of which he recited many amusing incidents. The talk was a highly interesting one, and would well bear repeating before a larger audience.

The pastor, Rev. W. J. Crothers, gave a short address in which he asserted his interest in the work of the Young's Men's Guild, and emphasized the importance of the work of the Guild.

The nomination of officers for the coming session was next proceeded with, resulting as follows:

Elected by acclamation:

Hon. President—Rev. Dr. Crothers.

Hon. Vice-Presidents—Messrs. A. W. Cressman, F. H. Dobbin, J. Jefferies, and A. E. Dixon.

And the following, for which an election will be held:

President — Messrs. G. Robertson and M. J. Hutchinson.

Vice-President — Messrs. G. Galley, Geo. Robertson and M. J. Hutchinson.

Secretary — Messrs. A. Mann, W. Wood, Leslie Turner and F. Craig.

Treasurer—Messrs. W. Wood, P. Hetherington, B. Dobbin and W. Dredge.

Reporter—Messrs. S. S. Moore and F. Craig.

Critic—Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, elected by acclamation.

The election of officers will take place at the next meeting, which will be held in two weeks time.

Refreshments served by the young men brought the evening to a close.

Use Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) to wash woolens and flannels,—you'll like it. 37

THE MAN BEHIND THE HOE.

Let no one sing of slanted brow
On him who tills the soil.
The farmer loves the fruitful earth
And loves his daily toil.
'Tis true his back may curve a wee,
By bending over so,
But all his heart is straight and true—
The man behind the hoe.

Let no one sing of narrowed soul
Of him who turns the sod.
'Tis his to breathe the virgin air
And feel the kiss of God.
'Tis his to see the mysteries
Of nature come and go,
The budding plant, the perfect seed—
The man behind the hoe.

'Tis his to feel the spring's first thrill,
With hint of bluebird's wing;
'Tis his to smell the clover sweet
And hear the thrushes sing;
'Tis his to see the meadows wave
Like rippling waters slow.
All sweetest sights and sounds are his—
The man behind the hoe.

'Tis his to watch the springing corn
And feel the freshening rain;
'Tis his to smell the blossoming grape
And see the ripening grain;
'Tis his to pluck the golden yield
From fruit trees bending low—
Why, heaven itself lies all about
The man behind the hoe.

Oh, blessed the man whose lot is cast
Thus close to nature's heart.
What need has he of millions stored
Who of the whole is part?
What need has he of bank or bond
Who works to make things grow?
The only freedom on the globe
Is his behind the hoe.

—Townsend Allen.

Lord Strathcona's Title.

Lord Strathcona derives from two very different sources the title which he chose for himself when he became a Diamond Jubilee peer seven years ago. Mount Royal, is of course, simply Montreal, for which city Sir Donald Smith sat in the Dominion Parliament for nine years, and where is one of the half dozen splendid residences which he owns in two continents. Strathcona is derived from Glencoe, "Cona" being the musical name by which Ossian called the rushing stream (now known as the Coe) which waters the historic glen, and enters the sea at Ballachulish. Lord Strathcona owns a small estate at the foot of Glencoe, and has built there a fine new house, close to the ruined seat of the Macdonalds, the dispossessed chieftains of the district.

MUGRDITCH I.

Armenia's Supreme Patriarch and His Efforts for His People.

Political and diplomatic efforts having failed up to the present to secure for the Armenian people in Armenia the blessings of peace and good Government, the Supreme Patriarch of the Armenian Church has deputed two Archbishops to present the case to the signatories of the Congress of Berlin. The Patriarch is the Catholicos of the ancient Apostolic Church of Armenia, elected to that office by the free voice of the native clergy, and of all Armenians. He is entitled Mugrditch I., meaning "The Baptiser," and resides at Etchmiadzin, at the foot of Mount Ararat, under the protection of the Russian Government. The two delegates are Mgr. Sahak Ayvadian, Armenian

MUGRDITCH I.

Archbishop of Persia and India, and Mgr. Sarajian, Armenian Archbishop of America. Both of them are now in London, and were entertained at dinner recently by Mr. F. S. Stevenson, M.P., and the Council of the Anglo-Armenian Association.

The Archbishops, who have been favorably received by President Loubet, have been promised, through Lord Lansdowne, that the objects of their mission shall be laid before the King, who will also receive them on his return from abroad. This news has been sent to Mugrditch, I., who, in return, has bestowed his Patriarchal blessing on England and its Royal house.

Russell Sage's Miserliness.

Great fun is being made of the way in which Russell Sage celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday—treating himself to a drive on the Riverside boulevard. One writer declares that in piling up his fortune of $70,000,000 or $80,000,000 the old man has turned himself into a human cash register. He travels on a pass every day to save 5 cents, never fails to attend a directors' meeting for the gold piece he receives on each occasion, wears a suit of clothes ten years, buys one hat every year, never pays to have his shoes shined, eats 10 cents' worth of crackers and milk for his luncheon and when away from his office, as he was on his eighty-eighth birthday, compels his clerk to pay for the whole quart of milk that is usually divided between them.

He Could Be Contented.

"Do you try to be contented with poverty, my man?" asked the rich donor.

"I'm afraid not," replied the hard-up delinquent, "but just try me with riches and see how contented I will be."

IN A NATION'S LIFE.

Fifteen Years of the United Kingdom As Shown in the "Statistical Abstract" —Some Startling Figures.

The London Daily Express gives the following summary of a blue book of 300 pages entitled "Statistical Abstract of the United Kingdom," and which deals with the life of the British nation for the past fifteen years: During that time the national revenue has increased from 89 millions to 141 millions, but the expenditure, unfortunately, has grown to an even greater extent, from 86 millions to 147 millions.

The national debt, which fifteen years ago was 688¼ millions, fell steadily to 628 millions in 1898-9. Then the South African war began to affect it, and it had risen last year to 762¼ millions.

The amount of income on which income tax was received has increased from 537 millions to 608¼ millions, and the produce for each penny of tax from £2,238,130 to £2,535,862. A remarkable feature of the returns is the sudden fall in the rate of increase of profits from business concerns, professions, and employments, known as schedule D. From 1900-1 to 1901-2 the income tax returns under this head increased by twenty-one million, while from 1901-2 to 1902-3 the increase was only four millions.

Last year estate duty was paid on 62,108 properties of the total value of 264 millions, including seven estates worth over a million each. The net value of property on which probate and succession duties were paid was 211 millions.

The extent of the nation's thirst may be gathered from the fact that last year fifty-one million gallons of spirits and thirty-five and a half million barrels of beer were made, which means, roughly, a barrel of beer and a gallon of spirits for every man, woman and child.

Free traders will rejoice in the fact that we bought from abroad 542¼ millions' worth of goods last year, and sold only 360 millions. We bought £12 16s 1d. worth per head, and sold only £6 17s. 2d. worth. In financing this enormous trade only fifty-six million sovereigns and twenty-two million pounds worth of silver changed hands.

Our huge mercantile marine is made up of 10,330 sailing vessels and 10,122 steam vessels, with a total gross tonnage of 15,778,662, and they employ over 257,008 men, including foreigners.

The cultivated area of the United Kingdom is nearly forty-eight million acres, and there are in the country two million horses, eleven and a half million cattle, twenty-nine and a half million sheep, and four million pigs. The value of the sea fisheries last year, excluding salmon and shell fish, was nine million pounds, and the total catch nearly eighteen million hundredweight.

The 22,483 miles of railway carried 1,195,265,195 passengers and 443,697,947 tons of goods and minerals. The total receipts were nearly 111 millions, and the working expenditures sixty-eight and a half millions. Though there were only 1,772 miles of tramways open, they carried 1,681,948,655 passengers—considerable more than were carried by the railways.

We are now mining over 230 million tons of coal a year, valued at eighty-eight million pounds, while the total value of all minerals produced was 122½ millions in 1902.

The number of registered companies is 31,886, with a paid-up capital of 1,849 millions. In the Postoffice Savings Bank the deposits amount to nearly 131 millions, and last year nearly forty millions were received and thirty-nine millions paid. The deposits in the Bank of England amounted to forty-six millions in December last, and the bank notes held in reserve amounted in value to nineteen millions.

The total strength of the regular army is 301,191 officers and men, of whom 138,846 are at home and 162,345 abroad. To police England and Wales requires 46,064 men.

There were over a million paupers in receipt of relief last year, 13,000 criminals were convicted, 4,243 persons adjudicated bankrupts and eighty-three orders made to wind up companies in England and Wales. In 1902 684 crew and 687 passengers lost their lives at sea.

THE UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE.

English Is Coming More and More Into General Use.

English is to-day what French was in the eighteenth century and Latin in the middle ages, the language chosen by common consent for intercommunication between statesmen, savants and fashionable and literary persons of different nations, remarks The San Francisco Bulletin. With English one can make his way conveniently along any of the beaten tracks of Europe. More people now speak English as their vernacular than any other European tongue.

A sign of the growth in importance of the English tongue is the recent action of the school authorities of the German Government in making English an optional study in the public schools of Saxony. This action was induced by a petition addressed to the Government by the Dresden Schoolmasters' Association. The petition was an excellent syllabus of the arguments in favor of English as a subject for study in the German public schools. A portion of it was as follows:

"First—English is the most widely used civilized language in the world.

"Second—It is the most important language for Germany's international trade relations. In Dresden especially the knowledge of English is of great advantage to shopkeepers and commercial men, owing to the important Anglo-American colony there.

"Third—English deserves preference over French on account of its literature, which (a) excels that of France, both from the artistic and moral point of view; (b) appeals more nearly to our sentiment and understanding as that of a Germanic people; (c) has played a prominent part in the development of our own literature.

"Fourth—English is not inferior to French in educative value.

"Fifth—In the teaching of English the readily learned grammatical forms of the language enable the time allotted to its study to be spent in attaining the most important object in teaching a foreign language—the power of its free use in speech and writing. This is not possible in case of French, owing to the difficulty of its grammar."

It is only within recent times that English has been taught carefully even in English and American schools. The old theory was that a student learned English best by reading the Latin and Greek authors. While the benefits of a knowledge of Latin and Greek are very great, and certainly assist in acquiring the accomplishment of using English correctly and elegantly, the close attention now given to English in our own schools will improve the average quality of English composition.

We scarcely appreciate what a treasure we possess in our English tongue. The vocabulary of English has been enriched by plunder from every land and every language. It is a flexible tongue, adaptable to any idea, and a tongue which welcomes accessions when necessary. It is not by its intrinsic virtue, however, that the English language is spreading and becoming the cosmopolitan medium of communication, but rather by the increasing importance of the people that speak English. The British and the Americans control a large portion of the world's trade. Their influence is felt everywhere. They sell to everybody and everybody wishes to sell to them. Verily, the English language has come forward since the time when Bacon, despairing of the perpetuity of the English tongue, translated some of his works into Latin.

Let the Government Own.

London, Sept. 22.—At the meeting of the Union of Canadian Municipalities yesterday, Controller Hubbard of Toronto moved that, "In the opinion of this union, the long-distance telephone business of Canada should be taken over by the Government of the Dominion, and legislation obtained whereby the local business of telephoning can be taken over and operated by the local municipalities in which such businesses are carried on, and for these purposes a draft be prepared by the Union of Canadian Municipalities for presentation to the Dominion Parliament and Provincial Legislature by the different municipalities through their representatives." After discussion, the resolution was unanimously carried.

REV. J. H. RITSON, M.A.

B. and F. B. Society Secretary, Who Will Tour the Dominion of Canada.

The Rev. John H. Ritson, M. A., one of the secretaries of the British and Foreign Bible Society, who is about to make a tour through the Dominion at the invitation of the Canadian auxiliaries, is a prominent and interesting figure among the personnel of the religious world in England. Born in 1868, he is still a young man, with presumably his best years of service yet before him. Nevertheless, he has already accomplished work that would do no small credit to man's allotted span of three score years and ten. From the very first his inclinations gravitated towards religious work. Even during his under-graduate days at Oxford he was a local preacher and became a candidate for the Wesleyan ministry in 1890. The famous Dr. Jowett always encouraged Mr. Ritson in his ambition to become a preacher, and his essay tutor, Canon Freemantle (now Dean of Ripon), was present at one of his trial sermons. After several years of successful work in more than one English circuit he was invited by the committee of the B. & F. B. S. to become one of their two general secretaries, and he entered upon his duties in 1900. Here his conspicuous abilities found widened scope in the vast and scholarly work, touching all denominations, in which the Bible Society is engaged. It is an open secret that the universal interest aroused in the recent Bible centenary and the phenomenal success of this colossal celebration throughout the world were largely due, in the first place, to the foresight and energy which Mr. Ritson and his colleague, the Rev. A. Taylor, M.A., displayed in the organization of what has proved the most unique demonstration that history has ever known. In 1902 Mr. Ritson formed one of the deputation which presented to the King a handsome Bible as a memento of the coronation. Mr. Ritson has traveled extensively in the old world, but this is the first time he has visited North America.

Billy the Brick Champion.

There was the usual crowd sitting around on chairs leaning back against the wall, taking leisurely puffs at their pipes, interjecting now and then an exclamation of wonderment or doubt, and Billy Beal was doing the star part. He has the contract just now of unloading a few carloads of brick for the Presbyterian Church, and the expedition, promptness and despatch with which they are being delivered is the talk of the town. He can catch 12 bricks at a time, four men throwing them, and do it all day long. He offered to bet Mart a Stinson hat he could do it. Billy just keeps his eye on the top brick, and he has become so skillful at the job that with his eye on the top brick his hands involuntarily go to the bottom bricks, and with a sleight of hand movement he catches the bottom one suddenly but firmly, and with a knack, known only to the very skillful, steadies the wobbly column while in motion, and with a swift, silent, indiscernible, invisible, imperceptible, unprecedented, ambidexterous manner, executes a clean parobolical curve, depositing the said bricks in their proper place in the wagon, and the trick is done. It's easy.—Selkirk Expositor.

A New Game Animal.

The latest joke on jokers comes from Nelson Island, a short distance up the coast from Victoria, B.C., where in the early seventies a pioneer settler introduced a family of four Angora kittens that have increased and multiplied in the succeeding years. As the island is practically a wilderness the cats have been left alone, and now number thousands. Recently an unsuspecting visitor was told of the excellent rabbit-shooting to be had on Nelson Island, and found his way thither with a small sloop. He imagined that he had discovered a new species of animal and after bagging forty or fifty specimens, he returned to town with his long-haired prizes. The joke is not on him, for he has sold the skins to a furrier for almost as much as will pay for his outing. There are still cats left for all who want them.

SLEEPLESSNESS AND HEADACHE

Tell of Exhausted Nerves—A Peterborough Man Cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. Harold Crane, Sophia street, Peterborough, Ont., and who is employed in Hall's store, states:—"I believe the close confinement of shop work was responsible for my becoming very nervous, and as a natural result I did not sleep and at times had severe attacks of splitting headaches. I heard of the good results obtained by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and decided to try it. I can now say that I am more than pleased with the results, as it has benefitted me very much. It built up my system, restored my nerves, and I am now entirely free from headaches. I have every reason to give the credit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 19

GOD'S GREATEST GIFT.

God pity those who know not touch of hands—
Who dwell from all their fellows far apart,
Who, isolated in unpeopled lands,
Know not a friend's communion heart to heart!

But pity these—ah, pity these the more,
Who of the populous town a desert make,
Dent is a solitude upon whose shore
The tides of sweet compassion never break!

These are the dread Saharas we enclose
About our lives when love we put away;
Amid life's roses, not a scent of rose;
Amid the blossoming, nothing but decay.

But if 'tis love we search for, knowledge comes,
And love that passeth knowledge—God is there!
Who seek the love of hearts find in their homes
Peace at the threshold, angels on the stair.

—Joseph Dana Miller.

CAPT. A. M. FIELD, R.N.

Selected for Appointment as Hydrographer of the British Navy.

Of Captain Arthur Mostyn Field, R.N., who has been selected for the appointment of Hydrographer of the Navy on the retirement of Rear-Admiral Sir William J. L. Wharton, The Times says: Captain Field has had a large share in this work since he entered the navy at the age of 13 in December, 1868. Six years later he passed a most satisfactory examination for lieutenant. After satisfactory research work while holding that rank, he was promoted to commander in June, 1899. He was then selected to command a recruiting party which visited the principal towns in Great Britain to explain the advantages and benefits of joining the navy in certain capacities connected with various handicrafts. At the conclusion of this trip their Lordships expressed to him their thanks for the "energy and zeal with which their wishes had been carried out." His next appointment was to the command of the surveying ship Egeria in 1890, and at the end of four years the Admiralty again expressed to him their entire approbation of the large and creditable amount of work accomplished on the coast of Bornoo and in the China Seas. In June, 1895, he was promoted to captain, and since 1900 until quite recently has commanded the Research, the principal surveying vessel in home waters. Captain Field is a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical and Royal Geographical Societies. He is the author of the articles on sextant, sounding and nautical surveying in the tenth edition of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica," and of other papers.

Fishing and Shooting Rights.

Were it not for the enormous sums paid for fishing and shooting rights, says London Tit-Bits, many people of ancient names and goodly title would, in the most literal sense have no means of livelihood whatever. Only the other day one of the best known property agents of the West End of London drew up for the writer a list of a dozen people mixing in society of an exclusive kind, every penny of whose income is derived from the letting of sporting rights.

Nearly all the money thus expended has been made in commerce, and the agent above referred to showed documentary evidence proving that there are lots of men who did not mind paying as much as £100 for every deer, £3 for every trout and £20 for every salmon they kill, plus the sport of killing them. One of the most remarkable features of this letting is the fact that only about one in every hundred of the owners of ancient sporting rights ever enjoys his privileges as a sportsman. He either prefers to, or is compelled to, part with such privileges, and those who take advantage of them are nearly all people in business.

The renting of fishing and sporting rights has been extended down to comparatively humble people in the provinces. In places like Leeds, for instance, half a dozen small tradesmen buy up the fishing rights and fishing in remote parts of Yorkshire, the one idea being to get out of the turmoil of town life with some distinct object in view. Many a small Yorkshire farmer is being kept, and well kept, not by his farming, but by the letting of some comparatively insignificant sporting right that was not thought to be worth sixpence ten years ago.

Elongated Palates.

It is not an uncommon thing to suffer for an elongated palate, which causes great discomfort in various ways. It is inflamed by cold and then aggravates a persistent cough. It brings a sense of oppression in one's breathing, and it is sure to make itself felt in long continued talking. Doctors are generally loath to touch it. Perhaps the most quickly efficacious treatment recommended by them is gargling with alum water just before brushing the teeth. This has been known to work a radical bettering of the distress.—Pearson's.

"Speak For Yourself."

Lord Leicester of Holkham nearly a hundred years ago was a widower and in the latter part of his life nearly blind. He enjoyed an intimate friendship with his neighbor, Lord Albemarle, and had in his own mind selected Lady Anne, one of Lord Albemarle's daughters, as the future wife of his nephew and the mistress of Holkham.

One day Lady Anne came along to join his morning ride, and Lord Leicester seized the opportunity of asking her:

"Anne, my dear, how should you like to be mistress of Holkham?"

"There is nothing I should like better," answered Lady Anne, drawing herself up in her saddle.

"Then I shall send my nephew William to court you."

Lady Anne drew herself up still more and, tightening her rein, replied calmly, but very gravely:

"I shall not be mistress of Holkham on those terms."

It was then the old gentleman's turn to rein in his horse. He looked his companion hard in the face and asked her: "Why, you don't mean to say you would marry me?"

"Yes, indeed I would. And there is nothing I should wish more."

This was a wooing that was not "long a-doing," and it led to a most happy marriage.

MODERN MAGAZINES.

The Work That Must Be Done by a Successful Editor.

The poor editor who should be so fatuous as to depend for the contents of his magazine on the driftwood that came in to him would soon be replaced or his magazine would needs go out of business. Not only has the day gone by when editors sat in easy chairs and majestically sifted wheat from chaff in the piles of stuff sent prayerfully to them, but gone, too, is the day when an editor could sit in his office and plan a good magazine out of his inner consciousness. A good magazine today represents the skillful collaboration of several bright, keen men, or men and women, and its make-up is a nice medium between what the editors have reason to think their subscribers want and what they have reason to think their contributors can do best.

It is an important part of good editing nowadays to keep in as close touch as possible with the greatest possible number and variety of persons who write. It is part of an editor's business to keep well informed on all the new books and all his contemporaries among the periodicals—to know (better, perhaps, than the man himself knows) what kind or kinds of work any given man can best do and to have the knowledge filed away in his memory for ready reference. It is part of his business, too, to see and talk with, whenever he can, not only the persons who are trying to write for him, but all persons whose situation in life is at all interesting in a way which ought some day to make them valuable to him.—Clara E. Laughlin in Reader.

Jews Riot in London.

London, Sept. 21.—The day of atonement was marked in London by serious rioting in the Jewish quarter of the east end. Over two thousand Jews engaged in a disturbance, and nearly three hundred police had to be called out. The trouble began over disregard of a fasting injunction.

Russia to Lodge Protest.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—Russia officially maintains that Great Britain has broken faith in the matter of the Thibetan treaty, and Ambassador Benkendorff has been instructed to lodge a general protest at the British Foreign Office.

Paul Dunbar Dying.

Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 21.—Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the Afro-American poet, is critically ill of consumption. The doctors say he probably will not liver longer than a month.

British Ambassador at Paris.

His Excellency Sir Francis Leveson Bertie, K.C.B., who has just been appointed to succeed Sir Edmund Monson as British Ambassador at Paris, is one of the very few diplomatists who have been made Ambassador without serving the customary preliminary post of Minister. Sir Francis has had a distinguished career in the service of the State, but he has been the direct diplomatic representative of Britain at a foreign Embassy for less than two years, his appointment to his present office of Ambassador at Rome dating from last year only. He relinquished the post of Assistant Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs to take up that position, and he now succeeds to the premier diplomatic appointment in His Majesty's service, taking up his duties when Sir Edmund Monson retires at the end of the present year. Sir Francis is the second son of the sixth Earl of Abingdon. He is sixty years of age, and is married to a daughter of the first Earl Cowley.

Keeper o the King's Health.

Sir Francis Henry Laking, to give him his full name, is the most trusted of the King's medical advisers; indeed, he occupies at King Edward's Court much the same position as did Sir James Reid at that of Queen Victoria. Sir Francis is clean shaven; he has a keen, open face, and a broad, well-shaped brow. Like most great physicians, he, has a bobby, that of collecting geological specimens.

RED MEN IN SCHOOL.

About One Hundred Pupils in Government School at Muncey, Ont.

Mr. J. N. Shannon, of the Methodist Mission Rooms, Toronto, has returned from his annual inspection of the Mount Elgin Indian Industrial Institute at Muncey, Ontario, just west of London. He reports that the school is making favorable progress under the new principal, Rev. T. T George, who a year ago succeeded the late Rev. W. W. Shepherd, who had been principal for 22 years.

The school is a Government school, run under the auspices of the Methodist Mission Society. For each pupil the Dominion Government pays the Church $60 annually towards his or her maintenance while at the school. The pupils come from all parts of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, and are about 100 in number. They live in residence, and get free tuition and board. They are taken as far as the entrance examination in their studies. The boys are given instruction in carpentering, agriculture, etc., while the girls learn sewing, dairying, cooking and housekeeping.

The students are not overly apt in pleding up the white man's knowledge. Still some of them have made their mark, and are taking a prominent part in Indian educational work. One graduate is a minister in the Toronto Methodist Conference, Rev. Richard Black, of Parry Island. The students are not very strong physically as a rule. They are very susceptible to disease, being particularly subject to consumption, pneumonia, and sore eyes. "In fact," said Mr. Shannon, "it looks as if the noble red man will soon be only known in history."

The institute at Muncey has grounds surrounding it of 600 acres, 250 of which are under cultivation. The balance is used for grazing purposes, and many fine cattle are raised for the British market. In this way the school is well nigh self-supporting. There are similar institutes at Brandon, at Red Deer, N.W.T., and at Chilliwack, B.C.

Has a Fox Farm.

Among the arrivals at the Fort Frances Hotel was E. C. Tripp of Banning, a point on the C.N.R. east of Mine Centre, says The Fort Frances Times. Mr. Tripp's visit to the Fort was in connection with his fox farm which he has established on an island in Clearwater Lake, west, eighteen miles north of Banning. It is now three years since he first commenced to raise foxes at which time he started in a small way with a pair of silver greys. Now he has thirteen silver greys and two black foxes. His farm comprises 16 acres and he is now fencing the entire island with wire netting ten feet high sunk to bed rock and water level. Inside this enclosure are the breeding pens where the females are kept sep-

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.—

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they can not cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Their financial responsibility is well known to every newspaper publisher and druggist in the United States, with most of whom they have done business for over a third of a century. From this fact it will readily be seen how utterly foolish it would be for them to make the above unprecedented and remarkable offer if they were not basing their offer on curative means having an unparalleled record. No other medicine than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription could possibly "win out," as the saying goes, on such a proposition. But they know whereof they speak. They have the most remarkable record of cures made by this world-famed remedy ever placed to the credit of any preparation especially designed for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments. This wonderful remedy, therefore, stands absolutely alone as the only one possessed of such remarkable curative properties as would warrant its makers in publishing such a marvelous offer as is above made in the utmost good faith.

"I want to tell you of the great improvement in my health since taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" says Mrs. H. S. Jones, of Forest, N. C. "When I began its use I was a physical wreck and had despaired of ever having any health again. Could not sit up all day. I noted a great improvement before the first bottle was used. Was suffering with almost every pain that a woman is subject to; had inflammation of ovaries, painful and suppressed periods, and other symptoms of female disease. After taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' I felt like a new person. Can ride horseback and take all kinds of exercise and not feel tired."

If you are led to the purchase of "Favorite Prescription" because of its remarkable cures, do not accept a substitute which has none of these cures to its credit.

If you are looking for a perfect laxative try Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

ball League was won. The question is, "what's next?" Well it really is hard to say but it is safe to venture that before many months have lapsed, farther honours will be done and further championships added.

It might be remarked in passing that during 1904, three championships have come to Peterborough and every one of them have been won by the Total Abstainers which certainly speaks well for the athletic qualities of the young men connected with the society.

The T.A.S. baseball team has played six games, winning all but one, the only defeat being in Bobcaygeon last week, but the tables were satisfactorily turned yesterday. The boys have put up a splendid article of ball and deserved to win the pennant.

Yesterday's game though the cold weather kept away many from enjoying the contest, was one of the best played of the season, both sides playing good ball. The hitting was rather light and the fielding clean as a rule. Both twirlers did good work. Callaghan at third did fine work, accepting all his chances without a slip. Several of the players made nice fly catches.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

In the first Welsh grounded to third, Lacombe got to first on three strikes, Fitzgerald missing the last one. Lacombe stole second and third, while Cameron was fanning, and scored on Kelly's single. Johnson struck out. For the T. A. S., Callaghan flew to left, Trainor popflied to Sheehan. Fitzpatrick hit one towards third and went to the third station on Cameron's wild throw. Grady flew to second.

Second innings. — Sheehan hit to Callahan, McIntyre grounded to first and Junkin hit the atmosphere. For the T. A. S., Derocher beat out a hit to short, and stole two bases; Latremouille fanned but Quinlan singled to right, scoring Derocher. Fitzgerald went out, Lacomb to Johnston, and Craig grounded to pitcher.

In the next, Callaghan made a nice catch of Wright's foul fly, Welsh grounded to third and Lacomb fanned. For the T.A.S. Callaghan was hit by a batted ball. Trainor got a hit and stole second and third cushions; Fitzpatrick fouled to catcher and Grady grounded to Cameron.

Fourth innings. — Cameron hit to Callaghan, Kelly hit to Trainor, Johnson got a charity and stole second and third. Sheehan struck out. For the T.A.S., Derocher got a life on Kelly's error and scored on Latremouille's three bagger to right; Quinlan's sacrifice scored Latremouille; Fitzgerald flew to Lacomb and Craig flew to first.

In the fifth, McIntyre fouled to catcher; Junkin got four wide ones, but was caught at second; Wright fouled to Fitzgerald, who made a pretty catch. For the T. A. S., Callaghan grounded to first; Trainor fanned, and Fitzpatrick flew to right.

In the next, Welsh singled to centre, and went to second on Quinlan's wild throw to catch him off first; Lacomb got to first on Trainor's error; Cameron fanned, but Kelly's sacrifice scored Welsh; Johnson got a hit sending Lacomb in with the tying run. Sheehan fouled to Callaghan. For the T.A.S., Grady flew to Lacomb, Derocher singled to right, stole second and came home on passed balls. Latremouille grounded to second.

Seventh innings. — McIntyre missed a trio of twisters; Junkin flew to Callaghan, Latremouille dropped Wright's hard fly, Welsh beat out a slow one to third; Wright was caught between home and third. For the T.A.S., Craig hit to third, but Johnson dropped the throw. Callaghan grounded to second; Trainor flew to Kelly, who threw wild to third and Craig scored. Fitzpatrick got life on an infield grounder, but Grady hit to pitcher.

In the eighth, Lacombe and Cameron fanned and Kelly hit to pitcher. For the T.A.S., Derocher singled to centre, Latremouille hit to second; Quinlan flew to Kelly, Fitzgerald hit to Cameron, who fumbled the ball, and Derocher scored. Fitzgerald was caught second.

In the last Johnson was easy, Sheehan singled to centre, and McIntyre did likewise to right. Junkin flew to second, and Wright flew to Callaghan, and it was all over.

CANADIANS ON THE SOO TEAM

A Strong Hockey Seven Has Been Secured.

Will try Hard for the United States Championship This Season.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 21.—(Special despatch to the Toronto News)—The personnel of the hockey team which will represent the Michigan "Soo" this coming winter season has been determined upon. It looks from this distance as if the seven men who have been selected to fill the various positions would constitute one of the strongest hockey teams ever organized. They should be able to capture the national championship of the United States, which is what the Michigan "Soo" is after. Joseph Jones will guard the net again. The "Big Chief" has no rival as a goal-keeper in the United States, and it is doubtful if his superior lives. William "Pud" Hamilton, formerly of Kingston, Ont., and Pittsburg, will play point, and in front of him, at cover-point, will be Ed. Howell. Howell played with Peterborough, Ont., last winter, and the season before was with Paris, when that team won the intermediate O.H.A. championship. He was one of the original members of the Portage Lake team and is regarded as an exceptionally good defence man. Howell has already taken up his residence in the Michigan "Soo". Joe Stephens will play rover. Stephens is a strong and fast skater and a deadly shot. He came from Fernie, B. C., towards the end of last season, and fairlybed the year with the "Soo". "Jigger" Robinson, who first played the game in Ottawa, and later became the star of the Pittsburg Victorias, is slated for centre. Frank Sweitzer, the Stratford boy, who developed wonderfully with the "Soo" last winter, will play the right wing position, and Laviolette, of the Montreal Nationals, will be on the left wing. Laviolette is the only man of the seven who has not yet taken up his residence in the "Soo". He is expected early in the season.

RUGBY.

The following is the change in the schedule that has been suggested by one of the Executive of the O.R.F.U. for the senior series:—

Oct. 1—Argonauts at Peterborough.
Oct. 8—Toronto at Argonauts.
Oct. 15—Peterborough at Toronto.
Oct. 22—Argonauts at Toronto.
Oct. 29—Toronto at Peterborough.
Nov. 5—Peterborough at Argonauts.

Oct. 1—Hamilton at Victorias.

Oct. 29—London at Victorias.
Nov. 5—Hamilton at London.

The management of the Peterborough club has written to the Victorias asking for a game at Peterborough on Saturday, October 1, with the senior Victorias. The eastern will give a good guarantee for this game.—Toronto News.

* * * *

A full practice of the rugby team will be held to-morrow afternoon. The old reliable, A. W. McPherson, will be down to coach the team and give the boys some pointers which should prove of value. There is only two weeks before the first game and every player is urgently requested to turn out to practice to-morrow.

* * * *

The rugby players had a splendid practice at the field adjoining the C. G. E. Co. buildings last evening. About 15 players were out and some good hard work was put in. Among those out were, Crowley, Noble, Roddy, Green, O'Brien, D. O'Brien, Scriver, Burnham, Bradburn, Hurtubise and Rickey. The players are showing up in good form and are fast rounding into shape.

* * *

There is a strong chance that the Victorias of Toronto, last year's intermediate champions, will drop out of the senior series of the O.R.F.U. The Vics are dissatisfied with the schedule. They wanted to be drawn in the same series with the Torontos. In addition the manager of the team points out that two of the Vics' home games are upon the same day as Varsity and Argonaut home games, and he wants to know what chance a struggling club will have against such strong counter-

BASEBALL.

The weather is getting rather chilly for baseball. The Midland League should get busy and rush off its games.

Bowmanville and Lindsay play off the final game in the Midland League at Port Hope on Thursday.

The Toronto astonished th baseball world yesterday by taking two games from Newaark.

The baseball season in Peterborough is now practically closed.

The Lindsay baseball team's management is trying to induce Bowmanville to play the final game ordered at Port Hope, in Lindsay. The Post says the Lindsay team has made Bowmanville a good healthy, substantial offer to go to that town.

An exchange says that Frank Nelson sporting editor of the Toronto Globe, intends to retire from that paper at the beginning of the year and go to Washington, D. TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

Features of Market as Told by Special Wires.

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Ind'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

New York, Sept. 23.—To-day's market was weak in the morning and strong in the afternoon. Of course after such sharp advances as we had yesterday moderate set backs are to be expected. Further irregularities may be expected until the actual damage to the corn crop is surely settled. If it turns out that the crop is below 2 billion bus. the market will go lower. We have repeatedly told you that all depends on that. We have also warned you not to buy U.P., So Ry. or A.C.P. any longer. Specialities will be advanced from time to time as D.W. to-day, but we would not care to buy any more just at present. On all further bulges we advise taking profits which ought to net you from 10 to 15 points on our specialties, which we have advised buying for the past few weeks and months. Ice ptd was again higher and will continue to go up regardless of the corn crop. Rub is a buy around 20 or 19 and will sell at 30. It requires more patience than margin. U. P. acts like a sale and so does Atch. S. R. is a sale around 97 1-2 or 3 or 3 points. If the market is strong during the morning (Friday) it will be a sale around noon. Do not add to long holdings at present, but take profits. —Wall Street Information Bureau.

Liverpool opening, wheat 5-8 higher; corn unchanged.

From W. F. Dever & Co., correspondents:—

New York, Sept. 23, noon.—Opening barely steady with comparatively small trading. Commission house orders rather light and traders somewhat bearish at the possibility of another movein Un. Pac. like Tuesday's as indicated in London price made them cautious. Un. Pac. was advanced before opening in London market on orders reported by Arbitrage houses to have been sent from this side. Loan crowd does not indicate any short interest. It is thought there has been some profit taking in Steels by people who bought ptd below 60 on Western short interest and knowledge that September earnings would not be so bad as expected. Market after 11.00 a. m. was lifeless with little or no trading.

CANADIAN PLAYING GREAT GOLF GAMES

Mr. G. S. Lyon Well-Known Here in the Game at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 23.— With the exception of the matches, the second round of the Olympic golf tournament for the championship of the world, which was played on the Glen Echo course yesterday, was an uninteresting elimination of the material not suitable for the semi-finals and the finals. The greatest surprise of the day was the easy defeat of Stuart Stickney, of the St. Louis County Club by George S. Lyon, of the Lambton County Club, Toronto, last year's Canadian champion. Stickney was overwhelmed by the score of 11 up and 9 to play. On the morning round Stickney was 4 down and was playing in poor form.

From Lyon's form yesterday it would seem that he has mastered the course, and is prepared to win his way into the finals. On the morning round he created new figures for the eighteen holes, and had the bye been played off in the afternoon it is likely that he would have done the same for the 36 holes. Going out he bested bogey by one stroke, and did the same on the incoming trip. His card for the round is given below:—

Out ... ...554444534—38
In ... ...544544544—39—77

Three of the eight golfers who will meet to-day in the third round hail from St. Louis. Chicago representatives to the number of three also have survived the strenuous 36-hole competitions, while Canada and Seattle claim the remaining contestants. In the main the struggles of the playdrs in the second round were onesided, and resulted in the elimination of three players from the Chicago district. One distinct surprise, the defeat of W. A. Stickney, former St. Louis champion, by F. W. Allen, of the St. Louis Field Club, by the score of 4 up and 3 to play, brought consternation to some of the local contingent, following, as it did, the overwhelming defeat given to Stuart, Stickney, another former local champion, by G. S. Lyon, of Toronto, Ont., and former amateur champion of his country.

Mr. Lyon won 11 up 9 to play, making a total of 77 in the morning round, which gave him an advantage of 8 holes, against such speedy going, which really gave the Canadian the record of the course, Stickney's ability was unavailing. Continuing in the afternoon round, the Toronto veteran soon ended the match. A. B. Lambart, of Glen Echo, and Ralph McKittrick, had the closest contest of the day.

The results:—G. S. Lyon, Toronto, beat Stuart Stickney, St. Louis, 11 up and 9 to play.

ANOTHER FURIOUS ASSAULT ON PORT

Japs Determined to Finish Port Arthur's Business.

INDESCRIBABLE MASSACRE

Whole Battalions of Japanese Blown Up Before They Reached the Wall—Jap Fleets are Aiding in the Final Struggle—The Advance on Mukden—Jap March Unchecked.

Paris, Sept. 24.—The Matin's St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs as follows: Telegrams, of which the general staff have as yet no knowledge, reached the Emperor at four o'clock this morning. I can affirm that they concern Port Arthur, regarding which place the greatest anxiety prevails at court. The Japanese are now engaged in a general assault, which is more furious than its predecessors, attacking the town on three sides simultaneously, and employing their whole forces, being determined to finish the business. Russian mines blew up whole battalions. General Fock especially distinguished himself, directing the fire from the wall, which the Japanese reached after indescribable massacre.

The Jap Fleets Aiding.

The whole of Admiral Togo's and Vice-Admiral Kamimura's squadrons are aiding the struggle, which, it is feared here, will be final. The besieged forces are fighting as in a furnace. A perfect storm of shells is falling on the town, port and fortress, from the whole hill and roadstead. General Stoessel is going from fort to fort encouraging the men.

Battle Near Mukden.

Mukden, Sept. 24.—Military authorities here continue to express the belief that a battle will be fought near Mukden within a few days, but, on the other hand, the Chinese profess confidence that active hostilities are remote. The war balloon was sent up yesterday southeast of Mukden, which seems to indicate that the Japanese are expected to appear in that direction.

How Japs Move.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 24.—A despatch received here yesterday from Mukden gives details of the Japanese positions as follows:

Gen. Kuroki has concentrated one army, with Bentsiaputze and Benshu as its radius, and his advance is pushing forward along the road leading to Pushin and Fu Pass.

The advance forces of the other two armies occupy the Yentai Mines, the village of Yental and Sandepu. The front of the three armies is protected by an outpost screen which Chinese are not allowed to pass.

A small Japanese detachment is moving along the left bank of the Liao River in order to protect junks.

The weather at Mukden is rainy and windy and cold has prematurely set in.

Nearing Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 24.—Gen. Sukharoff reports that the Japanese army is moving from Bentziapuze towards Fu Pass, six miles northeast of Mukden. The Hun River at this point is shallow and probably for this reason the locality has been selected by the Japanese for crossing. If the Japanese gain a foothold at Fu Pass, Gen. Kuropatkin's position at Mukden will be insecure as the Japanese will from thence be able to threaten the Russian line of communications. Fu Pass is only twenty miles north of Bentziapuze, but at the present rate of progress the Japanese will probably occupy four or five days in traversing it.

The Russian force south of Mukden is believed to consist of only one army corps, which is acting as a rear-guard and is not intended to offer a serious resistance to the Japanese advance.

When Russians Lost 19.

Tokio, Sept. 24.—An official telegram reports that fights have taken place at the towns of Tieling and Santungku, sixty miles northeast of Liaoyang, on Sept. 20. The despatch says:

"Our detachment advanced through Heiniuchang on Sept. 20 and attacked the enemy, consisting of one company of infantry, some cavalry and a machine gun stationed at Tieling, and a battalion of infantry, 500 cavalry, six quick-firing guns and one machine gun, stationed at Santungku, which lies eight miles north of Tieling. The Russians, who were driven off to the northward, left nineteen dead behind them. We captured some spoils.

10,000 MAY STRIKE.

Mechanics, Allied Mechanics and Blacksmiths of C.P.R. Aroused.

Winnipeg, Sept. 24.—The whole question of increases in wages to mechanics employed on the western lines of the C.P.R. seems to have reached a crisis. In addition to the ultimatum presented by the machinists Thursday morning to the company, the allied mechanics and the blacksmiths have taken a similar stand and notified the Canadian Pacific Railroad that unless some definite result is reached in their negotiations by this morning at twelve o'clock, they will go out on strike. There are about 10,000 men altogether involved in the agitation.

O.J.C. FALL RACES.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—Weather fine, track fast, yesterday at Woodbine Track, the sixth day of the O. J. C. fall meeting. The record:

Favor Municipal Phones.

Montreal, Sept. 24.—The Trades and Labor Congress has put itself on record as opposed to the immigration policy of the Dominion Government, and has passed a resolution in favor of municipal phones. The principal officers elected are: Alphonse Verville, Montreal, president; J. S. Simpson, Toronto, vice-president; P. M. Draper, Ottawa, re-elected, secretary-treasurer.

Resigns Nomination.

Woodstock, Sept. 24.—James Clendenning of North Oxford, the nominee of the Liberal-Conservatives of South Oxford to contest the riding at the approaching Dominion election, has handed his resignation to the secretary, having found that he had not the time necessary to devote to the campaign. He was nominated last winter.

Hamilton City Wins.

Hamilton, Sept. 24.—Justice Magee yesterday granted the mandatory order asked for by the city of Hamilton to compel the Hamilton Street Railway Company to resume the sale of workingmen's eight-for-a-quarter tickets on the cars, pending the trial at the Hamilton Assizes, which commence Oct. 10.

Lord Minto At Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Sept. 24.—Thousands of cheering citizens lined the streets as the vice-regal party escorted by the Mounted Police, made its way on its arrival here yesterday, to the City Hall, where an address of welcome was presented by Mayor Sharpe. His Excellency made a suitable reply.

Britishers At Ottawa.

Ottawa, Sept. 24.—About one hundred members of the Institution of Civil Engineers of Great Britain, several of whom are accompanied by their wives and daughters, spent yesterday in Ottawa. They were welcomed to the capital by Mayor Ellis.

RECORD THEIR OPINIONS.

Board of Steamboat Inspectors Report On Slocum Disaster.

New York, Sept. 24.—The Board of Steamboat Inspectors who have been investigating the General Slocum disaster recommend that the licenses of William H. Van Schaick, master and pilot; Edward Van Wart, pilot, and Benj. F. Conklin, chief engineer, be revoked, and specially commends the unselfish heroism displayed on this occasion by Mr. Everett Brandow, second engineer of the steamer, in the performance of his duty, who remained at the throttle of his engine answering all bells promptly until his services were no longer required, this nothwithstanding the commotion, and panic on the steamer at the time and without means of knowing from personal observation from his post in the engine room what chances must be of saving his own life."

The report also commends the captains and crews of the Franklin, the Massasoit, the Walter Tracy, the Wade, the Director and the Golden Rod for saving lives from the Slocum.

Better Than in 1903.

Montreal, Sept. 24.—The following telegram was received Thursday at the general offices of the Ogilvie Milling Co. from F. W. Thompson, vice-president and general manager, Winnipeg: "Threshing returns reported from 70 out of 100 of our elevators where threshing is in progress show an average yield of 18 bushels, so our estimate of 50,000,000 bushels, or 5,000,000 bushels more than last year, appears to have been very conservative. Weather is cloudy. I am pleased with the milling quality of the new wheat."

Woolen Mills Sold.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—William D. Long of Hamilton, former shareholder and a creditor of the company, has purchased the assets of the Canada Woollen Mills for $253,000 cash. The property includes the plants of the company at Carleton Place, Hespeler and Waterloo, the site at Lambton Mills and the stock of manufactured goods and raw materials. The price paid is said to be a fair one.

Ruggeros Gets 6 Months.

Brockville, Sept. 24.—In the county judge's Criminal Court yesterday the adjourned case of Tony Ruggazino, the Italian charged with abducting the two little daughters of Frederick Widdis, was taken up by Judge McDonald, who pronounced him guilty of the charge. The judge therefore sentenced him to eight months in the Central Prison at hard labor.

Canadian Priest Dead.

London, Sept. 24.—(C.A.P.)—Rev. Patrick Fogharty of Montreal, arrived Thursday at Southampton from the West Indies, where he had been for the benefit of his health, accompanied by his sister and a nurse. He took the train for London, where, upon arrival at Waterloo Station, he was found dead. His body now lies at Lambeth mortuary.

Lady Curzon Seriously Ill.

Dover, Eng., Sept. 23.—Lady Curzon of Kedleston, who was Miss Leiter of Chicago, is critically indisposed at Walmer Castle, which her husband, the Viceroy of India, occupies, as warden of the Cinque Ports. It is reported that acute peritonitis has supervened. Lord Curzon, who is overwhelmed by the sudden blow, remains constantly by his wife's bedside.

VIEWS OF THE BRITISH PRESS

Unanimously Praise Sir Wilfrid's Montreal Speech.

HE PLACED ISSUE CLEARLY

The Thunderer's View—Something For Lord Rosebery to Ponder Over—Canada's Keen Desire For Closer Commercial Relations With the Empire—Dominion Premier Congregons.

London, Sept. 24.—(C.A.P.)—The Chronicle thinks the difficulties in the way of the realization of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's suggested free trade within the Empire will be great, but not insuperable, and says the ideal is attractive.

Something For Lord Rosebery.

The Morning Posts says Lord Rosebery will find in the speeches at the Montreal conference of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, abundant evidence of a keen desire for closer commercial relations. His speech was a clear, authoritative statement of what the majority of colonial statesmen desire, and his meaning is that the Mother Country should choose a policy which will make give and take possible on both sides.

The Telegraph's Opinion.

The Telegraph, after remarking that the larger part of Greater Britain is favorable to Mr. Chamberlain's ideals, says the Canadian case, considerably the most urgent and momentous, is clinched once for all by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's pronouncement. The only point now at issue is whether the Mother Country is prepared to reciprocate. To Canada we must say "yes" or "no," and we shall have to take the negative decision that in the long run will break up the Empire and seal the doom of our commercial supremacy unless we prepare ourselves.

Sir Wilfrid Courageous.

The Times says Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech ought to provide Lord Rosebery with some interesting matter for reflection. Whatever construction may be put upon Laurier's speech, it is quite clear it contains no word to justify the inference that he is opposed to Mr. Chamberlain's policy. The question for the Canadian Premier is not one of relative merits and different economic doctrines, but the means by which the fabric of the Empire can be maintained at full strength. It is especially interesting to note that the Canadian Premier was not afraid to use the term treaties of commerce which Mr. Chamberlain's opponents have done their best to make the bugbear to disintegrate the Empire. Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not demand that the most momentous question of internal policy which has yet arisen in the British Empire, as a whole, be settled out of hand, as that those who lack the wit or the imagination to grasp the problems which beset the Empire may return once more to their slumbers. Sir Wilfrid Laurier evidently thinks that Canadians are quite equal to making a commercial treaty which should prove a workable instrument. That he has excellent grounds for confidence that the two countries would be able to strike a mutually advantageous bargain is clear from the charge laid by the President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association upon Sir Howard Vincent. The Canadian manufacturers, it would appear, are not solely pressed by the idea of excluding the goods of British firms from the Canadian market.

What Britain Has Done.

The News says the suave terms of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech were characteristic of that astute statesman. He says agreeable things about Imperial union and a treaty of commerce, but puts his finger upon the fundamental weakness of the preferential idea, viz., the lack of a common basis for a tariff. We have done much better for the colonies than give them a preference; we give them the freest market in the world.

Took Tray of Diamond Rings.

Ottawa, Sept. 24.—A. McMillan's jewelry establishment on Sparks street was robbed Thursday of $2,000 worth of diamond rings, pendants, etc. The firm believes that the theft was perpetrated while one of the clerks left the diamond counter to get a purse out of the window. The enterprising thief lifted the diamond tray out of the show case, and, after settling for the purse, walked off with both the purse and gems. The fifty diamond rings stolen were all engraved with the firm's name, and the police are on the lookout for a man about 40 year old, five feet eight inches in height, of sandy complexion, and clean shaven, as the suspected thief.

Designs on Liberia.

London, Sept. 24.—Sir Harry Johnston, the well known traveler and former Consul-General for the Uganda Protectorate, who recently returned here from a visit to Liberia, is quoted in an interview as saying there is no doubt that France is endeavoring to secure, as a result of the boundary dispute, a portion of the territory of the Liberia Republic.

Boulder on the Track.

Brockville, Sept. 24.—What looks like a desperate attempt to wreck the B. W. & N. Express was perpetrated Thursday but a short distance from the town and at the most dangerous spot on the whole road. The afternoon express which left here at 4.10 was running slowly over the first trestle when Engineer John R. Graham noticed a huge rock lying in the middle of the track between the first and second trestles. The train was brought to a standstill before the boulder was reached. It would weigh between 200 and 300 pounds.

Deputy Shot By Striker.

Pittsburg, Sept. 24.—G. W. Fidler, a deputy, guarding the property of the Pittsburg Steel Company's plant at Glassport, Pa., was fatally shot at midnight yesterday in a riot which broke out between about 25 strikers, and the same number of men employed in the mill.

Lady Curzon Critical.

London, Sept. 24.—The condition of Lady Curzon of Kedleston, wife of the Viceroy of India, who was taken ill two days ago, is still critical, but was slightly improved yesterday morning.

JAPS CLOSING ON RUSSIANS

Both Flanks of Gen. Kuropatkin's Army Have Been Turned.

Russians Will Not Attempt to Hold Mukden—Concentrating at Tieling.

(Special to the Examiner.)

Berlin, Sept. 24.—The Tokio correspondent of the Tageblatt, reports that Field Marshall Oyama is driving the Russians at Mukden northward, and has succeeded in turning both of Gen. Kuropatkin's flanks. Japanese cavalry patrols, the correspondent says, have reached the vicinity of Tieling Pass. The Mukden correspondent of the same paper confirms the report that both Russian flanks have been turned in a battle near Mukden. It has become impossible, he says, for Kuropatkin to make any serious attempts to hold Mukden. The Russian army is concentrating at Tieling.

Kinchow, Manchuria, Sept. 24.—A Russian naval officer here has received official advices which state that cholera has broken out at Port Arthur and that it is feared the sickness will become epidemic.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE IS ONLY 100 YEARS OLD

Sir Wilfard Laurier Condenses its History Into a Nutshell.

Speaking at the banquet of the Manufacturers' Association in Montreal, Sir Wilfred Laurier, in replying to the toast, "Canada and the Empire," gave the following succinct epitome of the history of the Empire:

Sir Wilfrid is thus reported: — "Canada and the Empire,' is a very large subject, especially at 11.30 p. m. (Laughter.) It would need, sir, to do justice to it, much more time than I have at my disposal. The history of the British Empire, as it exists to-day, is a creation of comparatively modern growth; it does not extend beyond the end of the eighteenth century, and it is a remarkable fact that the portion of its history of which we are the proudest dates from the day when the fortunes of England were at their lowest ebb—from the days of the conclusion of the American war of independence. When the war for the independence of the colonies was concluded, when the treaty of peace was signed, in 1783, apart from Newfoundland, apart from a few islands in the West Indies, the colonial possessions of Great Britain were confined simply to this colony here on the banks of the St. Lawrence, which had been peopled by a people not of English origin, which had been settled by a country that had been England's chief rival in history, which had been brought under the domination of England only some twenty years before, but a people which remained true to British allegiance when British allegiance was assailed and deserted by those of her own kith and kin on the continent. (Cheers.) From that date, however, of England's direst distress commenced the days of England's brightest fortunes. Since that date and within the short space of 100 years, England has acquired, either by conquest, discovery or colonization, and more by discovery and colonization than by conquest, Australia, New Zealand, India, South Africa, Mauritius, Ceylon, Malta, Jamaica, and scores of islands in all seas, and in all climes, which dot the whole globe with the colours of Great Britain. (Cheers.)

"How mysterious are the ways of Providence! Who would have supposed that England, her colonial empire rrent with war, when she had been deprived of the greater part of her empire on this continent, who would have supposed that in less than one hundred years England would have become the greatest colonizing power the world has ever seen? Who would have supposed that in less than one hundred years England would have built up an empire greater than the empire of Rome in its palmiest days? Yet, sir, the dream of those days has become a mighty reality of which we are the living witnesses." (Cheers.)

SUCCSESFUL MOTHERS.

You will always find that the mothers who are successful in bringing up families of healthy children are those who are careful to note the slightest evidence of illness and to check it at once. The wise mother gives her children Baby's Own Tablets at the first symptom of any childish ailment, and almost at once the little one is all right. Mrs. Thos. Stevenson, 18 Bishop street, Halifax, N. S., says, "It gives me pleasure to be able to speak of the great value to Baby's Own Tablets. I always give them to my children when they are ailing in any way, and they speedily make them well. I would advise every mother to keep the Tablets in the house." The Tablets allay teething irritation, cure colic and stomach troubles, prevent constipation and destroy worms, allay fevers and break up colds. They can be safely given to a new born child. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Awarded $1,500 Damages.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—For the death of her husband, who was killed by a G.T.R. train some time ago, Mary Ann Hockley got $3,000 in the Assize Court yesterday. Her infant child got $1,500. The sum of $108 was awarded to Albert Davis, in whose wagon Mr. Hockley was driving when the train killed him.

Gives His Brain to Cornell.

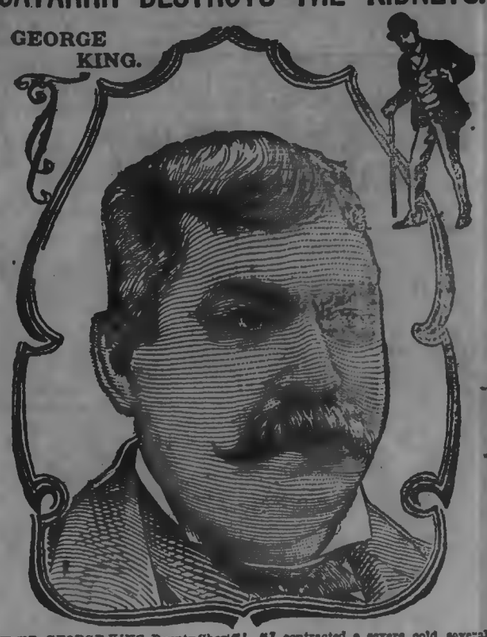
New York, Sept. 24.—Dr. George S. Conant, aged 51, who died here yesterday of diabetes, is said to have willed his brain to the medical faculty of Cornell University, that further investigation may be made of a theory that his disease could be traced to the brain. He suffered for many years.

Burglars Escape Police.

Chatham, Sept. 24.—While they were being taken from the County Jail to the Police Court for trial, Boyd and Trembly, two members of the local gang of burglars recently rounded up by the police, escaped from the officials in charge.

CATARRH DESTROYS THE KIDNEYS.

GEORGE KING.



MR. GEORGE KING, Deputy Sheriff of Rensellaer Co., N. Y., for years was a well known merchant of Troy. In a letter from No. 45 King St., Troy, N. Y., he writes:

"Peruna cured me from what the doctors were afraid would turn into Bright's Disease, after I had suffered with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble.

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottles made me a well man and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me. I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since."—George King.

A Prominent Member of I. O. O. F. Threatened With Bright's Disease.—Pe-ru-na Restored Him to Health.

O. Fred Lindstrom, Past Grand Master Independent Order of Odd Fellows, writes from 1923 University Ave., St. Paul, Minn.:

"I contracted a severe cold several years ago, which from neglect developed into urinary trouble, and threatened Bright's disease. I used Peruna faithfully for three and one-half months, when my health was perfect once more. I have never had any trouble since."—O. Fred Lindstrom.

Catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining of the kidneys, also called "Bright's disease," may be either acute or chronic. The acute form produces symptoms of such prominence that the serious nature of the disease is at once suspected, but the chronic variety may come on so gradually and insidiously that its presence is not suspected until after it has fastened itself thoroughly upon its victim.

At the appearance of the first symptom Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once at the very root of the disease.

A book on catarrh sent free by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1904.

A FALLACIOUS ARGUMENT.

A Conservative argument claims that in 1902-3 "Americans bought from Canada 62 cents' worth of merchandise per head of population, whereas Canadians per head of population bought from the United States about $21.46 worth." Further, "per head of population the Americans bought only about ten cents' worth of Canadian farm products, while Canadians bought from the United States about $2.90 worth of the same kind of farm products per head of population." The Conservative contention seeks by this argument to show the necessity for increasing the Canadian tariff on imports from the States. The reader will at once note the fallacy involved in reducing imports and exports to a per capita basis when of the two countries interested one contains about six, the other eighty million of people. But let us meet this "reasoner" on his own ground by reversing the process and dealing not with purchases but with sales.

Our exports (sales) of all kinds of goods to the United States in 1903, came to $72,000,000. That is to say, if there are six million Canadians, each Canadian sold $12 worth of stuff to our neighbours.

Their exports (sales) of all kinds of goods to Canada in 1903, amounted to $138,000,000. In other words, if there are 80,000,000 Americans, each American sold to Canada $1.70 worth of merchandise.

Coming to agricultural products alone, including animals and their produce, our exports (sales) of those commodities to the United States last year were $9,000,000 or $1.50 per capita. Their exports (sales) of like commodities to us were valued at $16,000,000 or 20 cents per head of their population.

Consequently each Canadian sells seven times more agricultural products to the United States than each American sells to Canada, and the same result works out in the case of exports at large, that is to say, each Canadian sells seven times more to them than they sell per head to us. The Conservative argument turns out, therefore, to be a kicking gun.

Of course, the per capita basis is not a sound basis; it can be made to prove anything. It suited the Conservative writer's purpose to employ it in the case of purchases, but it is obviously just as fair to employ it in the case of sales, whereupon he is at once driven up a tree.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If Mr. Borden has, as he says, plenty of Cabinet material at his disposal, why, asks the Toronto Star, does he not carry some samples with him on his Ontario tour?

An engineer on the C. P. R. out West has been sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for having been drunk while in charge of his engine. This is in line with modern ideas. A railway engineer has many lives and much property under his care and requires to have his wits about him. The old tolerance for drunkenness as an amiable weakness has almost entirely disappeared.

"In the first speech of the present tour, Mr. Borden," the Globe points out, "made much of the West Huron and Brockville election cases, The News promptly advised him that he was "ill-advised" in mentioning these cases, the fact of the matter being that "the Conservatives dared not press the proper investigation of those scandals because of fears of counter-revelations." Mr. Borden has dropped them out of his later speeches." It is extremely edifying to see an "independent" newspaper keeping a Conservative leader in the right grove of policy. It indicates an encouraging broadening of view, and journalistic adaptability—heaving a life line to a struggling party man, without swerving the "independent" craft from the straight course.

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN IS ACCOMMODATED

Its Demand for a Conservative Case of Brazen Disregard of the Law is Met.

It would, indeed, be regrettable if the revelation of crooked election work ended merely in each party accusing the other of having the worse record. Not one step in advance can be taken while Conservative journals hypocritically pretend that all the evil is done on behalf of the Liberal party, and that Conservatives in this respect have an unsullied record. "Can the Liberal party point to one case," says The Ottawa Citizen, "in the history of the Conservative party in Canada which even faintly approximates in brazen disregard of the law and common decency the Manzie M. incident in the Soo election?"

The most brazen thing about that is the question. Did the editor of The Citizen ever hear about Mr. Freeborn, that masterly performer who figured in the Manitoba elections in 1896? Freeborn went to Manitoba before the Federal general elections in that year and offered his skilled services to Mr. N. Boyd, the Conservative candidate in Marquette. Mr. Boyd telegraphed Mr. Robert Birmingham, the Conservative organiser here for a certificate of character for Freeborn. He got that celebrated reply "He was a first class man in North Bruce." It was shown in the criminal courts of Manitoba what the species of work was in which he was first-class.

One of the incidents of that election was that, although six or seven thousand ballots should be sufficient to serve for the elections in the city of Winnipeg, the ballots nevertheless were exhausted at 6 o'clock in the afternoon, although ten thousand had been provided. This and other suspicious circumstances led to an inquiry, and it was at length made manifest that a daring conspiracy had been carried out to steal constituencies in that Province. It will be remembered that the school question was expected to prove an insuperable obstacle to the Conservative candidates in Manitoba. It had evidently been determined to overcome the hostility of the electors by fraud. After the election some of the deputy returning officers were put upon trial and Freeborn's evidence was used against them. It implicated one Turner, who appears to have conducted classes for the instruction of deputy returning officers in fraudulently defeating the will of the electorate, and in this he was assisted by Freeborn and two other men named Anderson and Waller. Almost every species of ballot manipulation — "stipping," "switching," and "stuffing" — were taught by these worthies and afterwards practised by themselves or their pupils. A set of rules were drawn out and inculcated. Among them was an injunction to have plenty of ballots printed, so that marked ones in the deputy returning officer's pocket could be substituted for the voter's ballot. Every effort was to be made to get both scrutineers of the true political faith. For this purpose Torres were instructed to pretend to be soured with their party, and to shew their zeal were willing to act as scrutineers for the Liberal candidates. With a dishonest returning officer and two dishonest scrutineers the coast was clear. Part of the instructions were as follows:—

"The deputy returning officer should be a reliable, sharp, and plausible man, so that if we do not get control of the Opposition scrutineer, he can, when the counting time arrives, ask both scrutineers to take a piece of paper and record the vote of their candidate as he reads the ballots, which have been emptied on the table. He will then have a chance to read out wrongly, so that a majority can be secured for our candidate. The ballots should be put back into the box as quickly as they are read. The extra ones will do to fix things correctly when he goes home.

"Spoiled ballots can be made sure by a little doctoring. Opposition ballots can be spoiled by the lead out of a pencil fastened under the little finger with beeswax, drawn across opposite our candidate's name in opening the ballot.

"If you cannot get control of Opposition scrutineers, have your deputy returning officer announce that he is against you, so as to lead them astray if possible."

All this was elicited by sworn testimony in the courts, and in this way was laid bare one of the most extensive, deliberate, and daring series of election frauds that ever took place in the Dominion of Canada. It is to be hoped that The Ottawa Citizen will find this a reply to its question.

New Father-in-Law Dies.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—Charles Antler, who shot his son-in-law, Charles Gorr, in the thigh Wednesday, was found dead the same night by Chief M. Lee and Constable Thomas Dixon, who went from Pembroke to arrest him. Upon arriving at deceased's home in Buchanan and Wylie townships, the constables were told he had not been seen for some time. They searched a near-by shed and found his body there, shot through the breast, all signs pointing to the fact that he died by his own hand.

Killed By a Train.

Huntsville, Sept. 23.—Miles Bicardell, a farmer, 60 years of age, who resided in Stisted Township, was struck and killed by an express train at Brenner's crossing Wednesday night. TIRED AND DEPRESSED.

The Condition of Many Young Women in Shops and Offices.

Thousands of young women have to depend upon their own efforts to gain a livelihood, and to these, whether behind the counter, in the office, the factory or the home, work means close confinement—often in badly ventilated rooms. There is a strain on the nerves; the blood becomes impoverished; the cheeks pale; there are frequent headaches; palpitation of the heart and a constant tiredness. If the first symptoms are neglected it may lead to a complete breakdown — perhaps consumption. What is needed to restore vim and energy and vitality is a tonic, and absolutely the best tonic in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make new blood and bring health and cheerful energy to tired and depressed girls and women. Miss Viola Millett, Robinson's Corners, N.S., says: "I was a great sufferer from headaches, heart palpitation and troubles that afflict my sex. My blood seemed almost to have turned to water, and the least exertion left me weak and depressed. I used seven boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they have made a remarkable change in my condition. I can truly say that I feel like a new person, and I strongly recommend these pills to all weak, ailing girls."

These pills cure all forms of blood and nerve troubles, but you must get the genuine with the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People on the wrapper around each box. Ask your druggist for them or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANECDOTES OF THE PEERAGE

Story Which Demonstrates That the Late Lord Dufferin Was a Gentleman of the First Order.

The late Lord Dufferin, the well-known diplomatist, was a very genial man. Once, when on a visit to his Irish estate, he had a tough wrangle with a machine-broker regarding the purchase of some farming implements, but after terms had been settled they had a friendly chat.

"What I like about Your Lordship," said the broker, in conclusion, "is that after the first ten minutes I forget that you are a lord!"

First-Class Joke.

The late Duke of Northumberland, who died in 1899, was, in spite of his great wealth, very unaffected and simple in his tastes. Whenever he traveled on the local railway he usually took a third-class ticket, much to the indignation of the railway officials.

Once they determined to break the Duke of this frugal habit, and with that intention placed several chimney sweeps in the same compartment. His Grace seemed to suspect something, for, on arriving at his destination, he bought the sweeps each a first-class ticket for the return journey, and instructed them to ride first-class on going back.

White Crewe Burnt.

The late Earl of Crewe, uncle of the present peer of the same title, was a somewhat eccentric person. When his palatial residence, Crewe hall, was burned down on Jan. 3, 1866, the noble owner acted with astonishing coolness. While the flames were ascending higher and higher, making it obvious that the mansion was doomed, Lord Crewe ordered a table to be placed on the lawn, and calling for ink and telegraph form, calmly wrote this message to his architect:—"Dear Street.—Crewe is burning. Come and build it up again."

A Girl's Mistake.

There is a pretty story told of the late Lord Granville at a naval review. Though advanced in years, as in honors, he was accustomed on such occasions to don a simple costume of navy blue, and a peaked cap, which made him look anything but a Minister of State.

In this dress he took his station at the foot of the gangway by which the members got on board their vessel, as he wanted to see some of his friends. Mr. C—— was one of them, and as he descended with his daughter Lord Granville held out his hand. Mr. C—— did not happen to see it, being in conversation with someone behind him, but the young lady did.

"Papa," said she, turning to her father, "here is the man for the tickets!"

Apologised.

The house in Ditton Park, near Windsor, is a spacious and magnificent mansion, built early in the last century by Lord Montagu, a friend and correspondent of Sir Walter Scott, on the site of an old mansion destroyed by fire.

Whilst the conflagration was in progress a young officer, who had ridden very hard from Windsor to see the blaze, said to another: "Hang it, this isn't half as good as I expected."

"I am sorry, sir, that you should be disappointed, but I am afraid I can afford you nothing better," said a very courteous voice behind him. It was Lord Montagu's.

Speaking Likeness.

Not long ago there died a certain duke who, though wealthy, was not remarkable for his liberality. When his coachman completed his 25th year of service, his grace came to the conclusion that the occasion demanded some recognition. So he summoned the worthy retainer into his presence, and handed over the gift—a cabinet photograph of himself.

"I humbly thank your grace," said the coachman. "It is extremely like you!"

A Miracle!

The following concerns a well-known peer. His butler discovered a burglar hiding in a closet one evening, and, with assistance, took the fellow to His Lordship, and asked whether he should send for a policeman.

"Of course," replied His Lordship; "or rather," he added, with the instinct of self-preservation, "I'll ring for one."

A servant duly appeared, whom His Lordship requested to "go into the kitchen and bring up a policeman or two." The domestic returned, and said there were no policemen on the premises.

"What!" exclaimed His Lordship, in incredulous tones. "Do you mean to tell me that, with a cook, two scullery-maids, a kitchen-maid, and three house-maids in my employ, there is no policeman in the kitchen? It is indeed a miracle, and our prisoner shall reap the benefit. Wilson, let the man go instantly?"

Glad to Pay.

Lord Alvanley challenged O'Connell in 1835 because the great Irishman had called him a "bloated buffoon." O'Connell's son took up the matter, but no one was killed.

Lord Alvanley, on returning home after the duel, gave a guinea to the hackney coachman who had driven him out and brought him back. The man, surprised at the largeness of the sum, said, "My Lord, I only took you to ——." Lord Alvanley interrupted him with, "My friend, the guinea is for bringing me back, not for taking me out."

Alarming Prospect.

A former Duke of Rutland, at one of his levees, being at a loss for something to say to every person he was bound in etiquette to notice, remarked to another peer that there was "a prospect of an excellent crop." "The timely rain," further observed the duke, "will bring everything above ground."

"God forbid, Your Excellency!" exclaimed the other. The Duke stared, whilst the peer continued, sighing heavily as he spoke. "Yes, God forbid! for I have three wives under it!"

Burlington, Sept. 23.—A fatal accident occurred here last night when the radial car leaving here at 8.10 ran into an old man, George Knife of this village. The accident happened about three minutes after the car left the station. He died in a few minutes after being struck. The old man was deaf. He was a paper-hanger and decorator.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 23.—The principle of socialism was voted down yesterday at the meeting of the Trades and Labor Congress. A proposal to ask the Government to appoint labor representatives to the Senate met the same fate, the Congress favoring the abolition of the Senate.

SPECIALISM

The tailor who tells you vaguely and generally that he is an expert in making each part of a suit is stating an impossibility.

He will not be as expert as he who makes coats alone.

And he who tailors coats cannot in a given time produce as good a collar as he who works on collars alone.

Because the tailor on collars has all his time for collars—to concentrate on the making—to study the fibre of the cloth—the effective way to stitch—so that the collar will be properly shaped and properly made.

Semi-ready is tailored by specialists who concentrate on each part—the maximum skill is obtained—the maximum results achieved.

Semi-ready bears the impress of the very best class of high-grade tailoring.

Each suit carries individuality and creates the impression of distinctive style.

You can forejudge every effect of color—fabric—style, and satisfy yourself as to fit before you buy.

Naturally organized food is a memory of the time before dyspepsia began

Strength, courage and endurance are the characteristics of the pioneers of any country. The reason for this is that naturally organized food was their regular diet. It was all they could get until advancing civilization arrived with all its unnatural foods and methods of eating, and introduced dyspepsia, weak muscles, defective teeth, mental debility, and inflammatory diseases.

Your brain, bone, muscle and flesh are built of the food you eat, and your health depends on whether the food you eat contains the nourishment for each of these elements in the proper proportions.

you get every element of which the body is composed. Its light, porous nature aids digestion by permitting the saliva and gastric juices to penetrate at once to every morsel; while in white flour bread each morsel forms a doughy mass and only the outer surface gets the effect of the digestive juices, the balance remaining in a fermented condition in the stomach.

Triscuit makes ideal toast—it is light, wholesome and crisp.

Drove to His Death.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—Regardless of the warning cries of the watchman and a spectator, young Marcus Perryman, of 44 St. Clarens avenue, drove to his death at the Dunn avenue railway crossing yesterday afternoon. The victim was the 16-year-old son of T. Perryman, grocer, and has for the past month been delivery boy for James N. Caesar, grocer, 1410 West Queen street. As the front wheels of the light wagon touched the rails the train was upon it. The young fellow realised his position and with a shriek leaped toward the engine, vainly throwing up his arms, as though to ward off a blow. The boy, with his skull fractured, and right arm broken, lay limply on the lodge of the cow-catcher, and in this position was carried to the South Parkdale Station. In less than 15 minutes the victim was dead.

A Trolley Accident.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—The sudden grasp of a fellow passenger upon his arm caused Henry J. Hummel, 30 Foxley street, to lose his balance and fall over the back platform rail of a crowded street car last night. Hummel fell under the trailer and the axle striking his back, forced him along the pavement for a considerable distance before the car could be stopped. It was found that the left hip was fractured and that one of his ribs was broken. There were other internal injuries that render Hummel's condition critical. He was taken to his home in the police ambulance. Hummel has only been out from England for a short time and has a wife and family.

Killed By a Ton of Coal.

Port Arthur, Sept. 24.—Thursday night shortly after eight, while the last of the Midland King's cargo of coal was being taken from the hold at the C.P.R. coal docks, Fort William, about a ton of coal dropped from the top of the derrick, striking full upon the head of Mitro Gregolinsky, killing him instantly.

Peculiar Mill Accident.

Woodstock, Sept. 24.—An accident occurred at the saw mill owned by F. C. Avey of Norwich Thursday. The governors on the engine driving the machinery of the mill refused to work and in an instant the fly wheel of the engine gained an unusual rate of speed, increasing the momentum of the machines with such force that cog wheels and shafts were smashed, and the pieces flew in all directions. Parts of the iron work, twenty pounds in weight were driven through the roof of the building, and carried many feet. Blocks of iron were thrown as far as the Swarts Hotel, 200 feet distant.

Fireman Injured.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—Falling glass at a fire in the Gooderham & Worts building, Church and Front streets, yesterday, injured several firemen. Foreman Sweatnam of Bay street chemical, while descending a ladder, was struck on the head and sustained a scalp wound necessitating six stitches; Fireman Boasley of aerial No. 2 had one of his fingers painfully cut, part of the knuckle bone being cut away, and Fireman Dixon of the same truck had his arm cut, while several others received minor cuts.

Blew Out the Gas.

Guelph, Sept. 24.—About half-past one yesterday afternoon it was found that Thomas Crane, a farmer, of Puslinch township, about 25 years of age, had been asphyxiated in the Commercial Hotel. He blew out the gas.

Only An Accident.

Huntsville, Sept. 24.—At the inquest held on the body of Miles Blundell, who was killed at the railway crossing, near Huntsville, on the 20th inst., the verdict of the jury was that the deceased came to his death by being struck by a G. T. R. engine attached to an express train. No blame is attached to the Grand Trunk Railway Company or any of its employes.

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and diarrhoea remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. IN A TRAIN WRECK

But His Grace of Canterbury Escaped Without Injury.

J. P. MORGAN ALSO ON TRAIN

Episcopal Party Was Badly Shaken But Sustained No Injuries—Engine of Train Derailed But Cars Stayed on the Track—Terrific Crash Followed Engine Striking a Wandering Engine on the Track.

East Brookfield, Mass., Sept. 24.—A special train conveying the Archbishop of Canterbury from Bar Harbor, Maine, to Washington, was wrecked on the Boston and Albany Division of the New York Central Railroad, near the station here, yesterday morning. The Archbishop was not injured, although considerably shaken up. J. Pierpont Morgan of New York, who was also on the train accompanying the Archbishop, was also shaken up but not hurt.

The special, running at the rate of 60 miles an hour, was just passing the station when a detached locomotive, which had been drawing a train on the North Brookfield branch, ran on to the main line. The engineer of the special sighted a danger signal, but owing to the high speed of the train and the slippery rails due to the mist of early morning he found it impossible to more than slightly reduce the speed of his locomotive. The engineer of the branch engine heard the on-rush of the special, but he had not time to move out of the way.

The Archbishop's train struck the North Brookfield engine with a terrific crash and demolished it. The locomotive of the special was thrown from the rails and landed across the eastbound track near the wreck of the North Brookfield engine. The cars did not leave the rails.

Rev. J. Ellison, the Archbishop's secretary, answered for those in the Archbishop's private car, including Mrs. Davidson, that no one was injured.

With the Archbishop, besides Mrs Davidson and Mr. Morgan, were Rev. Hyla Holden and Rev. J. Ellison and [illegible] the maid was hurt, but her injuries were not held to be serious. Traffic on the road was blocked for some time.

The Archbishop of Canterbury's special train, with a new engine, resumed its trip to Washington just before 10 o'clock.

Tragic Death of Nine Children.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 24.—During the morning recess yesterday of the public school at Pleasant Ridge, about 20 miles north of this city, a number of children lost their lives. When school recessed there was a playful rush into the out-house, which gave way, precipitating about 20 children into the vault. Nine dead bodies have been recovered. After nine dead bodies had been recovered and 12 children had been rescued alive, the vault was thoroughly dredged and drenched, the rescuers abandoned the search. Of the twelve who were rescued covered with the filth of the vault, half of them will die of poisoning. Several of the rescued have limbs broken.

Train Hit Dynamite.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 24.—A wagon loaded with 19 cases of dynamite was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio fast freight train at a road crossing at North Branch, W. Va., near here, yesterday, and an explosion followed. The engine and nine cars were wrecked, and the track torn

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED IN TIME OF TROUBLE

Col. Sanderson L. O. L. Passes Resolution of Condolence to Mr. Robt. J. Mitchell.

The members of Col Sanderson, L. O. L., No. 321, at the last regular meeting, passed a resolution of condolence to Mr. Robert J. Mitchell, a member of that lodge, on the death of his wife, who was a lady highly respected and greatly beloved.

The resolution follows:—

To Mr. Robert J. Mitchell,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir and Brother,—We, the officers and members of Col. Saunderson L. O. L. 321, have heard with deep and sincere regret of the death of your beloved wife and we desire to place on record our deepest sympathy with you and your family in this deep sorrow.

It is needless for us to say that this vicinity has lost in her a good kind friend and many of our families will miss her most sympathetic, kind, neighborly hand when affliction visits our homes.

We pray that you may be strengthened by the Lord of all Grace to bear up beneath the trial He has been pleased to send you remembering that whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. There is but a step between us and the grave and sooner or later death shall call us hence. But there is a home where death can never enter, where pain and sickness can never come. May God grant each of us an entrance to that home when our life's journey is ended here below, His purpose accomplished with us here.

Dear Brother we ask you to kindly receive this our message of condolence in the spirit of brotherly kindness in which we now send it. Also convey our deep sympathy to the other members of the family.

Signed on behalf of the lodge,
C. F. KITNEY, R.S.

VICTORIA COUNTY CHEESE BOARD MEETS

The Cheese Board met Thursday morning with only three buyers, Messrs. Flavelle, Fitzgerald and Gillespie, but adjourned till a week from Monday on account of not getting a good price.

THOROUGH WORK ON STREET RAILWAY

Good Stretch of New Track Being Laid —All "Soo" Rails.

The Street Railway Company has made an excellent piece of track along Lock street to the river, which is the only long piece of new track upon which the cars are now running, and if the remaining new track is constructed in as thorough a manner as the piece in question, the town of Peterborough will have one of the best road-beds of any street railway in the country.

All sawn hemlock ties have been used, and the rails also are new, having been procured from the steel rail mills at Sault Ste. Marie, and the rails are pronounced by all the experts who have examined them as being of the very best quality. This stretch of track, although just recently laid, rides almost as smoothly as an old track, and it is a pleasure that all the new track being laid is being put down in the same thorough manner which characterizes that on Lock street.

FALL SITTINGS OF HIGH COURT.

Three Cases to Come Before the Judge on Monday.

Regular Autumn Sittings of the High Court of Justice.

The autumn sittings of the High Court of Justice opens on Monday at the Court House before His Honour Justice Falconbridge. The following are the statements of claim and the defence, in the several cases:—

MOLONEY VS. RYAN.

This is a case in which Elizabeth Maloney and Daniel Moloney, are plaintiffs; Patrick Ryan and Michael Ryan, defendants. The plaintiffs and defendants all reside in the Township of Douro in the County of Peterborough. The plaintiffs claim that by lease dated March 22, 1902, the plaintiffs leased to defendant Patrick Ryan, the west half of lot ten, concession seven, of Douro, for the term of one year and the defendant entered into possession and remained in possession for the said term. In the lease the defendant Patrick Ryan agreed that before the expiration of the term, he would clean up all swamps, and carefully preserve and place in a safe place all timber suitable for making rails for fences. The defendant Michael Ryan was a party to the lease and agreed in consideration of the sum of one dollar that the defendant Patrick Ryan would pay the rent of $150.00 and faithfully observe and perform all the covenants of the lease and guarantee the performance of the same and payment of the rent. The plaintiffs claim that the defendants made default in the performance of the conditions of the lease and that the plaintiffs have suffered serious damage and loss thereby, and therefore claim the sum of $512.75 damages, the costs of the action and such further and other relief as the court may see fit. The defendants deny all allegations and statements alleged in the statement of claim and the several acts and matters therein compained of, beyond admitting the first paragraph of the claim. They claim an unlawful entry on the said lands and interference of the plaintiffs, their agents or workmen, with the defendant Patrick Ryan in his farming occupation and in doing the cleaning. The defendants also claim that at or about the time of the expiring of the term of the lease the defendant Patrick Ryan offered to complete the clearing of the said land as alleged, if any part thereof was shown not to be cleared up, but the plaintiffs refused to permit him to remain on or to enter on the lands to do the same. During the summer season of 1902 there was an extraordinary rain fall, flooding the lands in question rendering it impossible to accomplish the clearing up, hence the desire of the defendant Patrick Ryan to do so at or about the expiration of the term of the lease. By way of counter claim, the defendant Patrick Ryan claims that during the term of lease, the plaintiffs unlawfully and with force entered the said lands and ploughed up crops growing therein and wrought other damage. The defendant Patrick Ryan seeks to recover from the plaintiffs in this action, the sum of $100 in respect of the trespass, loss and damage suffered by him.

The plaintiffs in reply to the statement of defence and counter claim claim that if the plaintiffs entered the lands and ploughed up crops growing therein, they did so in the exercise of their rights under the lease, and that if they broke down fences, or allowed their cattle to enter and pasture on the said land they did so with defendants' permission.

Messrs. O'Connell & Bull for plaintiffs; Mr. W. H. Moore for defendants.

CALCUTT VS. CARTWRIGHT.

Henry Calcutt, plaintiff, Anson Cartwright, defendant. The plaintiff is the owner of a line of steamers and scows plying on the river Otonabee and adjacent waters known as Calcutt's Line of Steamers, and the defendant is a steamboat captain or master, duly qualified. In the spring of 1904 the plaintiff engaged the defendant as captain and placed him in charge of the steamer Water Lily. About the 18th of May, 1904, the plaintiff directed defendant to take the said steamer to Hale's Bridge and bring up a scow laden with lumber, the property of the plaintiff, to Peterborough. The defendant proceeded to carry out the directions of plaintiff, but conducted himself in the bringing up the said scow and lumber in such a grossly negligent manner that the scow was wrecked and became, with the lumber, a total wreck. The plaintiff charges that it was by reason of the negligent conduct of the defendant that the plaintiff sustained the loss and claims one thousand dollars.

The defendant claims that the towing of the scow and lumber was done under orders at a time when the river Otonabee was in flood, and the protection of shipping at the Locks dam, where the accident occurred, were not in place and under circumstances involving special risks well known to the plaintiff. The damage to the scow and lumber was the result of such conditions and not of negligence on the part of the defendant, who exercised every care in the performance of the plaintiff's orders. By way of counter claim the defendant claims damages in the sum of $200 for dismissal by defendant without notice, contrary to the terms of his employment. Mr. R. E. Wood for plaintiff and Messrs. Roger & Bennet for defendant.

DICKSON CO. VS. O'TOOLE.

The Dickson Company of Peterborough, Limited, plaintiffs, and John O'Toole, defendant. The plaintiffs are manufacturers and dealers in lumber, and the defendant is a contractor who during the years of 1903-4, was engaged in the erection of a concrete dam. Between the month of November, 1902, and the month of June, 1904, the plaintiffs supplied the defendant with certain lumber and timber, and furnished from time to time with each delivery of goods, invoices. At different periods payments were made on account by the defendant, but on May 20th last there remained unpaid the sum of $362.47, which the defendant declined to pay. The plaintiffs claim the sum of $367 and interest from Aug. 23rd, 1904.

The defendant admits that he purchased the timber referred to and says that he agreed to pay $20 per thousand for the timber. In the plaintiffs' account the timber is charged against the defendant at $28 per thousand, contrary to the bargain made, and the difference amounts to $367, the amount claimed in the action. The defendant the plaintiffs in full. Mr. R. E. Wood for plaintiffs; Messrs. Roger & Bennet for defendant.

The Commencement Exercises of the Graduating Class of Nicholls' Hospital Training School for Nurses, will be held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on the evening of Monday, October 10th, at 8 o'clock.

OUTLINED WORK OF COMING YEAR

Y. M. C. A. Directors Monthly Meeting When Plans Were Discussed.

The regular monthly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Directors was held on Thursday evening, President E. B. Edwards presiding.

The officers, Messrs. Holmes, Hutchinson and Williamson outlined the fall and winter plans of work, which were discussed by the Board.

The Board heartily approved of the plan to hold a mission for men under the auspices of the Association during the week beginning Nov. 13. The mission will be under the able leadership of Rev. E. A. Langfeldt.

The committee appointed to consider the matter of dormitories made a report, and it is earnestly hoped that the dormitories may soon be erected.

A statement was made regarding the finances and it is the intention to finish the canvas at once and close the books as soon after the first of October as possible. About $800 is still needed in gifts from friends of the work to meet the needs provided by the budget.

The opening of a dressing room for the boys was decided upon, and the contract let for 75 new lockers to equip the same.

A number of pieces of apparatus for use in the examining room was approved of including a spirometer, calipers and measuring blanks.

BLACK WATCH BAND HERE ON TUESDAY

The Band Meeting With Great Success in the West.

The Black Watch Band, which will appear here next Tuesday, has been meeting with very flattering success on its trip through the west, and the prospects are that that success will be fully duplicated on the occasion of their visit to Peterborough.

The enthusiasm which the band has inspired among the Scotch section of the country is unparalleled, and everywhere the Scotchmen turn out in hundreds. But the band does not depend upon its Scotch origin to draw crowds or to interest them. The music played by the band is of such a nature that the best musical critics are delighted.

Below are given two sample programmes which show the variety of music the band is capable of rendering.

1. March, "Pomp and Circumstance," Elgar,(founded on the composer's famous song, "Land of Hope and Glory.") Overture, "Morning, Noon and Night," Suppe. 3. Selection, "Tannhauser," Wagner. 4. Pipers march, "Loch Katrine, Brig o' Perth, King's Gun, (reel), sword dance." 5. Reminiscence of Mendelssohn. 6. Trombone solo, "Death of Nelson," Braham, Corp. Douglass. 7. Reminiscences of Scotland. 8. Pipers, march, "Leaving Glen Urquhart," "Miller o' Drone," "Sutherland Reel, "Highland Fling." 9. Gavotte, "Les Cloches de St. Malo," Rimmer (with bell effect.) 10. Morris dance, German.

1. March, "Hail Europe," Von Blon. 2. Overture, "Egmont," Beethoven. 3. Reminiscences from operas, Wagner, (arr. by C. Godfrey.) 4. Pipers of the Black Watch, march, "Barren Rocks of Aden," Miss Madelina Sinclair," "Miss McLeod of Raasay," reel. 5. Morceau, "Salut d'Amour," Elgar. 6. National Fantasia, "Under the British Flag," Kappey. 7. Clarionet solo, "Les Alsachiennes," Le Thiere, soloist Corp. Turbett. 8. Selection, "Robert Bruce," Bonnisseau. 9. Pipers, march, "Loch Katrine, "Tullock Gorm," (reel of Tulloch), Argyleshire Sword Dance. 10. Descriptive piece, "Smithy in the Woods," Michaelis. 11. Two-step, "Mumblin' Moss," Thurban, (with whistling and vocal accompaniment.)

BEAUTIFUL SERVICE OF THANKSGIVING.

Harvest Festival Last Night in All Saints' Church.

Sermon by the Rector Rev. W. Major—Why the Harvest Thanksgiving is Beneficial.

We plough the fields and scatter
The good seed on the land
But it is fed and watered
By God's Almighty hand;
He sends the snow in winter,
The warmth to swell the grain,
The breezes and the sunshine,
And soft refreshing rain.
All good gifts around us
Are sent from Heaven above.
Then thank the Lord, O, thank the Lord,
For all His Love.

Last night All Saints' church was well filled on the occasion of the annual Harvest Festival service, and the service itself in all its details, was one in keeping with the idea of [illegible] and thanksgiving, and it [illegible] festival services of the kind ever held in that progressive church.

The decorations were of an especially pleasing character, and were exceedingly well executed, presenting a very beautiful effect. The products of the field and the garden, in grain, fruit and vegetables, were so arranged as to make a very effective display, and the work of arranging the decorations must have occupied considerable time. Those who performed the work are to be congratulated upon their success in it. The interior of the sacred edifice was certainly "a thing of beauty," and no one could possibly have entered the building without having the thoughts directed to the subject of harvest, and feeling thankful for the displays of the bounteous goodness of Providence in giving the harvest.

EFFECTIVE DECORATION.

A lattice work of grain made a beautiful picture at the altar, and in the chancel autumn leaves and flowers were combined with excellent artistic taste, a feature which characterised the entire decorations. Festoons of grain gracefully hung in arches from the ceiling throughout the church, and at each seat a bunch of wheat in the straw added to the excellent effect. The windows were lined with fruit, grain, flowers and vegetables, and wherever one looked, harvest remembrancers were in evidence.

The music of the choir was of an especially meritorious character, the choir acquitting themselves remarkably well.

The opening prayers were conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, while Rev. E. A. Langfeldt read the lesson.

A HELPFUL SERMON.

The sermon, which was preached by Rev. W. Major, the rector of the church, was a masterly effort, and dealt also with the question of harvest, and why the harvest time is beneficial to us, if properly appreciated. The text from which the sermon was preached was Acts xiv, 17, "Nevertheless He left not Himself without witness in that He did good and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food and gladness." The blessings of the Divine Father in giving such a bountiful harvest are so great, said the speaker, that we should endeavour to manifest our appreciation of His goodness to us. God so indissolubly mixes up the great national blessings with our daily life that we cannot ignore them. It was to be regretted that our national thanksgiving day did not partake more of a religious character. Sometimes the question was asked, why the Anglican church spent so much time and money in decorating and otherwise preparing for the Harvest Festivals, which last for but a few short hours, for it is recognized that the Anglican church is peculiar in their special attention to the harvest festival services, but it is because they recognise the spiritual inspiratoin of it.

WHY IT IS BENEFICIAL.

He wished to present a few reasons why it is beneficial to give prominence to the harvest festivals. Because, in the first place, it makes us inclined in our devout moments to think of God as revealed in the works of nature; upon some people the goodness of God in nature is lost. The saintly Fletcher, in a letter, expressed great delight in the beauties of the Rhine, but deplored this fact because of its suggestion of worldliness, but we find that the highest state of spiritual life is that in which the spiritual side of nature is felt. God is just as much present in nature as He is in anything. Take the kernel of wheat. The grain looks hard and dead when it is placed in the ground, but the warm rain and sun do their work, and soon signs of life appear, the roots spring downward and the blade springs upward; and in due time the ripened grain is the result, and all this process in order that we might have bread.

Every such revelation of God's beneficient care and love cannot but deepen in our hearts a love for God.

VALUE OF PUBLIC CONFESSION.

The second benefit is that of a public confession of God as being God, which is of great value to the community. In some communities there [illegible] general way of stifling the belief in that which strikes at the very root, and which gives to human agencies the credit for what we have and are to-day. Some men say that all of the civilization enjoyed to-day, is due to the efforts of man. While willing to give human agency all the credit due, and with all the thanks to our fathers for the splendid heritage they have left us, the speaker believed that the present condition with all the advantages enjoyed were due to the kind care of God. God gave us the land, but to win it, we must work. Man may plant but it is God who gives the increase, and as an example of the great productiveness of a grain of wheat, he said that from one grain of seed in eight years, increasing at the rate of 100 fold, which was the average yield of land in Egypt, the yield in the eighth year would be twelve thousand million bushels. This gives one but a slight conception of that miracle of miracles, reproduction. Scientists have proven themselves capable of producing some substances, but they have never yet been able to produce a little blade of grass or a piece of snow. The most expensive watch ever made when compared with a grain of wheat falls far short, because it has not the power in itself to reproduce itself. We are grateful to men for all that they have done, but in the final analysis we must ascribe all to God, for it is "in Him we live and move and have our being."

LESSONS TO BE LEARNED.

Then the harvest time is beneficial because it points to the autumn of our lives, when we should have something to give our brothers. In this country which is to a great extent a new country, one misses the familiar scenes of the English harvest field, when as the last sheaves are loaded on the wagons drawing the grain to the rick yard, the harvesters give shouts of gladness, and so should we also rejoice when we look upon a man who has reached the autumn of life, and whose life has been rich in fruit of a wide spiritual life. This should be the case with each one of us. We should scatter seeds of kindness and work for the betterment of mankind. In the autumn of life there is a great pleasure in the knowledge that one has done well what the Father set us to do. We must also remember that this is also a season of preparation. The harvest passed, the ploughing is done, and the seed sown for a new harvest. Let there be character in our sowing and when the spring time of God's future comes, the result of every effort made will bear its fruit, said the reverend speaker. In conclusion the speaker counselled his hearers to live so, that they might help on to God through life's journey helped and encouraged.

The music last night constituted by no means the least pleasing part of the service, which opened with the "Festal Te Deum," by Jackson. Other numbers rendered very beautifully by the choir were: "Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis," a Harvest Carol, "Holy is the Seed-time," and the Anthem, "Ye That Dwell in the Land," by Sir John Stainer, in which a bass solo was sung by Rev. Mr. Major, and a soprano solo by Mrs. Reid, both in excellent voice and with good expression.

The Harvest Festival services will be continued to-morrow, when the music will again be rendered.

The offering, which was in aid of the Organ Fund, was a satisfactory one.

—The official programme of the Peterborough Fair was received too late for publication to-day. It will be published on Monday.

DARING DAYLIGHT ATTEMPT AT ROBBERY

Residence of Mr. John Weir Entered Yesterday Afternoon.

The Timely Arrival of Mr. Weir Prevented Burglars Getting Away With Booty.

Peterborough seems to have a special attraction for burglars. Yesterday afternoon Mr. John Weir, who conducts a store in the East Ward, had occasion to go to his home a short distance from the store, when he saw a boy about fifteen years of age, wearing a brown suit, with a soft hat on his head, sitting on the steps. Going inside he surprised a man who was in the act of going through the wardrobe of the house, evidently with the intention of appropriating such articles as he might consider of value to himself.

At Mr. Weir's entrance the burglar at once beat a hasty retreat, followed closely by Mr. Weir, who gave chase to the intruders in the hope of capturing them. Finding such a course impossible he returned, and reported the matter to the police, who are now on the trail of the burglars. Nothing was taken from Mr. Weir's house, but the whole place had been ransacked and a pile of clothes had been laid on the sofa, the intention evidently being to take these clothes on their departure.

The boy was evidently a colleague of his older companion, and was probably left outside to give the man inside the alarm should anyone approach to disturb the operations.

The man, according to Mr. Weir's description, is about 25 years of age, height, 5 feet 6 inches; medium build, dressed in black, with a soft hat; he is of a dark complexion and had a dark moustache. The boy is about 15 years of age, dressed in brown clothes with a soft hat.

During the afternoon another house in the same part of the town was broken into, but nothing was taken, although it was ransacked. The Chief has sent the description of these two characters to the police at different towns in the hope of effecting their arrest.

WERE MARRIED IN QUEEN CITY

Miss Adeline Victoria Ames Becomes Wife of Mr. C. H. Fralick.

The marriage of Miss Adeline Victoria Ames, only daughter of Mr. J. H. Ames of Peterborough, to Mr. Charles Herbert Fralick of Peterborough, took place very quietly on Wednesday afternoon, at Broadway Tabernacle, Toronto, the Rev. E. N. Baker, officiating.

The bride, dressed in a simple grey travelling gown and carrying white roses, was given away by her father and attended by Mrs. Dr. Woltz, as matron of honour, in cream, who carried pink roses, while Dr. A. E. Woltz ably supported the groom. After the ceremony the party repaired to the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Woltz, 520 Bathurst street, where, amid the fragrance of flowers, the bride received the congratulations of her friends. A sumptuous dejeuner was served. The happy couple have left on an extended tour east.

CANADA WOLLEN MILLS WILL RUN

The Plants sold to Mr. William Long, of Hamilton.

After hanging fire for some time a sale has been effected of the Canada Woollen Mills assets to Mr. Wm. Long, of Hamilton. The price realized was $253,000, and the assets include several mill sites and mills, and a large stock of manufactured goods and raw materials. Mr. Long, the purchaser, was a large shareholder in the company, and a creditor to the amount of $180,000. His purpose is to reopen the mills, and he will either form a company to do so or carry on operations himself.

The sum of $253,000 is considered to be a fair price for the properties but it falls far short of the value placed upon them at the time of the consolidation. The representatives of the creditors, who were present in Mr. Cartwright's office, discussed the matter before the offer was accepted.

James S. Cartwright, Esq., Master-in-Chambers, had charge of the sale in his capacity of Official Referee of the Court.—Toronto News.

MISS DELANEY'S MILLINERY DISPLAY

Excellent Fall Exhibit at this Popular Establishment.

The crowds of ladies who gathered to see the new and fashionable Autumn millinery at Miss Delaney's during the past few days greatly admired the maze of prettiness which met them in these beautiful show rooms. Every effort had been made to place before the public the most exclusive novelties, and the general verdict of the ladies was, that they never had seen gathered together such a fashionable group of pretty headwear. Pattern hats from the leading artists were displayed side by side with the extremely clever creations turned out from Miss Delaney's own work room, made up a collection that those who were good judges pronounced the best in Peterborough. An important characteristic of Miss Delaney's millinery is that all classes can be easily suited—it takes your fancy and suits your purse. Can't help but find a hat to suit you, for there is a splendid variety. The store is extremely bright and attractive throughout, the stock well kept and the staff of assistants attentive and obliging.

It is the starting point for pneumonia, rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, kidney troubles and numerous other diseases. Speak of a cold and this should be the sequence: colds, catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, grippe, pneumonia and possibly consumption. A LINK WITH THF PAST

THE YORK GATEWAY, BROADSTAIRS, BUILT ABOUT 1540.

"The Men of Kent" and the Isle of Thanet—Inhabitants Praised Three Centuries Ago for Their Industry—Broadstairs Is a Perfect Little Gem in Its Way—Noted Ancient Shrine Close to the Archway.

The Isle of Thanet is rich in possessing unique historic associations, and has played a most conspicuous part in the ancient history of the kingdom, says Lloyd's Weekly. It may appear an anachronism to refer to Thanet as an island, seeing that it now forms an integral part of Kent, but originally it was separated from the mainland of Kent by a broad channel, "a lump of land between two seas," which is now represented in part by the small stream of the Stour River. Through bygone centuries loyalty has been proudly inscribed upon the banner of "the men of Kent," and even up to the present day this honorable distinction has clung to them.

Three centuries ago agriculture and seafaring pursuits were, in the Isle of Thanet, probably united in the same person. Camden tells us that: "Nor must I here forget what redounds to the especial praise of the inhabitants, particularly of those who live near the ports of Margate, Ramsgate, and Broadstairs. They are excessively industrious, getting their living like amphibious animals, both by sea and land; making the most of both elements, being both fishermen and ploughmen, farmers and sailors; the same persons that guide the plow in the fields steering the helm at sea. In the different seasons of the years they make nets, catch cod, herrings, mackerel, and other fish; make trading voyages, manure their land, plow, sow, harrow, reap, and store their corn, expert in both professions, and so carrying on the round of labor."

Fragments of old-time houses, round which cling many a mediæval romance and historical association of the deepest interest, reminds us of the former greatness of Broadstairs, anciently named "Bradstowe," or "broad place," situated about two miles from Ramsgate, and the same distance from Margate. The pretty little bay of Broadstairs, fringed with a stretch of exquisite sands, surrounded by the chalk cliffs of Thanet, overlooking the German Ocean, is a perfect gem in its way. In the days of the Tudors it was an insignificant fishing village, but in the sixteenth century became an important station under the jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports. For the safety of the fishermen a small wooden pier was built in the reign of Elizabeth, probably by the Culmer family, who fortified the gate, or passage leading down to the seashore by an arched portal, defended by a portcullis and strong gates, doubtless to protect the mariners and inhabitants being molested by the sudden incursions of privateers. The archway built of flint, which is called "York Gate," a picturesque bit of old-world building—still remains standing in Harbor street. Upon it is this inscription: "Built by George Culmer abt. 1540. Repaired by S. John Henniker, Bart., 1795."

Close to this ancient gateway was formerly a small chapel called "Our Ladye of Pity," Star of the Sea, or "Oure Ladye of Bradstowe." This ancient shrine had such a wonderful celebrity, that pilgrimages were made to it from all parts of the kingdom, and ships sailing by had their topsails lowered, and the Virgin's protection asked for, by the mariners. Some of the walls and windows are still remaining, forming part of a dwelling house, and, also, a place of worship for Dissenters of the Baptist persuasion, now called St. Mary's Chapel, which was built in 1001. Close by is the present pier, erected in 1809, and Dickens described it in his "Household Words" as a "quaer old pier fortunately without the slightest pretensions to architecture, and very picturesque in consequence." The former wooden pier experienced many vicissitudes, and eventually the primitive old structure was carried away in a violent storm. Bleak House is above it—not the Bleak House of the novel, for that is in Lincolnshire—which makes a most conspicuous object on the north cliff, and bleak, indeed, it is, exposed to every wind. Charles Dickens spent fifteen summers here, to periodically recuperate his physical and mental powers, and one of his brightest inspirations, the book called by that name, was written at Broadstairs.

"This place was also a favorite resort of Queen Caroline, who, as Princess of Wales, frequently occupied a residence on East Cliff, and the late Queen Victoria spent a not inconsiderable part of her childhood here with her mother, the Duchess of Kent, at Pierrepont House.

"In days of old" Broadstairs was alluded to in the following verse:

Ramsgate capons,
Peter's kings,
Broadstairs scrubbs, and
Margate kings.

Punch's Significant Cartoon.

It is an old saying in England that the leading cartoon in Punch represents current opinion better than any other manifestation in the public press. If this be so, then the world can understand the intensity of feeling among the British people over the continued interference by Russia with British commerce when it is stated that this week Punch has a cartoon entitled "The Mistress of the Sea." It represents Britannia with her trident, sitting on the steps of a quay, mournfully contemplating bales of British goods which await shipment. Neptune, in a barge, labelled "Neptune & Company, Ocean Carriers," and laden with the best German goods, is just starting for the Far East. He says, "You are not sending your goods to the Far East just now, ma'am. How's that?"

Britannia meekly answers, "I'm not allowed to."

Father Neptune rejoins, "Not allowed? Why, I thought you had a navy?"

For Both.

"I can forgive but never forget this whipping," said Tommy.

"That is just what I want you to do," said his mother.

HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH RICH.

Use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—A Good Stomach is the Foundation of all Happiness.

Millionaries have been known to offer fortunes to any physician who would cure their Dyspepsia. With untold wealth and "bad" stomachs they could not compare in happiness with a six dollar a week man with a good stomach.

But because you have a balance with the bankers that is no reason you should have a bad stomach. Listen to the experience of others and use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They cure rich and poor alike. Take the case of Mr. Joseph Leake, of 194 McCaul street, Toronto. He says:—

"I was troubled for three years with Dyspepsia and Billiousness. I tried several medicines but none would cure me. I used one box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and now I am cured. My daughter also who was troubled with Headaches and Dyspepsia, has been cured by using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

New Governor of Fiji.

Much satisfaction has been caused in Fiji by the selection of Mr. Everard im Thurn as Governor, that scientific official's career and qualifications being well known among our tropical colonies. After passing through Marlborough and Oxford—where he took his M.A. in 1880—Mr. im Thurn busied himself on the Pomerun River, in British Guiana, where he was a Magistrate under Government. After eight years on the Pomerun he was for over ten years a Government agent in Northwest Guiana, all his spare time being devoted to exploration and the study of the flora and fauna of the country. His lectures were eagerly looked for when he came home on leave, and his works on the natural history and geographical features of the Guianise region are well known. Mr. im Thurn has been Colonial Secretary and Lieutenant-Governor of Ceylon for three years, and he will find quite a new field for his researches in the Fiji Islands.

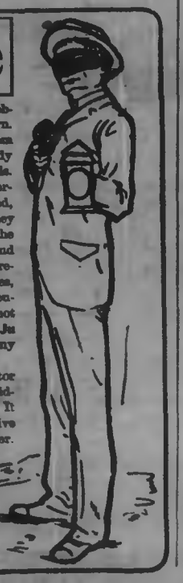
Better Than Expected.

Montreal, Sept. 19.—G. W. Thompson, manager of the Ogilvie Milling Company, received the following Saturday from Winnipeg: "Threshing at Carberry turned out better by several bushels than expected. Oak Lake, Alexander, Brandon and Stirling will go 30 bushels."

An Enemy in the House



NO ONE would wish to face the midnight robber with revolver and mask and dark lantern. As he stands here he has the occupant of the room at his mercy. You would give up all your ready cash, your watch and your jewelry to his demands.

There are enemies in the human body as dangerous as the dreaded burglar. These are neglected, weak, overworked and clogged kidneys. They wear the mask of concealed risks. They carry the lantern of discovery into every part of the body, and the pistol of poison which will kill if it be not prevented. Kidney troubles cause many other troubles, among them being the very serious ones of rheumatism, neuralgia, and Bright's Disease. Do not let the robber enter. Lock your doors, using Bu-Ju as the bolt which will shut out the powerful enemy to health.

Bu-Ju, The Kidney Pill, is the sovereign regulator and tonic for the kidneys. It keeps healthy kidneys well and restores weak kidneys to health. It cures those diseases which arise from defective kidney action. A trial will convince any sufferer.

Bu-Ju, The Kidney Pill, is for sale by all druggists, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price

SHOOTING PAINS THROUGH THE BACK

Not a Day Without Suffering Until Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. C. Noyes, for many years section foreman, and now flagman for the G.T.R. at Peterborough, states: "For twenty-one years I was section foreman on the C.P.R. and was exposed to all sorts of weather. As a result my kidneys became effected and there was scarcely a day that I was not troubled more or less. At times I would have sharp shooting pains through my back and would get so used up that I felt like giving up work. During this time I was also a great sufferer from constipation. As I had heard so much about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney disease and constipation I began using them, and can say that I was entirely cured of my old troubles in a short time. I cannot say anything too good about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and never lose an opportunity of recommending them."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose; 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 11

PERILS OF FISHER FOLK.

Escapes and Adventures of Great Annual Fishing Trip on Newfoundland Shores—Heroic Deeds Recounted.

Of all the varied forms that fishery enterprise assumes in many seas, there is probably none more daring than the annual migration of 20,000 Newfoundlanders to and from Labrador, spending the summer in trawling for cod along that dreary desolate, sub-Arctic seaboard. This migration northward in the spring and southward again in the autumn, embraces not only the fishermen themselves, but their wives and children, with their household goods and domestic animals. These are conveyed to the lonely strand in the little fishing smacks and established in miserable wooden or turf huts in the harbors that indent the rock-ribbed coast-line—if ice and fog and fog and tempest allow the perilous passage to be made in safety.

The outside world has small conception of the dangers that attend every stage of this industry, or of the privations and misery endured by these hardy fisher folk in their six months' struggle to wrest a subsistence from the ocean. Disaster and death follow in the wake of the little argosies, and the annual death roll often assumes appalling proportions.

Whole Crews Lost.

Whole crews are engulfed by the mighty billows, and the entire seaboard is strewn with the wrack of craft piled there by the spring breezes or autumn gales. Bergs and floes do their part to augment the wrecks, and in the blinding fogs collisions and strandings add to the fatalities.

When spring opens the fisher boats are fitted out for the venture and their living freights are embarked. The earliest arrivals pick the choicest fishing grounds, so there is general striving to make the run as speedily as possible. The vessels have to thread their way through the ice-strewn sea, stretching far beyond the horizon. Dispersing and reassembling with every change of wind, these restless masses mean certain destruction to any craft unfortunate enough to be nipped between them.

Danger From Icebergs.

The icebergs cause the worst tragedies, because they are rarely sighted in time to escape, and the impact of a frail craft against one of them shatters her like a bundle of splintered boards, leaving but a few half-drowned wretches to float around on planks and hencoops. Now and then a crew, or part of it, will find lodgment on the berg itself, and remain there, chilled and despairing, until some other vessel succors them. There is no mature Labrador fisherman who cannot recount thrilling personal experiences with bergs and floes, or display scars from frostbite acquired in protracted exposure after meeting the dire misfortune of shipwreck amid the snow-flecked seas.

But fog is the chief abhorrence of the fishermen. Enveloped in these murky palls, the shrewdest judgment, the keenest seamanship, is often at fault. The coast is sentinelled by islands the whole way, and when the vessels plump upon them there is terrible havoc in human life.

The schooner Czar struck some outlying isles three years ago, about midnight, and the loss of seventy-four lives was only averted by the coolness of the skipper, who held all to the wreck until men swam ashore with lines. Four lives were lost, and the survivors were alone on the desolate rock for nearly a week, without fire or shelter, living on wild birds' eggs and brackish water, until a passing smacksman sighted their signal of distress—a woman's petticoat—and transported them to the mainland. They made their way home, deprived of their summer's fishing and all their possessions.

Deeds of Heroism.

Records of heroism and self-sacrifice are interwoven with the more prosaic details of the fishing. A lad of twelve, when his father had taken him on his back to swim ashore with him after their vessel had foundered off the land, begged the father to abandon him and save his own life for the sake of the large family depending upon him. But the father got him safely in, and the lad is now a successful Labrador skipper.

One ship-master holds a medal for saving forty-one lives in a Labrador storm. He was lowered down the face of a cliff and snatched from a wreck in the surf below all but eight of the crew of forty-nine. He thought his work was done when thirty-nine were got to safety, but when he was hauled to the hilltop he was informed that there were two more on board and descended again to rescue these.

Every one of these fishermen is as ready to give his life for the merest stranger in peril on the coast, and is as unconscious of what defeat means. Last November a returning Labrador vessel, the Pioneer, was found waterlogged and helpless in the Gulf of St. Lawrence with ten men and six women aboard. They had kept the crazy hull afloat for five days and nights by incessant pumping, spent with hunger, cold and anxiety, but ever hopeful of recovery. The skipper, a man of 68, forty years previously had been driven over a rock off Labrador by the ice, his ship destroyed, and he left alone on the floe with a dislocated shoulder, two broken fingers, and a gashed forehead, to revive after forty-eight hours and walk across the packed ice to the land.

WHERE LIMBURGER IS MADE

Famous and Odorous Cheese as It Is Manufactured at Baden, Ont.—The Atmosphere Is "Cheesy."

The good old County of Waterloo, the most prosperous manufacturing and agricultural county in Ontario, is the home of an industry that flourishes alone within its borders, namely, the manufacture of limburger cheese.

The towns of the county each has possessions that are contributing to their prosperity and advancement, as well as advertising their respective fame abroad. Berlin has its sugar refinery and varied industries, Waterloo Seagram's string of racers, Galt has its great iron works, Preston its mineral springs, furniture factories and foundries; Hespeler its woollen mills, and last, but not least, Baden, its limburger cheese factory.

It was for the purpose of ascertaining how this famous and odorous cheese is made that a Toronto World reporter drove over to the picturesque little village of Baden one afternoon recently. The reporter looked in vain for a tall smoke stack that might possibly indicate the existence of the works, and finally stopped a native with the salutation, "Can you tell me, sir, where the limburger cheese factory is located."

The man, while he did not "have a mustache like the Kaiser," gave evidence of his Teutonic extraction by replying: "Vy you shust go down dot lane vher dot house is vot vas burnt down vonce."

Atmosphere Is Cheesy.

Following the directions so explicitly given, the reporter made his way past the ruins of a recent fire, and even before he struck the lane was assured he was on the right track by a passing breeze which certainly gave evidences of the close proximity of a cheese factory, rather than of a field of new mown hay.

At each succeeding step the atmosphere became more "cheesy," and on turning the corner of the building and beholding the factory, the reporter involuntarily uttered, "Great oaks from little acorns grow; great smells from little factories blow."

The Baden factory, if factory it could be called, was found to be a small frame addition, probably 12x80 feet in size, attached to the rear of the residence of the owner of the industry—Lewis Lieber. Mr. Lieber was both affable and busy. The proprietor, with his wife and daughter were busy at work wrapping up the cheese preparatory to shipping. Mr. Lieber willingly consented to talk about his product, which, though maintaining a profound silence nevertheless possessed so strong an individuality that its presence was unmistakable and pronounced.

Three Limburger Factories.

"There are only three limburger cheese factories in the Dominion," said Mr. Lieber, "and they are all in Waterloo County, being located at Heidelburg, Erbsville and Baden. I learned the business from old man Kabel (now deceased), who made the first limburger cheese in Canada."

Regarding the process of manufacture, Mr. Lieber says that he uses in the neighborhood of 3,000 pounds of milk daily, which his teams collect from farmers residing within a radius of four miles from the factory. The farmers receive a price agreed upon per hundred pounds for their milk, which is weighed at the factory. The milk on its arrival is poured into a vat and heated to about 85 degrees, at which temperature it is maintained for an hour. A small amount of rennet is poured into the vat, which thickens the milk. Then the mass is cut with a utensil of the draw knife variety, so as to allow the whey to well up, which is extracted, the percentage of whey being 90 per cent. to the remaining 10 per cent. curd. The curd is afterward poured into long moulds and is left on tables between thin board partitions, so that the cakes in settling will not run together. Next day the cheeses are put on shelves in a cool cellar, where they are left to mature and gain the strength and flavor for which they are justly noted. It is necessary each week to turn each cake over two or three times, to prevent the cheese in settling from becoming lopsided.

The Aging Process.

As about 5,000 cakes of cheese are kept constantly on hand in the cellar undergoing the aging process, the task of turning them over becomes no light one. The cheese is milk and at its best when from a month to six weeks old. When two months old it begins to assert itself, and emits a perfume that does not at all resemble the odor of violets or roses. As the cheese ripens and becomes ready for market it is wrapped first in a layer of cheese cloth, then paper and afterwards receives its outer wrapper of tinfoil, which is imported from New York, and costs 7 cents per pound laid down.

"Could I live my early life over, this testimonial would not be necessary, though I was no more sinful than thousands of other young men. Early indiscretions, later excesses, exposure to contagious diseases all helped to break down my system. When I commenced to realize my condition I was almost frantic. Doctor after doctor treated me but only gave me relief—not a cure. Hot Springs helped me, but did not cure me. The symptoms always returned. Mercury and Potash drove the poison into my system instead of driving it out. I knew the day your New Method Treatment was recommended to me. I investigated who you were first, and finding you had over 25 years' experience and responsible financiality. I gave you my case under a guarantee. WHERE A METEOR FELL

JOHN SHIELD'S FARM, MELANCTHON, MADE FAMOUS BY THE EVENT.

Stories That Vie With the Most Exaggerated Fish Yarns and Sea Serpent Yarns and Theories That Ought to Set at Rest Several Problems or Puzzle More People Than Ever—Other Meteors.

Since Monday, 13th August, the Shelburne town folk, and in fact the whole countryside, have talked about little but the meteor that fell on the Saturday evening before on the farm of John Shields, on lot 3, concession 2, of Melancthon township. Stories that rival the most exaggerated fish stories or sea serpent yarns are heard everywhere, and more theories have been propounded within the last week or two about orbits, meteors, comets and planetary bodies than the average man would ever dream. Aerial currents, geological formations, explosive gases are defined to a nicety. If in future any of the heavenly bodies have to "shift" as a result of disarrangement of the orbits around which they are accustomed to travel, and seek more congenial atmospheres, after a wild peregrination through space, the average inhabitant of the township of Melancthon will be able to give full particulars on application.

A METEOR.

L. H. Winthrop recently wrote an account in The Mexican Herald of a meteor that fell in the Indian Ocean. He says:

It is certain that a ship struck by a meteoric mass as large as some which have fallen on land would be demolished suddenly. There is a meteoric stone in South America estimated to weigh 30,000 pounds, one in Mexico even larger, and Yale College has a mere fragment weighing 1,740 pounds. A meteor estimated by astronomers to be a mile in diameter, passed over Europe on the night of August 18th, 1783, and in 1803 one of these celestial tramps burst over Normandy, and scattered more than 2,000 fragments over three square leagues of ground.

The farm upon which this latest meteor fell was the first clearing made, and upon which the first white child was born. The late Louis Horning of Horning's Mills, was the first settler, and after him came Mr. Wm. Silk, who went there from Hamilton. John Silk was the first male child born in that section of country, the issue of the first wedding. Mary Silk, who ultimately became Mrs. Geo. Broderick, was the first female child born on the place.

The first wagon made in the township was the handiwork of the late Mr. Silk. It was a two-wheeled affair, built wholly of wood.

It is an interesting point that in 1838, when a band of roving wild Indians stole four children from the Horning's Mills settlement, Mr. Wm. Silk alone had the courage to remain on his settlement. Search for the children was hopeless, and the primitive settlers forsook the wild district for more thickly settled parts. These things are not thought of by the younger generations about the Shields farm, but the older inhabitants refer to them with manifestations of deep feeling.

Mr. Shields has refused at least 50 offers for the stone, and already letters have begun to pour into him asking for "a chip of the thing for the purposes of analysis." The offers run all the way from $5 to $25. Mr. Shields absolutely declines to sell the relic, and says he would "not break it up for the King." He looks upon the article as a great curiosity, and thinks he will be able to realize handsomely on it if he wishes to sell. "I am a poor man," he said, "but I will not sell it for a trifle."

The weight of the stone is exactly twelve pounds and a half, and measures 25 inches around. From tip to tip across the top it measures about 11 inches in length, nearly seven in width and five in depth. It partially resembles a sheep's head when placed with the broken side down. The exterior is very black and gives evidence of having been subjected to intense heat. It is comparatively smooth, but in places slightly corrugated. The broken side exposes a formation that is apparently iron and nickel. In spots there is almost pure rock, of a greyish color, not unlike grey granite, though of a much finer quality. Even these particles, presumably iron, are visible. In one or two places there are splashes of what appear to be solid metals mixed. These have a very dark brown, brassy and silver color.

The meteor traveled in several directions, and when the explosions occurred the piece found shot down with terrible force, a few feet from the roof of the house in which were Mr. and Mrs. Shields, two daughters, two sons, and Mr. Shields' brother, chief of police of Orangeville. The meteor embedded itself nearly two feet in the ground on the north side of the house, and covered the place with mud. In the room directly over which the flying meteor passed the two boys, Willie and Walter, aged respectively 14 and 15 years, were resting in bed. They describe the sound of the explosion as a muffled drum beat, followed by a "funny buzzing sound." This buzzing was accompanied by a brilliant light of pronounced yellow color, and of immense power. This is also the description given by a number of other parties who witnessed the phenomenon.

James Mitchell, of Shrigley, ten miles from where the meteor fell, says he heard the buzzing sound and that it seemed to be very near his house. The explosions, he says, were three in number, and like the beats of a drum.

Mrs. Craven, of Shelburne, who watched the meteor from her front door, was attracted by the intense illumination of the heavens. She says it was not a fall like lightning, was not so bright, and that the meteor shot through the air at a terrific rate with sparks streaming in its path like the tail of a comet. Then there was an explosion like the beating of a big drum, followed by a rumbling sound, which in turn was followed by several small explosions, providing a pyrotechnic display.

Mr. Shields says he was sitting in the dining-room talking to his brother when the crash came. He was under the impression that the lightning had struck in the immediate vicinity. "That is a frequent occurrence here," he said, "for every time there is a bit of a storm the lightning strikes around here. Why, over there on the second line there have been hundreds of telegraph poles struck down and splintered, and the wires burned off. We went outside to see that the barns were all right, and the next morning we saw the side of the house all splashed with mud. As we walked around we saw a hole, and thought the lightning had gone in there. I put my hand in, but could feel nothing, and after a while I went out and dug down. The spade hit something hard, and digging around it we found the piece of meteor."

Under the stone Mr. Shields says he found a green burr, partially burned, and round the hole where the stone fell a number of partially burned leaves were found.

She Tells of Her Troubles and Their Cure That you may be Benefited.

Napanee, Ot., Sept. 23. — (Special.)—There are many women in Canada, who will yet write letters of thanks to Mrs. John C. Huffman, of this place. Mrs. Huffman, suffered as they are suffering now. She discovered a cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills; and she is breaking the law of secrecy that binds the great majority of womankind to let her suffering sisters know where they may find relief. Mrs. Huffman says:

"I was troubled for about six years with Kidney Disease and the pain was so great I could hardly bear it. I could not entertain any company. One night when I was feeling very miserable I read of some wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills and resolved to try them.

"At this time my urine was something terrible and at times very disagreeable to pass but Dodd's Kidney Pills soon brought me relief from all my troubles and by the time I had taken six boxes I was entirely cured.

"I am making this statement to the public in the hope that it may help other young ladies or married women."

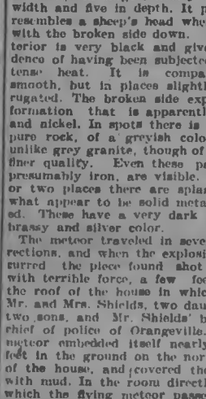
What It Costs to Be a London M.P.

What does it cost to be a London member? Anything from £500 to £2,000 per annum, according to the number of clubs the member is expected to keep on their legs—for those that pay are few and far between. The executives of London boroughs are always in the hands of men who will have rich candidates, and who do not care what the man's record may be, or how long or earnestly he has served the state, unless he can "shell out" and keep up the organisation. It is not so in Yorkshire or in Lancashire; in many a large town or county centre they are satisfied with an organization subscription of £50 from a candidate and £100 from a member. And the demands upon a member's time there consist of a fortnight's campaign once or twice a year; he is not expected to appear at every local function, or to grease the wheels of every club. Local patriotism and local support are much more active in the north than in the south, but seaside resorts are the worst of all in the monetary and social demands they make upon their members. I had personal experience of being passed over by a selection committee in a London borough because I would only pledge myself to £300 per annum; and my competitor promised £600, and finally lost a seat, because he would not, or could not, pay 25 guineas per annum for organization and registration purposes. The whole, or nearly the whole, burden of these expenses falls upon the London candidate or member, and the poorer the constituents the more unceasing are the burdens and demands. The largest and most steady class of appeals is that from the cricket and football clubs, which multiply year by year, and which have no compunction in asking you to become president, vice-president, or subscriber to their clubs, although their headquarters are outside the constituency. You are always informed the bulk of the members are your constituents.—A London M.P. in The Magazine of Commerce.



NO MAN IS STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH

When Sandow poses and the muscles ridge his back and knot his arms, we think we have before us the very secret of strength in those magnificent muscles. But we haven't. Starve Sandow, or, what is practically the same thing, let him be dyspeptic, and his muscle would soon fail. Strength is made from food properly digested and assimilated, and no man is stronger than his stomach, because when the stomach is diseased digestion and assimilation are imperfect.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food so that the body is nourished into perfect health and strength.

"I had what my physician called indigestion. He gave me medicine for the trouble but it did me no good," writes Mr. W. H. Wells, of Willard, N. C. "I wrote to Dr. Pierce and stated my case. He sent me a descriptive list and by-priests rules. I carried out these as best I could, bought six bottles of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and commenced taking it. A few days later I noticed a great change. Felt like a new man. Before I began the use of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I suffered greatly with pain in stomach, my nerves seemed all 'run down.' I was very thin in flesh, but now can eat heartily and sleep good at night."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE DEVON LANES.

Canadian Woman Writer Who Discourses Appreciatively on Noted English Landscapes—The Devon Milkmaid.

After some weeks of London, it seems good to get out to the quiet of the country, writes Jean Blewitt in The Toronto News. The clover fields are heavy with fragrance, the wheat is in head, the hedges are gay with honeysuckle, and dog roses. The strawberries are red ripe, and there is no cream like the Devon cream. The Devon cow seems aware of her own importance. She has a stately tread, a superior air, a supercilious twist to her tail. It is all on account of the cream.

Every morning a score or more of bottles filled with it goes to a health resort some miles away. The sick folks are getting well on it, the thin folks are getting fat on it, the farmer is getting rich on it. No wonder the Devon cow takes on airs.

The Devon milkmaid is worth looking at, as she steps out of the kitchen door, pail in hand. Her gingham skirt is turned up, and pinned about her waist, her short petticoat comes to her sturdy ankles. Her feet are encased in strong leather shoes. From beneath the frill of her lilac sunbonnet shines out a full moon face of a complexion many a city dame would give her jewels and laces to possess, pure pink and white.

Her diet is brown bread and sweet milk, three times a day. No wonder she goes to bed when the sun gets out of sight behind the trees, and is up with the lark in the morning. Twice a week there is a change in this program. On Wednesday and Sundays she walks out with her young man or young men, as the case may be. Our milkmaid is a belle, by reason of her plumpness and her complexion, and has followers aplenty. The favorite is a farm hand, a mere lad, so shy he blushes if a sheep looks inquiringly at him, and so quiet his fellows call him "Dumb-bell."

They look ill at ease and uncomfortable together. Judging by appearances, they both long to be somewhere else, anywhere else in fact. She turns her face away from him even while she takes the arm he offers grudgingly. Silently, gloomily, they go along. I used to watch them pityingly. I don't any more. Sunday afternoon I sat on a hillock in one of the Devon lanes. It was a pretty scene. The grass was golden, the elder bushes white with bloom. The elms on one side of the lane reached over and mixed in friendly fashion with the elms on the other side, the sunbeams crept through where they could. In the city people were suffering from the heat, here was coolness, freshness, and quiet. The very rustle of the leaves breathed rest.

True, there were people, but what of that? You wanted people. These Devon lanes are a paradise, and only a mean soul would keep paradise to itself.

Couple after couple strolled by. It was evidently a favorite walk for lovers. And such lovers! When two went past me hand in hand I looked away. When other two did not pass at all, but stood beside my particular hillocks to admire the view, and, incidentally, to kiss each other, I actually blushed. Afterward I was ashamed of that blush. These were happy couples, honestly in love, openly proud of being in love. There was no false modesty about them. This lovely lane was the courting place—the courting their own affair entirely. One or two of the "Arrists" vouchsafed me a nod or smile, but most of them were too engrossed in their own pleasant pastime to pay the least attention.

Presently I heard a gay little laugh. It had a familiar ring to it. Only that I knew in my own mind that our milkmaid never enjoyed herself when out a-wilking, I would have said that was her laugh. It was hers. She was sitting on a stile and the lad christened "Dumb-Bell" was telling her something. Their heads were very close together, and every once in a while her laughter mingled with his deeper tones. I had to pass that stile. They both gave me a cherry greeting, and asked me to take a seat.

He kept fast hold of her brown hand, and as soon as I went by the laughter and talk continued. What had he done with his bashfulness? The very next time they walked out together, which was on the following Wednesday evening after the milking, and chores for the day had been attended to, they wore the same air of discomfort. But I wasted no pity on them, knowing that once they reached the Devon lanes, where the elms formed a canopy, the elder bushes waved their white blossoms lazily, and the dog roses made a glint of color among the green of the hedge, they would be as happy as the stream rushing down the hill, and as garrulous.

Physical Exercises in Schools.

The English Board of Education gave issued a circular calling the attention of local educational authorities and managers of public elementary schools to the "Report of the Inter-departmental Committee on the Model Course of Physical Exercises," which has been issued lately and also to the "Syllabus of Physical Exercises for use in Public Elementary Schools," which has been prepared in accordance with recommendations of the committee. The circular quotes a number of paragraphs from the report, to which attention is particularly directed, and states that the board of education are in communication with various training college authorities with a view to securing that all students who pass out of the colleges shall in future, so far as possible, be qualified to give instruction in the course recommended by the committee. But it was in the meantime extremely important that the education authorities should take steps to place at the disposal of those teachers now teaching in the elementary schools who are prepared to take advantage of them some opportunities for training in the principles and methods of the new course. For this purpose they suggest that the authorities may conveniently arrange for the provision of evening classes and Saturday morning or afternoon classes for teachers on the staff of the public elementary schools in their respective areas. The board of education consider that the syllabus should be adopted in all public elementary schools as soon as is reasonably possible.

Bishop's Blunder.

The late Duke of Devonshire was a great judge of port wine, and not a little proud of his cellar. One of his best "wine stories" was told in connection with a Bishop of London. The bishop professed to have a keen palate, and dining at Chatsworth one night drank the duke's "34" with a certain amount of relish, but with a tendency to crap at its merits.

On the following evening another bottle of port was set before the bishop, and he drank it with great gusto. Then the Duke asked him how he liked it.

"Capital! An older wine than we drank last night, and much finer."

"Really," said the Duke, "you are a wonderful judge. That wine is older than the wine we drank last night by one day."

Of course, it was the same vintage and the same wine!

THE VICTORIA MEMORIAL

Work of Altering the Railings and Forecourt at Buckingham Palace.

Some two hundred workmen are now busily engaged on the work of altering the railings and forecourt at Buckingham Palace in connection with the scheme for the Victoria Memorial, says a London paper.

Hitherto the railings have enclosed a court extending for some distance at either end beyond the actual palace buildings, but the extra space is now being cut off so as to give a good strip of added roadway and pathway to that part of Buckingham Palace road and Constitution Hill nearest to the palace. Thus the public will get additional accommodation, and will be able to get much nearer the palace at each side, though not in front. The position of the gateways is clearly indicated by the approaches which have been laid.

The Sovereign's gateway was obviously out of place when the huge circle was laid out at the head of the Mall for Mr. Brock's statute of the late Queen. The four gateways will, therefore, be replaced by the large ones opposite the Equerries' entrance and the Privy Purse entrance. These will be, as nearly as possible, in line with the sides of the procession road.

The fencing in front of the palace will be quite straight. The curves at the two extremities will be much more in keeping with the pathways flanking the new ornamental gardens than the existing curves.

Mr. Aston Webb, who is responsible for the general lines of the memorial scheme, other than the actual monument, is in frequent attendance. The operations are being watched daily by crowds of sightseers, including many foreign visitors.

The Irishman's Cant-Hook.

A farmer, accompanied by several of his hired men, went into the woods one morning in the early fall of the year to cut down some trees. When about to begin work it was discovered that the cant-hook had been left behind. Turning to one of the men, an Irishman not very long over, the farmer instructed him to drive back to the farm for the missing tool. The Irishman did not know what a cant-hook looked like, but was averse to exposing his ignorance, so he drove off on his errand, trusting to find someone at the farm who would enlighten him.

SCOTCH METHOD SUCCEEDS.

Price of Nova Scotia Herring Doubled by Its Adoption.

John Cowie, Scotch expert in charge of the Canadian Government herring curing experimental station at Canso, has recently received returns of a trial shipment to St. Petersburg, which ensure the success of the employment of Scotch methods in curing Nova Scotia herring. A shipment of 50 packages of herring, caught near Canso, were sent to the Russian capital, and proved high-class stock, and realised prices as high as the best Scotch herring. A previous shipment to New York brought $11 to $13 per barrel, twice as much as ordinary Nova Scotia herring command in the same market. The herring cured at Canso are equal to the best Scotch fish, but the Scotch fishermen have not been very successful in catching cod. This is partly due to the small size of the nets used on the steam drifter 33, brought from England, and partly to the absence of any record of the movements of the herring on the Atlantic Coast. In order to give the experiment a fair trial the operations at Canso will be continued for three years, and it is probable the Canadian Government will purchase the 33 and equip her with nets better suited to our coast fishing. The steamer will cost about $15,000. It is believed that an enormous trade in Scotch-cured herring can be built up in Russia.

QUAKER FOOTBALLISTS PHOTOGRAPHED AT ROY'S.

Beautifully Symmetrical Photographic Group.

The Examiner has been favoured with a view of a photographic group of the Quaker Football Team, City Champions.

It is a fine piece of artistic work. Not only is this shown in the portraits, which are exceedingly lifelike, but the symmetrical grouping of the several figures being very artistic and enclosed with ornamental scroll work. The entire picture is worthy of Roy which is no light praise, and of the Quakers who have a very creditable record.

The team went through the season with very few losses and went into the semi-finals of the Midland League with what were considered good prospects of winning out. They met defeat, however, at the hands of the Deseronto team at Tweed by a close score.

After the close of the League season the team entered a series of games for the City Championship, and were successful in this series, the team now holding that championship.

HONOR FOR DR. W. OSLER

APPOINTED TO REGIUS PROFESSORSHIP AT OXFORD UNIVERSITY.

Fit Crown for His Most Distinguished Medical Career—One of Four Famous Brothers—Sketch of His Career—Studied Under Dr. Bovell—Held Chairs at McGill and Johns Hopkins Universities—Renowned Pathologist.

To hold a regius professorship at Oxford University is indeed a distinction. Dr. William Osler has fittingly crowned his most distinguished career by having this great honor conferred on him. King Edward having approved the appointment, it will become a fact when the fall term opens. It may be confidently predicted that the occasion of Dr. Osler's resignation from the principalship of Johns Hopkins University will be marked by some unusual manifestation of the affection and esteem with which William Osler is there regarded. The great Baltimore university and hospital, over the destinies of which Dr. Osler has presided for several years, will be conscious of the honor conferred upon them by the Oxford appointment. It is by no means a frequent occurrence for professors in American colleges to be promoted to Oxford, and when such an appointment is made the university so distinguished is not inclined to let the incident pass unnoticed. For the sake of Johns Hopkins, if not for that of Dr. Osler, we may expect a fanfare of journalistic trumpets.

We can already see in our mind's eye the eulogisms of "another brilliant American," and a "famous son of Maryland." It is not the habit of many United States journals to enquire too closely into the nationality of a resident who becomes famous. The idea seems to be that when a man is in the United States he is of the United States. Canada, however, as most Canadians are aware, may claim Dr. Osler for her own. He was born in Ontario, and was educated here. Although his studies were pursued in England and Germany, it was in the city of Toronto that he was subjected to the influence which was chiefly responsible for the shaping of his future career. A long residence in the United States has not weakened the sturdy fibre of his patriotism, and he is to-day as staunch a Canadian as his brother, E. B. Osler, one of Toronto's representatives in the Dominion Parliament. Dr. Osler has always kept a warm place in his heart for brother Canadians in the United States, and many of them might be found to bear testimony to the private services Dr. Osler has always been willing to render a countryman in a foreign land.

It may well be doubted if there is a family anywhere which can point to four more distinguished sons than the Oslers. Britten Bath Osler, one of the greatest criminal lawyers of his day, is dead. The others are Edmund Boyd Osler, M. P., Hon. Featherston Osler, who once declined a seat in the Supreme Court of Canada, and Dr. William Osler, just appointed to the regius professorship of medicine in Oxford University.

William Osler, whose fame is probably more widespread than that of any of his brothers, was born at Bondhead, Ont., on July 12, 1849, the youngest son of Rev. F. L. Osler, M. A., a Church of England clergyman. His first steps along the thorny path of knowledge were taken at Trinity College School, Port Hope. He then came to Toronto, and took a medical course at Trinity University. Here he met the late Dr. Bovell, a famous doctor in his day, and under this admirable master he studied medicine for three years. Next he proceeded to McGill, and was graduated in 1872. By this time it was quite apparent that there was a brilliant future for young Osler, and he was advised to continue his studies abroad. He took a course at University College, in London, Eng., after which he proceeded to Berlin, and later on to Vienna, where he took lectures from some of the greatest physicians in Europe. He returned to Canada, and then his real career began.

Dr. Osler's first position was that of a chair in McGill on physiology and pathology, which he occupied just thirty years ago. In 1883 he was made a fellow of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, and in the following year won the Gaulstonian professorship for the year. In October, 1884, he was appointed to the chair of clinical medicine in the University of Pennsylvania. This important post he held until he was called to Baltimore in 1889 as lecturer on the principle and practice of medicine in the Johns Hopkins University, and as physician to the Johns Hopkins Hospital. Ever since then Dr. Osler has been at Johns Hopkins, for the past few years as the guiding spirit of that great institution.

Some of the honorary degrees and appointments he has won are the Partwright lectureship at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, 1887; president of the Canadian Medical Association, 1885; LL. D. of McGill, Yale, Aberdeen, and Edinburgh, and D.C.L., Toronto. On the occasion of the presentation of the McGill degree, in 1895 Dr. Osler's name was mentioned for the principalship of the Montreal University, but his position at Baltimore was deemed the more useful, and the doctor remained with Johns Hopkins. Dr. Osler has been called "the most delightful speaker on medical subjects in America," and the Baltimore American once said of him that "some of the operations he has performed are almost marvelous." It is not, however, as a speaker or as a skillful surgeon that he takes rank with the foremost medical men of his day, but as an original investigator into various diseases. As a pathologist it may be doubted if there is his superior on the continent. His books on the various subjects he has specially investigated are everywhere accepted as authority. He is, indeed, looked to from all parts of this continent as a court of appeal when doctors differ. Dr. Osler will add lustre to the famous professorship to which he has been called.

"How to Cure Every Humour."

Democratic King Edward.

An interesting story is told of King Edward in connection with some purchases of jewelry he made during his recent stay at Marienbad. Herr Spitz the well-known local jeweler, took a selection of his choicest goods to the King's hotel for inspection. Although it was morning Herr Spitz wore evening dress, according to Austrian etiquette, which requires evening dress to be worn in the presence of royalty at any time of the day.

"I don't like to see you in this ceremonial dress," said the King to the jeweler. "It is not necessary."

On his second visit Herr Spitz wore a black frock coat. "Your attire is still too formal to suit my taste," said the King with a smile. "Why don't you come to see me in the suit which you wear in your shop. I like you best in that." Herr Spitz on his next visit wore his ordinary working clothes.

Blunt Reply.

Lord Rutherford was sitting on the hillside with his old shepherd, and observing that the sheep reposed in the coldest situation, he said to him.

"John, if I were a sheep I would lie on the other side of the hill."

"Ah, my Lord," answered the candid shepherd, "but if ye had been a sheep, ye would hae had mair sense!"

Canada's Oldest Postmaster.

For nearly fifty-four years Mr. M. Teefy has been in charge of the royal mails at Richmond Hill, thereby earning the distinction of being the oldest postmaster in Canada. He is now 82 years old and was appointed to office in December, 1850, having first come to this country from Ireland in 1824. At the time of the rebellion in 1837 he was a printer in the old Patriot Office in Toronto.

When Mr. Teefy was first appointed postmaster there was no Postmaster-General in Canada, the work of the department being then under the control of the Imperial authorities, with a deputy officer residing in Canada. Those were the days of high postage rates. To send a letter from Richmond Hill to Toronto or fifty miles beyond cost 4½ pence, or 7½ cents; to Montreal, 23 cents; to Halifax, 64 cents. Mr. Teefy has lived to see wonderful changes in the postal system, not least of which is the immense increase in the volume of mail matter transmitted.

Mr. Teefy is still in vigor of mind and body, despite his fourscore years and two, and beside his duties as postmaster he is Clerk and Treasurer of the Village of Richmond Hill. Rev. Father Teefy of St. Michael's College, Toronto, is a son.

MR. HILL HAS PROVED IT.

Toronto Man Explains How he Gained Thirty Pounds in a Few Weeks—Remarkable Statement.

At 89 Fuller street, Toronto, lives a man who claims to have proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill is the most wonderful remedy ever introduced. His name is W. A. Hill and he makes the following statement:

"I was very much run down and had a pain in my side, which made life a drag to me. I fully believed my days were numbered when I was induced to try a treatment of Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill, and the results were marvellous.

"After a short time I found myself restored to health and strength, which I am thankful to say, I have enjoyed ever since.

"I have gained thirty pounds in weight since I commenced to use Anti-Pill."

Mr. Hill's statement is only one of many. No one has ever used Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill without benefit.

SIX FORTS TAKEN BY THE JAPANESE.

Fall of Port Arthur Now Seems to be Near at Hand.

FIGHTING WAS DESPERATE.

Fort Kuropatkin Constructed to Protect Source of Water Supply, Falls Into the Hands of the Japs—Russian and Japanese Estimate of the Latter's Losses Vary—Vast New Russian Army.

Tokio, Sept. 26, 11 a.m.—It is believed that the Japanese have captured six forts in the second line of defence at Port Arthur since September 19. The hope of a speedy reduction of the fortress is running higher.

Battle Before Port Arthur.

Che Foo, Sept. 26.—As a result of the battle before Port Arthur, which began on Sept. 19, the Japanese succeeded in capturing several important positions, and yesterday the Russian tenure of the big forts guarding the north, northeast and northwest sides of the town is seriously threatened. Chinese information places the Japanese losses under 3,000 for the three days' fighting, and this comparatively small casualty list is due to the excessive care used by the Japanese in making their preparations for the advance.

Russian sources, however, claim to have information that the Japanese losses were unusually severe, amounting to fully three times the number mentioned above.

Possibly the most important capture during the three days' fighting was that of Fort Kuropatkin, which, while of minor value with regard to preventing the entrance into the town of the Japanese, had been constructed for the purpose of protecting the source of the garrison's water supply.

The control of the water supply is now in the hands of the Japanese.

Military experts here are of the opinion that if the Japanese capture either Rihlung or Kikwan Forts, or the Its and Anshu Forts, the doom of Port Arthur is sealed, and for this reason the importance of the results obtained by the Japanese in their latest assaults upon the Russian positions is obvious.

Russians Fought Fiercely.

At 5 o'clock of the afternoon of Sept. 20, the Japanese captured a supplementary fort which from the lower ground threatens the fort on Its Mountain. This ended the heavy fighting for that day, although the Japanese were compelled to resist several sorties.

During the night the heavy bombardment of the Russian positions continued, the Japanese fire being directed with particular vigor against another supplementary fort, 3,000 yards from the fort on Its Mountain, and regarded as highly important because of its bearings on the Its and Anshu Mountain forts. The next day, after having pounded this position unmercifully, and until its fire had slackened visibly, the Japanese delivered their assault. They met with a stubborn resistance. They were exposed to the fire of machine guns and rifles and they made frantic efforts to reach the crest of the slope. They leaped over trenches and embankments and tore down the entanglements in their path, until at length they entered the fort. The Russian troops there refused to desert their positions, even in the face of the superior numbers which confronted them, and desperate hand-to-hand fighting occurred outside of the fort. Eventually almost the entire Russian garrison was either killed or wounded.

The foregoing information has been obtained from a Chinese of unimpeachable trustworthiness.

A steamer which has arrived here from Port Dalny confirms previous reports that there was heavy fighting at Port Arthur on Sept. 24.

300,000 More Men—600 Guns.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 26.—The division and re-organization of the Manchurian army was officially announced yesterday in an Imperial rescript appointing Gen. Grippenberg, commander of the third army corps in the Province of Vilna, as commander of the second army now being mobilized for immediate despatch to the Far East, leaving Gen. Kuropatkin in command of the first army.

Probably 300,000 additional men will be placed in the field. Five corps—the third, fourth, fifth, eighth and sixteenth—are already destined for the front, and the talk is that five more corps will be sent forward. Eventually, the creation of this second army involves the selection of a commander-in-chief. It is the best opinion that Grand Duke Nicholas Michaelovitch, Inspector-General of Cavalry, will attain the high command, occupying in the war with Japan the position held by his father in the war with Turkey.

In the reorganization special plans have been made to overcome the deficiency in guns under which the Russians have been laboring. Over 600 additional field and rapid fire guns are to be sent to the front. The great struggle for the mastery in the Far East now seems destined to assume Titanic proportions.

Orloff Dismissed.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 26.—Major-General Orloff, who has been held responsible for the retreat of the Russian forces from Liaoyang, has been dismissed from the army.

Mukden, Sept. 26. — The situation here cannot be definitely stated, as each day brings forth conflicting reports. According to a Chinese report received, the Japanese are actively engaged in fortifying Liaoyang.

No Change in Situation.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 26.—General Kuropatkin has sent the following despatch to Emperor Nicholas, dated Sept. 24: "There is no change in the situation to-day. Cold set in a few days ago, the temperature falling to one degree. It has become slightly warmer since yesterday. The health of the troops is good."

Hohenzollern Has Arrived.

Tokio, Sept. 26.—Prince Charles of Hohenzollern arrived here yesterday and was given an official welcome. He will meet certain high Japanese officials to-day, after which he will join the Japanese army forces in the field without loss of time.

Told to Move On.

Port Said, Sept. 26.—The Russian auxiliary cruisers St. Petersburg and Smolensk are here awaiting permission to take on board enough coal and provisions to carry them to Bizerta, Tunis. They asked for sufficient supplies to enable them to reach Libau, but their request was refused, and they must proceed within 24 hours. Yesterday afternoon the captains of the Russia vessels exchanged visits with the officers of the British cruiser Furious.

Circum-Baikal Railway Opens.

Irkutsk, Sept. 26.—The Circum-Baikal Railway was opened yesterday.

"IT WAS ALL MY OWN FAULT"

Conductor Caldwell Misread Order and 65 Were Killed.

125 WERE SERIOUSLY INJURED

Terrible Railway Wreck Twenty-One Miles From Knoxville, Tennessee—Terrible Results of a Head-On Collision Between Heavily-Laden Passenger Trains—Most of the Dead Were Killed Outright.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 26.—In a collision at 10.20 o'clock Saturday on the Southern Railway, three miles west of Newmarket, a small town twenty-one miles from this city, fully sixty-five persons lost their lives. Most of them were killed outright, but probably a score have died during the day. About one hundred and twenty-five were injured seriously. Several of these will die.

The collision was of two passenger trains, both heavily laden with passengers. Train No. 12, eastbound, left this city at 9.35 o'clock. It was a heavy vestibule train pulling four sleeping cars. Train No. 15, westbound, was due in this city from Bristol at 11 o'clock, and the engineer and conductor had orders to await the coming of the eastbound train at Newmarket, but overlooked their orders.

Conductor Caldwell of train No. 15 when asked by a passenger as to the cause of the wreck said:

"It was my fault. I misread my orders."

Every car on train No. 15 was demolished. The sleeping cars on train No. 12 escaped without injury and no one in them was hurt.

The trains were due to pass at Hodge Station, but collided about one mile and a half west of that place, the westbound train running past the meeting point. Both engineers were killed.

Six Persons Hurt—One Dead.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 26.—Six persons who were injured in a wreck on the New York Central, a short distance east of Lyons, early yesterday morning were brought to Rochester hospitals. Three sleepers on the western express train, bound from New York to Chicago, left the rails and threw the passengers to the floors of the coaches.

Just as the train came to a standstill, a fast freight, eastbound, ran into the derailed cars, Mrs. Newman Erbs, wife of the vice-president of the Pere Marquette Railroad, who was brought here with both limbs cut off, died at the hospital. Mr. Erbs was bruised and injured.

The following are the other injured passengers who were brought here:

Sarah Lowen, 424 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich, bruised and cut; Richard Heaney, San Francisco, a brewer, bruised and cut; Samuel Stern, Kansas City, bruised and cut about the head and shoulders; Mrs. Stern, bruised and suffering from shock.

Engine Rolled Over and Over.

Winnipeg, Sept. 26. — Spreading rails were accountable for a serious accident to the eastbound transcontinental train, four miles this side of Moosomin, and as a result seven men were more or less seriously injured. The engineer was badly jammed and received internal injuries of a serious nature. Six cars were badly smashed and many passengers had narrow escapes. All the passengers injured were Italians on the way from Fernie mines en route to Italy.

Killed By a Train.

Chatham, Sept. 26.—James Shuler, a colored farm labor, who hails from Harwich, while working on the G. T. R. tracks near the western city limits early yesterday morning was struck by a westbound train and instantly killed. Shuler was 43 years of age and unmarried.

18 Saved, But 4 Perished.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 26. — The Swedish steamer Kron Prins Gustav, from Rotterdam for Wabana, has arrived here. She reports having had a frightful experience. She will go into dry dock for repairs. The French fishing vessel Celeste is reported to have gone ashore on the west coast during a gale. Eighteen of her crew were saved, but four perished.

Entangled in Canoe.

Dort Francis, Sept. 26.—A sad accident occurred here yesterday, whereby a young man, Warner Hodgins of Lucan, Ont., was drowned. He and a companion by the name of McKenzie were coming down the river in a canoe, and when passing through the rapids above Fort Francis upset. Hodgins became entangled and was held under. He was a clerk in H. Williams' store.

Boy Shoots Chum.

Winnipeg, Sept. 26.—Gordon Martin, the 14-year-old son of T. W. Martin, while out hunting for chickens, near Fort Rouge, yesterday afternoon, with two companions, was accidentally shot in the head and will die. The bullet came from the rifle of Norman D'Arcy, who is nearly prostrated.

Fell From a Silo.

Unionville, Sept. 26.—On Friday afternoon, while engaged in working on a silo on the farm of A. G. Gormley, near this village, John Reid, a well-known farmer, lost his footing and fell to the ground, a distance of 29 feet. In falling, he sustained a dislocated hip and a broken ankle, and was generally severely shaken up.

Killed While Intoxicated.

Binscarth, Man., Sept. 26.—While driving home Friday night, John Leduox, a halfbreed, was killed. It is supposed that he drove over a steep hill, having taken the wrong trail. Loduox was under the influence of liquor at the time of the fatality.

MR. JOHN LANG, M.P., HOME FROM A WESTERN TRIP.

He Spent Six Weeks in the West—Was on the Train Held Up by Robbers.

Mr. John Lang, M. P., was in town to-day on his way home from a six-weeks' visit to the Northwest and British Columbia. He visited relatives at Prince Albert and Edmonton. The crops in those districts were touched with frost. Mr. Lang thinks the district splendidly adapted for ranching — especially for beef production. The grass seems to be first rate for beef but does not produce a good milk flow. Mr. Lang was delighted with the beautiful weather and the magnificent scenery of British Columbia. During his journey he had an exciting quarter of an hour. He was on the train which was held up by robbers at Mission station. The conductor told the passengers to conceal their money and valuables as well as they could, but they were not molested by the robbers, and after four hours detention went safely on their way, with something to talk about and lessen the tedium of travel.

BAND CONCERT TO-MORROW NIGHT.

Black Watch Band Will Arrive Here by Special Train.

The band of the Black Watch is in Toronto this afternoon and this evening, after returning from a most successful trip through the West. To-morrow afternoon a concert will be given in Lindsay, and at seven o'clock, the special train conveying the band, will arrive here. The band will be met at the station by the band of the 57th Regiment, and two bands will march to the Hockey Rink, where the Highlanders will render their concert. From present indications the crowd will be a bumper one and the prospects are that the success which has attended the concerts given by the band in other places will be duplicated here to-morrow night. The seats are selling rapidly and the band will likely be greeted with a good house.

INCONSISTENT CHARGES.

Guiding one's conduct by expediency instead of principle, especially in politics, often leads to difficult situations. In the campaign sheets issued by the Conservatives the Liberal Government is accused of playing into the hands of the Yankee implement combine by refusing to increase the duty on binders, mowers and harvesters. The facts will show the hollow inconsistency of this charge. The fact is that the duty on these articles was once 35 per cent. Who reduced it to 20 per cent? Mr. George E. Foster, Conservative Minister of Finance, in 1894. Why? Was he, too, playing into the hands of the Yankee combine? By no means. He said in his budget speech on that occasion (Hansard, March 27, 1894) that the reduction would "have the effect of greatly cheapening one of the largest items of expenditure to which the farmer has been subjected, especially in grain-growing districts." For this reason, and none other, Liberals have kept the duty exactly where the Conservatives then put it.

The Conservatives profess to be astonished, too, that the Government does not tax lumber. The lumbermen of British Columbia desire such a tax which, however, would be a serious burden on the Northwest settler. How does lumber come to be free? Mr. Foster abolished the duty of 20 per cent. in 1894. Why? These were his reasons (Hansard, March 27, 1894):

"This is a special concession, and I hope, will prove a useful one in Manitoba and the North-west. There was no one feature of our examination into the condition of things in that part of the country which impressed itself so forcibly on my mind as the combine which existed for the distribution and sale of lumber. Every town was parcelled out. One or two men were selected to whom was given the monopoly of selling in each place. The prices were fixed and if they sold a fraction of a cent under the fixed prices their privilege was taken away and given to somebody else. That monopoly bore heavily on the people of that country, where lumber is so essentially necessary in the making of barns and houses, and I came to the conclusion that, if possible, help should be given by putting lumber upon the free list, and that has been done."

The late Mr. Davin (April 2, 1894) characterized the abolition of the 20 per cent. duty on rough lumber as a "tremendous boon to the Northwest and Manitoba." Another Conservative member, Mr. Boyd, then, as now, representing the Manitoba constituency of Macdonald, took credit to himself (April 10, 1894) for having exposed the doings of the combine to Mr. Foster and the Cabinet at large.

That the British Columbia lumbermen have had a combine quite recently, is confessed by themselves. Let the duty be restored and American lumber shut out, and they and the Lake of the Woods lumbermen would doubtless grind the fees off the settler again. A great flow of immigration is now pouring into Manitoba and the Northwest. If the present Government were to reimpose the lumber duty, the Conservatives would be the first to attack them, and with reason, for obstructing the flood by enhancing the cost of living and of producing to the newcomers.

GOOD REPRESENTATIVE MATERIAL.

Mr. Christopher Kloepfer is the Conservative candidate for South Wellington, and if it wasn't that he supports the wrong party, the Examiner would be glad to see him elected. Personally, he is the material out of which good representatives are made. On the occasion of Mr. Borden's recent visit to busy Guelph, Mr. Kloepfer made a short speech. Part of it had the right ring — it showed that he would make a live representative. Mr. Kloepfer was an unsuccessful candidate in the last general elections. On Friday evening in his speech, he said that if elected, he would go to his leader, and if he did not give him protection, he "would resign and run over again." "If I had been elected (in 1901) I would have bothered the life out of the Government to get it." A man with that spirit would justify the confidence of the electors who might support him better than an elected representative, who, as far as the interests of his constituency are concerned, sits down and folds his hands, absents himself from Parliament, and devotes his whole energies to pushing the interests of his private business, apparently indifferent as to whether his constituency is represented or not. A man of Mr. Kloepfer's stamp could be useful, even in opposition, but reasonably not so useful as a representative in support of the Government, who will show in the pursuit of the interests of those he represents, a bull-dog persistency, that will not, within, reasonable limits, take no for an answer, when the welfare of his constituents is concerned.

A locomotive driver in Winnipeg has been sentenced to two years penal servitude for being drunk while on his engine. This may be regarded as a light sentence in view of the possibility of the death of many occurring from his managing his engine while intoxicated, in which case he would have been virtually guilty of manslaughter, instead of mere drunkenness. Those who hold the lives of the public in their hands should keep them steady.

Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative Opposition, on his Ontario tour doesn't find very encouraging signs of the desirability of changing the Government of the country. He meets everywhere a wave of prosperity, which makes for him hard swimming against the stream. If he strikes a town at the right hour in the morning, he sees the streets alive with men, carrying a full dinner pail, hastening to the factories, ready to take on the hum of industry when seven o'clock strikes. Let well enough alone. Men working full time, or over-time, at good round wages, won't feel much like harking back to the days of stagnation, before the present Government took the tiller.

LABOUR CONDITIONS IN UNITED STATES

Not Advantageous for Workmen to Go Across the Line for Work.

Mr. Norman Smith, a staff correspondent of the Globe, sends letters to that paper on the labour situation in the United States, as compared with Canada. Mr. Smith is endeavouring to estimate the situation of labour in this country as compared with its position in the United States. His first letter, which was from Detroit, shows that remuneration for most trades there is somewhat better than in Toronto, while there is not such a difference between the cost of living in the two places as is generally supposed.

The condition of things is quite reversed in Cleveland. There the workingman is distinctly worse off than in Toronto. Not alone is the cost of living higher, especially in the matter of rent, but the accommodation obtainable for such rents as a workingman can pay is distinctly objectionable. This has become such an objectionable development that public action is contemplated to take away the reproach of a slum quarter from a progressive and aspiring western city.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, but by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

LABOUR LEGISLATION ENACTED IN ONTARIO.

What the Provincial Government did During the Last Session for Labour.

The Labour Gazette for August has the following:—

Through the courtesy of the Provincial Secretary for Ontario, a copy of the statutes passed during the session of the Ontario Legislature of the present year was received at the Department of Labour, Ottawa, during July, distribution having been delayed by the fact that the third readings of the bills were burned in the extensive fire which took place in Toronto shortly prior to the prorogation of the Legislature on April 26. A reference to the Acts, which are of particular interest to labour, is as follows:—

THE FACTORIES ACT AMENDED.

Perhaps the most important enactment of the year, from the standpoint of labour, was the amendment of the Factories' Act 1 which introduced a number of alterations and additions to the original measure. They may be classified as follows:—

Mode of wearing hair by female employees.—By a new section 2 female employees in factories are required, while at work, to wear their hair rolled or plaited and fastened securely to their heads, or else confined in a close-fitting cap or hat, so as to lessen the danger of contact with moving machinery. Managers or those in charge of factories are required to see that their employees are notified of this provision of the Act.

Hours of Labour.—The section of the Act regulating the hours of labour of children and females and forbidding these classes to be employed for more than ten hours per day or sixty hours per week, unless a different daily apportionment of working time is made to allow of a shorter day on Saturdays, has an addition made to it prohibiting their employment later than the hour of half-past six in the evening, unless by the special written permission of the factory inspector. 3.

Sanitation.—Several changes and extensions in the Act are put into force with regard to the proper sanitation of factories, the two leading sections of the original measure in this connection being repealed, and more comprehensive provisions inserted in their place. A sufficient number of water-closets, including separate sets with separate approaches for male and female employees, must be provided, the owners of factory buildings being held responsible for this, and for the proper maintenance of drains and plumbing and supply of pure drinking water. Employers on the other hand, whether owners or tenants of factory buildings or not, are held responsible for keeping their premises in a clean and sanitary condition and in proper repair. Factories also must be kept at a temperature above 60 degrees Fahrenheit by employers and properly ventilated, mechanical means being employed to insure the latter in factories in which dust is generated, and provisions to prevent overcrowding, (ore employes to have three hundred feet of room space) being expressly inserted. The inspector may also require a sufficient number of spittoons to be placed by employees in factories, with a supply of wholesome drinking water with proper drinking cups.5

Regulations as to elevators. — The provision of the original Act regarding the protection of hatchways by trap doors, self-closing hatches, safety catches, etc., is repealed, and a much more comprehensive paragraph inserted in its place. In addition to the protective devices named in the original provision, automatically-closing gates of specified dimensions are now to be allowed; shafts not guarded by gates must be protected by enclosures at least six feet high; the operating ropes of elevators must be secured with locks; the word 'dangerous,' in letters not less than four inches high, must be affixed on the bottom rail of every gate where it will be plainly visible from the outside; and tops of elevator platforms must be provided with a guard to protect the occupants.6

HEALTH OF WORK-PEOPLE, FAIR WAGES, ETC.

The health and wages of work-people are expressly protected by a section inserted in an Act respecting aid to certain railways7 which provides that in the case of the two railways concerned viz., the Huntsville and Lake of Bays Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, camps engaged in construction work must have proper sanitary regulations under the Provincial Board of Health, with accommodation for patients suffering from a contagious disease. The wages of the same labourers, it is further provided must be such as are currently payable to workmen engaged in similar occupations in the same district. Only fair and reasonable prices for board clothing and other necessaries may be charged by these companies to the men in their employ engaged on construction work, any exorbitant charge being deducted from the service.

(To be continued.)

In Our Grandfather's Youth.

Paralysis was almost unheard of in the youth of our grandparents, and now nearly every newspaper contains a record of someone being stricken with this dreadful form of helplessness. Paralysis is in reality a starving of the nerves, and can always be prevented by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, a preparation which has no rival as a creator of nerve force.

FARM HYGIENE.

Unsanitary Closets, The Dry Earth System.

Attention was recently called to the fact that out of some 100 or 200 samples of water from farm well analysed annually by Prof. Shutt, Chemist of the Dominion Experimental Farms, not one-fifth are found safe and wholesome. By far the greater number have to be utterly condemned, and it seems very evident that a great improvement in our water supplies is necessary. This dangerous condition of many farm wells is undoubtedly due to pollution by unsanitary closets. There is no reason why we should have our farm houses to-day in the semi-barbaric condition in which so many of them are, with their closets and privies a menace to public health. We may talk about bacteriology, sanitation, and so on, but all that and a great deal more is included in what we understand by "cleanliness". The lack of cleanliness is primarily a matter of ignorance, and secondarily a matter of laziness.

An Ontario editor, who is a member of the board of health in his town and familiar with sanitary conditions in his section, says in effect:—Perhaps the farmers of this district are worse than elsewhere, but of all the farms I have visited during the past few years, I have yet to learn of one closet kept with regard to common decency, not to speak of hygienic laws. This state of affairs is utterly inexcusable. In the towns the closets are inspected by order of the boards of health, and the people are gradually being persuaded to adopt the dry earth system. Very few pits are left and no new ones are being dug. Inspection by county and township boards of health may be impracticable, but the self-respect of farmers and their families ought to mean something in this respect, if regard for health means nothing.

Ordinary shallow wells in the vicinity of the old-fashioned privy pits are almost certain to become contaminated by seepage. The soil is an excellent filtering and cleansing agent, oxidizing organic matter rapidly, and tending to check the development of many of the common putrefactive bacteria. But the soil in only able to dispose of a certain amount of contaminating material, and such disposal takes time, so that by heavy rains the contaminating matter may be carried far into the earth below the true purifying layer, and thus soak unchanged into the wells. An old pit which has been closed and covered with earth is almost equally dangerous, as the decomposition of the large mass of excreta contained therein is a matter of years, unless hastened by the proximity of trees whose roots reach the pit. The contents should be removed and spread upon a field, and the pit left open long enough to permit the decomposition of any organic matter remaining.

If farmers once took time to think of these matters, there would undoubtedly be a great improvement. Windmills are now both cheap and common, and there is no reason why well-to-do farmers should not have a water system in their houses, with all the conveniences and advantages which residents in the cities enjoy from the water works systems were established.

Though not quite so convenient, the dry earth closet is so cheap and so satisfactory from the sanitary point of view that no farmer can discover a reasonable excuse for refusing to adopt it. A well laid cement concrete floor will be found far the easiest to keep in a clean and wholesome condition. A stout box of suitable size, mounted on runners and with a strong hook at one end to which a horse may be attached, makes a receptacle that can be conveniently drawn to the field or barnyard to be emptied. This box may be made wholly or in part of sheet iron, and if the bottom be semi-circular in form a kettle of hot water will be found sufficient to loosen the frozen contents in winter. Galvanized iron buckets, larger at the top than at the bottom, are also easy to empty in winter. The nature of the receptacle is largely a matter of convenience; the essential features of the system are the storing and use of a plentiful supply of dry earth and the emptying of the receptacle regularly. If the contents be spread thinly over the surface of a field, they will be decomposed in a very few days with no danger to the public health.

Ashes should not be used as a substitute for earth, and road dust is very little better. The surface soil of a field or garden that has been frequently cultivated will be found just the thing. If a little coarse or lumpy it may be run through a garden screen. It is always advisable to keep a good supply on hand, as it becomes fitter and better with age when stored in a bin.

If the man who has hitherto been careless in this particular will adopt and maintain a proper sanitary system in connection with his closet, he find himself gaining largely, not only in self-respect, but in the respect of his family and of the strangers within his gates. Furthermore, he may thereby escape the ravages of such diseases as typhoid fever, which are so frequently traced to the use of contaminated water.

THE ILLS OF THE AGED.

Mrs. Stacy, of Hamilton, Tells how they May be Lessened.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stacy, of 172 Hunter street west, Hamilton, says:—

"I was very much troubled with Headache, Dizziness and Constipation. I am in my eighty-first year, and I grew worse and worse till I was so weak and faint that I could hardly keep from falling.

"Since using Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill I am very much better; in fact, I may say I am very well compared to what I was before using Anti-Pill.

"I am so thankful for the improvement at my advanced age that I think I should write and tell you about it. I will always recommend Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill to any one suffering as I was."

Anti-Pill is positively the best medicine for aged men and women.

HOTEL FIRE AT DAWSON.

Guests Leaped From the Windows—Two Were Seriously Injured.

Dawson, Sept. 26.—Fire broke out at midnight Saturday in the Cecil Hotel, formerly the Hotel McDonald, and raced up through the shaft so swiftly that some of the guests had to leap from the windows. N. A. Fuller, manager of the telephone company, broke his leg in leaping, and Mrs. Card was seriously injured. The fire spread quickly, as the water was slow in coming, and the pressure poor. The principal sufferers are Alexander McDonald; Putnam, Mersereau & Clark; Flannery Hotel, owned by Vernon; Butler's grocery; Donovan saloon; Pacific Cold Storage Company; the branch market building; the Klondike Thawing Machine Company; Stockholm Hotel; MacDonald Trading Company; Schoff Drugs; Central Hotel; Labbe's Hotel; Donovan Hotel. C. W. C. Tabor, Dr. Roberts and other guests of the Hotel Cecil suffered heavily in losing effects. It looked for a time as if the fire would sweep both sides of Second and Third avenues. Great loss ensued from removal of goods along the avenue.

PRAISES MR. BLAKE

John Redmond, Irish Leader, Talks of Canadian Colleague.

NONE CARRIED MORE WEIGHT

Mr. Blake Has Delivered Many Powerful Speeches in Imperial House of Commons, and Is a Popular Member of the Irish Parliamentary Party—Financial Scheme For Government For Ireland.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 26.—John Redmond and party are here, at the Prospect House. The noted Irish member of Parliament has just completed a month's tour of the United States and has been speaking continuously. He leaves here on the 2.25 train this afternoon for Toronto, and will speak in that city this evening. He will speak in Ottawa on the 28th, and in Montreal on the 29th.

When asked concerning Edward Blake, M.P., the well known Canadian statesman, and his work for Ireland, Mr. Redmond said: "Mr. Blake gave up his Canadian career in order to assist Ireland, and for the cause of home rule, of which he has been a supporter all his life. He brought enormous strength to our movement by his prestige, experience and eloquence. On the question of home rule and on financial questions affecting Ireland, he has delivered many powerful speeches in the House of Commons. There is no man in the House who carries more weight and is listened to with more respect by the English statesmen of all parties.

"Mr. Blake has taken a very active part in our organization in Ireland, and is a most popular man in our party. Recently an elaborate banquet was given him in the dining-room of the House by the Irish party, in recognition of his great work. I am afraid, however, that by his close attention to his duties and his work for our cause he has injured his health. He never thinks of himself, but is indefatigable in working for Ireland."

With Mr. Redmond are his wife and daughter, as well as Patrick O'Brien and Capt. A. J. C. Donelan, both members of the Irish Parliamentary party.

FOR IRELAND.

Scheme For Government in Finance and Local Business.

London, Sept. 26.—The report of the committee on organization of the Irish Reform Association, which was adopted at a meeting presided over by Lord Dunraven, at Dublin, on Friday, was issued last night. The report outlines an important scheme for the devolution of the Irish Government in finance and local business. It suggests the constitution of an Irish financial council, composed of twenty-four members, under the presidency of the Lord Lieutenant, and with the Chief Secretary for Ireland as vice-president, twelve members to be elected by groups of existing Parliamentary constituencies and twelve to be nominated by the Crown; one-third of the members to retire every three years.

The functions of the council will be to administer the $30,000,000 expended annually on Irish services, Parliament, however, retaining a controlling power enabling the House of Common's to reverse the council's decisions. The report further suggests that a statutory body should be created, consisting of Irish representative peers and Irish members of the House of Commons, in addition to the proposed financial council, and to which should be delegated all private bill legislation affecting Ireland and any other Irish business that might be referred to it by Parliament.

The report concludes by the submission of its proposals to a Royal Commission.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 26.—Foreign Minister Count Lamsdorff has, it is announced, wired instructions to Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, to confer with Foreign Secretary Lord Lansdowne, with a view to securing a modification of the Anglo-Thibetan treaty, which has not been ratified by China.

Count Benckendorff is authorized by these instructions to lodge a strong protest if Great Britain refuses to consider Russia's objections to the treaty, which, it is understood, refered exclusively to Article IX. of the draft of the convention.

American Steamer Seized.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 26. — The American steamer Alert of Bellingham, and two large scows, one of them loaded with salmon and $1,000 worth of nets, have been seized by the Ruth, a Dominion Government fisheries protection steamer. The value of the property seized is about $15,000. The authorities allege that the American boat was poaching on fisheries 125 miles from the American boundary. The seized steamer has been brought to this port.

May Come At Any Time.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 26.—On Saturday, 700 members of the Allied Mechanical Trades Union employed by the C.P.R. went out on strike. Their action has no bearing upon the situation as regards to carmen, but it is said that within a few days the demands of the men will either have been agreed to or 2,000 employes of the company, representing the entire staff employed in the car shops from St. John to Vancouver, will be wanting.

Polish Tongue Under Ban.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—One of the most stringent enactments ever issed by the Prussian Government against the Poles has just been promulgated. Some time ago schoolmasters were prohibited from using the Polish language in school hours, but the latest ukase warns them against using Polish outside of school hours in communicating with their families or at social gatherings.

Mining Town Swept Away.

El Paso, Texas, Sept. 26.—Floods in Chihuahua, Mexico, have destroyed Cushihuriachiae, a mining town in the interior of the State. Every house was swept away, but no lives were lost. An ore train from that camp that took two weeks to reach Chihuahua on account of the high water, brought the first news of the destruction.

Just Because He Is One.

Why is it that the festive mule
Kicks on no provocation,
And has it as a standard rule
To stir up consternation?
Because he is a mule clear through.
If you were one, pray, wouldn't you?

HEAVY CROP DAMAGE.

Frost Kills Tobacco, Bean and Corn Crops About Chatham.

Chatham, Sept. 26.—"The frosts of last week have killed nearly all of the tobacco, bean and corn crops on the lake shores," was the startling statement made by T. Broadwood. "All of my crops are gone," continued he. "Jas. Woods, a neighbor of mine on the lake shore, has five acres of tobacco all spoiled and badly scorched; S. Conlan has five acres of tobacco gone; a large field of tobacco on the Everitt place is ruined, and Mr. Banning has all of his tobacco and late beans completely gone. James McGulgan's crops, strange to say, are all right. Tomatoes and cucumbers are greatly damaged."

Wind Shakes Fruit.

St. Catharines, Sept. 26.—The heavy windstorm which prevailed here Saturday proved disastrous to the fruit in some sections. A lot of peaches, pears and apples were blown down, which injures them for shipment. The wind blew down a large smokestack on the Welland Vale factory, which crushed through the roof causing damage.

What Laurier Has Done.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT AT CAVANVILLE.

Arthur Johnston, Son of Station Master run Over by Train.

Lost one Leg and Shoulder Broken—Brought to Peterborough Hospital.

An accident, attended by distressing results, took place on Saturday evening about six o'clock, at Cavanville station on the C. P. R., the first station on that line west of Peterborough. It appears that Arthur, the fifteen-year-old son of Mr. Johnston, the station agent at Cavanville, was attending to the duties around the station, helping his father, as was his usual custom.

He had been at one end of the switching yard, placing the switching lights in place for the night, and was returning, walking down the track, when a way freight, unnoticed by the boy, backed down on the same track as that upon which he was walking. The boy either did not hear it coming, or, if he heard it, thought it was on the other track, for he continued walking with his back to the approaching train, which struck him, knocking him down, and six cars passed over his leg below the knee, brushing it to a pulp, and almost completely severing the member. The shoulder was also broken, and he was otherwise injured.

No doctor was available at Cavanville to dress the terrible wounds of the unfortunate boy, and the train which ran him down brought him as rapidly as possible to Peterborough, where Dr. Grey was waiting at the station to take charge of him, and the Dan Spence ambulance was hastily summoned to convey the suffering lad to the Nicholls Hospital.

The train reached here about seven o'clock, and the boy, accompanied by his mother, placed in the ambulance. During this time, the boy, although suffering intense pain, was perfectly conscious, and bore the pain bravely, but the slightest jar of the ambulance, caused him to scream with the agony he was in, and so slowly had he to be driven that it took nearly an hour to drive from the station to the hospital.

At the hospital the boy's injured leg was amputated below the knee, and the shoulder set, and although very weak from loss of blood, and from the terrible pain from which he suffered, he is doing as well as can be expected, and hopes are entertained of his recovery.

A RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. BASTOW

Renfrew Baptists Give a Reception to New Pastor and his Wife.

That the Baptist people of Renfrew are pleased with the ministrations of Rev. Mr. Bastow, who recently left Peterborough to accept the pastorate of the Baptist church there, is evident from the following account of a reception tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Bastow last week, taken from the Renfrew Mercury:

"A very cordial reception was tendered Rev. J. Bastow, M.A., the new pastor of the Baptist church, and his wife, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Knight, Lorne street, on Tuesday evening. The house is finely situated for such a purpose and the kindness and hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Knight, was referred to by all the speakers. A delightful social evening was spent until about 9.30, when refreshments were served. A very delightful, free, friendly spirit pervaded the meeting. All seemed to be at home and enjoy themselves. At about ten o'clock, Mr. Knight, one of the deacons of the church, was asked to act as chairman. He did in a very fitting way. Mr. Rob. McDonald, also a deacon, was called upon by Mr. Knight to read an address of welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Bastow. This he did with rare wit and wisdom and heartiness. He spoke of the needs of the church and town, and pledged the cordial support and co-operation of the church to the pastor and his wife in their endeavours to build up the cause of Christ in the town of Renfrew.

Mr. Bastow said in reply that he highly appreciated these kind words of welcome, that he would seek to serve the members of the church, the adherents, and the young people especially, to the best of his ability, and, he hoped, with encouraging results.

Miss R. A. Wright, the vice-president of the Woman's Circle, was called upon to welcome Mrs. Bastow to that department of the church's work. She said that although Mrs. Bastow had only been there a short while, she was well known and highly esteemed, for they had learned of her good qualities and work before she came to Renfrew, and she cordially welcome her to fellowship with them in the service of the Master.

Mrs. Bastow replied that she was pleased with the people here and with Renfrew itself, and that she would give herself heartily to the work of building up the church with them all.

Mr. Peel, the secretary of the Y. M.C.A., was called upon to say a few words. He specially emphasized the ability and willingness of the Baptists of the town to do Christian work.

Mr. A. A. Wright, M.P., was present and was called upon to speak. He spoke of the neatness and cleanliness of the church, which must be valuable, as it is said to be next to Godliness; then of the exceptional ability and faithfulness of the choir. He moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Knight for opening up their beautiful home for the present reception, which was carried in the midst of hearty applause.

Several solos were sung by members of the choir in a very pleasing manner. The evening was much enjoyed by all present and will be long remembered with pleasure. Mr. and Mrs. Bastow start their work under encouraging circumstances.

JOE THOMPSON REMANDED ON THREE SERIOUS CHARGES

This Morning's Police Court—Abusive Language Cases.

Joseph Thompson, alias Murphy, appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. There were three charges against him. The first was of carrying an offensive weapon, a five chambered loaded revolver or pistol, dangerous to the public peace, contrary to the Criminal Code. The second was of carrying an explosive substance, nitro-glycerine, with intent to cause serious injury to property, contrary to the provisions of the Criminal Code. The third charge was of unlawfully breaking into and entering the dwelling house of Leonard Halley, by day, and stealing a coat, pair of trousers, one pair of suspenders, one watch chain and fob, a silk handkerchief, of the goods and chattels of Leonard Halley.

On the three charges the prisoner elected to be tried by the County Judge, and he was remanded until Monday, October 3rd.

Mrs. Isabella Losey charged Mrs. Jos. Valois with using grossly insulting language to her. The two parties are relatives, it seems, but apparently do not love each other as relations should. Mrs. Valois went by the complainant's house on Friday, and, according to the complainant's evidence, shouted at her "Rags, bones and rubbers!" and then smiled contemptuously on her. The complainant had often been abused by the defendant, and it was not the first time she had taken her troubles to court. The complainant called a witness who gave evidence that it was not Mrs. Valois, but some other companions who used the words which were objected to.

The Magistrate ruled that the case was not proved and it was dismissed. Mr. F. E. Kerr appeared for the defence.

A young man charged with using grossly abusive and insulting language was fine $2 and $2.60 costs.

EARL SCHWEIER HAS MADE HIS ESCAPE AGAIN

Ran Away From Mimico Industrial School and has not Been Found.

Earl Schweier, the ten-year-old youngster who caused so much trouble here this spring by his conduct is at his old tricks again. The following letter has been received by the Chief of Police from C. Ferrier, Superintendent of the Mimico Industrial School for Boys:—

Chief Constable, Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—A little boy named Earl Schweier of Peterborough was committed to this school a short time ago. He ran away a few days ago and although we have made a diligent search for him about this section of country, we have so far been unable to find him. He may find his way ultimately to his home. Will you kindly have a lookout for him and if he comes to Peterborough let me know.

Yours truly,
C. FERRIER, Supt.

The Chief of Police will be pleased to receive information regarding the whereabouts of this boy.

She was but five years of age and had endeared herself to all by her affectionate and loving disposition. VALUABLE PAPERS WERE STOLEN.

Thief Entered Residence of Dr. Jessie Bernie,

One of a Series of Daring Robberies—The Police on the Trail of the Guilty Ones.

Burglaries are becoming altogether of too frequent occurrence in Peterborough, for the safety of the residents of this town, and there seems to be a gang of desperate robbers in the vicinity.

Last week, Dr. Jessie Birnie, Water street, discovered that during her absence the house had been broken into from the rear and upon going to her office found that some valuable papers had been stolen from her desk. These papers were valuable only to herself, and to be of value to those who took them forgery would have to be committed, consequently it is hardly likely that the robber will attempt to profit by his theft.

The police have been notified of the loss, and are at present working on the case, and if the guilty ones are caught, a heavy sentence will likely be meted out, as the authorities are determined if possible to put a stop to the series of robberies.

The Enthusiasm of Bigger Business

Ladies' Winter Coats to be absolutely correct this season must have leg-o'-mutton sleeves. That is positive—the pouch sleeve is gone. It may be that some stores where purchases are made too early, are showing the old sleeve. Being on the spot where the change was made, we contracted with the German makers to have this new feature in all our Coats, and guarantee it to be strictly correct. Moderately priced, because imported direct. Range runs easily from $4.75 to $85.

PRESENTATION TO MISS DICKSON

A Former Y. W. C. A. Secretary was Honoured at Fenelon Falls.

The many friends in Peterborough of Miss Dickson will read with interest the following taken from the Fenelon Falls Gazette:—

On Wednesday evening a farewell service was tendered Miss Agnes I. Dickson, B. A., who leaves shortly for China, by the congregation and Young People's Society of St. Andrew's church. The service was very interesting and impressive, and was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Cameron, of Toronto, gave a very able address, and Miss Isabella Little, M. D., of Simcoe county, who goes to China in company with Miss Dickson, spoke briefly. Excellent music was supplied by the choir. During the evening Miss Dickson was made the recipient of a purse and the following address, which was read by Miss Fanny Brandon, and to which Miss Dickson replied feelingly, the presentation being made by Mrs. Chambers:

Dear Miss Dickson.—We, the congregation and Young People's Society of St. Andrew's church feel that we cannot allow you to leave Fenelon Falls without endeavouring to express the deep love and esteem which we bear towards you. Your departure causes us both pain and pleasure; pain because your bright presence and willing assistance in our church work will be missing, and pleasure because you have been chosen and have been deemed worthy to serve the Master the foreign mission field. A great honour has fallen upon Fenelon Falls, but more particularly upon St. Andrew's church, in being able to supply one willing to take up this most noble work, and the feeling of gratitude and pleasure in the course you have taken is universal throughout the village. Your path will not be easy; many trials must beset it, but the strong right arm of Him in whose service you are enlisting will never fail you. Your career will be watched by us with anxious, loving eyes, and we feel sure of not being disappointed in the great things which we expect of you.

We ask you in parting to accept this little gift as a slight token of our deep esteem, and to remember when in that far distant land that you are being followed by the earnest prayers of the congregation of St. Andrew's, Fenelon Falls.

September 21st, 1904.

Miss Dickson and Miss [illegible] were designated as missionaries at Erskine church, Montreal, last Friday night. Their destination is the mission of Macao in South China, and they will sail from Vancouver by the steamer Empress of China on October 31st. They go as the representatives of the Women's Mission Society of the Presbyterian Church of Montreal, and hold their appointments from the Foreign Mission Board of the Presbyterian church in Canada.

The Store for Underwear.

LeBrun's is the store for underwear for men and boys! The stock is a long way in advance of the ordinary. We can help you in your selection, and remember, you'll get full value for your money here. No fancy prices, because wool and cotton are higher. In fall and winter under shirts and drawers we have a great selection of all sizes in domestic and imported goods, such as Scotch knit fleece-lined, natural wool, silk and wool. Special lines of English unshrinkable underwear, and many other makes. Do your heart good to see the piles of underwear we have to choose from! "Bargains all around the board." H. LeBrun & Co.

THE LOCK COMPANY'S NEW BUILDINGS

Why They Are Not Already Under Course of Construction.

The Examiner this morning interviewed the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company in regard to the proposed new buildings. It is understood that the buildings will be erected within the time specified, but the town site has not yet been definitely accepted. The delay has been caused by the fact of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company occupying a portion of the lot under consideration, the company not being aware that the railway company owned a part of the lot, the Town Commissioners not having informed the Lock Company that it had been purchased by the railway. It is not yet definitely decided whether or not the Lock Company will accept the town's proposition or build upon another lot to be purchased by the company.

Mrs. Jessie May, Died Suddenly of Heart Disease.

The many former friends here of Mrs. Jessie May, relict of the late Mr. Henry May, formerly of Peterborough, will be grieved to learn of her death, which occurred in Toronto on Saturday, at the age of 71 years. The deceased lady met her death suddenly. She was in her usual good health on Saturday morning, but was suddenly stricken with heart disease and died during the day.

GYMNASTIC CLASS OPENED AT Y. M. C. A.

First Class Held Friday Night Was Highly Successful.

The senior young men's gymnasium class commenced last Friday evening at eight o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. There was a large group of young men there for the opening class, larger than has been at any of the previous opening of the classes. The work commenced with a maze run around the floor in order to warm up a bit; then a few minutes were spent in military marching. After that the class lined up for calisthenics and dumb bell drill. This was made lively and the men all felt pretty well limbered up when they got through. Apparatus work was then indulged in; first the parallel bars, and second the horse, both used with the aid of the spring board, which made it unusually lively and interesting. The class closed with a rattling good game of basket ball, and a bath. Every man owes it to himself to keep in the very best physical condition and there is no better or cheaper way than through the Physical Department of the Y. M.C.A.

CLAIMS OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Special Services in the Different Churches Yesterday.

The Great Importance of Sunday Shool Work—Some Statistics of Interest.

Yesterday was Sunday school day in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches in town, and in St. Paul's, Mark street and George street, special sermons were preached on Sunday school work. The attendance was generally large, and the church members showed an interest in the work of the Sunday school which betokens a revival in that most important branch of the church's work.

In the Mark street church, in the morning, the pastor, Rev. J. G. Lewis, preached a sermon on "Sunday school Work and its Workers," the first of series of sermons on this subject, and in the afternoon in the body of the church, a public rally of the members of the Sunday school, with a large number of the parents, was held, when addresses on Sunday school work were given.

Rev. Dr. Torrance preached a special sermon on the work of the Sunday school, and in the afternoon here also a children's rally was held, and was very largely attended and was most successful.

Rev. Dr. Crothers, in the George street church, preached two sermons, directly bearing on Sunday school work, yesterday. In the morning the subject was on "Parents Helping the School," and in the evening on "The Ideal Sunday School." In the course of his evening sermon some interesting facts concerning the extent of Sunday school work in the various churches were given. He said that in Canada there are about 575,000 Sunday school scholars and teachers, and in the civilized world there are about 23,000,000 scholars and pupils in the Sunday schools.

In the afternoon a rally service was held in the Sunday school rooms, which was filled almost to overflowing by scholars and friends of the school. At Grace church also a special rally service was held in the afternoon.

The question of the Sunday school and its work is rapidly claiming primary attention by the church authorities, as was evidenced by the interest displayed by the church members at large in the services in the interest of the Sunday schools.

The Y.M.C.A. night school will open in the course of two weeks and all who are interested in the studies should communicate with the secretary at once.

NEW GOVERNOR FOR DOMINION.

PEN SKETCH OF LORD GREY, LORD MINTO'S SUCCESSOR.

Godson of Late Queen Victoria and Her Prince-Consort—Won Distinction in Administering Rhodesia by His Tact, Firmness and Diplomacy—What He Looks Like—Of Military Bearing and Earnest Manner.

Marquise de Fontenoy says in a New York exchange: Lord Grey, who has just been appointed to succeed Lord Minto as Governor-General of Canada, is no stranger to the Dominion, or to this country. For, being the brother of the Countess of Minto, both he and Lady Grey, as well as their daughters, have been frequent visitors to Ottawa in the term of office of Lord Minto as Governor-General.

Lord Grey, popularly known as "Bertie" Grey, is a son of that Gen. Grey who was for so many years private secretary, first to the Prince Consort and then to Queen Victoria, accompanying King Edward on the occasion of his tour in Canada and the United States, forty years ago, as his principal mentor. For, although the Duke of Newcastle was of the party, yet the latter was under the orders of Gen. Grey. Lord Grey is dark eyed, and what there is left his hair is also dark. His features are clean cut, his bearing is military and he has a quick, decisive and earnest manner. He won his spurs as an administrator of great ability in South Africa, and the fact, diplomacy and firmness with which he administered Rhodesia after it had been taken over by the Crown from the South African Chartered Co., met with universal approval. It was a most difficult position, since he had at one and the same time to satisfy the Government and to avoid giving needless and undue offence to the chartered company, which had created Rhodesia, and which naturally felt resentful at the manner in which its supremacy over its territorial possessions had been assumed by the state. Lord Grey enjoyed the reputation, in the lifetime of Cecil Rhodes, of being the one man who knew how to manage him, and to the earl's influence it is due that the colossus of South Africa refrained on one or two occasions from cutting adrift from the Mother Country and from setting up an independent republic in South Africa.

Lord Grey is the nephew of his predecessor in the earldom, that third Earl Grey who was Secretary of State for the colonies for so many years and who was so odd a character. He had no children. But his seven brothers and his five sisters, with their numerous children, were always welcome at his ancestral home in Northumberland, Howick Hall, which was invariably full of guests.

Lady Grey is wealthy in her own right, being the daughter of Robert Holford, the millionaire owner of that imposing mansion, or, rather, palace, known as Dorchester House, in Park Lane, London. When Lady Grey was last over here to visit her sister-in-law, Lady Minto, most of the newspapers confused her with Lady de Grey, the sister of the late Sir Michael Herbert, who was at the time British Ambassador at Washington, and when Lady Grey landed in New York considerable astonishment was expressed at her failure to give evidence of even the slightest trace of resemblance to the familiar portraits of the Countess de Grey.

The Greys have four daughters and a son, the latter bearing the title of Viscount Howick. He served in the Boer war with distinction and a short time ago almost lost his life in the same manner as the Master of Ravenswood in Sir Walter Scott's novel "The Bride of Lammermoor." He was riding along the seashore, near Howick Hall, when suddenly his horse became frightened and rushed into the sea, carrying its rider with it. It quickly got beyond its depth, and was carried out still further by the strong tide that was running. Lord Howick had considerable difficulty in disengaging his feet from the stirrups, but eventually freed himself and swam ashore, the horse being drowned.

Lord Grey is a godson both of the late Queen Victoria and of her husband, the Prince Consort, and his family has been settled at Howick, in Northumberland, since the 16th century. The first Earl of Gray was one of the commanding officers of the British forces in the American war of independence, and while he failed to retain for his sovereign the latter's colonies, now comprised in the United States, England may be said to owe to him and to Lord St. Vincent the possession of the greater portion of the West Indies.

There are a number of titled people of the name of Grey in England. Thus, in addition to the new Governor-General of Canada and the Countess Grey, there are the Earl and Countess de Grey, who are in no way related to them, whose patronymic is Robinson, the earl being the only son and heir of the Marquis of Ripon. Then there are Lord and Lady Grey de Ruthyn. Lord Grey de Ruthyn is the 23rd Baron of his line. His patronymic is Clifton. He has no children, and the heir presumptive to his ancient peerage, which was created in December, 1324, is the Hon. Cecil Clifton, who makes his home in this country, and is ranching out at a place called Northfield, near Roundup, in Montana.

The Earl of Stamford's eldest son bears one of his father's minor titles, and is known as Lord Grey of Groby. He is only eight years of age. When he marries, however, there will be another Lady Grey. Then there are Sir Edward and Lady Gray, Sir Edward being one of the Liberal leaders in the House of Commons, who was under secretary of state for foreign affairs in the last Liberal administration. Besides these there are Sir Philip and Lady Grey Egerton, Lady Gray Egerton being an American woman, the daughter of the late Major J. Wayne Cuyler, U.S.A. Then there are Lady Grey, the 18th holder of the Grey barony, and several Lady Greys and Lady Grays who are the wives of knights. So that it will be seen there is plenty of Grey material for very extensive confusion.

Previous Governors-General.

1867—Viscount Monk.
1872—The Earl of Dufferin.
1878—The Marquess of Lorne (now Duke of Argyll).
1883—The Marquess of Lansdowne (now Foreign Secretary.)
1888—Baron Stanley of Preston (now the Earl of Derby).
1893—The Earl of Aberdeen.
1898—The Earl of Minto (appointed July 30, 1898; assumed office November 12, 1898; term extended for one year, 1903).

Lord Minto is scheduled to leave Canada on October 21st, and it is to be presumed that his successor will soon after come to Canada.

Former Elephants.

The great northern elephant perished as a species in the prime of life. It had lived under most prosperous conditions. Its enemies were few and comparatively impotent. Alone among other contemporary animals, the saber toothed tiger occasionally perhaps got the better of an antagonist which must have been less sensitive to the flint tipped arrows of more human assailants than Ship Surgeon Gulliver was to the multitudinous pricks of Lilliputian missiles.

Inexhaustible supplies of food, too, were furnished by the forests and swamps of the vast European continent to the terrestrial leviathan, which accordingly multiplied and throve exceedingly. Then was the culminating epoch of the proboscidean family. Thick hided animals with tusks and trunks attained a larger size, ranged over a wider area of the earth's surface and existed more numerously and in greater variety than ever before or since.—Edinburgh Review.

Good For the Imagination.

There is nothing quite like fishing for cultivating the imagination. Raising a garden in the suburbs where your friends will never see it is not so bad. After a little practice the able suburbanite can imagine a basket of potatoes into a car load and a three inch gourd into a prize pumpkin, but on the whole the man who wishes to give his imagination physical culture should get a fishing pole and a jug of bait and hie himself away to some sylvan stream.

Here the enterprising man can get action at both ends of the line. As he sits around the camp at night with some men he has never seen before he can readily imagine his modest $15 salary into $3,000 a year. After this it is easy when he gets home to have a cheap little garter snake grow into a sea serpent and a few modest minnows into a great string of bass.

The man who intends to make his living writing historical novels can have no better preparation than a season or two as a fisherman.

Mrs. M. A. Sharp, 346 Dublin street Peterborough, Ont., states:— "For some years I was troubled with indigestion, which developed into nervous dyspepsia, and besides suffering from nervousness, strange dizzy spells would come over me. Hearing of the good results obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I decided to try it. After a pretty thorough test of this medicine I can say that I never used anything that did me so much good. It seemed to be the very treatment that I needed, and as a result of the use, I am quite restored to health."

ENGLISH SOCIETY TONE

ROYALTY, ARISTOCRACY AND LAND-OWNING CLASS CONTROL IT.

Leisure and Caste the Two Leading Features of the English Social Structure—The Steps in the Social Ladder and How They Are Graded—"These People Do Not Know What Work Is."

"There is one word you will hear in England all the time, wherever you go," writes Sydney Brooks in Harper's Weekly. It was an American who was speaking, an American who for thirty years has been an exile in England, and yet never wholly lost the outside point of view. His tone was one of dry detachment, and though we were sitting at our ease under a mulberry tree in a two-hundred-year-old garden, sipping our after-dinner coffee, I do not think what he said was meant to have a personal reference. "Yes," he went on, with great scorn, "it is a word of universal use. You meet it among all classes in this country at every season of the year. It amuses me, and it is really immensely significant. That is the word 'holiday.' All England, winter, spring, summer, and autumn, talking of its 'holidays.' Holiday, I ask myself, from what?" He might well ask. Judged even by the most easy-going of American standards life in England seems pretty well all holiday, and the annual August respite from work rather a culmination than an exception. Take an American, of whatever trade or profession, dump him down on England, and his first impression and his last will be, "These people do not know what work is." Everything is against their knowing it. You have an old, a wealthy, a deep-rutted aristocracy which, while not idle, is too magnificent and too comfortable to take off its coat in earnest. You have, on a slightly lower social scale, the whole vast territorial class that lives to perfection the life of private leisure, broken, if at all, by a little public activity—a seat on the magistrates' bench, on the local district council, or perhaps in Parliament. You have a monarchy which, perhaps unfairly, does not enjoy the reputation of being overworked; which, at any rate, can hardly be said to set the sort of example that might in time, if zealously adhered to, stir the aristocracy from its preoccupation in elegant indolence. These give the social tone to England. It is natural and inevitable that they should, and yet not a little curious. An interesting book might be written on the influence of the English land-owning class. Even in these days of ubiquitous manufactures, when to look at a map of England is to wonder how it is possible for a land-owning class even to exist, the social and political influence of that class is something more than maintained.

A Country Place.

The ambition of every successful Englishman is to have "a place in the country," to get a foothold on the aspiring territorial ladder; and the ranks of the landed gentry are continually being reinforced, more so perhaps to-day than ever before, by recruits from the industrial army. The immense utility of the English country gentleman will not be questioned by any one who really knows England. But, at the same time, it is equally indisputable that the sort of life he affects—the endless indulgence in sport, the salmon stream, the grouse moor, the hunting-box, the pheasant preserve, and so on—is, on the whole, one of more or less harmless, and often irresponsible, idleness, and that the neighborhood in which he lives is rarely apt to regard him as an apostle of strenuousness. The "country" everywhere stands for leisure; and so long as the "country" continues to represent the supreme object of an Englishman's ambition and his social ideal, so long will England be leisurely.

Leisure Class Rules.

Again, in an old and stable land, with social standards as fixed as the social foundations and governed by a monarchy, the conventions play an enormous part; and the conventions in England are all against hard work. It is the leisure class that rules, that makes up society, that holds all the positions men naturally covet. A sort of "Four Hundred" atmosphere permeates England. In America one gets a whiff of it on Fifth avenue and at Newport, but in England one is never away from it. The number of things, for instance, that a "gentleman" cannot do without losing social caste is, in England, so prodigious as to form, if I may borrow a phrase from the present fiscal controversy, almost a schedule of forbidden industries. There are some trades and professions that are "respectable," and those that are not. Only an Englishman knows which is which, why a doctor ranks socially above a dentist, why the man who sells should be irretrievably below the man who manufactures—and he, the Englishman, knows it by an instinct which is born in him and which he never examines, and so cannot define. Any one who can tell why the merchant should consider himself, and be considered by others, the social superior of the biggest storekeeper in the kingdom, will be well on the way towards understanding England.

SEA TROUT OF CANADA

AS PLENTIFUL THIS YEAR AS THE SALMON HAVE BEEN SCARCE.

A Beautiful Fish Just the Color of the Wave Above and With Underparts That Sparkle Like Molten Silver—A Very Short Sojourn in Fresh Water Causes the Fish to Take on Different Coloration.

This is the season for sea trout fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the Baie des Chaleurs and the lower portions of the rivers flowing into them, says a Quebec letter in The New York Sunday Sun. The fish are reported to be just as plentiful this year as the salmon have been scarce.

When first lifted from the sea, the backs of the sea trout are of blueish green, just the color of the wave, and the under part of the fish sparkles like molten silver. At this time of the year the whole Gulf of St. Lawrence abounds with this fish, the individual specimens running from one to seven pounds in weight.

They proceed up the rivers, apparently to spawn, as far as the head of the tide in each, though it was formerly supposed that they never ascended into the purely fresh water. At all events they are most freely caught either in the salt or brackish water.

A very short sojourn in fresh water produces striking changes both in their form and coloration. They lose flesh and hence appear longer in shape, and are very brilliantly colored, with tri-colored fins of black, white and scarlet, and numerous bright spots over the body.

In addition to ascending the rivers to spawn, there is no doubt that the sea trout run into them after the smelt upon which they feed, and when these latter return to the sea, late in the year, the sea trout again follow them.

In the lower part of the Gulf of St. Lawrence the sea trout fishing begins much earlier than it does farther west. Thus in the bays and harbors of Prince Edward Island it is good in June.

Taken With a Scarlet Fly.

In these bays and along the coasts of the island they are taken with a scarlet fly, from a boat under easy sail, with a mackerel breeze and often with a heavy ground swell. The fly skips from wave to wave at the end of thirty yards of line, and there should be at least seventy yards more on the reel.

It is splendid sport, as a strong fish will sometimes make a long run and give a good chase down the wind. In fact, it is not too much to say that the sea trout are the most valuable of the salmonidae after the Atlantic salmon itself, and neither in beauty of form and color, nor in excellence of flavor, nor yet in sporting qualifications do they fall behind even it, although they are far inferior in weight and size.

Sometimes, too, a very large run of these beautiful fish is met. Among other catches on record is one of sixteen trout, weighing over eighty pounds, caught in one morning at St. Peter's Bay, twenty-eight miles from Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island. The same gentleman, with a friend, killed 300 of these fish in a single tide.

Sometimes this fish is killed quite out of sight of land by trolling a fly from a sailboat, much in the same way as in mackerel or bluefish angling. For this sport it is necessary to use a reel containing not less than a hundred yards of line, as the largest fish are taken by this method and offer a very violent resistance before being brought to net or gaff.

Angler's Heart in His Mouth.

The trout frequently throws itself out of the sea to secure the rapidly skipping fly, its beautiful bright sides flashing like silver in the sunlight. When struck it runs with sufficient velocity to bring the angler's heart into his mouth, and a hundred yards of line proves little enough at times to hold it.

In salt water fishing there is no need to be particular about a choice of lure for sea trout. A fly is by no means necessary. Any bright artificial bait will do, and any particular resemblance to known living creatures is apparently superfluous.

Keeping well outside the bar, the angler should trail this bait at the end of twenty yards of line and even more if the fish are shy. The spinning and glistening bait is apparently, to the trout, gifted with the power of escape. The trout is piqued, snaps and reflects not until the hooks are in it. Then the angler must be prepared for a rush, beside which that of a pollock if the same size is a mere crawl.

Keeping in view the fact that these frantic efforts are the result of fright, the cautious angler knows how to let his fish run out to a certain point, when, suddenly raising the point of his rod, he brings pressure to bear and winds up. Out goes the line again, and the same compliments are exchanged, the number of the runs depending upon the angler's skill, and still more on the size and condition of the prisoner.

Main Object of Trout's Pursuit.

The depth at which the spinner should work depends largely on the weather and the general state of the atmosphere and water. A fresh breeze, as divers have remarked, will create a disturbance among the marine life below, even when the water remains perpetually calm. Myriads of tiny creatures are set in motion and these are the main objects of the trout's pursuit.

On calm evenings the sand eels come to the top, where also the trout are to be found feeding. A little variation in the number of sinkers used, aided by a little judgment and observation on the part of the angler, will generally determine the exact position of the fish, which are at no time very hard to find, least of all when hungry.

At this season of the year some of the best sea trout fishing is to be had off the mouth of the Cascapediac in the Baie des Chaleurs, and in the lower stretches of tidal water in the Moisie, the Trinity and the Saguenay Rivers. In many of the salmon rivers, notwithstanding the gamy character of the sea trout, its rising at the salmon fisher's flies calls down upon it many maledictions, because of the disturbance which it creates in the pool in which it may be found, spoiling the salmon fishing for some time to come.

Saguenay's World-Wide Reputation.

On no other trout water in the world, perhaps, is there the same kind of trout fishing to be had as in the Saguenay River. The Saguenay sea trout, like the Saguenay salmon, have almost a world-wide reputation.

The Saguenay salmon must run into one of the tributaries of the great dark river before they will rise to the fly. The sea trout, on the other hand, are successfully fished for in the Saguenay itself, and the sport certainly offers an unusual experience.

Precipitous cliffs, ranging from 1,200 to 2,200 feet in height, on the river on either side, and in many instances actually overhang the water. If the channel of the river were to be dried up it would be seen that some of these cliffs run down as far below the present level of the Saguenay as they rise above it. There are many places where the water is over 1,000 feet deep, and this close to the cliffs.

In almost any other water of one-tenth this depth it would be absolutely useless to fish with the fly. In the early spring and late in the fall the fish would be found only in shallow water, and if they sought deep water at all it would only be for the purpose of seeking the bottom of it in the heat of the summer.

But in the Saguenay even the surface of the water is cold enough to satisfy the longing of any fish, even in the hottest weather, and in all the bays of the river there is excellent fishing. Except when agitated by storms the water of the Saguenay is very placid. It is also very brackish and subject to the action of the tides.

The gloom of the surroundings is awe-inspiring. The only signs of life are afforded by the occasional leap of a salmon, the bobbing up of a seal's head, or a school of white porpoises rolling their huge bodies.

Artificial Baits Unnecessary.

In the still waters of the Saguenay artificial baits are unnecessary. In the eddies of the tidal water curling around the various points of rock the sea trout rise readily to the fly throughout the season. In the latter part of June and early in July they may be caught in the St. Lawrence just off the mouth of the river. A little later they are to be found in Tadousac Bay, and as the season advances should be followed higher up the stream from bay to bay.

One of the most successful flies for these fish is the red ibis. Another is the Montreal. One that is less known but equally efficacious is the Alexandria, called after the Queen of England, who is as successful an angler as her husband is unsuccessful.

The Alexandria fly is intended as a vague imitation of a minnow, and was originally recommended to be cast and played minnow fashion, just below the surface of the water. English fishermen found it to be so taking that its use was forbidden upon some streams. The favorite method of fishing with this fly is to allow the line to run with the current, and then draw it back up-stream by short sudden jerks that open and close the hackles, giving glimpses of the bright silvery body.

All the leading salmon flies are also excellent lures for sea trout, but new ones should not be used, for the trout bite so savagely that they destroy artificial flies very much more than salmon do.

When not rising to the fly the sea trout may generally be taken a little below the surface of the water, with the launce or sand eel, which exists in large numbers in the Saguenay and at low tide may be dug out of the sand at the mouth of the river and wherever there are bays higher up the stream where a portion of beach is revealed by the running down of the tide.

The Heir of Aberdeen.

Lord Haddo, who has been recommended for adoption by the executive of the East Berks Liberal Association as the candidate for that division at the next general election, comes of a family in which the Gladstonian cult finds expression even in baptismal nomenclature.

Four baronies, of which Haddo stood first, the Viscounty of Formartine, and the Earldom of Aberdeen rewarded in 1682 the loyalty of Sir George Gordon, third baronet of a creation of 1642. His father, the first baronet, had withstood the Covenant to its face, had been besieged in his house at Kelly and had been beheaded at Edinburgh. The dignity had been under forfeiture till the Restoration, Merged in the earldom, the present Sir John Campbell Gordon, seventh earl, has no mind that it shall be submerged.

Haddo, as a style, has been much more unfortunate. The first earl's first son who bore it died unmarried, and v.p., before 1708. George Gordon, Lord Haddo, son and heir apparent of the third earl, born in 1764, died v.p. at Formartine House, 1791. So it was that the earldom developed upon a grandson. He was the statesman who, over the signature of the Treaty of Paris, 1814, got the U. K. peerage, and whose eventful premiership of 1852-5 made him one of the few K. G.'s who have been allowed to retain their K. T.

But his first son and heir apparent had borne the style of Lord Haddo for but a few hours when he died in 1810. And the sixth earl, born in 1841, and styled Lord Haddo from 1860 to 1864, died unmarried, in 1870, drowned while serving on the Hera, in the course of his voyage from Boston to Melbourne. The present earl, who recently celebrated his fifty-seventh birthday, succeeded as only surviving brother.

Hitherto Haddo has not figured extensively in Parliamentary annals. The fifth earl was M. P. for Aberdeenshire, 1854-60. The third earl was a representative peer. The second earl was elected for Aberdeenshire in 1708, but was declared by the House of Commons to be incapable of sitting for any shire or borough in Scotland as the eldest son of a Scots peer. Such eldest sons, it was held, was themselves peers. Presumably, this prohibition does not hold good in the case of English shires and boroughs.

The Origin of "Canada."

The origin of the name "Canada" is a curious one. The Spaniards visited that country previous to the French, and made particular search for gold and silver, and, finding none, they often said amongst themselves, "Aca nada" (there is nothing there). The Indians, who watched closely, learned this sentence and its meaning—and when more unwelcome strangers—the French—arrived, were anxious to inform them in the Spanish sentence, "Aca nada." The French, who knew about as little Spanish as the Indians, supposed this incessantly-recurring sound was the name of the country, and gave it the name of Canada, which it has borne ever since.—Newcastle Chronicle.

It Stands Alone.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription stands alone, as the one and only remedy for leucorrhea, female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, so absolutely specific and sure in curing these common ailments of women, as to warrant its makers in offering to pay, as they hereby do, the sum of $500 reward for a case of the above maladies which they can not cure. This is a remarkable offer. No other medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments is backed by such a remarkable guarantee. No other medicine for woman's ills is possessed of the unparalleled curative properties that would warrant its makers in publishing such an offer; no other remedy has such a record of a third of a century of cures on which to base such a remarkable offer.

Miss Emma Wolfe, who is Secretary of the Young People's Christian Association, at 1818 Madison Avenue, New York City, says: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' is a boon to sick and tired women, for it cures them when other medicines fail. I know whereof I speak, for I have had experience with it. For thirteen months I had constant headaches seemed too weak to perform my daily duties, and when the day was over I was too tired to sleep well. I suffered from nervousness and indigestion, and everything I ate distressed me. Doctored with different physicians but received no relief. After reading one of your books I decided to give your 'Favorite Prescription' a trial. Am very glad I did, for I found it was just what I wanted. I commenced to improve at once and kept getting better until, after seven weeks, I was entirely cured. I have remained in perfect health ever since, and remain a firm friend of your 'Favorite Prescription.'"

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" is only seeking to make the little more profit afforded by a less meritorious medicine. His profit is your loss. Therefore, turn your back on him as unworthy of your patronage.

If constipated use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cure constipation, biliousness and sick headache. They do not produce the "pill habit."

DRESS AND FASHION.

SOME FAVORED MODES AND NOVELTIES OF LATE SUMMER.

Frilled Battlements a Pretty Fancy on a Gown to Be Worn at a Fashionable Resort—Stylish Model For a Dust Coat or Race Wrap.

The battlemented gown of the first cut is a very attractive instance of what is appearing for late summer and early autumn costumes at fashionable resorts. Royal blue is this lovely barege fabric, set off with silk frills and slashed to give an occasional peep of white diaphanous tiers in tulle, muslin or lace. The jabot is of lace to correspond, while an original decorative motif is furnished in leaves of white lawn spangled and embroidered.

COSTUME FOR A FASHIONABLE RESORT.

Passementerie froggings and corselet belt in nasturtium panne complete the costume.

The second cut shows a stylish model of a dust or race wrap which may be suitably carried out in white alpaca or silk, the joins necessitated by the narrow width of the latter being completely hidden in the voluminous folds. The material is everywhere gathered into the long shouldered yoke, which, while assuming a round shape at the back, falls in front in stole ends to below the waist. This yoke is ornamented with handsome applique lace or embroidery, which likewise forms the cuffs on the wide sleeves.

The taffeta silk dress comes as a boon again, for it may be worn many times where the muslin and other airy fabrics soon lose their fresh attractiveness. The most popular of all taffeta gowns is pale mauve, and this in combination with some lisse and lace at the throat, tied with pale blue and tasseled with pale blue, presents a pleasing color effect and harmonizes with equal grace with a lace hat trimmed with mauve or a pale blue hat encircled with an ostrich feather.

Black and white check voile dresses can be made very useful. A little embroidered lawn, enameled buttons and a lively touch of color in the hat will impart a certain air of distinction, while the cost of the costume may be comparatively small.

Chiffon mohair is a fabric well adapted to smart summer tailored suits.

Cloths in general for late summer and early autumn tailored gowns have taken on a very light and supple quality.

Blue and white and brown and white are among favorite effects in checked silks. AMY VARNUM.

GREAT PRACTICE ON SATURDAY.

Rugbyists had a Splendid Workout and Showed up Finely.

McPherson of Toronto was Down—Change in Schedule Gives First Game Here on Saturday.

"A rattling good practice" was the opinion of those who witnessed the workout of the rugby boys at the Oval on Saturday afternoon. The boys got into the game in earnest and chased the elusive pigskin with an energy and dash which would make one think that the championship hinged on their work. Everyone was willing to work like a Trojan and the management was more than pleased with the showing. The boys showed up well in every department of the game and have the goods which they intend to deliver. Though the grass was slippery and the pigskin greasy, the play was fast and with a few more such practices the boys will be ready to face any team on the gridiron.

"Fighting Mac." Varsity's star half his old team mates along and it hi sold team mates along and it seemed like old times to see him punting and dodging with his old time brilliancy. "If we only had Mac. again," was heard on every side. Under the direction of MacPherson and Captain Crowley, the players worked splendidly. The senior wings were put against the senior defence. The wing department is especially strong this year. All of last year's bunch but Meagher were out and showed up in old time form. Graham was an absentee, but he will be along this week. The tackling was good and the following up fast. On the half-back line were Simpson, Morgan and Shaw. The former played for the last four years with Queens, and his presence will greatly strengthen the team as he is one of the best halves in the business. Morgan is showing up in great shape and his work on Saturday was fine. Shaw is also proving to be a find, and is playing a splendid game at half. He kicks well and is a sure tackler. Ford at full back is also showing up satisfactorily. Crowley played in his old position of outside wing and as usual did very effective work. Gilbert's playing was also conspicuous as was that of Craig's, whose tackling could hardly have been improved upon. The younger players showed great willingness and will make the seniors hustle to hold their places. Everyone was delighted with the practice and with the prospects.

Among those in uniform were Ford, Morgan, Simpson, Shaw, McPherson, Crowley, Noble, Hartubise, Rickey, Dillon, Craig, Burnham, Cameron, Green, O'Brien, Scriver, Laing, Hall, Fitzpatrick, Gilbert, Walker, Hook.

NOTES.

The rugby fever is in the air. If you haven't got it, there is something coming your way. Watch for it.

See next Saturday's game.

Stick to your practice this week. We can't afford to lose next Saturday's game.

The famous Argonauts, O.R.F.U. ex-champions will be here on Saturday.

Hamilton wants Ben Simpson, the ex-Queen star. So does Peterborough.

RE-ARRANGEMENT OF RUGBY SCHEDULE

Fiarst Senior Game Will be Played Here With Argonauts.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the O. R. F. U. was held at the King Edward Hotel on Saturday night, with President W. N. Ferguson in the chair. The other members present were:—H. L. Hoyles, Argonauts; Dr. W. G. Wood, Torontos; J. P. Carter, Victorias; D. McKeand, Hamilton; Joe Hay, Toronto; Dr. A. C. Caldwell, Dundas, and Secretary Frank D. Woodworth. Mr. Carter announced his resignation from the executive, owing to pressure of business, and W. J. Morrison was appointed to represent the Victorias.

The question of revising the senior schedule was then taken up, and after a short discussion the following was unanimously adopted:—

District No. 1.

Oct. 1—Argonauts at Peterborough.
Oct. 8—Torontos at Argonauts.
Oct. 15—Peterborough at Torontos.
Oct. 22—Argonauts at Torontos.
Oct. 29—Torontos at Peterborough.
Nov. 5—Peterborough at Argonauts.

District No. 2.

Oct. 1—Hamilton at Victorias.
Oct. 8—Victorias at London.
Oct. 15—London at Hamilton.
Oct. 22—Victorias at Hamilton.
Oct. 29—London at Victorias.
Nov. 5—Hamilton at London.

Several applications for permits for players to compete in the junior series were referred to the sub-committee, with certain recommendations.

The following junior districts have been arranged, and the schedule will be drawn up to-day and announced Tuesday morning:—

Section A.—Brockville, Gananoque, R. M. C. II. Limestones (Kingston).

Section B.—Argonauts II., Torontos II., Varsity III., Y.M.C.A.

Section C.—Guelph O.A.C., Brantford, Dundas, Hamilton II.

Section D.—Petrolia, Sarnia, London, Stratford.

There will be no intermediate series this season, as two of last year's clubs have gone into senior company, and none of the junior teams would move up. The necessity for an age limit in the junior series is quite apparent.

KNOX WILLING TO RUN BELLAND

A Letter From the Orillia Sprinter Gives This Information.

The Examiner has received the following letter from Mr. W. Knox, of Orillia, which is self-explanation:—

Orillia, Sept. 26th, 1904.

To the Sporting Editor of the Peterborough Examiner, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—In looking over the sporting sheet of your paper I notice where Dave Belland expresses his willingness to run me if I am willing to run for $100 or $200. If Belland will put up his $200 in Mr. George Graham's hotel, the Oriental, I will cover his money as soon as he lets me know the money is up. The day of the race, the judges and referee to be named after the money is up. Thanking you in advance for publishing the above I am

Yours truly,
W. KNOX,

BASEBALL.

The Port Hope Guide says:—So the final game for the championship of the Midland League between Lindsay and Bowmanville will not take place here as ordered. Bowmanville, according to the Lindsay Post, have agreed to play a sudden death game in Lindsay next Thursday. This seems very strange on the part of Bowmanville after the strong fight they put up over the protest. However, if they are easy enough to play the final in Lindsay they will likely get the championship where Mary wore the beads, and they would deserve it, too.

"Yebbie" Flaherty who pitched the Galt league team champions of the Western League to victory this season, is in town again. He will play in Winnipeg next season.

All members of the Quaker Baseball Team are requested to meet at the P. A. A. grounds to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock.

The Bobcaygeon Independent has the gollowing to say with reference to the baseball game there recently:—

"The game last Friday between the T.A.S. of Peterborough and Bobcaygeon was splendid from start to finish. Not the slightest bit of dispute, both teams taking the umpire's decisions without question. The T.A.S. team is a gentlemanly lot of young fellows. They are not the noisy, disorderly combination of yelling vulgarity that is too frequently the case with teams away from home. They conduct themselves as gentlemen both on and off the field, and do nothing either on the playgrounds or the streets offensive to good manners. The young men of the Peterborough Total Abstinence Society are a credit to their Society, their town and themselves and are justly entitled to the heartiest support in their games. It was a Kawartha League game and drew a fair crowd, the play being exceptionally good on both sides and was anyone's game until the last innings was played. After the T. A. S. had their ninth innings the score was 6-4 in Bobcaygeon's favour and one innings to spare. It was the first defeat for the T.A.S. The spectators joined in cheers for the visiting team and everyone was pleased with the exhibition of good ball."

RUGBY.

To-night at 7.45 in the Y.M.C.A. Hall a Chalk Talk on signals will be held, to which all players are asked to attend. After the signal practice a run will be held.

THE CHURCHES.

ST. LUKE'S.

Large congregations were present at both services. At the evening service the rector preached a strong and pointed sermon on "Gossip", the evil of using the tongue recklessly and thoughtlessly. The music was an enjoyable feature of the evening service. The choir sang the "Deus Miseretur" by Mammath, and two anthems "He Watereth the Hills" by Caleb Simper, and "What shall I render unto the Lord" by C. Simper. Messrs. J. Clegg and A. O. Sawyer, taking the solos.

A meeting of St. Luke's Men's Guild will be held to-night at 8 o'clock. The programme for the winter's work will be outlined and preparations will be made for an entertainment. A large attendance is requested.

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt is to-day in Norwood where he is to preach to-night at the annual Harvest Festival. For the remainder of the week he will be in Toronto attending the Alumni meetings at Wycliffe College.

The vegetables used at St. Luke's Church for the Harvest Decorations were given to the Protestant Home.

GEORGE STREET METHODIST.

At the George street church yesterday morning the Misses Chasty sang a duet, "The Cross is not Greater than His Grace," and during the offertory the choir sang, "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling," Miss Bessie Sperry taking the solo. In the evening the choir sang "I was Glad when they Said unto Me," and during the offertory Mr. Jas. Dawson sang with splendid effect, "Abide with Me."

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

Yesterday the Harvest services, so auspiciously inaugurated on Friday, were continued, and large congregations were present at each service. The sermons by the rector were again along the lines of Harvest Thanksgiving, his text being, in the morning, Gen. 1; 29, "And God said Behold I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat," and in the evening,—Acts 14; 27, "And when they were come and had gathered the church together they rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how He had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles."

Both sermons were practical and were thoroughly enjoyed by the large congregations. The speaker referred to the fact that the oldest grain of wheat known was in the British Museum, and that the grain to-day is identical with that first grown, a fact peculiar only to wheat.

THE TOWN COUNCIL AND THE SCHOOL BOARD

Is the Proposal to Reduce Present Number of Board Members Timely?

The Town Council does not show a disposition to defer to the wishes of the Board of Education. The latter at its last meeting adopted unanimously a resolution, asking the Council to defer present action in regard to a change in the numerical constitution of the Board in view of important pending matters, which made it advisable that the present Board, which is familiar with all the conditions, should be continued in office at least another year. In the face of this a meeting of the Council has been called for to-night to consider the question of reducing the membership of the Board. While not pronouncing upon the merits of the proposition, which in the abstract is held to be desirable, it is perhaps pertinent to inquire why the wishes of the Board are so obviously ignored. The Board has not pronounced against the change, but it has very emphatically expressed its sense of the undesirability in the public interests of taking immediate action. A radical change like that proposed should be dealt with under conditions that admit of very full, careful and deliberate consideration.

STRANGERS' DAY AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Nearly All Parts of the Empire Represented Yesterday.

Yesterday was Strangers' Day at the Y.M.C.A., and among the large number of men who attended the Men's Meeting at 4 o'clock, were a goodly number of young men who have recently come to town.

The male choir led the live song service which preceded the excellent address given by the president of the Fellowship Club, Mr. Harding. His message was an impressive one, the subject being "Pardon."

Mr. Frank Turner, of Toronto, sang a sacred solo in his usual good voice, and Messrs. Herd and Shay a well rendered duet, "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me."

The strangers' tea was held at the close of the meeting, there being men present from the following points:—South Shields, Eng.; Lochlin, Oshawa, Bracebridge, Cardiff, Wales, Buffalo, Trenton, Campbellford, Collingwood, St. John's, Newfoundland, Barrie, Fenelon Falls, Baltimore, Maryland, Sherbrooke, and Newcastle on Tyne, Eng.

INDUSTRIAL FAIR OPENED IN A BLAZE OF GLORY

Peterborough Fair Most Successful in History of County.

OPENING CEREMONIES

Address to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor—His Honour's Reply—The Great Fair Opened to the Public.

Peterborough has never had a more successful Fair than that which opened this morning at the Agricultural Grounds. This remark applies from whatever standpoint it is viewed, and last night all that was required to make the Exhibition the greatest ever, was fine weather, which this morning gave, and if the Fair this year is not a record-breaker, the directors will be a greatly surprised set of men. The Fair for this year, has been in course of preparation since the closing day of the Fair of 1903, and the plans of the Directors have gradually taken shape until now they are crystalized in the Fair now in progress. The great increase in the number and quality of the exhibits in horses, is one of the most gratifying and pleasing features of this year's Fair. A director said that the increase in some classes was ten-fold, which is indeed a remarkable showing, giving evidence of the fact that the farmers of the county are recognising more and more the importance of this branch of agriculture.

Yesterday the secretary was a busy man. He was literally besieged with members waiting to pay their fees, and new exhibitors anxious to become members. The cash receipts yesterday from this source were very large, and is one evidence of the growing importance of the Fair.

All day yesterday the grounds and buildings were alive with exhibitors getting things in shape for this morning's opening. And how well the work was done, those who were at the Fair to-day saw. From early morning to-day all the roads leading to Peterborough were black with vehicles on their way to the fair, and at noon the crowds on the streets were among the largest in the history of the town. At the grounds all was bustle this morning, but the systematic efforts of the officers prevented any confusion, and all the exhibits were placed without difficulty.

In horses, as has been stated, the showing is extra large, while there is a good list of cattle, both in beef and dairy breeds. Sheep is a small class, while in swine there is a fair showing. In the building there is also a fair exhibit, and with larger and more adequate building, such as the importance of the Fair demands, the inside exhibits would be much larger and better. As it is now the deplorable inadequacy of building offers but slight encouragement to intending exhibitors to go to any trouble to show goods. Judging in two classes, those of fruit and flowers, commenced yesterday, and at ten o'clock this morning the live stock judging started.

The judges are: Horses, W. Hendrie, jr., Hamilton; Robert Beith, M. P., Bowmanville; J. G. Martin, Stouffville. Cattle, (beef), S. T. Johnston, Arden; cattle, (dairy,) T. B. Carlow, Warkworth. Sheep, R. Staples, Ida; Robert Miller, Ashburn. Swine, Geo. Cowan, Toronto. Poultry, D. O. Trew, Lindsay. Dairy Products, Geo. Gillespie, Peterborough. Grain, J. A. Hurley, Peterborough. Roots and Field Products, T. C. Holden, T. Hooper. Dairy and Fruit S. Brown. Plants and Cut Flowers, Mrs. B. Cooney. Lady Superintendent, Miss Minnie Graham. Painting, Miss Bennett, Miss Bertram. Penmanship, D. Walker. Ladies' Work, Mrs. A. E. Foussette, Miss Halliday. Domestic Work, Miss Sutton and Miss Geo. Fitzgerald.

The track is in first class condition, and the prospects for some good races are of the best, all the racing events being well filled.

The Official Opening.

The vice-regal party arrived in town at 11.35 from Toronto, to attend the opening ceremonies of the fair. His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Clarke were met at the C. P. R. station upon the arrival of the 11.35 train, by Hon. J. R. Stratton, and driven to Strathormond, where the following ladies and gentlemen took luncheon with His Honour and Mrs. Clarke, the occasion being purely an unofficial one: Chief Justice Falconbridge, His Worship Mayor Roger and Miss Roger, Warden E. A. Peck, D. Hughes-Charles, president of the Peterborough Fair, and Mrs. Charles, K. Eardly Wilmot, secretary, and Mrs. Wilmot; Colonel and Mrs. Campbell, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. William Hendrie, jr., Hamilton; Mrs. Dennistoun, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews.

The Band of the 57th Regiment met at the Central Park and marched from there to the grounds to attend the opening. The Lieutenant Governor and his party were driven to the grounds, which at an early hour after dinner were well filled with crowds of spectators. The weather was ideal and the opening was conducted under the most pleasing conditions. Upon arrival at the grounds the Lieutenant Governor was escorted to the stand erected for the purpose. Mr. Hughes-Charles, president of the Exhibition, gave a short address, after the party, consisting of His Honour and Mrs. Clarke, Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hughes-Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Colin Campbell, Mr. W. Hendrie jr., Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald, and Rev. E. A. Laugfoldt, had taken their places on the platform, and said he was glad the weather was so favourable; it could almost be called King's weather. The directors were pleased to see such a large number of persons present. They are trying to place the Peterborough fair on a good, sound basis, and make it second to none in the province, and a credit to Peterborough county. The large entries, particularly in the live stock classes, was a fact which greatly pleased the directors, but he regretted that the prize hackneys, owned by Mr. Beith, M. P., and which the directors had announced, would be at the fair, would not be here, Mr. Beith when promising that he would send his stock here had forgotten that Bowmanville fair was held on the same days. But there were ten horses from the stables of Graham Brothers of Claremont; the largest importers of Clydesdales in this country. He regretted that the exhibits of agricultural products was not larger and thought the farmer should pay more attention to this department. It was a great pleasure to the directors to welcome His Honour the Lieutenant Governor to the fair and then read the address to His Honour as follows:—

Peterborough, 27th. Sept., 1904.

To His Honour William Mortimer Clark, K.C. Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

May it please Your Honour,—On behalf of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition and of this town and county, we welcome Mrs. Clark and yourself on the occasion of your first visit to Peterborough since your appointment as Lieutenant-Governor.

We can assure you that your friends in district heard with great pleasure and appreciation of your elevation to that office, and have every confidence that you will faithfully and ably discharge the difficult and responsible duties attached to your position.

The occasion of your visit is timely for the people of the county and town are much interested in the exhibition which you have so kindly consented to open, and are pleased to have the opportunity of being present to join in the welcome to you.

We appreciate the interest you show in the exhibition by your presence here in spite of the many claims upon your time. We have recognized the efforts you have made by similar acts to encourage the great industry of agriculture, and the other industries that make the prosperity of Ontario, and it is encouraging to find that as Lieutenant-Governor of this great province, you do not confine yourself to your official duties to advance the interests of the province in any way in your power.

We feel, Sir, that we have in this county a very important portion of Ontario. The agricultural and dairying interests, as you will see upon your inspect the exhibition, are important, and much wealth is added to the funds of the community by the yeomen.

The county has, also, much mineral wealth, gold, iron, and other minerals in abundance, and the forests are far from being depleted. The manufacturing industries, especially in this town, are numerous and important, one of them having one thousand employees, and in others the number of employees runs well up into the hundreds.

Our ideas are not altogether confined to material progress, to the exclusion of culture or recreation, for, the one is provided for by large and handsome churches and schools and kindred institutions, and the other by several large and beautiful parks and recreation grounds, which within the county are several as picturesque and pleasant summer resorts as can be found in the province.

We feel that in coming here to-day you have not only assisted the Directors of the Exhibition, but that you have also done honour to the town and county, and we desire you to know that we highly appreciate your kindness.

D. HUGHES-CHARLES, President.
G. M. ROGER, Mayor.
E. A. PECK, Warden.

His Honour the Hon. W. Mortimer Clark, K. C., Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

The Lieutenant Governor thanked the President and Directors of the Fair for the honour done him in inviting him to open the exhibition of such an important centre as Peterborough, and also the Mayor and Warden of the Town and County of Peterborough for their kind welcome. He expressed his high appreciation of the very flattering terms of the address presented to him and hoped that the good wishes of the people towards himself and his family might be realised. He would ever prize it as a treasured souvenir of a very delightful visit. He congratulated the president and directors on their successful efforts to maintain the exhibition. He said that Peterborough possessed a very personal interest to him, as Mrs. Clark in her earlier years resided for a time in the city where her father and mother then lived. Both of her parents were Sunday School teachers in the Presbyterian Church of which Mr. Roger was pastor. The late Mr. John Gordon, President of the Toronto Grey and Bruce Railway, Mrs. Clark's brother, contested the riding against Mr. Carnegie many years ago, and the Lieutenant Governor said that he had not visited Peterborough since the time of the election, but having heard so much of the city from his wife and brother-in-law he felt as if he himself had been a resident. Times had greatly changed since those days. A new city had arisen possessing no fewer than six attractive parks, imposing buildings, two large hospitals, fine armouries, at least in immediate prospect, admirable schools, and a large collegiate institute in progress of construction. The works of the General Electric Company possessing all the most recent improvements in electrical science are of great interest and importance. The visitors saw with surprise the huge works of the Miss Nellie Holmes, treasurer of the Young Woman's Temperance Association of Buffalo, N.Y., strongly advises all suffering women to rely, as she did, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal woman's medicine, and by far the best I know to restore lost health and strength. I suffered misery for several years, being troubled with menorrhagia. My back ached, I had bearing-down pains and frequent headaches. I would often wake from restful sleep, and in such pain that I suffered for hours before I could go to sleep again. I dreaded the long nights as much as the weary days. I consulted two different physicians, hoping to get relief, but, finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me, I tried your Vegetable Compound on the recommendation of a friend from the East who was visiting me.

"I am glad that I followed her advice, for every ache and pain is gone, and not only this, but my general health is much improved. I have a fine appetite and have gained in flesh. My earnest advice to suffering women is to put aside all other medicines and to take Lydia E. A DEVELOPMENT RAILWAY.

The opposition to the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has many phases, and the reasons for building it are many, the chief of the latter being, by all odds, the direct agency it will exercise in developing the resources of the country. The Weekly Sun, in canvassing the statement that the expenditure in railway construction by the distribution of some hundred millions of dollars, will bring a continuation of the present prosperity, concludes by asserting that "the only real prosperity is that which comes from the development of the farm, the mine and the workshop." This is true, and this furnishes the strongest argument forr the building of another transcontinental railway, which will, above all things, be a development enterprise. We all know that the resources of Canada are great, but are valueless unless brought into conditions of industrial and commercial assimilation. The new railway, will, from ocean to ocean, tap and serve virgin regions. In the East it will open up to development, timber, mineral and agricultural lands. It will stimulate and make profitable, mining and lumbering operations on a gigantic scale, and these operations will create new demands upon the commercial and manufacturing activities of older Canada. It will open open to settlement, giving homes to tens of thousands, new and fertile areas of wheat lands in the far West. The value of these new centres of population, and new markets for the mercantile and manufacturing products of older Canada, is simply incalculable. We all set a high value on a home market. The railway in operation will enlarge our home market immensely to the advantage of every toiler, capitalist and business man in the country. There is little place in Canada for the pessimist. There was, perhaps, a generation ago, through ignorance of the real conditions, some grounds for lack of faith in the resources of Canada. The experience of the past thirty or so years has landed the standing ground of our unfaith, has discredited the pessimist and begotten a robust confidence, which constitutes the roadbed of a new transcontinental railway. When the Canadian Pacific Railway was under construction, there were doubting Thomases, but they were converted long ago. The Canadian Pacific has become one of the greatest railway successes in the world. Why? It had, as the main reason, virgin resources to feed upon, and by their development, effected mainly by its operation, it has waxed fat, and the country it serves has grown greater. The Grand Trunk Pacific has even a richer promise of fruitful service. Throughout nearly its whole length it traverses regions capable of being converted into national wealth, and the prominent and indispensable part it will play in this connection constitutes the chief reason of its construction.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

History repeats itself. The Mail and Empire met with a serious accident in praising the militia act as "the work of a statesman." It didn't know it was loaded—didn't know Sir Frederick Borden the Canadian Minister of Militia, was its sole author.

The Victoria, B. C., Times thus discourses: "You cannot keep the Tuppers down. They are out of the service of their country for the time simply because there is no prospect of their services being remunerated at anything like the value their talents are estimated at. The younger is willing to assist in the organization of the Conservative party in British Columbia provided the services offered do not conflict with his private affairs. But the moment there is a prospect of the Conservative party gaining a victory in Canada and being in a position to reward the Tuppers with offices at handsome salaries, the whole family will be in active life again. The fact that Sir Hibbert will not be a candidate in any constituency during the coming general election is a sure and certain indication that there is no hope of a Conservative victory in the immediate future."

"SOO" TURNED OUT 600 TONS A DAY.

Record Production of Steel Rail was Reached on Friday Night.

Benefit of Legislation Which Brought About Resumption of Work.

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 26.—In the 24 hours ending Friday midnight the steel plant turned out 600 tons of steel rails. That amount constituted a record, being the largest amount manufactured in any similar period of time, either during the time the plant was first in operation a couple of years ago, or since the resumption of work following reorganization. The capacity of the plant has been looked upon as 500 tons daily, but during last week the average was somewhat more than that. Tests of the product have also been very successful. Every fourth rail is subjected to a severe test. Preparations for commencement of work at the blast furnaces are progressing satisfactorily and it is expected they will be in operation by the end of the month. Shipments of ore for use there are arriving daily.

FREIGHT RATES REDUCED.

Railways Make Concessions As Result of Recent Protests.

Toronto, Sept., 27.—As a result of the complaints of the Fruit Growers' Association at the recent session of the Railway Commission, the freight rates will be materially reduced. The railways have communicated these reductions to W. H. Bunting, president of the Fruit Growers' Association, who in turn has sent the statement to H. B. Cowan, editor of The Canadian Horticulturist.

The reductions made are material in car lots shipped from larger sections, principally Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec and Winnipeg. Special rates are also made for half car lots of 10,000 pounds or over. The concessions made are equal to about $10 per car from Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, and about $33 per car to the Northwest. In addition to these concessions the rate for ice on cars destined for Manitoba have been lessened. Hereafter the shipper will be charged only for the actual amount of ice used. Apples, whether in boxes or barrels, will be carried at the same rate, and it is understood that pears in boxes or barrels will be in the same class as apples in the future.

While these concessions are not all that the committee representing the fruit industry asked for and considered reasonable, they are a measure of relief to a very serious situation.

Fish Planting.

The Ontario Government, in conjunction with the Grand Trunk Railway, inaugurated a vigourous policy of restocking with fish many of the lakes in northern Ontario, where there was any chance of a depletion, and the success which has attended their efforts has been marked. During the summer season this year no less than 5,300 parent bass were captured and transported from Lake Erie to the several districts that are visited by the angler and summer tourist. A special fish car was built by the Grand Trunk three years ago expressly for the transportation of live fish for this purpose and it has been used each summer in the propagation of this good work. This year three car loads of bass, none less than 12 inches in length, and many weighing two and three pounds, were planted in the Muskoka lakes, two carloads in Lake Simcoe and Couchiching, one carload in the Lake of Bays region, one carload in Balsam Lake (one of the Kawartha group in Victoria county) and a carload in the lakes along the Canada Atlantic Railway in Algonquin Park. These carloads contained in each instance, from 500 to 700 fish. In addition to the planting of the parent fish, a carload of 5,000 black bass fingerlings was placed in the Lake of Bays region. The results of each shipment has been most gratifying, and the summer tourist and angler have appreciated the movement and look forward to better sport in these waters in the future. 1dlw

AN OLD RESIDENT LOST TO COUNTY.

Mr. William Howson Died at the Advanced age of 88 Years.

One of the Earliest Settlers in Otonabee —Joined in Suppression of the Mackenzie Rebellion.

By the death of Mr. Wm. Howson, which occurred on the 21st inst., the county lost another of its earliest settlers and oldest residents.

Mr. Howson was born in Yorkshire, England, on the 12th day of May, 1816, and had therefore at the time of his death, reached the advanced age of 88 years and 4 months. When he was 4 years of age his parents decided to migrate to America. The family settled in the State of Virginia, at what was then the village of Wheeling. Not liking some of the customs and laws in force in Virginia, particularly those which related to slavery, after a sojourn of three years, they migrated to Canada. As an uncle, the late Mr. Geo. Howson, had already settled in Otonabee, the family came to this township. They made the journey by wagon, entering Canada at Niagara and skirting the north shore of Lake Ontario as far east as Cobourg. The journey was very difficult as well as tedious, as the roads in any part of Ontario 80 years ago were rough at the best, and in many parts there were no roads at all. The family located on the farm in Otonabee now owned by Mr. J. H. McIntyre, where Mr. Howson resided with his parents until 1859.

Otonabee, when Mr. Howson first saw it, was an almost unbroken forest, there were only a few small clearings in the whole township. No roads, schools, churches, mills, or markets and consequently the pressing need of the day was to clear the land of its heavy timber.

In 1837, at the age of 21 years, Mr. Howson joined the Loyalist forces, then engaged in suppressing the Mackenzie rebellion, and in company with several of his neighbors, all of whom have passed away, with the exception of Mr. Jas. Wasson, of town, he marched to Toronto, where, after a few weeks of service, the rebel forces having been dispersed, his company was disbanded.

In 1839 the late Mr. Howson married Miss Julia Poole, a sister of the late Lieut.-Col., of Peterborough, with whom he lived happily for more than 45 years, and who predeceased him by only two months. Immediately after his marriage he took up his residence on lot 10 in the 9th concession of Otonabee, where he has lived ever since. In politics the late Mr. Howson was a staunch liberal, and voted at the last Provincial election, when over 86 years of age. He was a man respected by all who knew him, for his sterling integrity and charitable disposition. He was buried in Keene cemetery on the 23rd inst., the funeral services being held in the Methodist Church, of which he had been a consistent member and office bearer for upwards of 70 years.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Escombe, assisted by the Rev. Mr. McDonald of the Presbyterian church. At the commencement of the service the "Dead March in Saul" was played by Mrs. Dr. Harrison and during the service Miss Mabel Harrison sang "Some Day the Silver Chord will Break".

The pall bearers were the four sons and two sons-in-law of deceased.

His family all survive him with the exception of his eldest daughter Mary, the late Mrs. John Troop. The four sons are Mr. J. W. Howson, of Campbellford; Mr. Thos. P. Howson, of Otonabee; G. H. and E. C. Howson, of town and the two daughters are Mrs. W. A. Pue, of Fraserville, and Mrs. Thos. Pue, of Keene. There are also 35 grandchildren, and 7 great grand children.

THE WATCHMEN WERE HELD UP.

Exciting Episode at Hull Branch of Local Firm's Business.

Messrs. Geo. Matthews & Sons' Establishment Entered by Amateur Burglars

A special despatch from Ottawa tells of an exciting incident at the Hull works of Geo. Matthews & Sons, of this town. The despatch says:—

There were exciting doings at the pork packing establishment of Geo. Matthews & Sons at Hull this morning. About 1.30, when Watchman Trean entered the boiler house he suddenly found himself confronted by three masked men, each of whom covered him with a revolver. Trean was armed, but had not time to draw. He was seized and securely bound, and one of the men placed as guard over him. The other two left the boiler house, and with two other men who had joined them proceeded to the packing house and held up the second watchman, and bound him also. Three of the men then went to the office, and for half an hour worked at the combination on the safe, but without success. They were evidently amateurs at the business, as they had no burglars' tools with them.

Eventually they quit their task in disgust, and about 2 o'clock the five decamped. The watchmen were some time getting free from their fastenings, but when they had liberated themselves they immediately notified the head of the firm, here, Mr. W. F. Matthews. An examination of the office showed that the burglars had secured nothing.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and diarrhoea remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of man-

BABY MURDER LIFTS

Young Mother Confesses in Coatsworth Cut Tragedy.

MAN AND WIFE ARRESTED

Chief Bond of Port Hope the Means of Putting the Toronto Detectives On the Clue—Husband Was Jealous of the Child and Knocked It Out of Bed With Oar.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—The Coatsworth Cut mystery is practically cleared up. Last night there were locked up in No. 1 Police Station on a charge of murder:

Alexander Martin, aged 22, born in Toronto.

Ethel Martin, aged 19, born in Canton, near Port Hope.

The couple are man and wife. After the Toronto press had published the story of the crime and descriptions of those who were thought to have committed the crime, the detective department sent out 300 circulars to Ontario towns. One of these circulars reached Chief Bond of Port Hope, who furnished the information which led to the arrest of the Martins.

Yesterday afternoon detectives went to Corby's restaurant, 109 East King street, and escorted Ethel Martin to police headquarters. There she was asked where her child was. She replied in Port Hope with her mother. Chief Bond was asked by wire if that was so. He answered that the child was not in Port Hope, and had not been there since August 1.

In the meantime Mrs. Butler of Forest road, the lady who noticed the couple on the street car on the day of the murder, was sent for. She positively identified Mrs. Martin as the woman who accompanied the man and the child on the fatal day.

Husband Jealous of Babe.

The prisoner was then sent to No. 1 Police Station, where she confessed to the crime of Aug. 8. She gives no reasons nor explanations for the deed, any more than that her husband was jealous of the baby, claiming that she thought more of it than she did of him. When they were out in the boat he struck the child with the end of the oar, killing it. She would not say whether the murder was premediated or not.

After the woman's arrest, Detective Cuddy and Sergt. Geddes proceeded to Stanley Barracks, where they took in charge Private Martin. He was brought direct to No. 1 Station, still wearing his uniform. When Martin saw the officers he began to shake, but recovered his nerve before reaching the station. The woman took the arrest much more coolly than the man.

Alexander Martin was born in Toronto. He attended the Louisa street school, and learned his trade with Hobberlin, the Yonge street tailor. His father was formerly a captain in the employ of the Toronto Ferry Company, but is now caretaker of Hodson's boathouse, foot of Brock avenue.

During the South African war he was for a time in the Halifax, N.S., barracks, from which he received an honorable discharge.

Martin met his wife in a boarding house in Peter street, where he and his father were living. He was 19. She was 16. They made a runaway match of it, going to Rochester, N. Y.

Mrs. Martin was Ethel Bye of Port Hope, but she was born in Canton, four miles from Port Hope. Her mother was Mrs. Matilda Bye.

Hamel Arrested in Cuba.

Montreal, Sept. 27.—News was received here by Chief Carpenter yesterday of the arrest in Cuba of City Paymaster Hamel, who is wanted for forging a cheque on the Bank of Montreal. It is supposed that all difficulties have been overcome for the extradition of Hamel.

Lander Rounded Up at Last.

Kingston, Sept. 27.—W. H. Lander, who forged cheques and notes here, and fled to the United States, has been arrested at Passaic, N.J., accused of similar crimes at Philadelphia, the cheques being on a Kingston bank, which sent them back as forgeries. Only Did His Duty as He Saw it

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy," says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and post master at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything. Very often to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure the flux (dysentery.) You are at liberty to use this testimonial as you please." For sale by All druggists.

DISCIPLINE IS BAD

Documents Found in Liaoyang Expose Russian Looseness.

MELTON PRIOR HAS FEARS

Many Casualties Result to Russians From Skirmishes in the Hun River Valley—St. Petersburg Sees Indications of a Great Jap Turning Movement—Russian Advance Guard Repulsed Japs.

London, Sept. 27.—The Daily Mail's Liaoyang correspondent says: "The discovery in abandoned Russian headquarters here of a number of documents and orders from Viceroy Alexieff, cashiering officers for abandoning positions and for drunkenness, etc., and censuring officers for lawless treatment of Chinese, waste of ammunition and other offences, proves an amazing lack of discipline in General Kuropatkin's army."

Melton Prior Has Fears.

Honolulu, Sept. 27.—Melton Prior, the British newspaper correspondent, who arrived here yesterday from Yokohama, says he feels absolutely certain that the war in the Far East will lead to European complications and to the most awful war in the world's history. Mr. Prior complains that Japan has displayed bad faith toward all the correspondents. This, he says, is his twenty-seventh campaign, and it is the only one in which he has seen nothing. He believes that with the possible exception of the battle of Liaoyang, not one correspondent has seen a shot fired, and he even doubts if the Liaoyang fighting was witnessed by a newspaper man.

Russians Had Many Casualties.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—A despatch has been received from General Kuropatkin announcing that the Japanese are preparing an extensive turning movement east of Mukden. A large force is advancing from Liaoyang by way of Taiche to Taianchan. Skirmishes have occurred in the valley of the Hun River, and at Inpu, between Bentsiaputze and the railroad. There were many casualties at Inpu.

Says Japs Were Repulsed.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—General Sakharoff, in a despatch dated Sunday, telegraphs that the Japanese advance guard during the last few days attempted to occupy Kaoutou Pass (commanding the road to Fushun) but were repulsed by a detachment of the Russian advance guard.

Suprise to Doctors.

Most doctors are astonished at the results obtained by Dr. Chase-s Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum and itching skin diseases which are often considered well nigh insurable. By word of mouth from friend to friend the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment have gradually become known until it is now standard the world over and has a record of cures unparalleled in the history of medicine.

Gone Back to Duty.

Woodstock, Sept. 27.—Hon. James Sutherland left Woodstock yesterday for Ottawa to resume his duties as Minister of Public Works. At a meeting of the executive of the North Oxford Reform Association, on Saturday afternoon, he stated that he again would accept the nomination in North Oxford, and a convention has been called for Oct. 6 to nominate him. He is much improved in health.

MR. LINGWOOD'S SERVICES VALUED

Former Peterborough Educationalist Appreciated in Kingston.

Mr. Lingwood, who for some years conducted a private school on Brock street, Peterborough, but who for the last ten years has been on the teaching staff of the Kingston Collegiate Institute, has resigned from that position, and on accepting the resignation the Board passed the following resolution:—"That in accepting Mr. Lingwood's resignation, this board does so with profound regret, for we feel that his leaving will be a distinct loss to the Collegiate Institute, and we wish to put on record our appreciation of his long and faithful services, and wish for him that future advance and usefulness which his liberal training, refinement and noble character merit."

ACTION IS POSTPONED.

Reduction of School Board Membership Referred to Joint Meeting

BUSINESS DEALT WITH.

Matter of Collegiate Institute Site is Arranged.

A special meeting of the town council was called last night, primarily for the purpose of disposing of a question raised at the previous meeting by a notice of motion made by Ald. McWilliams to the effect that it is expedient to amalgamate the School Board and to elect them as provided by the act passed at the last session of the legislature. This act provides that in places the size of Peterborough the School Board shall consist of eight members, who shall, after the first year, hold office for two years, and that they shall be elected by the people. It is, however, optional with the town and cities whether they take advantage of the provisions of this act or not, and in case it is desired to take advantage of it, the council must pass a resolution to this effect prior to the last of September, in which event the new regulations will come into effect on the succeeding first of the year.

Last night no decision was arrived at, the council being of the opinion that a meeting of the council and the School Board should be held to discuss the matter between themselves, before any radical change was made.

This was decided upon and the council and Board will meet on Wednesday night to consider the matter.

Those present at last night's special meeting of the council, were Ald. Edgcumbe, Morrison, Rush, Hicks, Batten, McWilliams, Adams, Johnston, Scott, Best, Mason.

Ald. Morrison acted as Mayor in the absence of Mayor Roger.

The minutes of the last meeting were confirmed.

REPORTS.

Ald. Rush presented the following report of the Manufacturing Committee, which was adopted.:—

Your Manufactures Committee begs leave to report and recommend that an advertisement of the town in the Canadian Manufacturer, inserted by the publishers, and stating that Peterborough offers inducements to industries, be continued at a cost of $5.00 for a year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Ald. Adams presented the report of the Finance Committee as follows:

Your Finance Committee begs leave to report as follows:—

The matter of arranging the details in connection with the purchase of the Separate School grounds for a site for a Drill Hall and the Collegiate Institute having been referred to this committee, we met with representatives of the Board of Education and discussed the question of the location of the buildings. It was naturally agreed that it would be unwise to place the buildings on the west side of the grounds, as that would result in the parade and play grounds being towards George street, and it would be unsightly to have the bare ground, tramped down and, without grass or other evidence of care, within view of the main street. It was therefore decided that the two acres of the Central Park next to George street should be kept as a park, as they now are; that the buildings should be located on the centre two acres, and that the west two acres should form the parade and play grounds. Your committee appointed a deputation to wait upon the Acting Minister of Public Works, as did also the Board of Education, and the deputation was also accompanied by Mr. R. R. Hall. The Minister agreed to the location of the buildings as proposed, and also that the Government would contribute $10,000 towards the purchase of the site, the Crown to be given a deed of lots 3, 4, 5 and 6 north of Murray street. The Board of Education is to have a deed of lots 3 and 4 south of McDonel street and the County will have to be consulted with regard to this, but in view of the county's willingness to give the whole Park for a site for a Drill Hall there will doubtless be no difficulty. Lots 5 and 6 south of McDonel street may be vested in any one of the three parties to the transaction, but they are to be kept open and not built upon so as to be available for drilling purposes.

We recommend that this committee be authorised to complete the transaction, and that the Solicitor be instructed to prepare the necessary by-law for that purpose.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted:

Ald. Best on behalf of Mr. Richard Sheehy asked that a sidewalk passing his property on Bethune street be constructed. Mr. Sheehy would like to construct this sidewalk at the same cost as that of the other walks. Ald. Rush moved, seconded by Ald. Batten that the Board of Works be authorized to have this sidewalk constructed at a cost not exceeding that of the walks already constructed.

Ald. McWilliams made a motion a notice of which was given at the previous meeting respecting the composition of the Board of Education He said that the charge incidental to this new act, if enforced, would not affect this town as much as it would some other places, because of the fact that the boards here were already united. At the last session of the Legislature the board required the council to ask the Government to authorize the reduction in the number of the members of the Board of Education, because of the fact that the Board of Education as at present constituted was too unwieldy. A number of requests came to the Legislature about the same time, and as a result the Legislature passed an act providing in Peterborough a Board of eight members for terms of two years each, the members to be elected by the electors.

In accordance with the act which provides that the meeting of the council at which the request to make this change is adopted must be held before the end of September, the meeting last night was held. The general impression seemed to be that the changes as provided by the act were along right lines, as the size of the Board as present constituted was regarded as being too unwieldy, and he personally thought that the method of electing of members of the board was decidedly preferable to the method of appointing members, since the latter had fully as much control of the money of the town as the town council, and he believed that the property owners should have the right to say directly who the board should be composed of. He was not attacking the action of the present board. He thought that they had acted as judiciously as could have been done and he believed that the new board if composed of present members would be equally as good as any that could be formed. It has been urged that now was not an opportune time to make this change, but he thought differently because the smaller board would be more effective and moved that in the opinion of this council it is expedient that the school board be amalgamated and a Board of Education as provided by 4 Ed. VII, Chap. 33. be elected in lieu of the present board.

Ald. Rush said that since there was a request from the Board of Education asking the council not to deal with this matter at present. He thought that it would not be convenient to take the action as suggested in the motion in view of this request.

Ald. Best said that he thought the members of the School Board should meet with the council and discuss this important charge. He thought that it was advisable to reduce the number of the members of the Board but this was a radical charge we should not have made off-hand, and he thought that the wish of the board should be respected. The council should not dispose of a public body such as the school board in this summary manner.

Mr. Eastwood, who was present, was on motion of Ald. Best asked to address the council. He said that the feeling of the board was now unanimous in the resolution as read by the clerk. He thought that the members of the Board should be elected, but he considered that the size of the Board as provided by the act for a town the size of Peterborough was not sufficient. Personally he thought the Board could do the work as well with eight members as with seventeen but he thought with Ald. Best that the matter should not be dealt with in a peremptory manner.

Ald. Adams said that the school board had placed themselves in rather a peculiar position. Earlier in the year they passed a resolution strongly urging the change to be made, and now they ask that the change be not made. He also thought it would be well to have a joint meeting and discuss the matter, but could not understand why the members of the board had not attended the meeting last night.

Ald. Best moved, seconded by Ald. Rush, that the committee of the whole council must visit the School Board on Wednesday night to discuss this matter and that the council adjourn to meet on Wednesday.

The motion was carried.

Ald. Rush moved, seconded by Ald. McWilliams that the matter of the winter clothing for the police be left with the supervision committee.

Ald. Rush moved that the solicitor be instructed to prepare a by-law appointing Mr. C. S. McClelland as caretaker of the town clock, at a salary of $50 per year, the clock to be cleaned once in four years. The motion was seconded by Ald. Batten and carried.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that the solicitor be instructed to take the steps that may be required to give effect to the request of the Board of Education, and have the debentures prepared for $10,000 for the purpose of purchasing a site and erecting and furnishing a Collegiate Institute, and that bylaw be prepared authorizing the issue of $10,000 in debentures for the purchase of a site for an armoury.

Ald. Best moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Edgcumbe, that $10,000 of the $50,000 be applied to the purchase of the site. The motion was carried, the amendment being defeated.

Ald. Adams moved, seconded by Ald. McWilliams that the American Cereal Company be notified that at the committee meeting of the whole council Friday the bylaw giving Mr. Meldrum a siding will be discussed and that all parties interested are asked to be present at the meeting. The motion carried.

Ald. Johnston called the attention of the Council to the fact that persons were depositing garbage on Water street near the gully and moved, seconded by Ald. McWilliams that the clerk instruct the public officers to look into the matter.

The meeting then adjourned.

MINSTREL COMPANY WAS ORGANIZED.

Enthusiastic Meeting Held Last Evening.

Two First Class Entertainments Will be Given—Chorus of 60 Voices Expected—Committe Appointed.

"Are you going to the Minstrel Show?" "Well, I guess."

It will not be many weeks before the above statements will be heard about the streets of our town. A meeting was held last evening when a few of those interested in music and wholesome comedy decided to furnish the public of Peterborough, where there is absolutely no accommodation for theatrical attractions or the like, with two first-class minstrel entertainments, the date of which will be announced later. The meeting which was held in Mr. A. L. Davis' office was a most enthusiastic one and the prospects for the show are most promising. It was the opinion that a chorus of at least sixty male voices could be got together and that music of a superior nature would be rendered. There is plenty of material in town to constitute a strong chorus and for the specialties there can also be secured plenty of talent. It is the intention to give two entertainments in the market hall, which will be fitted up for the occasion. The practices will be held in the room adjoining the opera house and the initial rehearsal will likely be held in two weeks' time. It was decided that the practices be held on Monday nights. The songs will be strictly up-to-date in every respect and in fact up-to-dateness will be strongly characteristic of the shows.

The following committees were appointed. The first mentioned in each case is the chairman.

Musical—Messrs. J. Crane, F. A. Lount, G. Scott, J. Legg, R. Gliddon, R. N. Jolliffe.

Hall and Decorating—Messrs. R. McRoy, H. Neil, F. H. Dobbin.

Specialties—Messrs. McEwan, Jos. Halpany.

Executive—Messrs. F. H. Dobbin, R. E. Layfield, R. H. Sheppard, A. L. Davis, A. Elliott.

Entertainment—Messrs. G. N. Brown, H. Neil, F. Bradburn, Smallpiece.

Mr. J. Crane will be the conductor which is sufficient to saying that the the music will be rendered in a highly satisfactory manner. Efforts will be made at once to secure the music which it is expected will be ready for use in two weeks' time.

Notice.

The contributors to the $500.00 Band Fund for the purchase of instruments for the brass band of the Salvation Army local corps, whose names have not appeared in the public statement rendered, will kindly let me know their names and the amount of their contribution to this fund; also the amount given in response to serenading. Please reply at once, and oblige. M. T. Butcher, late corps treasurer, box 599. 3d

PRESENTMENT OF GRAND JURY.

Was Made at the High Court Today.

Reference Made to Death of Mrs. Sheriff Hall—The Grand Jurymen.

The following Grand Jury was empanneled yesterday at the High Court of Justice:—

Francis Birdsall, Asphodel, gentleman.
George Elliott, Peterborough, woodranger.
Alfred J. Geddy, Otonabee, farmer.
Thos. G. Gillespie, Peterborough, carpenter.
Henry Humphries, Asphodel, farmer.
Robt H. Hicks, Peterborough, coal merchant.
Alex. Irwin, Peterborough, farmer.
H. P. Kennedy, Peterborough, meat merchant.
P. A. Kearney, Smith, merchant.
J. J. Lundy, Peterborough, gentleman.
A. E. Mosely, Peterborough, gentleman.

His Lordship briefly addressed the jurors expressing his regret that the Sheriff of the County was unable to be present for deeply deplorable reasons. There were one or two cases of minor character to be looked into which was was regarded as a condition on which His Lordship congratulated the county and spoke volumns for the observation of law and the preservation of order. He pointed out the duty of the jurors and added congratulations on the manifold evidence of prosperity among the people.

Mr. H. O'Leary, K. C., of Lindsay, announced that he had received instructions from the Attorney General to stay proceedings in the case against George Crockford for writing a letter to a minister, threatening to kill, further investigation pending.

The following presentment of the Grand Jury was made to-day.

To the Honourable Chief Justice, Falconbridge.

May it please your Lordship. — The Grand Jury heartily agree with your Lordship in congratulating the town and county of Peterborough on the comparative absence of crime. According to instructions, we visited the gaol, and found there thirteen persons, —all male, —who seemed perfectly satisfied with the care and attention given them by the officials.

The gaol itself was found clean and kept in the best sanitary condition possible. Three of the inmates appear to be men of weak intellects and one inmate is a man whose only crime is old age and infirmity.

We also visited the Nicholls and St. Joseph's Hospitals. These are institutions of which the town and county of Peterborough have just reason to be proud. The sick and the afflicted of this district receive in these places the best attention and the most skilful attention that medical skill and good nursery can provide. We regret to find that infectious and contagious diseases have to be treated in the same building as other patients.

This jury deeply deplore the death of Mrs. Sheriff Hall, whose illness was mentioned in your Lordship's address yesterday and we wish to express our sincere sympathy with Mr. Hall in this his hour of affliction.

F. BIRDSALL,
Foreman.

A LONG TIME RESIDENT PASSES TO HER REST

Death of Annie Grant Gilbert, Wife of Mr. Sheriff Hall.

Very general regret will be experienced on the announcement of the death last evening of Mrs. J. A. Hall, wife of Mr. Sheriff Hall. Mrs. Hall has been in ill-health for the greater part of the summer. On Wednesday last she was suddenly and severely attacked while attending service in St. Paul's Mission Church, and death resulted, the nature of her illness being a complication of diseases.

The deceased lady, whose maiden name was Annie M. Gilbert, was born in 1845, in Georgetown, British Guiana.

On her marriage to Mr. Jas. A. Hall, she came to live in Peterborough, where she has since resided. A husband and nine children survive her — four boys and five girls. Two of the daughters are married: Mrs. Crofton, of Portland, Oregon, and Mrs. Austin of Detroit, Mich. Three daughters remain at home, and also two of the sons; one son resides in Montreal, and another in the Klondyke. Mrs. Hall is also survived by a brother, Mr. A. G. Gilbert, of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and one sister, Miss M. Gilbert, of town. The deceased lady was a communicant of St. Paul's Presbyterian church and a faithful worker in the promotion of the interests of the church. She was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society and of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, had held office in both, but not this year, on account of ill-health, and was entitled to the credit of being one of the most earnest workers in the church. She was also a member of the Y.M.C.A. Ladies' Auxiliary.

Socially, she occupied a prominent position by virtue of many engaging qualities of mind and character, and she will be held in affectionate and revered remembrance by the very large circle privileged to enjoy association with her.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at three o'clock, from the family residence, 248 Hunter street.

OPENING CONCERT WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Pleasing Programme at the T. A. S. Literary Society's Meeting Last Evening.

The first of the series of the fortnightly meetings in connection with the St. Peter's T. A. S. Literary Society was held in the rooms last evening and was in every way a most successful event. The hall was crowded to the doors with an audience which showed hearty appreciation of the excellent programme presented. Each number was popularly received and encores were frequent.

The programme was opened with a well rendered piano duet by Misses Doherty and McCabe. This was followed by a vocal solo by Mr. R. N. Jolliffe. Miss Garvey was very successful in her rendition of "The Message of the Violet" and a comic song by Mr. Chas. Coleman was also heartily received. A musical sketch by Messrs. Cranfield, Peters and Richards was an excellent number and was followed by a Scotch song by Mr. Ramsay. A comic song by Mr. W. Coleman received well merited applause. Rev. Father McColl gave a brief address in which he referred to the general work of the society and giving expression to his hope that the meeting would be well attended and thoroughly beneficial to all in attendance. Miss Garvey's second number was rendered in a most pleasing style and Mr. Ramsay scored a success in his Irish song. A vocal solo by Miss Clancy was very enjoyable and was followed by a comic duet by the Coleman brothers, very well received. Rev. Dr. O'Brien made a few remarks at the close and a very enjoyable programme was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

The outlook for the Literary Society this season is a most promising one and one of the most successful series of meetings that have ever been held are anticipated.

The Chairman at last evening's concert was Mr. J. Hanrahan. The accompanists were Misses Dorris, Doherty, McCabe and McGarrity.

JOINT MEETING OF EPWORTH LEAGUE'S

Interesting Rally of the Three Local Methodist Leagues.

A very successful union rally of the three Methodist Epworth Leagues was held last night in the Sunday School room of George Street Methodist Church, with a large representation from the different societies present.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Kidd, President of George Street League.

Short addresses on Epworth League work were given by Rev. Messrs. Jolliffe and Lewis, while the object of the meeting—the discussion of the Forward Movement for Missions received excellent treatment at the hands of Rev. Dr. Crothers. The origin of the Forward Movement, its growth and the work accomplished by the young people of the Methodist church for Missions were fully explained and a strong appeal was made to all to enter more heartily into the work of this great movement along missionary lines.

During the evening a duet "Sowing the Seed" was nicely given by Misses Parnell and Edna Hill.

HOLDS HIGHEST OFFICE

PRIMATE OF ALL ENGLAND TAKES PRECEDENCE AFTER ROYALTY.

Sketch of the Archbishop of Canterbury—Present Holder of the See Is the Ninety-Fifth to Hold That Position—His Prestige and Importance Dates Back to the Earliest Times—He Is a Broad-Minded Churchman—His Prerogatives.

His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, Right Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson, who took part in the centennial celebration of the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity at Quebec, who recently visited Montreal and Toronto, in which latter city he had conferred upon him the LL.D. of Toronto University, is the first Primate of All England to set foot in the new world.

Dr. Davidson holds the highest office in the British Empire. As Archbishop of Canterbury, he takes precedence immediately after royalty, outranking any of the Peerage, the Premier, the Lord Chancellor or Secretary of State. He is the ninety-fifth to fill that position, dating from the foundation of the See A.D. 597. The first holder was St. Augustine, while among his successors are several prelates who are revered as saints by the Roman Catholic Church, including St. Thomas a'Becket, who was murdered in the Cathedral of Canterbury 733 years ago. The prestige and importance of the Primate of All England dates from the earliest times, and prior to the Reformation the Pope was wont at councils to place the Archbishop of Canterbury on his right hand, giving him precedence over all other Archbishops, Urban II. referring to him as "alterius orbis Papa" ("the Pope of another world.")

Among the most important and least known of the prerogatives of the Archbishop of Canterbury is that of heading the commission of great dignitaries of the realm, who form a species of council of regency in the event of some time intervening between the demise of a Sovereign and the assumption of the reins of Government by his or her successor. The last occasion when the Primate was called upon to fulfill this office was on the death of Queen Anne, when some days elapsed before George, Elector of Hanover, could reach England and take possession of the throne of Great Britain. Had, for instance, anything untoward happened to King Edward while the Prince of Wales was traveling round the world on board the Ophir, three years ago, and had no special provision been made for such a fatality, the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Lord High Chancellor, the Premier and other of the great officers of the Crown, would either have taken the necessary steps to invest Queen Alexandra or the Duke of Connaught with the regency, or else would themselves have exercised the executive duties of the new Sovereign until his return to England.

The present occupant is in his 57th year, having been born April 7, 1848. He was educated at Trinity College, Oxford, of which he is a D.D. Among the positions he has held are curate of Dartford, Kent, 1874-77; chaplain and private secretary to Archbishop Tait of Canterbury, 1877-82; to Archbishop, 1882-83; examining chaplain to Bishop Lightfoot of Durham, 1881-83; honorary chaplain to the Queen, 1882; sub-almoner to the Queen, 1882; one of the six preachers of Canterbury Cathedral, 1880-83; Dean of Windsor, and domestic chaplain to the Queen, 1883-91; clerk of the British Museum from 1884; Bishop of Rochester, 1891-95; Bishop of Winchester, 1895-1903; Clerk of the Closet in ordinary to the King, 1901-03; Archbishop of Canterbury since 1903.

In the course of his official career Dr. Davidson was brought into relations which had important bearings on his after life. While chaplain and private secretary to Archbishop Tait he married in 1878 Miss Edith, the second daughter of His Grace. Seldom has the palace had a more gracious mistress than Mrs. Davidson, who accompanied her husband to this country. Although the wife of one Primate and the daughter of another, yet she has no share in his eminence, save that which is accorded to her by courtesy, and, officially speaking, she is outranked by the helpmate of any successful tradesman who happens to be Knighted for municipal services, and of every petty colonial official who has received the lowest grade of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. The social position of the wives of the Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of England has been an anomalous one since the days of the Reformation. That they should have received no official recognition when the Church was reorganized upon its present basis in the reign of King Henry VIII. must be ascribed to a survival of the ideas which then prevailed on the subject of the celibacy of the clergy. Although Mrs. Davidson was a particular favorite of Queen Victoria, and enjoys in a very marked degree the friendship of both King Edward and Queen Alexandra, yet in an official sense her position is not one whit less anomalous than that of the wife of Queen Elizabeth's Primate, and while her husband is addressed as "My Lord Archbishop" and as "Your Grace" in the same manner as Dukes, she remains plain "Mrs. Davidson."

MRS. DAVIDSON.

In 1891 her husband wrote the biography of her father, with whom he had been a great favorite. Mrs. Davidson is not a lady orator, but occasionally presides over meetings in the interests of women and girls. She has always shown practical sympathy with those cases of sickness or distress which came under her personal notice.

The other influence of his official duties to which reference has been made is his intimacy with the royal family. Until his elevation to the Primacy he was the spiritual adviser to the King, as he had likewise been to Queen Victoria, to whom he administered the last rites of the Church. In this capacity he bore the title of the "Clerk of the Closet." In pre-Reformation times this dignitary was usually the father confessor of the Sovereign, but since the establishment of the Church of England the Clerk has invariably been a Bishop who, strictly speaking, is required to stand at the right of the Monarch in the royal closet or gallery during Divine service "to remove such doubts as may arise concerning spiritual matters in the mind of the ruler." Neither King Edward nor Queen Victoria ever required Dr. Davidson to stand by their chairs during Divine service during his tenure of the office of Clerk of the Closet.

Dr. Davidson enjoys the rare distinction of having on one occasion refused the Primacy. When Archbishop Benson died the late Queen Victoria intimated her desire that he should succeed, but he was obliged to decline on account of his health. Shortly after leaving college he received a gunshot wound which threatened to mar his career, but in time he has outgrown the effects of it. He is noted as one of the most broad-minded of churchmen. He was a warm friend of the late Cardinal Vaughan, and when in Scotland has occasionally filled a Presbyterian pulpit. He was a great admirer of Mr. Spurgeon, attended his funeral and pronounced the benediction at the graveside in Norwood Cemetery. Though not a total abstainer, he believes in moderation and is President of the Church of England Temperance Society. The measures which he advocated in the House of Lords for the cause of temperance led to the enactment of the habitual inebriates law in 1901, which has accomplished a great deal of good. He also took a prominent part in securing the passage by the House of Lords of the shop assistants bill for the protection of weary shop girls. The licensing act which had just come into force had its origin in a bill of his own, which Dr. Davidson withdrew on the Government promising to introduce a bill embodying its principles.

As Archbishop of Canterbury Dr. Davidson receives a stipend of $75,000, derived from the enormously wealthy property of the Church. In addition to this income the Archbishop enjoys the use of an official residence within the cathedral precincts of Canterbury, and of a stately palace in London on the banks of the Thames, almost opposite the House of Parliament at Westminster. Lambeth Palace has been the metropolitan abode of the Archbishops of Canterbury since the twelfth century, the only interruption having been in the Protectorate of Oliver Cromwell.

There the Archbishop of Canterbury resides in great state throughout the London season, his household being maintained on a princely scale, with gentlemen-in-waiting, chaplains, secretaries, purse-bearers and chamberlains.
